DUCE'S FLEET CAUGHT OUT

84-Day Hun Air Siege Costs 2,375 Planes to Loss of 375 R.A.F. Pilots

50,000 PAMPHLETS DETAILING BRITISH FIGHTERS' EPIC THAT SAVED ISLES, WARSAW AND ROTTERDAM FATE ARE SOLD OUT IN 48 HOURS AND ANOTHER 300,000 ORDERED.

LONDON, March 29 — (CP). — Germany's 84-day air siege of Britain from August 8 to October 31, 1940, cost Germany a total of 2,375 aircraft "known to have been destroyed in daylight," the British Air Ministry says in a 32-page booklet.

The pamphlet, which compares the struggle of the Royal Air Force to those historic epics of Marathon, Trafalgar and the Marne, was sold out yesterday less than 48 hours after going on sale. Only 50,000 copies were printed because the Government, owing to the newsprint shortage, preferred to print too few rather than too many. A second printing of 300,000 was ordered.

"Truly this was a great deliverance, but it was not achieved without cost," the pamphlet says. "The R.A.F. lost 375 pilots killed and 358 wounded.

The figure of 2,375 destroyed Nazi aircraft "takes no account of those lost at night or those seen by the thousands staggering back to their French bases, wings and fuselage full of holes, ailerons shot away, engines smoking . . . a shattered and disordered armada."

Without the R.A.F. fighting their five and six-mile high battles at 300 miles an hour, English southern towns in a few days would have suffered the fate of Warsaw and Rotterdam, the Ministry declared.

But here's what the Nazis were listed as accomplishing in their 84 days of almost continuous assaults:

Greek Units Lend Aid As Cunningham Forces Sea Battle

LONDON, March 29—(CP). —The Admiralty announced today that British and Greek naval forces joined battle with Italian warships in the Eastern Mediterranean and that so far "at least one Littorio class battleship has been damaged" and two enemy cruisers severely damaged.

(One ship of the 35,000-ton Littorio class was badly crippled in the British torpedo plane attack on the Italian naval base at Taranto November 11, and British sources have said they believed it is not yet repaired.

(According to best information, Italy had only two ships of the Littorio class. They are armed with nine 15-inch guns, 12 six-inch and 12 3.5-inch anti-aircraft guns as well as 40 anti-aircraft machine guns. They carry three air planes).

"Naval operations of some importance are taking place in the the Eastern Mediterranean. So far only preliminary reports are available, but from these it appears that yesterday our naval forces operating under the command of Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham sighted Italian forces consisting of battleships, cruisers and destroyers.

"The enemy force scattered, but some units have been brought to action and it appears that so far at least one Littorio class battleship has been damaged and that two enemy cruisers are very badly damaged.

"Naval aircraft and units of the Royal Air Force have carried out attacks, th results of which are not yet known. Greek naval forces are taking part in these operations. Further information will be issued as soon as it is available."

In a speech at Brighton, England, A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, told his audience the news of the battle and, referring to the battleship and two cruisers, said: "I hope maybe they are sunk. I don't think there is much left of their destroyers."

Army Races Italians For Asmara

Gives Fleeing Legions No Time To Stop In 42-Mile Dash

CAIRO, Egypt, March 29.—(AP). —Fast British mechanized forces were reported to-day to be slashing at the heels of Italian troops retreating from Cheren to Asmara in an effort to take the Eritrean capital before new defensive positions can be organized.

British advance units were said to be passing hundreds of exhausted Italians along the smooth 42-mile road leading from mountainous Cheren to the capital, leaving them to surrender to larger British forces moving up more slowly.

Informed sources said the Fascist troops, including crack units of Grenadiers, Bersaglieri and Alpinists who held out at Cheren for seven weeks, were given no time to stop at any of several places adaptable for stubborn resistance.

In Ethiopia British forces were believed taking up positions preparatory to a smashing assault on Diredawa, whose fall would isolate the Italian defenders of the Ethiopian capital by severing the Addis-Ababa-Jibuti railroad.

The British forces moved north for the attack from the walled town of Harar, 40 miles away, whose fall was announced two days ago.

He also saw other Japanese diplomats from European capitals and had a talk with Marshal Goering. He is preparing to depart for Rome Sunday afternoon.

Yugoslav 'Strong Man'

General Simovich has informed Germany that fulfilment of the terms of the Axis pact would be "impossible because it would be contrary to the will of the Yugoslav people.

See War Course Hinging On Yugoslavia

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP) —The United States today watched fast-paced developments in Yugoslavia for the answers to explosive questions vitally affecting the war's threatened sweep into southeastern Europe and Asia.

President Roosevelt emphasized American interest in the future independence of Yugoslavia in a message congratulating 17 year old King Peter II on his ascension to the throne.

The President's message to the boy King of "a brave and independent people" followed Acting State Under-Secretary Sumner Welles' pledge of material assist-

SureCanada's Wheat All Needed

Ross Sees Call Soon; Gardiner Assures Ontario Protection

OTTAWA, Mar. 29 — (CP). — Confidence that all the wheat that can be produced in Canada will be needed "and needed badly" before the war is over has been expressed in the House of Commons by Gordon Ross (Lib. Moose Jaw), a wheat grower in Western Canada for 30 years.

Mr. Ross spoke yesterday afternoon in the debate on agriculture estimates. While he said production would not exceed ultimate demand he did not oppose the Government's proposal to cut wheat acreage this year by 9,000,000 acres.

But another Liberal, H. A. McKenzie, who represents the Ontario riding of Lambton-Kent, definitely opposed the proposal to bonus Western farmers at $4.00 an acre for leaving wheat acreage in summerfalow this year, and at $2.00 an acre for sowing wheat lands to coarse grain.

Opposition Leader Hanson, in a long address in which he reviewed the wheat problem for the last 20 years, opposed the whole 1941-42 policy apart from the idea of restricting acreage.

He would not bonus Western farmers for doing what their intelligence should tell them to do, he said, but he would have them paid a price that would be on a parity with other

No Defeat In Unity

Alexander Sees U.K., U.S. Equal To Task

BRIGHTON, England, March 29—(CP Cable).—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, said at a war weapons week inaugural today that he did not believe the combined strength of the English-speaking democracies can be defeated or ultimately robbed of complete victory.

"I do not believe, great and hideous as may be the task which lies before us and heavy though the tribulation through which we must pass will be, that the two great English-speaking democracies—the British Commonwealth and the United States of America—will ever relinquish the task until freedom is secured.

"Make no mistake: If we were defeated we should perish. Let no one think that any compromise or peace terms would be possible with Hitler in such a case.

"We are not seeking dictatorship, nor the acquisition of territory. We seek freedom, the quiet way of life, and means to exchange the products of labor unmolested. That must apply not only to the English-speaking democracies but to all the peoples of the world. We must not therefore be vainglorious or selfish in our war effort or our peacemaking."

Trying The Blockade

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, March 29.

THREE Axis merchantmen left Brazilian ports last night and early today in an apparently coordinated effort to penetrate the British blockade.

The German freighter Dresden, 5,567 tons, had not been reported for 11 hours after sailing from Santos last night. She had a crew of 50.

The Italian oil tanker Franco Martelli, 10,535 tons, left Recife with a cargo of oil and a crew of 50 or 60. The Italian freighter Frisco, 4,610 tons, left Fortaleza with a crew of 20 or 30 aboard.

Just Cat Calls

BERLIN, March 29—(AP) Nazi spokesmen asserted today that German Minister Viktor von Heeren was received by a Belgrade crowd with "insulting calls and whistles" as he participated in church services incidental to the enthronement yesterday of King Peter II of Yugoslavia.

(Dispatches from Belgrade yesterday said Von Heeren attended the ceremony amid a cold silence which contrasted with frenzied ovations for British, United States and Russian diplomats).

Germans Hoping Croat Split Will Save Day

BERLIN, March 29 —(AP)—German observers hopefully watched Yugoslav Vice Premier Vladimir Macke's meeting with his Croat party lieutenants at Zagreb today for signs of a possible split between Croats and Serbs which might indicate Yugoslavia's next move.

Germans claimed that although there had been anti-Nazi demonstrations at Belgrade, where the new Yugoslav government rejected the three-power pact, the Croat capital at Zegreb apparently had not thrown its heart into Thursday's political explosion.

That explosion, in which a new government took power, was described in Berlin as a Serb military coup.

(Dispatches from Belgrade said the new government of Premier General Dusan Simovic under young King Peter II would neither ratify nor renounce the pact of Axis alliance the old government signed at Vienna Tuesday but would observe a policy of strict neutrality.

(The Yugoslav government was reported solidifying its position in

Berlin Orders Nazis Home; Danube Shut

Belgrade Keeps Nazis Waiting Reply, British Women Leave

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 29 (AP)—The German legation today ordered even German newspaper men to leave Yugoslavia in the apparent conviction that the new Yugoslav government will offer no acceptable compromise to Axis wishes.

The British legation, apparently expecting that Yugoslavia will become a theatre of war, ordered women and children to leave.

The government, facing the possibility of an internal rift with Croat minority leaders, kept Germany waiting for an answer to her renewed demands for a definite, written statement of Yugoslav foreign policy.

More than a score of German newspapermen were involved in the legation order, and only two were permitted to remain with the diplomatic staff.

Equally as significant of the Nazi attitude was the order of German Commercial Air Line, Lufthansa, cancelling all flights over Yugoslav territory.

The Yugoslav government suspended traffic of German barges and other craft on the Danube river.

The Yugoslax general staff conferred with the German minister, Viktor von Heeren. German sources said they sought to smooth the difficulties caused by the popular demonstrations.

A German courier arriving from Athens declared he saw the train carrying former Regent Prince Paul cross the Greek frontier yesterday.

Von Heeren was reported to have delivered a new note last night, apparently reflecting Nazi dissatisfaction with the new cabinet's declaration yesterday that Yugoslavia

Troopship Hit?

Berlin, March 29 (AP)

THE German high command claimed today that a long-range German bomber attacked a British troop transport in the Atlantic about 310 miles west of Cape Wrath, Scotland, and forced the soldiers to take to lifeboats.

(Comment on this German claim was not immediately available in London.)

In the same region a 2,500-ton ship sank and a large steamship was hit in other attacks, the German communique claimed.

Ice Delays Big Lake Season

Tankers, Freighters Ready In Score Of Ports For War Splurge

TORONTO, Mar. 29 — (CP). — Jingling coins in the pockets of defence workers and the wartime fervor to feed the hungry maws of furnaces are expected to make 1941 the busiest Great Lakes shipping season in history.

In half a dozen great ports along the lakes, tankers, freighters, and grain-carriers are straining at their hawsers awaiting the opening of navigation, expected earlier than the usual April 15 in the lower lakes this year. Ice conditions, however, may cause some delay in the Lake Superior area.

Shipping men anticipate that wartime prosperity will make heavy demands on facilities for handling package freight. Defence programs on both sides of the international boundary will speed up movement of ore from Lake Superior mines. Grain, stored up all winter in the North-west elevators, will start its golden flow eastward in a heavier stream.

Marine men in some ports expect a little difficulty in getting men to man the craft because of the movement of seamen into the armed forces and war industry. This difficulty is not expected to occur in American ports.

However, most shipping men agree that it is still too early to say just what the situation will be. Skippers in Georgian Bay ports say there is no shortage of crews there.

Streams of grain have been pouring for some time into freighters berthed at the great wheat ports at the Lakehead. Twenty-four vessels have already been loaded and are awaiting the dash for eastern ports. War industries of Port Arthur and Fort William and the demands of their wage-earners are expected to swell the tide of incoming freight.

Grain shippers say that the disposal of some of the eastern wheat stocks will start the flow of grain moving freely and keep available bottoms busy.

Other Men Go To Raft That Only 4 Of 15 Escape

HALIFAX, March 29 — (CP) — Men from the forecastle and from the bridge, from the navy and the merchant marine, shared today in the acclaim that goes to heroes as the unfolding story of M.M.C.S. Otter turned up new individual acts of gallantry.

The names of three Canadian navy ratings, a Royal Navy lieutenant and a Polish merchant seaman went down at the head of the roll of courage. Undoubtedly, there were others who earned he honor as 19 navymen died and 22 others lived through the accidental destruction of the patrol vessel; but theirs were the first feats recalled as survivors retold their experiences last night.

'Open Warfare' Upon Prairie

Western Camps Great Training Grounds For Latest Tricks

WINNIPEG, March 29—(CP). — Rugged young Canadians undergoing training at army camps in Manitoba are learning all the tricks and technique of mobile and open country warfare developed and perfected by their comrades on active service in the Motherland.

Since 1939 sprawling Shila Camp, 125 miles west of Winnipeg, has become the hub of military activity on the Prairies.

During the coming summer hundreds of recruits will receive initial training at camps in Brandon, Portage La Prairie and Fort William, all established since the outbreak of war. They will train with youths called up under the Compulsory Military Plan. Later they will pass on to advanced classes and on graduation will be ready for service either with home defence or active army units.

Following their intensive course of basic training the men are gradually introduced to conditions and situations they may expect to encounter on the battlefield. They are sent out on day and night patrols, and participate in tactical exercises and full scale manoeuvres, often in co-operation with motorized formations and aircraft.

In a recent exercise men from Manitoba's infantry centre were given the task of relieving a supposedly besieged city. The operation produced almost all the situations of a real battle except for the shot and shell.

Lieut. James H. Walker, weapon training officer, said the exercises had proved extremely valuable not only to the land forces but also to the co-operating air and mechanized formations.

Prairie youths, he said, quickly grasp fundamentals in army training apart from routine drill they were making encouraging headway in the technique of anti-tank tactics, combatting attacking aircraft and harrassing advancing infantry.

Retain Junior Exhibition For Peterboro

"I don't want our neighbors, Lindsay or Lakefield, to think we are selfish about this, but one of the conditions on which H. A. Morrow gave us the Exhibition Park was that it was to be used for agricultural purposes, and we'd like to carry on this year at least the Junior branch." Tom Brown, president of the Peterborough Exhibition said Friday, at a meeting of district agricultural representatives and others interested in this well-established department of the Exhibition.

It had been suggested that if accommodation could not be obtained here, the Junior section might be transferred to Lakefield or Lindsay.

A resolution by M. H. Winter of Lindsay, seconded by E. A. Summers of Bowmanville, that the Junior "exhibition" be held here during the last week of August, was adopted. The exact two-days dates have not been set, and the detail of location was left to a committee composed of Mayor Hamilton, Tom Brown, Gordon Hancock, Allan Brown and Frank Paterson.

"You all know that the military authorities have taken over our grounds," Mr. Brown said, "but we are anxious about carrying on some part of our show this year. We have certain terms of trust to meet, and while Mr. Morrow is with us we know there is nothing to fear, but we don't want to let all our agricultural efforts drop this year. That is the sentiment of all the directors."

"I don't think you need to worry about the financing," Mayor Hamilton remarked. The city has already appropriated $250 to have the Junior branch of the Exhibition held here, Gordon S. Matthews has promised his support again, the Exhibition Board has some funds, and it is expected that the County Council might consider a grant in June. The total amount required is about $700.

A. H. Martin, Toronto, Director of Junior Farm Work; Miss Florence Eadie of the Women's Institute Branch, and Miss Jean Scott of the Girls' Branch of the Department of Agriculture, attended the meeting. Mr. Paterson presided.

The location committee is expected to enquire about the possibility of using the eastern section of Exhibition Park, but if that cannot be arranged, it is likely that the show will take place at Riverside Park, and the Girls' Department will be assigned to the Market Hall. Those are tentative arrangements.

Mac Gordon of Canada Packers suggested financial support for clubs in baby beef cattle, and promised that if the boys of Central Ontario take up this work the carcasses will be auctioned at the show, buyers will be invited from Toronto, and the Junior members will go home with cash in their pockets instead of having the animals they raise returned to the herds at home. The meeting is continuing this afternoon.

Among those who attended were: M. H. Winter, E. A. Summers, H. L. Fair of Stirling, Ian McLeod of Brighton, F. J. Webster of Picton and others.

TORONTO, Mar. 29 — (CP). — Round the all-important commodity of milk loomed to-day a storm that should eclipse any outbreak in the Ontario Legislature to date. Rumblings of the impending blow came yesterday when amendments to the Milk Control Act came up for second reading.

would be unable to fulfil the terms of her membership in the axis alliance.

Dr. Vladimir Macek the homespun leader of several million Croats and vice-premier in this cabinet as well as in that of the deposed Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic, appeared to hold the key to the future development of the nation's domestic and foreign fate.

Vital Zagreb Session.

He deliberated with his lieutenants in Zagreb for hours yesterday, but early today was said to be still undecided whether to stick with the Cabinet of Premier Gen. Dusan Simovic or retire into the opposition ranks in which he fought for two decades until he won an agreement with Cvetkovic in 1939 for Croation home rule.

A Yugoslav army of 1,200,000 men was massed on the kingdom's northern and eastern frontiers, apparently to back yesterday's decision of non-compliance with the Axis pact. The question, however, of whether the Government would accede to Nazi wishes to fulfill all terms of the pact or fight was shoved, temporarily at least, into the background.

The dominant question here was whether the internal unity of this nation of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, first realized only a few weeks before the war began would be jeopardized again—with all that such disunity would imply for national defence and a united front against Germany and Italy.

Huns Move More Troops.

A neutral diplomat arriving n Ankara, Turkey, from Bucharest last night, said Germany was sending 200,000 more troops into Bulgaria to augment a force of more than 300,000 already there. Unofficial reports said British troop landings continued in Greece.)

Macek's newspaper, Hrvatski Dnevnik, said in an editorial this morning that the vice-premier would not decide to stay or quit until he received a full report on the new situation. His friends said he was demanding of Simovic:

1. A pledge that Croatian home rule will not only be maintained but even increased.

2. Complete neutrality and peace with all Yugoslavia's neighbors.

He was said to fear that Croatia the northern province of the kingdom, would bear the first fury of an axis attack and thus desired fulfilment of Tuesday's commitments in Vienna.

(Significantly, Berlin reported that a German war film—perhaps depicting the Polish or French campaigns—was shown in the Croatian capital of Zagreb last night. Such films often have been shown prior to German military occupations to impress upon spectators the might of the Nazi military machine.

Macek's newspaper vigorously attacked some of the men in the Simovic cabinet, charging they opposed Croatian home rule. The governor of Croatia, however, was understood to be negotiating for continued Croat representation in the cabinet.

No Time Limit On Reply

In Belgrade, 17-year-old King Peter II, who announced that he had assumed the title of general of aviation on taking power Thursday, conferred early today with Premier Simovic, presumbaly with reference to the Von Heeren note, which reliable quarters said apparently did not fix a time limit for a reply.

Von Heeren was said to have informed Gen. Simovic that Hitler considers Yugoslavia's signature on the Axis pact binding whether Peter and parliament ratify it or not. The cabinet informed Von Heeren yesterday that the pact would not be denounced but added that neither will it be ratified.

The Von Heeren note was said to contain a protest against the beatings of German nationals in Thursday's street demonstrations as well as a demand for clarification of the Yugoslav position in writing.

(National Broadcasting Company in New York picked up a broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation last night quoting a Belgrade, Yugoslavia, report as saying Von Heeren had been recalled to Germany after the audience with Simovic.)

Panama has just opened its first legation in Tokyo, Japan.

St. Catharines Eliminates P.C.I. Team

TORONTO, March 29 — (CP). — St. Catharines Collegiate and Albert College of Belleville will meet today in the Senior boys' final for the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association basketball championship, with Welland High and Vocational School tangling with Orillia Collegiate in the Junior final.

In semi-finals last night, St. Catharines eliminated Peterborough Collegiate 31-23, and Albert College defeated Orillia 44-32.

The Belleville Juniors from Albert College, however, were unable to repeat the sucess of the Seniors, bowing to Orillia's Juniors 26-12. This was a game between the stylists from Belleville who carried more of the play and the fast-breaking Orillians, who took advantage of swift breaks to get their scores.

The other Junior game went to Welland, who defeated Cobourg 26-13.

In the Junior game, Barnett of Welland Barge of Cobourg were the high scorers, each with eight points. Karnahan was a standout defensively for the winners. Welland led at half time 14-0, and pulled away to their commanding edge by outscoring Cobourg 12-3 in the final half.

St. Catharines led Peterborough 19-8 at half-time, but the Peterborough club rallied brilliantly for a time in the second half, drawing within three points at one time, only to have St. Catharines pull away toward the end.

Des Partridge, Belleville's Senior centre, led his club to victory, scoring 22 points. The Albert College players were the more aggressive and their sharp-shooting forwards thrilled the spectators with accurate shooting. Scott and McGill were best for Orillia.

Buried In The Arctic

Washington, March 29 (AP)

LEAVING behind them costly stores of equipment buried indefinitely in the polar snows, the men of the United States Antarctic expedition voyaged homeward today after almost two years at the bottom of the world.

Officials in radio communication with the historic cutter Bear disclosed that the 36 men evacuated by plane earlier this week from the expedition's ice-bound east base left behind everything they could not bring out on their backs or in their pockets.

Work of the expedition ended prematurely when congress refused to vote any further funds in addition to two appropriations totalling $521,000.

Fire Destroys Home Near Bancroft

BANCROFT, Marh 29.—(ENS).—Fire of unknown origin totally destroyed the farm home of I. McKenzie, ex-reeve of Faraday township late Friday afternoon.

The two storey frame house is located on Highway 28 seven miles west of Bancroft, and no person was in the house when the fire started. Mr. McKenzie was doing some chores at the barn, and he arrived at the house about the same time as a group of highway workers and neighbors. The interior was an inferno and they were unable to save any of the furniture.

Mrs. McKenzie was visiting a neighbor, Mrs. R. Jackson, about a quarter of a mile distant. The loss is partially covered by insurance and the total damage will exceed $3,000.

Army Leaders Are Welcomed

Colonel Hoggard, principal of the Salvation Army training school, Toronto, and his staff and a large company of cadets, eighty altogether, were welcomed by Alderman Gordon, Mayor Hamilton and Judge Smoke at a civic luncheon in the Y.W.C.A. Friday afternoon.

COL. HOGGARD

As chairman of the council's reception committee, Alderman Gordon presided. Other members of the council were present, and Rev. C. C. Boyter, president of the Ministerial Association.

Cadets Rennick and Jewell replied on behalf of the visitors thanking the city and its council for the kindly and warm greetings.

Judge Smoke congratulated the cadets on their choice of life work and their present attainments. "By your teaching and activities you can do much to bring order out of chaos in this troubled world. I know of no other religious institution which goes further in its efforts to help those in distress or in bringing religion to people who would otherwise be deprived of it," His Honor said.

The Cadets are in charge of week-end services at the Temple and will present the pageant "Crusaders of the Cross" Monday night.

Niagara Falls scored an easy 27-10 win over Bowmanville in the Senior semi-final, after a low 8-4 lead at half-time. Two Cruisers

11-12, it was stated, aerial torpedoes left one battleship of the new Littorio class badly down by the bows while another battleship of the 23,622-ton Conti Di Cavour class was beached with her stern and turret under water.

Two cruisers were also listed as badly damaged. The British communique at that time said "the total strength of the Italian battle fleet was six battleships, two of the Littorio class . . . and four of the recently constructed Cavour class." as a result of the attack, the Admiralty added, probably only three Italian battleships were left effective.

The Admiralty announced that on Nov. 27 the fleet caught an Italian squadron at sea west of Sardinia and scored hits on a new battleship, four cruisers and two destroyers before the Italians escaped.

Since then, the fleet has repeatedly patrolled the Mediterranean in a vain effort to lure the Italian fleet from port.

(On Feb. 23 Mussolini claimed in a speech at Rome that two of the battleships damaged in the Taranto raid had been repaired and virtually were ready to return to service.)

CAIRO, March 29.—(AP).—British bombers in force made a heavy and successful attack on Italian warships in the Ionian sea, hitting two cruisers and one destroyer by heavy bombs, Royal Air Force headquarters announced to-day.

The three ratings volunteered to give up their seats in a crowded lifeboat so it could go back to their skipper. They transferred to a raft, from which only four of 15 men who started off on it were taken alive.

Wallace O'Hara of Westmount, Que., one of the volunteers, died of exposure aboard the raft as it tossed in the stormy sea awaiting help after the patrol boat burned. Thomas Guildford of Bedford, N.S., and John H. Slavin of Verdun, Que., the others of the trio, were saved.

Seamen who went through the experience had praise for the three. "They were willing to sacrifice their own lives to save others under the most difficult of circumstances, said Ab. Earl Edwards of Dartmouth, N.S.

Guildford, last man alive on the raft, held off rescuers, who wanted him to leave until he had made sure O'Hara was dead. By then, he had drifted so far from a rescuing warship that a rope could not be thrown to him.

Military Camp Officers Pleased With Entertainment Provided

With the coming of spring and outdoor activities at the Training Centre showing a daily increase, few citizens of Peterborough realize the debt of gratitude due to the various organizations of the city who since last October have given of their time and talent to entertain the various groups of troops who have been trained at the Exhibition Grounds Camp.

The appreciation felt by the officers and other members of the administrative and training staff of the Centre has been voiced on many occasions by Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., officer commanding the Centre to Adjutant B. M. Bamsey, of the Salvation Army Hut, who has been responsible for the arrangement of the larger number of the programs presented and also to Rev. Captain V. E. R. Zufelt, Protestant chaplain, and to Captain Rev. Dr. Grant, Catholic chaplain, who on many occasions have given their cooperation in arranging for entertainment for the troops.

All Churches Help

Concert parties from various church and fraternal organizations as well as many from the industrial plants of the city and also from the cultural groups have appeared at the Centre many times in the past six months and on all occasions they have presented an entertainment which won the enthusiastic approval of the troops and the gratitude of those responsible for the training. Time after time when various entertainment groups from industries in the city have appeared at the "Sally Ann" Hut they have been accompanied by the managers of the plants despite the fact their factories have been busy on war orders.

The entertainment offered on each occasion has been of hig calibre, and during the past week the latest group of recruits reaching the Centre to undergo a longer period of training than any previous group have been loud of their praise of the entertainments which ended last evening with an "amateur night" presented by the recruits themselves.

Irish Play Is Tops

A sample of the entertainment this week and which has been no exception to the rule since the opening of the Centre follows: On Monday evening a full length feature film with sound effects, "They Ride by Night" was shown. Tuesday evening the Peterborough Entertainers presented a variety program with every number being enthusiastically received. Wednesday evening the St. Alphonsus Society under the direction of Rev. Dr. Masterson presented the comedy, "You Can't Beat the Irish," a production that will long be remembered. On Thursday evening the pupils of the "Mae Perry School of Dancing" from Peterborough, presented a program of dance numbers that made the "Sally Ann" Hut resound with applause.

For the coming week Adjutant Bamsey has another attractive program lined up with a movie program on Monday. Tuesday a variety program will be presented by a number of citizens of the city. Wednesday evening has been given over to members of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., who will give an exhibition of physical training to be followed Thursday evening by a play presented by Trinity United Church Dramatic Society entitled "Here Comes Patricia." The week's entertainment will be concluded on Friday by a variety program featuring Dick Lush and other exponent of sleight of hand performances.

Jesus Christ Commissions His Disciples To Preach

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 23, is Luke 24:36-53, the Golden Text being Luke 24:49. "Behold, I send forth the promise of My Father upon you.")

In last week's lesson, you remember, our Lord was put to death by His enemies and His body was consigned to the tomb of His friend, Joseph of Arimathaea. The women who loved Him "beheld the sepulchre and how the body was laid," and, after procuring spices and ointments to anoint the body, they left Him and went to observe the Sabbath.

Today we omit the scene at the tomb when the Marys went to annoint the body and found it gone, and take up our story when the disciples were gathered together talking, after some of them had seen the Risen Lord.

"And as they thus spake, Jesus Himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them. Peace be unto you," the typical eastern greeting.

In spite of what they had heard of Jesus' resurrection from the dead, the disciples were "terrified and affrightened, and supposed that they had seen a spirit."

"And He said unto them, Why are ye troubled? and why do thoughts arise in your hearts?

"Behold My hands and My feet, that it is I myself; handle Me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see Me have."

Begin to Rejoice

At those words, they began to rejoice, but still could not believe, so Jesus asked them if they had any food, and when they brought some He ate it to show them that it was indeed He risen from the dead.

He reminded them how He had told them before His death that He would rise again to fulfill the law as written in Moses and the prophets concerning Him. "Then opened He their understanding, that they might understand the scriptures."

And further He said, "Thus it is written, and thus it behooved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day:

"And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His name among all the nations, beginning at Jerusalem.

"And ye are witnesses of these things."

The disciples were to start their preaching at Jerusalem, but were told to tarry awhile, "until ye be endued with power from on high" —the Holy Ghost.

Then He led them on the road to Jerusalem as far as Bethany, "and He lifted up His hands and blessed them.

"And it came to pass, while He blessed them, He was parted from them, and carried up into heaven.

All their fear had left them now. The eleve ndisciples left after the tragedy of Judas' treason and self-destruction, were filled with great joy. Heretofore, when they had met together they were in terror of arrest, and were most careful who was admitted to their presence. But their Master had returned, and although He had again been taken away, they had their instructions to spread the gospel throughout the nations and to fear not. So they worshipped Jesus and returned to Jerusalem, with great joy, where they were "continually in the temple," openly praising and blessing God."

Patriotic Service Is Planned

Another unusual and interesting service will be held in St. James' church Sunday evening, March 30th, at 7 p.m., when Captain Winston C. Hicks, recently returned from England, will show moving pictures of life with the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment in England. Residents of Peterborough and district will take this opportunity of seeing these excellent pictures, and hearing the message of an officer of the regiment. Captain Hicks will take one hour to present the moving pictures.

Big Lenten Question

One of the questions that arises at the Lenten period is, why did God allow Jesus to be put to death?

God had resources of power that could have snatched Him from His persecutors even at the last moment. His enemies made it a crucial test when they said "He trusted on God; let Him deliver Him now, if He desireth Him." Jesus took upon Himself, uttered the cry My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me. Yet there was silence and no reply.

We cannot imagine for a moment that God was indifferent and aloof. The motives of God however are hidden in great part. There are some things that we do see.

Jesus death provide an answer to those who send out into the night their cry of sorrow. The Arabs have a proverb says T. E. Lawrence which says 'that no man could be their leader except he ate the ranks' food, wore their clothes, lived level with them, and yet appeared better in himself. George Tyrell, the Roman Catholic Modernist, in his combat with ecclesiastical tryanny and ignorance writes, "Again and again I have been tempted to give up the struggle, but always the figure of that strange man hanging on the cross sends me back to my task again."

This is but a partial answer, an effort will be made to answer the great question more fully in St. Andrew's Church on next Sunday night.

Comfort In the Dark Days Is Offered by Apostle John

By REV. E. R. JAMES

If ye love Me, keep My commandments. St. John 14: 15.

A young carpenter and builder, knowing that next morning He would be dying on the cross, makes His astonishing claim that His movement and teaching will not die. He is speaking to but eleven men, who have been with Him for nearly three years. They have come to love Him. So naturally at this crisis the Master says:—"If ye love Me, ye will keep My commandments" R.V. Not a command but the natural result of deep devotion to Him.

Then He makes the promise, the greatest that can be made:—"I WILL PRAY THE FATHER AND HE SHALL GIVE YOU ANOTHER COMFORTER, THAT HE MAY ABIDE WITH YOU FOR EVER." A great student of this Gospel remind us that the word for "pray" implies the request of an equal and not of an inferior. "I, the well beloved Son, will pray the Father and He shall give you another Comforter."

Peculiar to John

COMFORTER is a word peculiar to St. John's Gospel. A legal phrase common in Greek courts implying an advocate, a lawyer for the defence. Many of you will remember this famous sentence of comfort:—"If any man sin we have an Advocate with the Father, even Jesus Christ the Righteous." In the days of His ministry He was the Advocate and Comforter o the disciples, always ready to defend them when they were attacked. Now He is in Heaven carrying on that work for you and me. He is not visible to us but the Comforter is here, and "He will abide with us for ever."

It is only St. John who clearly tells us of the coming of the Comforter; but there is a hint of that coming in the other Gospels:—"Ye shall be brought before kings and rulers for My sake. Whatsoever shall be given you in that hour speak; for it is not ye that speak but the Holy Ghost. The Spirit of your Father that speaketh in you." St. Mark 13:9.

This is very profound teaching. The Master will depart by way of the Cross. But His cause, His movement will not die. He will rise again and ascend to His Father—Death cannot hold Him—and in due time there will come from the Father and the Son the new spiritual power. He will keep in touch and live in His people by His eternal Spirit.

Sat at Christ's Feet

They are His disciples. Jerome, the great Latin Father, reminded the Church of his day that the disciple was one who sat at the feet of a living teacher, imbibing not only his teaching but also drinking in his personality. Christ died nearly two thousand years ago and He gives His promise that He will draw near to His disciples through His Spirit. He promises them His perpetual presence. "Because I live, ye shall live also." This is the unique, outstanding principle of the Christian religion. No other religion offers this. It is not what you believe but what you know of the living Christ in your personal experience of Him that matters. His Spirit will enter into your heart and slowly transform your character. But first of all He will show you something of the Beauty of the King Himself that you may desire to be like Him. He is the pearl of great price and you will be willing to pay the price.

"I WILL NOT LEAVE YOU COMFORTLESS, I WILL COME TO YOU."

Does this promise come to you with new meaning in these dark days? Spiritual wickedness in high places has been released. How will you stand in the day of darkness? This is the test of your religion. God only knows how fearful the storm will be. It is your privilege to receive strength from the Comforter. It is the Master's desire and will that you shall be a tower of strength to your weak brethren in the day of tribulation. He desires the fulfillment of the prophecy:—"A man, a woman, shall be as the shadow of a rock in a weary land." Your quietness and confidence will be infectious and it will encourage others to stand firm. Let there be no panic or unbelief. Remember "the Lord God omnipotent reigneth." We have His promise "I will come to you." He is the Truth. "We lift up our hearts unto the Lord."

COMFORT YE, COMFORT YE, MY PEOPLE, SAITH THE LORD.

Rev. Herbert W. Piercy, Niagara Falls, Canada, Dramatic Reader and Interpreter of Literature, is a Baptist minister. For the past twenty years Mr. Piercy has devoted all of his time to his special work. He has appeared in practically every part of our Dominion and is well known in the United States. The proof of his popularity is the fact that he returns again and again to the churches where he once is heard and known. Whilst in the city he will be the guest of Rev. H. L. Roberts of George Street Church. Mr. Piercy and Mr. Roberts were neighboring ministers in Niagara Falls, Ontario, for several years. Rev. Christ's Commission — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 24:36-53.

Suddenly Jesus, whom they had seen crucified, stood in the midst of His disciples, and they were "terrified and affrighted, and supposed they had seen a spirit."

Jesus said to them, "Why are ye troubled? And why do thought arise in your hearts? Behold My hands and feet, that it is I myself," and He showed them His wounds.

After Jesus had convinced t he disciples that it was really He, risen, He led them out as far as Bethany. After Jesus had convinced the disthem.

While He blessed them, it came to pass He was parted from them, and carried up into heaven, and they worshipped Him and returned to Jerusalem. (GOLDEN TEXT—Luke 24:49)

SATURDAY, MARCH 29, 1941

All On March 27

London newspapers displayed the fact that March 27 had turned out to be a great day for Britain and her Allies. It was a great day because Yugoslavia had been taken from the clutching hand of the Axis powers, and on the same day Keren had fallen to the British after a battle with the Italians extending over a full seven weeks.

The events in Belgrade, when reviewed after completion, challenge the imagination. A fairly conservative individual might be pardoned for declaring that such things could not come to pass; they were fantastic, and their sequence was too well maintained to be true. It actually began at one o'clock in the morning, and by two o'clock soldiers appeared at the hill-top residence of Premier Cvetkovitch and informed guards on the door to tell him to get up. The answer was, "The President cannot be disturbed." But the Premier was disturbed and when he was taken to General Staff headquarters other members of the cabinet were arriving, and they were still yawning.

The armed forces of the nation fell in with Peter II and with Gen. Dusan Simovich who heads the new government born in revolution. But it was around the new king the crowds in the streets and in the parks centred their demonstrations, and it was this king, who has not yet attained his majority as far as years are concerned, who actually started a fire in the Balkans which Hitler and Goering and all his associates are going to find it difficult to extinguish.

Yugoslavia is credited with being the sixth strongest fighting force in Europe. There are over a million armed men, and not only are they armed men but they are fierce fighters. They have proved that, and now that they know their king has actually ascended to the throne the reason for fighting has gripped the country. One American correspondent in Belgrade described the scene in the city as "the most moving and heartfelt demonstration of pure joy and thanksgiving that this correspondent has ever seen."

One could not well picture such a change coming at a more opportune time. It is difficult to conceive of anything which gives to the free people of the world greater hope for the future. It has nothing passive in it, because of the 1,000,000 armed men, we read that two-thirds of them have already been posted in strategic positions to meet a German invasion.

Hitler's policy had been to use his trigger-men and his pressure leaders to dominate the Balkans, and he wanted to do it in such a way that nothing would happen to disturb the situation and bring about actual conflict. It would suit him splendidly to have everything nice and quiet there, completely under control, so there would be no interruption in the oil flow from Rumania.

The fall of Keren fits into the situation just as it should. Two events could not possibly have coincided to better advantage. Keren has a strategic position in Eritrea, oldest Italian colony in East Africa. It has been stubbornly defended, and there were good and also serious reasons why that place had to be taken. Both were of equal urgence. (1) The rainy season is not far away and that would have put an end to operations, and (2) the British can now see the opportunity close at hand to release thousands of their seasoned men from this campaign for use in the Balkans or elsewhere.

So when all these things came to pass on March 27 it can be easily understood how papers not only in London but in free countries throughout the world might well put a ring around that date and keep it in grateful remembrance.

The Question Of Rent

A Rent Control Board will not operate in Peterborough if the situation is not aggravated by persistent and unreasonable increases in rentals. That is the exact spot in which the question was left by the City Council. There appeared to be a feeling that the coming into operation of a Rent Control Board would give the city a bad name or something like that, and that it would also interfere with the regular building program which has been well sustained in recent years. We are moved to doubt if the city's reputation or good name would be placed on the danger line by reason of a Rent Control Board. It has not produced that effect elsewhere and there is no reason to believe it would here.

As the situation stands at the moment it is pretty much up to the people who have houses for rent. If they are reasonable there will be no Control Board set up here. If they are not reasonable then the Board will come into operation, and that would be right enough.

There have been claims made at times that one should be able to get fair or better rentals because people are employed now, but it is also well to remember that a great many of the employed people have been in that state for years, and also that they are not making—in many cases—any higher wages than they did previously. They have to meet whatever degree of increase comes in the cost of living, and they are not in a financial position to pay more rent in 1941 than they were in any other year.

Our belief is that the decision has been arrived at by the majority of our people that there is not going to be any money made out of this war. We listened yesterday to a recital of the experience of a man who is in the lumber business in a large way. He said there was business to be had at Ottawa, but the prices were all fixed and it was a case of "take it or leave it." He would not lose money by accepting his share of the business, but he was certain he would have to figure close in order to show a profit. He admitted that if prices were such that he was making money then the Government would see to it that they secured nearly all of the profit through the excess profits tax.

Others have made the same discovery, and we believe it indicates a wholesome and desirable state of affairs. There were individuals, a good many of them, who made far too much money out of the agony of the last war, but they are not repeating this time. We suggest that so basic and general a thing as the rental of a house or any other property in war time is directly related to that same principle. So that's where it stands at the moment in Peterborough. If the Rent Control Board starts operations here it will be because there are sufficient complaints to set it in motion.

Making a Decision

The decision made by Yugoslavia to break the deal which bound it to the Axis is more serious than spectacular. It digs too deep to be classed as spectacular and allowed to stay in that class.

It was the making of a great and a grave decision, a decision which the other neighbor nations did not dare to make.

That decision was made with the full knowledge that in the lands around and just across the borders the full military might of Germany was gathered and ready for action.

Yugoslavia is near enough to the scene to see what had been happening to the other lesser nations which had defied Germany. They had been plowed under.

But knowing the situation as it existed, and being fully aware of all that was at stake, Yugoslavia decided. The junior king actually attained his majority overnight.

It was a magnificent demonstration of that fine art of making a decision, and making a decision which was as dangerous as it was courageous.

The patriots of Yugoslavia have made history. They made it in the early hours of the morning. They had the courage to undo the wrong which had been done by those who sought to betray their country, and they had the double courage to entirely reverse the action which had been so maliciously undertaken on their behalf.

The world needs people and nations today who can do that very thing — make a difficult decision and point it in the right direction. Greece did the same thing months ago and Yugoslavia has repeated that memorable move. That nation has taught us something and fired us with high courage.

As It Was On The Tenth

A report coming from Lambton county stated that one farmer had already made a start with his spring planting. That was on the 25th of March. Early to be sure, but it does not constitute a record, as there was one season a number of years ago when seed was going in on the 15th of March.

On Lot Four, Concession Ten, grandfather always assumed the role of inspector-General or something like that about this time of year. As soon as the snow had lifted from the fall wheat he had to cast his eye over the situation. If there had been one of those seasons when there had been much ice on the field, and if it had remained there weeks on end, grandfather used to sigh in advance. He knew what to expect, and he could see the brown spots before he ever went near the field.

Just what he expected to by looking at the field so many times no person ever seemed to know and we never learned the reason since. The hired man used to say if the damage had been done then it could not be undone, but grandfather was unmoved by such nonsense. He wanted to see what a bit of spring rain would do to the brown spots before he went into action. On the nights when it froze and when it would thaw in the daytime grandfather sighed more than ever. He'd threaten to get the land roller in action to make the roots stay in the ground instead of getting heaved out.

This time of year the folk in the house could not get him to lay a hand on anything else in the way of a chore or a lift. The situation called for a good deal of what might be called cogitation or something of the like. We all knew what would happen if the brown spots persisted in staying that way. Those spots would have to be loosened up and some mixed grain would be put there and raked in so the ground would produce something.

Then there was that other job which used to consume much of his time. There was no certified seed on the Tenth, and grandfather was fussy about the oats. He never could make up his mind in a hurry and when he did come to a decision then the first act was to put the seed oats through the fanning mill. The rest of the family declared that grandfather used to look them over one at a time judging by the way he stewed over the seed oats. It took quite a while to get the screens well cleaned out because the fanning mill had been standing idle for a long time. Turning the fanning mill and doing it to grandfather's liking was about as welcome a job as making the barnyard pump go on a hot day in August when there was no breeze to turn the windmill. Grandfather did the engineering and gave the directions, but other hands did the heavy work on the handle of the machine.

Between seed oats and brown patches in the fall wheat field it was an uncomfortable time of year on the Tenth. Grandfather always sniffed ruin afar off, and he seemed to extract some sort of moody pleasure from a situation which possibly never would develop into anything serious. But those two items provided him with the best of reasons for not having to bother with any of the lesser chores around the house or barn, and we always had the feeling that grandfather liked to keep the suspense and the preparation in existence as long as possible.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It's difficult for the unhappy bride to go back to her mother if said mother has started moving about in a trailer.

Women are not of the same opinion about serving on juries. There are some of 'em who do like, though, to lay down the law at home.

One thing about those pre-fabricated houses which may be placed in town is that it ought to be easy to shove them about when the assessor starts coming down the block.

Police were called to a house in New York because the dog had his tail caught in the wringer. The lady of the house did not know whether to reverse the machine or put the rest of the dog through.

Opposition in developing to the building of four-lane highways in war time. It will turn out that the localities getting such roads will favor the building, while those some distance away will be opposed.

TOO BAD

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Now Mr. A lives down the street, a very pleasant chap to meet, he's friendly like with me; behind him just a little way, another friend of Mr. A, we'll call him Mr. B.

¶ This Mr. A is fond of flowers, he works among them by the hours, he dotes upon their bloom; he had some hotbeds in the sun, he seeds them down there one by one, and works a while at noon.

¶ But Mr. B has different taste, this growing flowers to him's a waste, for poultry is his craze; and he takes prizes at the show, and cleans up everywhere he'll go, he says his hobby pays.

¶ Thus Mr. B's prize chickens came, and gazed upon the hothouse frame, and found the earth was soft; they scratched and dusted there a while, they almost wore a happy smile, and at the danger scoffed.

¶ But Mr. A he found them there, his voice disturbed the peaceful air, I guess he lost his head; he took a hammer and a brick, his action was direct and quick, and one prize hen was dead.

¶ So friendship that was born of years, has gone today and stripped its gears, it's left I know not whence; and all because B's fancy troupe, instead of staying in their coop—got out and jumped the fence.

CAP and BELLS . .

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

IT SEEMS to be a characteristic of civilized man that he 'gets religion' every hundred years or so; in the spring of every century, between the thirties and forties, a new influence makes itself felt in the world of theology. It was at this time in the in the sixteenth century that Henry VIII dissolved the monasteries and established the Church of England with himself as its head; it was during the fourth decade of the seventeenth century that Puritanism became a power to be reckoned with in England; a century later John Wesley began seriously his missioh to the poor of England; a century later the Oxford Movement jolted the Established Church with a reminder that it was a sacred, and not a social, institution; and now, in 1941, we hear the first rumblings of a revolution in modern theology.

C & B

Last year the famous Gifford lectures in Natural Theology at the University of Edinburgh were given by an American theologian, Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr. To be asked to deliver these lectures is one of the greatest honors that can be conferred on a theologian and it is one which does not fall to the lot of second-rate men. Perhaps the most famous series ever given was delivered by the American philosopher, William James, in 1902, and was reprinted as a book under the title "Varieties of Religious Experience." The conclusion of James' lectures is notable: "The visible world is part of a more spiritual universe from which it draws its chief significance; union with the higher universe is our true end; spiritual energy flows in and produces effects within the phenomenal world." It may well be that Dr. Niebuhr's lectures will create an even greater stir than did James', for while those of the earlier American theologian were primarily intellectual in their interest, these concern every man, intelligent or not, Christian believer or not.

C & B

For many years Dr. Niebuhr has been the chief exponent of Christian Liberalism. It is not possible to sum up this doctrine in a few words, for, among other things, it was never very clear, even to its most ardent supporters. Roughly, Christian Liberalism meant the belief that man was really a very good fellow at heart, though given to doing nasty things from time to time. But he did these nasty things because he was ignorant; no one, it was assumed, would knowingly do a wicked thing. This did away comfortably with the idea of sin, and also, to some extent, with the idea of personal responsibility. If you are a church-goer you may have heard this belief preached from your pulpit, unless your minister is a fire-breathing evangelical, every Sunday. Scholars will recognize in Christian Liberalism some distorted and weakened remnants of Plato's philosophy, as derived from Socrates. You may think that I have been unfair in my description of this school of theology and probably I have; it was one of those fence-straddling, problem-evading, shapeless beliefs to which it is difficult to be fair. Such was the doctrine of Reinhold Niebuhr.

C & B

BUT now Dr. Niebuhr is 48, and he has changed his mind. He has changed it, he says, over the period between Versailles and Munich because he does not find that Christian Liberalism squares with life as he sees it. Now Dr. Niebuhr is a man of powerful intellect and great ability as a preacher; he could even make Christian Liberalism sound good. When he changes his mind, therefore, we may be sure that he has done so honestly, and that his views at 50 are likely to be a good deal sounder than they were at 30. But what a change he has made! It is a complete right-about-face.

C & B

Dr. Niebuhr has become convinced that man has sin at the very root of his nature, and that his whole life is occupied with a struggle to overcome it or in a wicked subservience to it. No longer does he proclaim that sin is mere ignorance; he now declares it to be pride and self-righteousness, or, as older theologians put it, vainglory. Every man is responsible to God for the conquest of sin within himself, and there can be no evasion of this responsibility. This conviction has important political implications. Communism, the doctrine of Karl Marx that the workers must inherit the earth, is incompatible with this new view, for such a doctrine begets pride in the hearts of the workers, who, says Dr. Niebuhr, are no more likely to be godly than are capitalists. Fascism, or the Nietzchean doctrine of the superman, is also impossible, for it is pride in its most vicious form. And the doctrines of Sigmund Freud must go too, for they provide a too simple excuse for wickedness and escape from responsibility. This is certainly revolutionary; it banishes the three most popular substitutes for religion existing in the world today.

C & B

Many of us will welcome Dr. Niebuhr's restatement of this old problem of personal responsibility, though we may not swallow it whole. Undoubtedly one of the most sickening things about the modern world is the amount of buck-passing and evasion of responsibility that goes on in all phases of life. Whatever happens, it is always somebody else's fault; it is the Communists, or the Capitalists, or the Fascists, or the Democracies who make life unbearable; it is never OUR fault that anything goes wrong. It would be a wonderful thing if we could rid the world of this weak-kneed manner of thinking.

CAREFUL, SIR!

"I'll wager they call you their fairy godmother or something—What?" —London Daily Herald.

• Israel and Judah Not Same

EDITOR EXAMINER: Sir,—Permit me once again to reply to Mr. Tatham's letter of March 20 in which he writes: "Paul says he was of the stock of Israel of the tribe of Benjamin" and I take it Mr. Tatham uses this as an argument that the terms "Judah and Israel" are synonymous. But Paul claimed to be a Jew, and also a Roman—are these terms also synonymous? Of course not, but when all circumstances are taken into account and a little common sense applied it is easy to understand the distinction.

British Israel does not deny that the tribe of Judah (and therefore our Lord) came "of Israel." Jacob (who was Israel) had 12 sons of whom Judah was one so we agree with Mr. Tatham on that point. Certainly Paul and James speak of the "12 tribes scattered abroad"; that is just what we have stated, the 12 tribes "were" scattered (not congregated in Palestine). At Pentecost we are told (Acts 2-5) "there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, devout men out of every nation under heaven." Yet in verse 9 it states they were "Parthians and Medes and Elamites, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia and in Judea and Cappadacia in Pontus and Asia Phrygia, and Pamphilia in Egypt—Libya and Rome, but evidently Jews by religion, yet Peter said in verse 14, "Ye men of Judea and all ye that dwell at Jerusalem," and in verse 22 "Ye men of Israel." Is this contradicting? Certainly not if one reads with common sense. From verse 22 onwards he is giving a general exposition of God's dealing with Israel by sending to them the Redeemer in fulfillment of prophecy; but in verses 14-21, he was particularly addressing "Ye that dwell at Jerusalem" not the Parthians, Medes dwelling in Mesopotamia, etc.

In quoting I Cor. 10 Mr. Tatham says "the apostle divides the human race into Jews, Gentiles and the Church of God." "Why doesn't he mention Israelites?" Surely Mr. Tatham cannot be unaware of the fact that the word "Gentile" here is translated Greeks in the margin? Is one then to conclude that the Apostle only knew of three peoples in the world, "Jews, Greeks and the Church of God?" This is a poor kind of reasoning.

The writer then quotes Hosea 8-8, "Israel is swallowed up; now they shall be among the Gentiles as a vessel where-in is no pleasure." Of course: Look at the record in the books of Kings and Chronicles: "For their sins God said he would punish them for seven times" if they forsook Him. See Lev. 26 note verses 17-25, 31, 33, 35. In 2 Kings 17: 7-23 is recorded the fact that God kept His word, but please note the end of the same chapter Lev. 26-44 "And yet for all that, when they be in the land of their enemies, I will not cast them away, neither will I abhor them, to destroy them utterly and to break my covenant with them; for I am the Lord their God.

Then turn to the end of the book of Hosea, after proclaiming this punishment of Israel and the reason for it God says (Hosea 14-4): "I will heal their back-sliding, I will love them freely; for mine anger is turned away from him." Would Mr. Tatham say, "How absurd to apply this passage to Britain," or listen to Jeremiah 51-5. "For Israel hath not been forsaken, nor Judah of his God of the Lord of hosts; though their land was filled with sin against the Holy one of Israel," or in Isaiah 44, 21 and 22 "Remember these O Jacob and Israel; for thou art my servant; I have formed thee: thou art my servant, O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten of me. I have blotted out as a thick cloud, thy transgressions and as a cloud, thy sins: return into me, for I have redeemed thee.' See Isaiah 51 4 and 5, 54, 5 and 9.

Then hear Zacharias as recorded in Luke 1-68 "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel for he hath visited and redeemed His people."

Israel was redeemed by the death of Jesus Christ at his first coming, even a brief study of the Israel law of Redemption would show this. When Jesus comes the second time it will not be to suffer and die as a lamb to redeem, but as a King to reign.

A NOTE ON CHIVALRY

THREE German fliers have escaped from Canadian internment camps into this country. One of them, Baron Franz von Werra, is out on bail. Two of them, Lieutenants Heinz Rottman and Bernhard Gohlke, have been ordered deported to Canada. Germany has appealed the case through the consulate in this city. In Berlin an "authorized spokesman" denounced the action of the immigration officials in strong terms. "If this is true," he declared, "it is hardly a sign of chivalry in a country which delights to call itself the land of the free."

"Chivalry" would no doubt require that we give Messrs. von Werra, Rottman and Gohlke a bunch of roses apiece and a ticket back to Berlin via Tokyo, Vladivostck and Moscow. They could then resume their butchery of British civilians from the air. If this is chivalry, we lack it. If we permit any escaped German airman to strut our streets while we are bending every effort and making heavy sacrifices to help Britain shoot their comrades down we are far more simple-minded than even Berlin can believe us to be.—New York Times.

SANCTUARY

THE problem whether you can take shelter in a place whose existence you don't recognize is one that confronted some London diplomats recently.

Two members of the Soviet Embassy were driving through the West End when an air raid became unusually severe in the neighborhood. Seeing a number of people sheltering in a doorway, they stopped their car and joined them.

The door was opened, and everyone was invited to enter.

"His Excellency will be pleased to offer his hospitality as long as the raid lasts," a secretary announced. Unknowingly they had sought shelter in the Polish Embassy.

The Soviet delegates decided that discretion and valor both demanded their withdrawal, so they hastily moved on to seek shelter elsewhere.—Glasgow Herald.

"A hundred guineas, madam."

"A hundred guineas!" she exploded. "Isn't there something less expensive?"

"Well," replied the surgeon suavely, "you could try walking into a lamp-post."

Car Ferry Is Undergoing Spring Clean Up

COBOURG, March 29—(ENS).—Cobourg's waterfront is rapidly taking on its Spring atmosphere and the icebergs which covered the piers with huge formations of encrusted snow and ice are disappearing swiftly before the advance of the summer-like heat of the sun.

Another sign of Spring is the annual pre-summer cleaning of the Ontario car ferry "No. 1" which goes into the harbor's sheltered eastern corner on Monday to have a small army of men begin the job of painting and cleaning from stem to stern outside, and in the cabins of the freight and passenger boat.

Open Year Around.

The Cobourg harbor has an unique reputation in that it is the only open year around harbor on Lake Ontario. Since the coming of the first big ferry some 35 years ago the local harbor has never been closed to navigation, and the big ships have plied their way back and forth ever since, and as was the case this year, only the severest weather has confined the ship to the shelter of the harbor.

Both Boats Soiled

This year, for the first time since 1933, the two ships Ontario. No. 1 and No. 2, have sailed in conjunction with each other. Traffic has been so heavy this winter season that the services of both ships have been required to keep up with the load of railway freight. The ships are cleaned annually in the Spring in order to be in spic and span shape to accommodate the passenger schedule which begins in the first week of May, and continues through the summer season until late September. The big boats, under command of Captains McCoy and Brydson, with the former being the line's senior officer, replacing Captain Redfern in that position some years ago. Captain Brydson is a "deep water" man, having had experience for many season is command of the coastal type of shipping and other ocean craft.

The two ships cross to Rochester, New York, and tie up at Gensee dock, the lake port of that city, in a little over five hours, and after an hour and a half spent in unloading their string of 29 railway cars, make the return trip in almost the same time.

Facilities Are Good.

Cobourg's facilities for handling the ferry traffic as well as regular lake shipping are the best along the line and after the opening of the regular lake season, April 15, the local harbor will see the busiest season in many years. The ferry boats employ over forty men each and the conditions aboard the ship as to wages, living conditions, etc., are of the highest order.

Thousands of people visit Cobourg every year through the medium of the big white cruisers. Not the least of these many visitors come to see the ships themselves as they go through the delicate operation of tieing up at their slip and covered deck stands.

Officials of the line expect the biggest passenger traffic of the last decade from the United States due to the favorable rate of exchange existing between the two countries. Many major organizations, such as the Shriners make their regular excursion trip to Cobourg via the big boats every summer and many of these are already booked for the 1941 season.

More Transients Seeking Nights' Lodging

COBOURG, March 29.—(ENS—Transients have increased during the first few months of this winter at the local lockup according to police figures. The month of February on the other hand showed a marked decrease over the same period's visiting of the wandering ones last year. The total so far this year is 1288 as against 1303 for last season's complete total.

The month of February showed however a decrease, the figures being 162 registered in 1940 while only 97 looked in for 1941. Constable Donald Erskine said that on the whole most of the visitors were quiet and well-mannered and thoroughly appreciative of the town's hospitality which enambled them to find warm shelter from the winter's blasts. Many of the transients told police they are on their way to hunt jobs on the upper lake boats which are now preparing for the summer season.

The town furnishes a night's lodging to the floating population and are generous in the general treatment accorded the transients.

Mrs. Davis Hostess To Lakefield W.M.S.

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 29—(ENS).—Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, the most reverenced woman in China to-day, her life and her work in China, was the interesting and educational topic presented by Mrs. W. C. Steinkraus of Peterborough to members of the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Church at the regular meeting held at the home of Mrs. A. Davis on Wednesday evening.

Given in a manner which held the rapt attention of her listeners, the speaker told of how this well-known Chinese lady, whose maiden name was Mei-Ling returned to her home country bringing with her the customs of America where she had lived for nearly twenty years.

Through the efforts of Madame Chiang Kai-Shek and her husband, a social revolution is taking place in China. Schools are being built and a new life movement is rapidly progressing. In the last twelve years China has progressed more than in the previous two thousand years. Mrs. Steinkraus highly advised the reading of Mei Ling's book, "Our China," which gives a closer insight into th customs of China.

At the conclusion of her talk, which was given without the use of notes, a hearty vote of thanks was extended the speaker by Mrs. T. W. Chaplin.

Bewdley Expects Big Season

BEWDLEY, March 28.— (Staff Reporter).—Resort owners at Bewdley are optimistic over the coming tourist season, because of the number of enquiries which they are receiving from different parts of the northern States.

Percy Farr, manager of Rice Lake Inn, said to-day that he had received enquiries from Youngstown, Reading, Cleveland, Pittsburg and several other smaller centres, almost all of them in Pennsylvania and about half were from new people. Yesterday Pete Sidey received a letter from six men at Mercer, Pa., who reported they were coming over on May 16th for the pickerel fishing, and they tell of many other Americans who are planning to make Bewdley their mid-summer headquarters for the bass and muskie fishing.

WESTCLOX AND ST. JOHN'S TEAMS CAPTURE CITY LEAGUE TITLES

Champions Win Titles In Two Straight

Westclox and St. John's wrote the final chapter to a highly successful ladies' city basketball campaign at the Y Friday night by inscribing their names as respective senior and junior champions. The year's largest crowd turned out to see a fittingly surprising end to a surprising season. Both chamionps won their title in straight heats, the senior winners turning back Quaker Aces 19-14 in the second of a two-out-of-three final while St. John's ousted Y Gym 18-14 for their second win and the junior cup. Both were surprising in that each case the team that finished in the lower bracket of the final standing came on to win out in the playoffs. Quaker Aces who finished in first place by going undefeated through the concluding dozen games of their regular schedule were promptly downed by Westclox, while an in and out St. John's team rode high to erase Y Gym who consistently had overshadowed them in league play.

St. John's won their title the hard way in this final game, by coming back after being out played in the entire first half and win convincingly in the final period. A close, hard checking first half in which neither team could hit their offensive stride finished with Y Gym on top of a 5-2 score. The winners came back strong after the rest period and soon had erased the losers' lead. They began to pull away and dominated the final half play to win out 18-14. Their sluggish first half attack that had bogged down under the losers' ceaseless checking in the first half, came to life and produced enough scoring to keep them just out of reach of the battling Y team.

The winners made two of a possible nine free throws and Y Gym counted two for seven tries.

Agnes Bowler, Edna Foster and Theresa Laws led the winners with Bernadette Flynn and Ruth Ellis outstanding in a losing cause. The teams:

Y Gym (14): I. Young, B. Flynn (7), R. Sullivan (1), B. De Maio, S. Zacks, D. Ackford, R. Ellis (6).

St. John's (18): H. Harte-Maxwell, E. Harte-Maxwell, H. Chivas (4), T. Laws (4), A. Bowler (4), D. Groombridge, E. Gynane (2), E. Clark (2), F. Gynane, E. Foster.

Referees—L. Grose and W. Thirnbeck.

Westclox completed the collapse of the predominance Quaker Aces held in league play by lacing the Cereal maidens 19-14 and taking the senior title.

Westclox played the same basketball that won for them in the first game of the finals and except for the final minutes held a clean-cut edge. Their checking was efficient, and added to a good shooting display and a heady attack that was quick to take advantage of the losers' mistakes gave them the victory. Aces stayed with the winners most of the way but threw away countless scoring chances and never, except in the final minutes, did they actually threaten the winners' margin. Westclox took the lead early and were in front 11-4 at the half, a lead which they extended to 11 points midway in the last half. Only at this stage did Aces look like the team that threatened to run away with the league standing and time ran out before they could catch up. Westclox made 5 free throws in 12 tries and Aces failed to score in 11 chances. Elinor Craig and Babs Saunders stood out for the winners and Peggy Lawless and Dorothy Weese were the losers' stars. The teams:

Quaker Aces (14): P. Lawless (4), M. Duncan, D. Weese (4), J. Fowler, E. Alexander (2), A. Grady (4), V. Wood, H. Howden, E. Kirn.

Wetclox (19): B. Saunders (5), M. McFadden (1), V. Crowe (4), A. Flynn (1), O. Gibbs, H. Tighe, F. Bestard (1), E. Bestard (1), E. Craig (6).

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Tonight's battle in Boston between Bruins and Leafs looms up as the crucial game of the series. The loser of this tussle will be in a decidedly tough spot for the winner will be only one game away from taking the round. The pressure which was on the Bruins Thursday night is now on the Leafs. They are facing a situation in which to stay in the running for the Stanley Cup they will have to win a game in Boston and take their home ice game as well. On the other hand the Bruins have the satisfaction of knowing that they only have to win two games at home to take it all. However in the present series both clubs have succeeded in winning on the other fellow's ice so perhaps the importance of playing on the home cushion can be exaggerated.

So far as man-power is concerned the Leafs have the edge. They still have available the fifteen men who swamped Boston in the second and third games of the series while the Bruins will have to weather the storm without their high-scoring ace Bill Cowley who spreadeagled the field in the scoring race this season. The Boston team, however, won without Cowley on Thursday and while they will miss his smart play-making, any club that could pile up the record the Bruins have set this season could not possibly be a one-man team. It will be a tense, close-to-the-vest battle tonight with the Leafs trying to skate the Boston team off their feet and the Bruins on the other hand checking fiercely and waiting to cash in on the breaks. That policy paid off handsomely for them Thursday night and they will undoubtedly adopt the same tactics tonight. It is not crowd-pleasing hockey but played as the Bruins can do it is so often decidedly effective. Ask the New York Rangers about Detroit if you don't think so.

Suddenly swinging around to the idea the Examiner has had for some time that rules and regulations in so-called amateur hockey are more honored in the breach than in the observance, Bill Walshe in the Kingston Whig-Standard declares "Rules were made to be broken." Here is his comment: "Tommy Dunne, goal-tender for Owen Sound, is the son of the late president of the Toronto International League baseball team. Tommy tended goal for St. Michael's College in games against Kingston as a junior and also guarded goal for the Toronto Irish when Bobby Nelson was playing for Stratford. Dunne was with London Senior A team early this season but, by some strange mid-season revision of the O.H.A. constitution, he is now with the Sound in a lower series. Considering that the wartime regulations leave many loopholes for juggling players the regular constitution of the O.H.A. does not seem worth the paper it is written on. All clubs are playing the angles to the limit so it seems a fair game but since the playoffs started there have been three definite breaks in the O.H.A. constitution as far as Kingston is concerned. First there was the exclusion of the Senior B winners from a playoff with the N.O.H.A. Second, there was the extra game between Kingston and Hamilton, when the rules were for at least thirty minutes overtime and now there is the case of a player moving from Toronto to Owen Sound, via London, all after the regular date for establishing residences. Rules were made to be broken."

Gals' Championships Settled

The Westclox and St. John's girls' basketball teams didn't fool in the Ladies' Basketball League final series at the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium last night and as a result the two outfits are senior and junior champions, each taking the round in two straight games and in each case winning from a club that had finished the regular season higher in the standing. Quaker Aces only lost three games in fifteen starts during the scheduled fixtures but they have been eliminated in two playoff games by the Westclox girls who had wound up the schedule two games in arrears. There was no fluke about the win of the new champions. They played smart basketball in both final games and won on their merits. The same is true of the St. John's girls. They ended the schedule in fourth place but when it came to the playoffs the church team had the power and the speed and they triumphed over the third-place Y Gym team two games in a row to tuck the junior title away. Thus the Ladies' League has wound up a most successful season, the championships have been decided and all that remains is to gather around the festive board for the annual banquet which is set for Monday, April 7.

News of the sudden death at Nashua, N.H., of Armand J. Pinette will be heard with regret by many Peterborough ball fans who remember the likeable Pinette as the centre fielder of the Peterborough Central Ontario League club of 20 years ago. He came here soon after the Canadian Nashua plant was opened and turned out with the Petes as an outfielder. And he was a good one, one of the best who has ever played for Peterborough in amateur ball. He roamed over acres of territory in centre field, eating up ground with a loping run that did not seem very fast but usually got him over to where the ball was dropping in time to make a difficult catch look easy. Pinette was most popular with other members of the club and with the fans and there was regret when he was moved back to the parent plant after being here several years. Now he is dead at the age of 47 years and the sympathy of sport-lovers here who knew him will go out to the bereaved relatives.

Young Swimmers Do Well

Congratulations are in order to Gord Minty, Ham Gosse and other Y.M.C.A. officials on the success of the public school swimming meet last night and upon the demonstration that was given of the effective instruction the kid swimmers have been receiving in the Y pool. Scores of youngsters showed surprising speed and skill and were as much at home in the water as if it were their native element. The Examiner's trophy has gone for the second year in succession to the Central Shool swim team. They had a big margin over their nearest rivals and won the honors last night on their merits.

Ray P. Best's rink which last year won the Brereton-Raw mixed bonspiel in Toronto defeating strong rinks from all over the country made a stout defence of the trophy in this year's tourney which terminated in Toronto last night, being eliminated in the final game by Dr. A. E. Walkey's Hamilton Victorias by 11 to 6. Previous to that loss the Best rink had won five straight games in the competition. He had with him Mrs. Turner, lead, Gil Putnam, second, and Mrs. Patterson, vice-skip and bowled out a number of strong rinks to reach the finals and take second place in the big competition.

Some Ball Camp Training Notes

LOS ANGELES, March 29.—(AP)—Pitchers Oadis Swigart, Lloyd Dietz and Dick Conger, together with Infielder Ed Leip and Outfielder Floyd Yount are wondering where the axe will fall next among Pittsburg Pirates rookies. The San Diego Padres tried to talk Manager Frisch out of some of the recruits yesterday, but he said he wanted more time to make up his mind.

ATLANTA—Manager Roger Peckinpaugh hopes to get five starting pitches—Bob Feller, Jim Bagby, Mel Harder, Al Smith and Al Milnar—into condition for nine-inning performances on Cleveland Indians' northward tour. Each of them will be used in 7-inning games, which Peck feels will build them up for nine.

MIAMI—In notching their sixth successive victory yesterday—this one at the expense of the Phillies, Washington Senators discovered: A first baseman who can hit as well as field—Jimmy Vernon; a centre-fielder who can throw—Doc Cramer; and a pitcher who looks in regular season form—Dutch Leonard. After a shaky start he allowed only two hits and no runs in five frames.

HOUSTON, Tex.—Brooklyn Dodgers, in the course of rolling up a 17-0 victory over Port Arthur of the Evangeline League yesterday, caused so much confusion in the Tarpons' bullpen that one pitcher was hit in the stomach and knocked out before he ever got into the ball game. Third Baseman Harry Lavagetto and Shrotstop Pewee Reese took a turn at pitching for Brooklyn in the ninth inning.

P.C.V.S. PRESENTS - - -

Special The Examiner
By Two Students of the P.C.V.S.

We, the undersigned, do hereby declare that we are the sole writers of this column. This is a sweeping statement to say the least because it brushes up a lot of doubts and erroneous opinions.

At first we hesitated to disclose our names but unforeseen circumstances necessitate our doing so. One half of the staff of this column (may we call it a staff) has left P.C.V.S. to enter industry. As an outcome of this, the enrollment of XII Industrial Arts has been reduced from three to two students.

The latter of the undersigned is now left to carry on this column to the best of his ability in the absence of the former.

That's that! We are, signed: Colin Jack, and Roger Barrie.

Spring

Spring, "season of mists and mellow fruitfulness," burst upon the school this week in its accustomed form. The annual request was sent out on Wednesday and Thursday mornings to the student body asking them to refrain from using the parade grounds in front of the Armouries as a short cut, in its present muddy state.

This is a familiar occurrence to many pupils in P.C.V.S. Mud is the plague of the campus and parking lot but a few contumacious drivers still insist on parking their cars on the lot. Probably some unhappy day will find them hopelessly stuck in the quagmire.

The students have a difficult time traversing the hardened designs imprinted on the campus in the mornings lately, but no turned ankles have been reported as yet.

Splash!!!

Water, water, everywhere, and not a drop to drink! And not because it was salt water either. Such was the case on Wednesday afternoon at a movie sponsored by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission. Many pupils watched this picture. They saw tiny rivulets of water converging and swelling into mighty rivers; and all this time they sat with parched throats.

Nevertheless, the movie was very educational and interesting. It showed how Canadian engineers have harnessed Ontario's vast resources of waterpower. Even our own little Otonabee was shown to be of importance for its electric power developments.

The main film was followed by a comedy, featuring the "Reg'lar Fellers." No doubt this film would have been useful in the Students' Council election campaign last fall.

More pictures like this would be highly appreciated. Bring them on!

Teasettes

Camera Club members have not been quite as active this year as in the past. The reason for this apparent lack of enthusiasm is a deeply hidden mystery. The only logical solution is that our amateur photographers are turning part of their funds to the purchase of War Savings Stamps.

Stamps went up this week to $740 but Certificates dropped $584 to the lower total of $132 (instead of $716 as of the week before.) The total for the week was $872; $554 down from the week before. By the law of averages this week should go over the top. Try it!

A noted paper collector of the fifth form has trouble counting in P.T. classes. The line of boys was asked to number in "eights" on Wednesday but this redoubtable fellow blithely sung out "nine," much to the amusement of the boys' P.T. class. We have it first hand that he is being greeted as "number nine" since that episode. Probably the mistake was caused by the counting

CENTRAL SCHOOL BOYS' TEAM WINS SWIMMING CHAMPIONSHIP

Examiner Trophy Won By Central For Second Year

For the second year in succession the swim team of Central School has won the school swimming championship and The Examiner Trophy. Last year's winners repeated their triumph last night in the annual school swimimng gala at the Y.M.C.A. pool, scoring a clean-cut victory over teams representing five other city public schools and a combined team from the Confederation and May's Schools in in North Monaghan.

Central's fast young swimmers carried off both relays and made a consistently good showing in the individual events to put them far out in front in the competition for the Examiner Trophy. The totals were as follows: Central, 51 points; Queen Mary, 27 points; King Edward, 21 points; Queen Alexandra, 19 points; Confederation and May's Schools, 17 points; Prince of Wales, 17 points; King George, 14 points.

The meet was an unqualified sucess with scores of young swimmers competing and keen competition and keen battling in most of the events. The improvement noticed in the work of the youngsters as a whole was apparent and it was obvious that the training the youngsters are receiving is having its effect.

Central's relay team made a clean sweep of both relay events and in the individual contest Central's swimmers consistently picked up points to swell the team's total to such an extent that the winners were never seriously threatened. In fact they were in the lead from the first event on the card.

Individual honors wre won by D. Plunkett, Prince of Wales, who won the free style and back stroke events for swimmers 13 and under, and finished first in the junior diving; and by J. White, Confederation and May's; P. Welsh of King George School and G. G. Wallace, Don Pearse and Young of the Central squad.

In addition to the school events there was a wiving exhibition by Hayes and Heffernan, professional divers, and Brown, Smith, Pinch and Al Marshall of the Y.M.C.A. Senior swimming squad demonstrated their speed in several events. Marshall failed to beat his record for the 100 yards breast stroke event, although he made it close in a race with Don Pinch, who swam free style.

At the conclusion of the meet The Examiner Trophy and the crests for individual winners were presented by Dr. H. M. Yelland, chairman of the Boys' Work Committee of the Y.M.C.A., who in handing the trophy over to C. D. Munro of Central, expressed regret that H. L. Garner had not been able to be present to present The Examiner Trophy in persons.

SCOTS VS. REMBRANDT.

When the basement of a public art gallery in Glasgow, Scotland, was converted into an air-raid shelter, city officials protested against the "sacrilege," pointing out that several Rembrandts were stored there, but Lord Provost Dollan declared that a live McPherson was more valuable than a dozen dead Rembrandts.

Hawks Whip Les Canadiens 3-2

Bert Gardiner, Les Canadiens goaler, dived far out of the cage in the Stanley Cup playoff game at the Chicago stadium to make a sensational save on Johnny Chad of the Black Hawks, No. 19, to the LEFT. Chad plowed up the ice and he put on the skids in an attempt to capture the rebound., The Black Hawks won the game, 3 to 2, and the class "G" series, best two of three. A crowd of 15,000 witnessed the Hawks' triumph.

The Sports Round-Up

By EDDIE BRIETZ, AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP)—Dick Chapman has chucked the golf game which won him the National Amateur championship into the ash can and is building an entirely new swing...There is supposed to be a deal on for Charles Francis Adams to sell the Boston Hockey Bruins to the Boston Garden outfit... Robert Taylor (you know him, girls) has hired Tommy Herman, the old welterweight, to keep his waist line down.

Today's Guest Star

C. E. McBride, Kansas City Star: "I'm wondering whether Forrest Evashevski shouldn't be cut in on some of Tom Harmon's movie money since he cleared the way for his fellow Michigander to race to fame."

Correction: Coach Dana Bible doesn't make more money than the president of Texas University—it's the other way around. Sorry, gents, ...Babe Hamberger, the Dodgers' handy man who broke down after doing a heroic one-man job in getting Van Mungo out of Cuba, is recuperating in a Clearwater, Fla., hospital.

Gabbing About Jabbing

If Abe Simon upsets Joe Louis in their return go, he'll sign to fight exclusively for Mike Jacobs for five years...Few know about it, but Jacobs, who is childless, is raising and educating four youngsters... Billy Conn scaled 185 after a brisk work-out and his handlers still hope they can get another 10 pounds on him before it is too late...The Baer brothers, training in a theatre at Lakewood, N.J., can't workout Saturdays because that is the only day pictures are shown in the afternoon.

TORONTO, March 29 (CP) — William Snyder, secretary of the Ontario Baseball Association announced today that the annual meeting of the association will be held in Toronto, April 3, when a number of proposed amendments will come before the meeting.

Delegates will also consider a change in the residence rule and a move to eliminate the voting power of past-presidents at annual meetings.

Cowley Is Out Of Fifth Game; Odds On Bruins

By H. M. PETERS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

BOSTON, Mar. 29 — (CP). — The Boston hockey follower, an enthusiastic fellow who is quite surprised every time his team loses a game at home, to-day decided that Boston Bruins are 7-5 favorites for to-night's game here with Toronto Maple Leafs in the four-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final now deadlocked at two victories each.

But the more conservative observer—including the whole Toronto delegation—believe these odds are far out of line. They noticed that centre Bill Cowley of the Bruins will not play; that his main rival for all-star choice this year, Syl Aps of Toronto, is playing fine hockey after missing the first two games of the series, and they feel that the Leafs are certainly no worse than even choice.

Both teams are eager for victory in this game which could turn out to be the deciding one of the series. To-night's winner will need but one more victory to close out the semi-final; to-night's loser will face the necessity of taking two straight games to survive, and one of them will be on hostile ice.

Sixth Game on Tuesday.

The sixth game will be played in Toronto on Tuesday. If a seventh is necessary the teams will return here for a game on Thursday. The ultimate winner will face either Detroit Red Wings or Chicago Black Hawks in the Cup final.

The series returns to Boston, the scene of its first two games, after the second two were played in Toronto.

Cowley is not expected back into action again this season. Bill's knee injury that kept him out of the second and third games of the series was aggravated again in the fourth game on Thursday night and now is so serious that it demands complete rest. The Bruins have Pat McReavy from Hershey as a replacement and Mel Hill, who did not dress in the last game, will be available as 16th man.

The Leafs reported all players in good shape except for Bingo Kampman, injured defenceman, who has made no appearance in this series. The club has four top flight defencemen — with Wally Stanowski and Bucko McDonald in particular playing grand hockey.

Remember When—

(By the Canadian Press.)

Joe Louis, in professional boxing less than a year, punched out an easy 10-round decision over Natie Brown at Detroit six years ago to-night. The then 20-year-old negro —now world's heavyweight champion—took command early and gave the Washington veteran a terrific lacing.

Man O'War Is 24 Years Old

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 29. — Man o' War, on his twenty-fourth birthday, looked at War Admiral and American Flag, two of his fine sons and remarked: "Boys, I hope you are as good at twenty-four as I am." Man o' War, a son of Fair Play and Mahubah, was foaled when dark clouds hung over America in 1917.

A big birthday party was given Man o' War in 1936, but the party was too much, and an extra measure of oats and carrots is how the Riddle star now knows that he has passed another milestone.

Manager Scott expects many visitors at the farm to-day. "I have engaged several men to direct the traffic to and from the barn," said Scott, "but I hope it does not compare in size with the crowd present last Labor Day. It was late in the night before the last visitors left the farm. Mr. Riddle is very proud that Man o' War has such a large number of friends, but this is breeding time and, like we all say we are not growing any younger and

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Chicago Cubs: Costly Rookies Ready?

By JACK SORDS

Baseball observers at the Chicago Cubs' training camp at Santa Catalina island, Cal., watching the training antics of several high-priced rookie stars, group of veterans trying to hang on and several hospital cases, agree that the Cubs are the question mark of the National league this season.

Many key jobs are open. Several players are attempting comebacks.

The over-publicized rookies, Lou Novikoff, outfielder, and Lou Stringer, second baseman, both from Los Angeles, are being considered strongly for regular jobs. Stringer has to contend with Billy Herman, the veteran infielder, for his job.

Novikoff probably will be given a regular outfield job because of his batting average last year, a .363 mark in an "A" league. The other outfielder virtually sure of his job is Hank Leiber, who batted .302 last year.

Bill Nicholson, regular in 1940, may have to fight off the challenge of Phil Cavaretta, Dom Dallesandro, Augie Galan and Bernie Olsen, the last-named from Tulsa. Galan and Cavaretta were shelved with injuries last season.

In the infield, Glen Russell and a rookie, Ed Waitkus, who played with Tulsa last season, may fight it out for first base. Bill Myers, acquired from the Reds, is down for shortstop, but he will have to contend with Len Merullo, back again for another try; Harvey Storey, a good prospect from San Francisco; Bob Sturgeon, back again from Jersey City and Hal Warstler, the old-timer, Stan Hack has no competition at third.

New backstop material includes Charley George, who batted .335 with Nashville, and Clyde McCullough, from Buffalo. George has been up several times before. Bob Collins and Al Todd are the hold-over receivers.

In the box, the Cubs still have hopes Dizzy Dean, Clay Bryant, Bill Lee and Jake Mooty will come back after being plagued with arm troubles. Bryant got in only eight games last year. Claude Passeau, Vern Olsen and Larry French form the nucleus of a fine staff, with Ken Raffensberger and Vance Page about to help. Passeau won 20 games last season.

Best new pitching prospect is Bob Henricksen, a Hollywood, Cal., high school product, who struck out 21 men in seven innings last season.

Charlie Grimm, former Cub manager, is back as a coach and he should prove a big help to both new and old players.

Boy King Lights Fire Under Axis In Balkans

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.)

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP). —A 17-year-old King in the Balkans has lighted a fire under the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo Axis that Hitler may never succeed in putting out.

The Yugoslav revolt against enforced alignment with the Axis is personified by young King Peter, still short of his legal majority. It is actually spear-pointed however, by the Yugoslav Army, over 1,000,000 strong and two-thirds of it already posted in strategic positions to meet a German invasion.

That is what Hitler, his diplomatic trigger-men and his generals are actually confronted with, even before the cheering in Berlin over the visit of Japanese Foreign Minister Matsuoka and Yougslavia's entry into the Axis had died away. It is a crisis rich with irony as well as with grave military portents affecting the war.

The two-front war Germany has sought to avoid is obviously knocking loudly at her vulnerable Balkan back door. It is not alone stout-hearted Yugoslav fighting men, Serbian and Montenegrin mountaineers, as valiant in war as their Greek neighbors, with whom the Nazis may have to deal.

Any realistic appraisal of the suddenly altered Balkan war equation must reckon with other factors. It must visualize victory-flushed British legions from North Africa perhaps poised to move up the Vardar Valley to Yugoslav aid. It must sense 2,000,000 Turkish bayonets, glinting in the far distance. It must weigh, too, the Russian enigma and the fact that Red Army Units are massed, backed by air power, in Bessarabia, dangerously close to the German-held oil fields of Rumania.

An "Urgent" Request

There is as yet no indication of what Germany plans to do about the reverse she has suffered in Yugoslavia. For the time being she has contented herself with sending an "urgent" request for an explanation.

The protocol of the now meaningless Yugoslav pact of adherence to the Axis contained what appeared to be a Nazi joker clause. If that is what it is, the situation in Yugoslavia more than justifies Nazi resort to it.

In return for a tongue-in-cheek Nazi promise not to march into Yugoslavia to attack Greece or for any other purpose, there was exacted a Yugoslav promise to suppress anti-Nazi or Anti-Axis demonstrations in Yugoslavia. Before the ink of the signatures of the Belgrade Regency officials was much more than dry, those leaders were gone with the wind, reported in exile or prison, and Yugoslavia actually, if not yet legally, out of the Axis orbit again.

Prime Minister Churchill's phrase-making flair found quick vent. He hailed the news from Belgrade with the cry that Yugoslavia "had found her soul."

That has more than word values. It highlights an aspect of the Yugoslav revolt against the Axis tie and must now be causing qualms of uneasiness in Spain, in Nazi-conquered France, throughout those areas of the Continent of Europe, where the Nazi military heel rests heavily. It may even be disturbing Matsuoka in Berlin and his colleagues in Tokyo.

What has happened in Yugoslavia was not due to British, Russian or any other diplomatic intrigue. It was born in the hearts of the Yugoslav people. It came from the grass roots, however much Russian or British influences may have fanned the flame.

And it reveals to the world anew the shaky foundation in Europe of the Axis new order empire. That foundation is force or the threat of force, not popular approval.

Three Men Who Were Regents Of Yugoslavia

The three men appointed regents of Yugoslavia in the will of the slain King Alexander of Yugoslavia, shown taking their oaths of allegiance to the boy king, Peter II, at the Sluptschina, the Yugoslav parliament. LEFT to RIGHT are: Dr. Stankovich, Dr. Perovic and Prince Paul, the senior regent. They are now reported to have fled the country after revolt met the signing of a treaty with Germany. The boy king has assumed the throne with the support of the army.

HEALTH PROBLEMS

By DR. L. A. CLARKE
Peterboro M.O.H.

When the same thing is said too frequently it becomes monotonous. On the other hand there are some things that have to be repeated frequently in order that they may sink in and be remembered, and some things are sufficiently important to bear repeating.

Dr L. A. Clarke

The Vital Statistics report of the Province of Ontario for the year 1939 has just come to hand and on reviewing the infant mortality in cities, towns and villages of 10,000 and over in this province, we find that fifteen of these municipalities, out of a total of thirty-two, had lower infant mortality rates than the city of Peterborough. On further analysing this and discussion with a few of the doctors, we have agreed that seventeen out of twenty-six infant deaths of residents only might possibly have been prevented in the year 1939. Five of these might be stated to be due to ignorance or neglect on the part of the parents. Eleven were due, according to the certificates, to prematurity. This as a cause of infant death, may or may not be preventable, depending on the cause of the prematurity, the kind of labor and the care the infant received folowing delivery.

The ethics of the medical profession forbid advertising. Your doctor cannot put on bargain days nor peddle his wares from house to house, nor use high pressure salesmanship in disposing of his stock-in-trade, which is his medical knowledge. He must wait until a patient comes to him and asks for advice or services. So in the matter of preventing infant deaths, this puts part of the responsibility squarely up to the parents, prospective or actual, to: (1) see that the prospective mother goes to her doctor early in her pregnancy for supervision and advice and (2) following delivery of her child see that the infant is taken for regular supervisory care and for inoculations against those infectious diseases which we are able to prevent. Had this been done in 1939, it is possible that half of the infants that died in Peterborough might still be alive. If these figures were extended to the whole of Ontario and Canada we begin to have some conception of what this means to the country in lost man power and our country cannot afford to lose any of its potential citizens.

In this day and age nearly everyone carries insurance of some kind or other on their car, their furniture, their own lives or their own health, the latter two in the vast majority of cases on the breadwinner of the family. Why not a little insurance for mother and the baby in the form of a trip to the doctor when it will do the most good and help to prevent some of the unnecessary tragedies that are still occurring far more frequently than they should?

In a previous article we mentioned that two years was the age at which the peak of the death rate for infectious disease was reached. Once again stop to think that these are nearly all preventable. The absence of diphtheria, smallpox and scarlet fever is sufficient evidence of the value of the immunization measures taken to prevent them. We now have an agent which will prevent whooping cough in over 80% of cases and lessen the severity of the disease in the remainder. We have just finished the season of the year when diphtheria and scarlet fever are ordinarily prevalent and we are just approaching the season when whooping cough and measles are prevalent. Too many parents are today leaving immunization procedures to be done after the children enter school as part of the school health program, not realizing that they should not wait until the children start to school to have them protected but should begin at six months of age to have immunization measures carried out.

The school officials have been co-operative with our department in sending home from the class rooms children who come to school with colds. During the winter we have actually had children sent to school by their parents with rashes on their faces of measles and german measles. How any mother could be so careless or indifferent to her own child's welfare or to the welfare of other children as to send her child to school with a plain-to-be-seen evidence of infectious disease on his or her face, is beyond my comprehension. Yet this has happened not once but several times during the past winter. The golden rule applies in this as in other things.

Measles, whooping cough, the common cold and sometimes meningitis all start with symptoms resembling a head cold. From this you will readily see why at this season of the year and with a few cases of these diseases in the community, colds should be treated with respect and suspicion and why a child with a cold should be kept to himself for a few days and receive proper care and attention.

We have repeated a good deal of what has previously been stated but as time goes on one becomes more and more convinced that these are the things that require repeating in order to get results and if these things are given attention, results will be obtained.

Double Efforts Is Norwood I.O.D.E. Slogan

NORWOOD, March 29—(ENS).—The monthly business meeting of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire was held at the home of Mrs. Basil Tucker on Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. Tucker, the regent, presiding.

Many letters of thanks were received from various members of the armed forces who had received woollen comforts from the chapter. The reports of the treasurer and educational secretary were given.

In a letter from Headquarters it wa spointed out, that in the nation-wide War Services Drive for funds only four provinces of the I.O.D.E. members would benefit. These provinces were British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. This the National Chapter had wholeheartedly agreed to, as it was felt the I.O.D.E. chapters in other provinces were successfully financing their war projects in other ways, but that the Western provinces were not in so favorable a position to do so. It was thought, however, that in the public mind their might be some misunderstanding regarding this, so members were urged to explain the situation wherever possible. They were also urged to give whatever assistance they could do the War Services Campaign.

It was decided to make a report to Headquarters of the work done among the soldiers in a social way.

The Regent pointed out a splendid little pamphlet entitled Primer on Democracy, which we might have for use in the school rooms not only in town but in the rural areas also. It gives a concise explanation of the difference between democracy and the totalitarian state. It was decided to send for two dozen, the educational secretary to have charge of the distribution.

Attention was drawn to the fact that two cartons hav now been placed in Mr. Barker's oil station in Norwood. These are for gifts of new clothing for the British war victims, and one for good books suitable for the men of the forces to read. Arrangements have also been made for collecting magazine suitable for the men at the public school. Mr. Nelson, principal, very kindly promised co-operation.

It was moved and carried that a new fund be opened known as The Convention Fund, in order to have money on hand to be able to send a delegate to the various meetings at which the chapter wished to have representation. It was decided to supply this fund with the tea collection.

Mrs. Tucker read a very fine article from Echoes, covering various important war projects, and all were urged to do more work, quickly. "Double our efforts" is to be the slogan from now on.

It was decided to hold the April meeting one week earlier owing to the Provincial I.O.D.E. Convention.

Lunch was served and a finished layette and various other "baby" articles were viewed.

The roll call was answered by "A Supper Dish," and the most popular dish was macaroni with cheese or tomatoes. There was an exhibition of articles made over.

The paper on "Things Money Cannot Buy," prepared by Mrs. Robert Bateson and given by Mrs. Bert Nelson, was much enjoyed. She spoke of Friendship and Personality as two of the outstanding things that can't be bought, but within the reach of all of us.

Are Mothers Blind to Outgrown Shoes?
It is common knowledge that parents usually are careful about their children's teeth or eyes . . . but what about the child's feet? The answer lies in a recent survey—seventy per cent of the school children have foot ailments! A great percentage of these foot ills were caused by outgrown shoes! It is the duty of every parent to examine the child's shoes at least once every three months! See that there is enough toe room, proper height.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

TO ADDRESS ROTARY

Rotarian Dr. J. A. Bannister will be the speaker at the regular meeting of the Peterborough Rotary Club on Monday. His subject has not been announced.

FACTORY EXPANSION

The value of machinery recently unloaded at the Canadian General Electric Company for its new floor space is said to be more than $4,000,000, and not all of it has arrived. There are persistent rumors of a third building, and Johnson Motors are expected to announce in a few days complete plans for enlargement of their factory.

REMANDED ONE WEEK

James Madden, an elderly man who said that he came from Dunnville was charged in police court this morning with failing to produce his registration card when asked by police to do so. The accused said something about having registered at Cayuga but was asked to plead on the charge on which he was being arraigned. When he declared that he did not understand the charge he was remanded until Monday.

TRIAL STARTS MONDAY

The trial of four men charged with cracking the safe in the C.D.S. store will begin before Judge S. L. Smoke in the county judge's criminal court on Monday morning at 10 o'clock. It is expected that the case against Louis Gallow, Toronto, will be proceeded with first.

SOME RECRUITS

A number of recruits presented themselves at the Peterborough Armoury this morning, seeking enlistment in the Light Anti-Aircraft Battery, of which Peterborough men will form a part. Recruiting will not be started until Friday next, when Lieut. H. Frink of Kingston will interview applicants in the lecture room of the 4th Field Battery at the Armoury.

A BIG DONATION

Major General A. D. McRae, national campaign chairman for the Canadian War Services Fund at Toronto announced today that the T. Eaton Company had contracted sixty thousand dollars to the fund. In addition to this Colonel R. Y. Eaton handed the committee a large personal cheque.

FLOWERS APPEARING

Crocuses, violets and tulips have sprouted several inches in the flower beds at the home of Mrs. J. H. Rowe, 561 Bethune street.

PROPHETIC HEN

A hen belonging to Harold Strain, of R.R. 5, Peterborough, has given the world an egg with markings on the shell pointing perhaps to a British victory within three years. Plainly raised on the shell of the egg is V III, which as interpreted by Mr. Strain would mean "Victory in three years."

NAME OMITTED

The name of the Rev. J. W. Wilkinson was inadvertently omitted in the report of the Irwin-Crowe wedding at Carmel United Church last Saturday. Mr. Wilkinson was the officiating minister.

KIWANIS MEETING

A meeting of some of the members of the Kiwanis Club was held in the Empress Hotel at noon on Friday. As a joint meeting of the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs had been held on Monday of this week, no speaker was heard, and only the general business of the club was discussed.

ATTENDS KING.

Peterborough residents will be interested to learn that the officer mentioned in connection with the visit of His Majesty King George to the troops of the 2nd Division is the grandson of the late W. H. Moore, K.C., of this city. The officer, Lieut. W. D. "Denny" Witaker of Hamilton, is the son of the former Bertha Moore of Peterborough. Lieut. Witaker was responsible for a "joy ride" for the King on a Bren carrier.

500 CARLOADS OF GRAIN.

The last 500 cars of feed grain are expected to be delivered into Ontario within the next week, agricultural representatives here yesterday told the Examiner. Huron County farmers bought 125 cars of this Western grain, nearly all oats and barley, Middlesex, Perth and Waterloo each bought more than one hundred cars, Hastings took 25, Peterborough close to 20, and Durham County was so disinterested or well supplied with its home-grown feed that it applied for only one car.

Most Decorated Veteran

LIEUT. ERNEST E. NICHOLLS, M.C., D.C.M., V.D.

Lieut. Ernest Nicholls of the 32nd Infantry Training Unit is the holder of the most decorations in the Peterborough Veterans' Home Guard. Each member of the unit is a veteran of the Great War who has seen service in France.

(Drawing by Jack Hughes, Examiner Staff Reporter).

Ernie Nicholls, Most Decorated Man In Veterans' Training Unit

A military career began for Lieut. Ernie Nicholls way back in 1897 when he was a member of the Royal Marines. Today he is doing his bit in the twice weekly parades of the Veterans' 32nd Infantry Training Unit at the Peterborough Armoury. Each Monday and Wednesday evening will find him in front of a squad of men, all wearing ribbons above their hearts, and all of them veterans who served in France in the Great War.

A look at the bars with colored piece of cloth on Mr. Nicholls' chest is enough to confuse layman and recruit alike; he is the most decorated man in the company. In October, 1917, while a Regimental Sergeant-Major with the 2nd Canadian Infantry Battalion, he won the Military Cross, a blue and white ribbon on his breast signifies he is the holder of this award. The Military Cross is awarded to officers and warrant officers Class 1 only, and Mr. Nicholls is one of the few in this district to have won the distinction before joining the commissioned ranks. Paschendale was the scene of his gallant action, the details of which he refuses to divulge.

Other Decorations

Next on his row is the Distinguished Conduct Medal, then the Mons Star, the British Victory Medal, the Allies Medal, the Long Service Medal, and he was mentioned in dispatches.

The soul of modesty, Mr. Nicholls admits, however, that names of places like Salonika, Crete and Suez kindle in his breast memories of battles and conditions taken in the stride of his 13 years plus service with the Marines. During those years, many adventures were the lot of the soldiers. He was on escort duty at the coronation of King Haakon of Norway at Tronheim, in 1906 he and his crew members rescued Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia and the Princess Olga and took them to sea on H.M.S. Minerva. Other notables with whom he has come in contact are Admiral Drury, Lady Drury, and Lady Hamilton. "That was in Egypt," Mr. Nicholls will tell, with the light of memory not a bit faded in his eye.

Missed Ship.

"In 1903," he told an Examiner reporter, "I was possibly as near death as at any other time. My ship-mates and myself were to commission a new ship, H.M.S. Condor; she was a novelty and her inner trimmings were of aluminum. One of my mates and myself missed her on her maiden voyage, and as a penalty were taken off the strength. This turned out well for us, for in less than one month after, she was lost with all hands. Nothing was ever heard of her but it was presumed that she went down somewhere in the Pacific."

Drilling with the Veterans Guard since August of last year, Mr. Nicholls is a familiar figure around the Armoury, just as he was before the "last show." He was a member of the old 57th Regiment, but volunteered with the 2nd Canadian Infantry Battalion and went overseas with it. He is one of the best marksmen in his unit, and that is no empty honour. Among his comrades are holders of varied decorations, most of them wear the Mons Star, significant of service in France at least from the end of 1915. The Croix de Guere is on more than one breast, and one member, Sergeant Bert Kelcy, wears one wing above his ribbons, telling of his service in the Royal Air Force.

Machine Gun Instructors.

Commanded by Captain Fred Hills, the veterans' unit is officered by Captain Bert Cutmore, adjutant, Lieut. Nicholls and Lieut. Cecil Newman. Ten of their members have been taking machine gun instructional courses with the Prince of Wales Rangers through the winter months, and it is the boast of the officers that 50 potential machine gun instructors are in the unit. The total enrolment is now 53, many more have passed through their ranks and have joined the Veterans' Home Guard. Recruits are still being sought who are not more than 50 years of age, and not lower than Category C; all must be ex-service men, however, and must have served in France.

When asked the probable outcome of a Blitz on the British Isles, the answer of the unit can be summed up in the words of Lieut. Nicholls: "I've had a standing bet since Dunkirk, that the Germans will never operate a division in the United Kingdom. Well, I've won so far."

$11,000 Mark Is Passed By War Fund

Cavan Centre Sunday School sent along a substantial donation to the Peterborough British War Victims Fund today when a cheque for $25.00 was received at the Examiner office, the second in a week from the Cavan district. Donations from rural areas and smaller municipalities are increasing every week, and in some places every church and social organization is planning some means of raising money for this fund.

Last Saturday the Girl Guides of St. Andrew's church held a sale of home cooking at the Market and realized the splendid sum of ten dollars, which was turned in today.

Mrs. Tom McArthur, representing a group of local women, brought in $22.00 for the Fund, and this is the fourth contribution made by this group of women. Every time they have made a donation it has been a substantial one

The Barn Dance staged on Thursday evening by the Kinnettes for members of the Kinsmen Club didn't cost as much as the girls had figured, and the seven dollars left over was turned in to the fund today.

The fund has now passed the $11,000.00 mark and very soon it will be possible to send another £500 to England. The list is as follows:

Previously acknowledged	$10,974.62
A Friend	1.00
A group of ladies per Mrs. T. McArthur (4th donation)	22.00
Money left over from Barn Dance held by Kinettes	7.00
Cavan Centre Sunday School	25.00

St. Andrews' Girl Guides	10.00

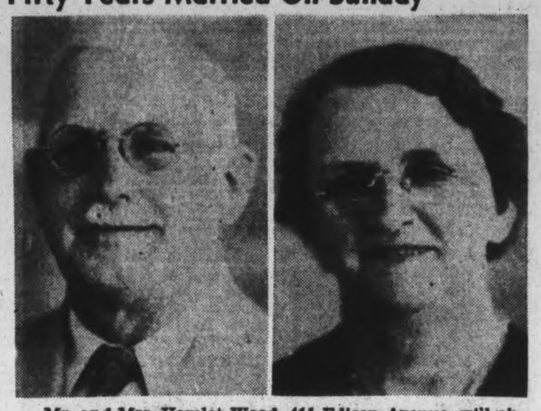
Fifty Years Married On Sunday



Mr. and Mrs. Hamlet Wood, 411 Edison Avenue, will observe the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding on Sunday, March 30th, and both are enjoying splendid health. Mr. Wood is 71 and his wife is 70. They were married in Halifax, Yorkshire, England, and came to Peterborough in 1907. Mr. Wood was overseas with the 93rd Band and his two sons served during the last war in France.

Have Pleasant Smile For Husband When He Comes Home Lady Says

It is just as important for a wife to have a pleasant smile for her husband when he comes home from work, as it is for her to have a good meal ready. This rule was mentioned by Mrs. Hamlet Wood as one of the most important if happiness and harmony are to exist in any home, and on Sunday, March 30th, Mr. and Mrs. Wood, who live at 411 Edison Avenue, are celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

This grand old couple, are both happy and healthy and they are not so old either. Mr. Wood is 71 and his wife 70. Both believe that a young man and woman can shoulder the responsibilities of married life at 21, and if each has genuine affection for the other, they will enjoy their married years.

Many Forget Their Husband

"Many wives today are prone to think too much of their own welfare and seek to enjoy life, forgetting that the husband who earns the money that keeps the house going and the wolf from the door deserves a full measure of consideration The wise woman is the one who first chooses a good man and then devotes her life to making him happy, and raising a family as they should be raised. If she does this, nine times out of ten, the happiness will come back to her one hundred fold," said Mrs. Wood.

"I have no patience with the woman who has a long face and a tale of woe as a greeting for her husband when he comes in for a meal. It is bound to depress him, and probably start a senseless family quarrel, when it is just as easy if one will try it, to have a cheery

Band Is Heard In Concert In Legion Hall

The Peterborough Brass Band included two Gilbert and Sullivan selections in their program Friday night at the Canadian Legion Hall, "The Pirates of Penzance" and "Pinafore," and altogether gave a good account of themselves under the direction of Walter Hughes.

Other numbers by the band were "American Patrol." "Wings Over the Navy" and "Glow Worm." Vocal assistants were Miss Isabel Duthie and Walter Farr.

Keeping a band of workingmen together in times like these when work is an imperatively first consideration often interfering with practices must present discouragements, but the Peterborough Brass Band showed decided improvement in its concert. The band has lost nine of its members who have joined one or other branch of the Canadian forces, but none of these tribulations appear in their public performance.

Mr. Hughes has sound musical ideas, insists on fundamentals of tone as was reflected in the pleasing texture of the instruments that compromise the background, and keeps the band within the limits of present ability. Their program was well played, and the Gilbert and Sullivan selections brought back happy memories of the gentle satire of the text and lyrics associated with them, especially "Pinafore" and its good natured spoofing of the navy now guarding the life lines of the British people. Even the music of the old song "For He Is An Englishman" lost the cajoling blandness of the words and thought in the recent stark reality of Plymouth

Peterborough Boy Now In England In Opposing Army To Half-Brother

Peterborough has furnished an Italian born member of the Canadian Army. He is now on active service in Egland, and the circumstances surrounding his enlistment make a story, the inspiration of which could be manifested only in a democracy.

For reasons which will become obvious the name of the soldier and his family have been withheld, but all are well known in this city and the information as received by the Examiner has come from sources considered absolutely reliable.

In the struggle of 1914-1916, a young Italian soldier fought with his fellow nationals on the Italo-Austrian front. The much discussed spirit of animosity between Germans and Italians had found fertile soil in him and with bitterness he fought to the end of the war.

He was married twice, both times in this native Italy, and when he came to Canada and to Peterborough after the war he brought with him the second family who became Canadians to the core.

Through the years, and especially with the birth and development of the Fascist party, one of the sons of the first marriage wrote home extolling the virtues of the movement, the party and Mussolini, until one member of the second family could bear it no longer. Those in positions of knowledge recount the depth of feeling generated because of the sheep-like tendencies of Italian youths, and the young Italian-Canadian, though born a son of the Italian soldier in Italy enlisted at beginning of the war.

So sincere was he in his feelings toward democracy that he is said to have made boasts before leaving, to the effect that his half-brother and he would meet as enemies. Today he is in England with the Canadian forces, and at home he has left a little family.

New Curate Is Named To St. John's Church

St. John's Anglican Church is to have a new curate. Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson has nominated for the post Newman Bracken, a student of Trinity College who is to be ordained deacon as Ascensiontide and will begin his duties at St. John's early in June.

Mr. Bracken is a son of Rev. H. Bracken, rector of St. David's, Toronto, and it is an interesting coincidence that thirty years ago Canon Davidson invited the father to come to the curacy to which his son has now been appointed.

Traffic Mishap Fractures Boy's Skull

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 29. — (ENS), — Alvin Clark, ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Clark of Percy Township, is in Belleville Hospital suffering from a fractured skull received in a traffic mishap as he was returning from school on Friday afternoon. The accident occurred shortly before four o'clock when the boy, in company with three young friends, Allan and Alice Runciman and Ted Thrower, stood throwing sticks into a stream which ran through a culvert under the county road four miles west of Warkworth. According to the story told by Abraham Zifkin, Campbellford junk dealer, who was allegedly in charge of the truck, the children were standing looking over the side of the culvert, when suddenly the Clark boy darted across the road, being caught just above the ear with the side of the rack, and thrown to the ground.

Though the wheels of the vehicle didn't pass over his body, the blow on the head fractured his skull, according to Dr. F. B. Brintnell of Warkworth, who made a preliminary examination before sending him to Belleville Hospital.

The accident was investigated by Provincial Constables D. M. Carruthers of Campbelford and D. Adair of Cobourg, but the driver was not held. The boy's condition is regarded as critical.

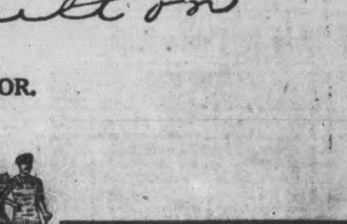
Mayor's Message To Those Citizens Contemplating Home Building



The City Council has asked me to convey officially a message of encouragement to those citizens contemplating the building of homes in Peterborough or the suburbs of the city.

This district appears to be facing something of a housing shortage. This situation has arisen because some of our local manufacturers have received orders for important war materials required so urgently in our Empire's fight against Hitler. To speed production of these war materials to capacity many new employees have been added to their staffs and it appears necessary that still more hands may be required. This influx of workers has caused housing accommodation to be severely strained.

The problem of housing is a community problem. The assistance of all citizens in helping to solve it is as necessary as the community effort put forward so splendidly in other enterprises arising from the war.

Therefore anyone who is in a position to build a home at this time is aiding Peterborough's war effort and that of the Empire, if he proceeds at once to build.

Peterborough is one of the best cities in Canada; it is soundly-financed municipally; its industries are diversified, energetic and enterprising. The long-term economic picture in Peterborough appears encouraging and an investment in a home should be most worthwhile.

Sincerely Yours,

Jas. Hamilton

Marion Harvey Is Wed To Philip Amys

A quiet ceremony took place at three o'clock this afternoon in Murray Street Baptist Church, when Miss Marion Harvey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Harvey, 206 Sherbrooke street, was united in marriage to Mr. Philip Hewitt Amys, son of Mrs. C. H. Amys and the late Dr. Amys. Spring flowers and ferns decked the church, and Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe performed the nuptial vows.

The bride's father gave her in marriage. She wore a simply cut floor-length gown of blue crepe, with long full sleeves, matching turban, and shoulder corsage of orchid sweet peas. Mrs. Eric Westbye was her sister's attendant, wearing a gown of orchid sheer with orchid pancake hat and corsage of blue iris. Mr. Roger Amys, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

At a reception at Walkerfield House, tea was poured by Mrs. Carl Brown, and Mrs. Jack Amys of Toronto. Mrs. Harvey welcomed the guests in a graceful gown of hyacinth blue with beige jacket and hat, and corsage of violets. Mrs. Amys was in a grey ensemble, with corsage of gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Amys left on a motor trip, the bride travelling in a black tailored suit and hat with topcoat of military red. They will live in Toronto.

Wood-Chamberlain Vows Are Pledged

The marriage took place in St. James' United Church manse at eleven o'clock this (Saturday) morning of Elizabeth Christina Greta Chamberlain, daughter of Mrs. Clara M. King, and the late Mr. D. H Chamberlain, and Pte. Donald James Wood, No. 7 Field Hygiene Section, R.C.A.M.C., Debert, Nova Scotia, son of Mr. L. V. Wood of Perth and the late Mr. Wood, Rev. F. W. Craik officiating.

The bride wore a frock of turquoise blue, with matching hat, and shower bouquet of Premier Supreme roses and sweet peas. Her attendant, Mrs. Earl Wood, wore prairie rose with navy accessories and bouquet of Briarcliff roses. Mr. Earl Wood was groomsman for his brother.

Following a reception at the Elite, the bridal couple left by motor for Ottawa, the bride donning a beige coat, with beige accessories.

Pupils Display Work Done For Red Cross

Chief among the excellent display of needlework shown Friday afternoon at St. Mary's Convent during Parents' Day was a beautiful wool afghan crocheted by the pupils, upon which the Sister in charge, Sister Philomena, had also done a great deal of work. Made entirely from wool donated by Peterbrough citizens and deposited in containers at several local stores, this warm afghan, together with three more made of the same wool by other school children, will be shipped to England by the Red Cross.

Needlework, including such articles as crocheted tams, face cloths with matching guest towels, and the displays of art work lining the walls, added to the interest of the afternoon. Red Cross work was a feature, with knitted gloves and scarves carefully and neatly done. Like the tiny child's finger that stopped a mighty flood in Holland, the busy fingers of our boys and girls are helping in this way to check the flood of cold and misery that is flowing over England as a result of Nazi air-raid destruction.

A delightful program opened with an address of welcome to the parents by Miss Nancy Gordon, followed by recitations, readings, essays and two poems composed by Miss Theresa Primeau and Miss Bernadette O'Toole, both pupils of the school. An effective offering by the girls' choir was the patriotic "Carry On."

Picture studies, with brief biographies of the artist, were given of the two famous paintings, Charles Russell's "Child With Cherries" and Joshua Reynolds "Age of Innocence." Folk dancing was gracefully executed, and rhythmic readings and current events presented.

Aid Is Planned For War Victims

OMEMEE, Mar. 29 — (ENS) — The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. G. A. Williamson on Wednesday evening for its monthly meeting. Fifteen members and three visitors were present. The meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada," followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison.

During the business period the ladies decided to contribute to the fund being raised by the Federated Women's Institute in order to purchase a mobile kitchen. The society agreed to send another box to Bill Acerman now in England. It was decided to leave over until after Lent the question of holding a dance. Mrs. W. B. Everson and Mrs. J. Magee were appointed to purchase a spread, for which tickets are to be sold and the proceeds to be donated to the British War Victims Fund.

Following the business a short program was presented, consisting of readings by Mrs. Everson, Mrs. H. Fisher, and Mrs. J. Magee. A medley of Irish airs was played by Mrs. G. A. Williamson. A spelling match and a contest concluded the meeting, after which a social hour was enjoyed and lunch was served by the hostess.

Branch Notes

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH

The illustrated lecture given by Miss Dorothy Allen to the members of the branch at the regular meeting Monday evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The attendance was a disappointment. The A.Y.P.A. is probably more interested in this Bishop Hardin school than others because they helped to furnish the dormitories with the beds. Miss Allen described the country and the natives around Moose Factery, where this school is located. Mrs. Curtis extended the thanks of those present to the speaker. Members are reminded of the monthly Corporate Communion, Sunday at 8.30 a.m. Monday night's meeting will be in charge of B. Pammett and will be an A.Y.P.A. night.

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH

St. John's A.Y.P.A. held its meeting on Wednesday evening after church service.

A short business meeting began the evening with the president, Mr. Nelson Hewitt in the chair. It was decided that the A.Y.P.A. would send $5.00 annually to the Sunday school by post. The Minstrel Show is to be on the twenty-third and twenty-fourth of April.

The rest of the evening was spent in chorus practice for the Minstrel Show. A practice is to be held on Monday at eight o'clock sharp.

The St. John's A.Y.P.A. basketball team is the junior champions this year. Good going, girls!

SMART SPRING HAT

By ALICE ALDEN

WHOLE hats of fruit or flowers—that's how our milliners sing their song of Spring. Those diminutive hats that manage to encompass so much color, charm and verve within their brief dimensions, are very becoming. This clever hat designed by Helen Liebert was created to top off a chic suit or ensemble. It is fashioned of oversized cherries in brilliant red massed against a black velvet cap and perky bows. A beautifully draped black veil reaches coquettishly to just above the lips.

DOROTHY DIX

ADOLESCENT LOVE IS MOST PERISHABLE THING ON EARTH

It Doesn't Stand the Strain of Reality—Here Are Some Don'ts For Girls Thinking About Marriage.

Girls, if you want to be happy though married—DON'T marry until you are grown up. Marriage is for adults. It is no business for girl babies to tackle. It is hard enough to pick out a man with whom you will enjoy living after your own tastes and habits are formed and you know what sort of a husband you want. It is impossible to do it while you are still a child and your own ideals and desires are continually changing and the thing you are crazy about one day is poison to you the next. Adolescent love is the most perishable thing on earth. It won't stand the strain of work and worry and responsibility and babies. Besides, if you marry in your teens you will miss your playtime, and when you try to take it later on it will land you in the divorce court.

DON'T marry outside of your class. This goes for everything, age, social position, education, money, everything. Don't marry an old man who is stiff in the joints if you are a jitterbug. Don't marry a college professor if you are a low-brow who only reads the fashion and society columns in the papers. Don't marry a socialite whose family will always look down on you and correct your grammar and pronunciation. The only happy marriages are those in which the husband and wives stand on the same footing.

DON'T marry a man to reform him, or thinking you can change him. It can't be done. There is no magic in the marriage ceremony that quenches a drunkard's thirst, or galvanizes a lazy man into action, or puts a backbone into a weakling, or that turns a boor into a polished gentleman. After marriage a man is just as he was before, only a little more so. Wait until you find a man who is ready-made, with all the qualities you want in a husband, before you marry.

DON'T marry a man who is hard to get along with and who has to be handled with gloves. A man's disposition is what a wife has to live with, and she can get mighty tired of having to always walk on eggs to keep from stepping on some of his pet prejudices. The grouch, the fault-finder, the wet-blanket, the critic are the worst matrimonial bets.

Guard Against Jealous Man

DON'T marry a jealous man unless you have the skin of a rhinoceros and will not be wounded by continual insults and suspicions, and unless you feel that it will add spice to life to be forever watched and spied upon.

DON'T marry Mother's pet, for if you do, you will have to wait upon him hand and foot and keep up the spoiling she has started and, no matter how much of a slave you are to him, you will always run a poor second to Mama.

DON'T marry a man who is better looking than you are. He will think that you should wear your last year's wardrobe while he has three new suits. Women will always be running after him and wherever you go you will hear people wondering how he came to marry a frump.

Beware the Great Lover

DON'T marry a great lover. It is certainly a wonderful experience to be wooed by a man in lovely, poetic, romantic language, but don't forget that courtship ends at the altar for the wife. The art of being a great lover is a gift that few men can resist practicing on any good-looking woman with whom they come in contact. It is the men who choke on their adam's apple when they try to say "darling" and who regard love-making as an ordeal who can be trusted not to philander.

DON'T marry an egotist. There is no husband for whom a wife can so quickly lose her taste as the one whose whole topic of conversation is about himself, and who never wearies of telling how wonderful and great he is.

DON'T marry a chap who never can hold down a job or support himself, but who is always going to make millions in some grandiose scheme. Tie up with a lad whose performances are in the present instead of the future, and who already has his foot in the door of opportunity.

And Watch the Spendthrift

DON'T marry a man who has holes in his pocket, nor one who counts his change too carefully.

DON'T marry a boy who honks his horn for you to come out and climb in his automobile, or who tries to boss you before he has a legal right to do so.

DON'T marry any man who doesn't measure up to your ideal, for marriage lasts of a long time and it seems longer if you get the wrong man.

Affectations Can Be Laughed Off

Dear Dorothy Dix — I know a girl who is sweet and pretty and attractive, but she has one fault that gets on my nerves so that I can't stand it. That is a phoney Southern accent. She comes from the Middle West. Her parents have all their r's, so do her brothers and sisters. Why she should have eliminated all of hers and adopted a mongrel dialect, which is no more Southern than it is Norwegian, is past finding out. Anyway, it makes her ridiculous, and I am wondering what can be done about it, for otherwise she is a nice girl. JACK.

ANSWER — The best way to break her of her silly affectation is to make fun of it. Laugh her out of it. Few girls can stand ridicule. If you can get two or three of your friends to join with you in mocking her false accent, you can probably make an instantaneous cure.

It is a common thing for silly youngsters to think they make themselves interesting and different by posing as something they are not. I have known girls who were strong as little ponies who always adopted a languid, die-away attitude in public.

I have known others who would mince away at a dinner in company and barely eat a mouthful, but who could clean up a dish of corned beef and cabbage at home.

I know plenty of innocent little girls who know nothing of the world whatever who pose as blase sophisticates. And still others who do indiscreet things not because they want to but because they want to appear wicked and devil-may-care.

And look at all the thousands of girls around you who imitate the hair-dos and the actions of the cinema stars. If that isn't a pose, what have you?

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE.

For Sunday, March 30.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very promising one, not only for "cashing in" on past performances, with industry, diligence, and fidelity to duty and obligations finding suitable and enduring rewards, but new factors may arise to open gateways of achievement, progress and perhaps startling recognition.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of opportunity for putting on an enduring basis the fortunes and security of the future, owing to recognition of past labors and steadfastness as well as because of the sudden advent of fresh openings probably born on some novel ideas or innovations of a scientific nature.

A child born on this day will be exceptionally clever, versatile, inventive with far scope of vision and much ingenuity.

For Monday, March 31.

Monday's astrological forecast should be an exceptionally propitious one for the sudden advent of opportunities for reaching the goals of high ambitions. This may arise with breathtaking force and cause a sort of revolution in the plans and objectives, with possibly new environs, associates and interests. Those in high places will be readily co-operative.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the threshold of a particularly enterprising, progressive, and productive year, with sudden fresh opportunity for placing the future and life destiny on a firm and enduring basis. Surprising openings inciting to radical change, new surroundings and interests, with the substantial assistance of those in power and financial standing.

A child born on this day should be splendidly equipped for a progressive, substantial and worthy career.

DO YOU KNOW . . .

To remove rust stains from cloth, wet with lemon juice and hold close over the steam from a boiling teakettle.

Blue serge suits can be revived by sponging with vinegar and water before they are pressed.

To prevent cream or filling from oozing out of cream or layer cakes they should be cut from the outside edge in toward the centre.

Rub butter paper well over a wooden spoon before putting it in cake or batter mixture; this prevents clinging and waste.

WE . . . NOTICED

....The South American influence adds a dash a spice and flavor to spring hat offerings. Sombreros are of first importance, with big fenced brims, and draped bands or coif caps, in vivid printed crepe or rayon jersey.

....Turbans also interpret the Latin feeling, with high piled front drapes, halo brims like open fans, and eye impelling, gorgeous color running riot through it all.

....The sailor lads have done their bit for jaunty spring hats in beret silhouettes borrowed from the Navy, the Army, the Air Force. The Marines have also been pressed into service, and their embroidered emblems add a fillip to many saucey little suit hats, worn bravely, in the first spring breeze.

Smart Costume Jewelry You Can Make Yourself

Clip From Pearl Buttons

Amazing what smart costume jewelry you can make yourself! This lovely Grapes of Pearl clip costs little, is easily put together—and how smart it looks on party dresses and day clothes, too.

You need only an ordinary brass hinge, annealed wire and 13 ball buttons—six of them about ⅜-inch in diameter and seven of a larger size.

First double a 14-inch length of wire, slip a small button down to the fold, and twist wires three times. Now add to each wire a small button, loop the wire back through each eyelet and secure the cluster of three by twisting the wires three times.

In much the same way you add the other three small buttons, then the seven large ones.

To fasten the pearls to the hinge, insert wires through holes, twist tightly at the back.

Other jewelry you make as easily—sometimes using things on your pantry shelf. From macaroni—a sea shell necklace; from chick peas—a "gold" bracelet.

Complete directions for these and other smart pieces of costume jewelry are given in our 32-page booklet. Tells how to make bracelets, belts, necklaces, boutonnieres from inexpensive materials for all kinds of costumes.

Send me in coins or stamps for your copy of COSTUME JEWELRY YOU CAN EASILY MAKE to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

REVISE THE OLD RULE

A GOOD revision of the old Whist rule to "cover an honor with an honor" was once put forth by the veteran genius of auction bridge, Wilbur C. Whitehead. He made it read: "Cover an honor with an honor whenever doing so promises to build a trick in your own hand or your partner's." Failure to do this can cost your side plenty of tricks, just as covering an honor blindly, when the rule does not fit, can prove expensive and wasteful.

South was shooting for a top in a duplicate game, so sought to reach some contract different from those at other tables. That is why he opened with 2-No Trumps instead of the more orthodox diamonds. Reckoning a mighty hand opposite him, North properly counted his hand as relatively strong, too, so gently hinted at slam with his jump. South probably should have dropped this, or else mildly hinted at acceptance of the slam invitation by bidding 5-No Trumps, which North would have dropped, but he went all the way to small slam, in line with his original shooting policy.

Part of South's optimism was due to the weak pair against him. It proved justified, for West began with the terrible lead of the spade 5, though almost anything else would have been better to open than that. The dummy's 6 won this. Followed two club tops, the heart K, three more clubs for spade discards—still shooting play—and then the diamond J. East ducked, and the J won. Then the 6 was led to the Q and the diamond A dropped the K. Two more diamonds and the heart A took the rest of the tricks.

If East, following Whitehead's rule, had covered the diamond J with his K, in the hope of building up a 10 for West, he would have accomplished just that and would have stopped the run of the suit. South then could not possibly have taken over ten tricks, and would have been set two.

Your Week-End Lesson

In planning the play for your contract, before putting a card on the first trick, what is the principal difference in your method between suit contracts and No Trump ones?

TRENNUM, Francis Edward. — In Lakefield, on Friday, March 28, Edward Francis Trennum. Funeral Monday, March 31, from Mr. Earl Edwards, Lakefield, at 2.30 D.S.T., with Rev. Tathem officiating. Interment, Lakefield Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

DAWSON.—In memory of Mother, Father, Brother, who passed away about four years ago now.

Four years have passed and gone
Since those we loved so well
Were taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
But still we see their guiding light
In all that is the best.
Though gone from earth and out of sight
Into eternal rest.
What would we give to clasp their hands,
Their happy faces to behold,
To hear their voices and see their smiles
That meant so much in the days of old.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by Jean and Ruth.

PERRY.—In loving memory of my father, George Perry, who died four years ago, March 28, 1937.

One by one they go before us,
They are fading like the dew.
But we know they're watching o'er us,
They the good, the fair, the true.
They are waiting for us only
Where no pain can ever mar,
Dear ones who left us lonely,
Watch us through the gates ajar.
There a father, there a mother,
Gone within those gates ajar.
—Ever fondly remembered by his daughters and sons.

of the number of tons of paper collected. Eh, Aaron?

The morning entertainment on Friday consisted of a pleasing piano duet by Betty Brown and Shirley Curtis. This has been the first entertainment for some time, but don't let it be the last.

The annual Fashion Parade was held on Tuesday morning after being postponed twice. The orchestra made its last appearance of the year at this event.

School was dismissed at 3:30 p.m. on Friday, due to the fact that the P.T. and rifle drill instructors, Mr. H. A. Craig and Mr. H. I. Bamforth were absent.

Catapults for the childish habit of shooting wads of paper were rampant this week. Students who indulged in this pastime got rid of their contraband in short order at the risk of a severe reprimand from our principal.

The most serious crime that could be pepetrated in the Collegiate is the purposeless ringing of the fire alarm bell. This happened on Thursday noon and the culprit will probably rue the day he committed this senseless trick.

Strikers And Police Clash

Lakefield Group Plans Quilting

LAKEFIELD, March 29—(ENS).—'Welfare work and education in Korea' was the topic studied at the regular meeting of the Service Club of the United church when the members were guests of Mrs. S. A. Grylls at her home on Tuesday evening.

Opening the meeting with a hymn, Mrs. W. Frankish, who was in charge of the devotional exercises, led in prayer and the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. E. H. Northey.

The study paper was divided into three parts, with Mrs. Carmen Payne, Mrs D. Campbell and Mrs. J. McKercher each taking one portion of the story.

A much appreciated piano solo was contributed by John David Grylls.

The president, Mrs. Dora MacMillan then took over the remainder of the meeting, when it was decided to have a quilting for the Red Cross. Mrs. J. Brown invited the society to her home on Thursday, April 3, when three quilt will be quilted.

A social half hour concluded the evening with Mrs. W. W. Leonard and the president convening.

and London and Bristol, with apologies for overlooking Glasgow. The band seems to be well equipped for summer programs if it has a series of programs like that of last night.

Mayor Hamilton was chairman of the concert. The members of the council of the last two years have tried to help the band through its financial establishment, and no one has been more loyal to them than Mayor Hamilton. He congratulated the men and their leader on being able to surmount the trials of the last year, said he hoped they would continue to carry on, and added that the improvement in their playing was a reward for the interest which the council had taken in the organization.

Godfrey Matthews thanked the audience for their patronage, said he wished that more had turned out, and expressed appreciation of the kind help of Miss Duthie, Mr. Farr and Mayor Hamilton.

Have Pleasant Smile

laugh and a clever or amusing story to tell, and believe me in fifty years of wedded life, I have found this to be true."

It so happens that both Mr. and Mrs. Wood are gifted with sunny dispositions and perhaps because of this the years seem to rest lightly on them. Both have a keen desire to live long enough to observe their diamond jubilee.

Making Herself Old

Speaking of the present day crop of wives, Mrs. Wood said, "I have little time for the woman who is always complaining. She is only making herself old before her time, and at the same time she is making life miserable for all around her. I think if I were a man and married to that kind of woman I'd buy her a one way ticket to Honolulu."

Mr. and Mrs. Wood were married in Halifax, Yorkshire, England, where Mr. Wood was employed in the textile mills. In 1907 they came to Peterborough, and bought the house they now live in on Edison Avenue. For six years Mr. Wood worked as a painter at the Peterborough Canoe Company, and then was gateman at the Charlotte street crossing of the C.N.R. for sixteen years. He was pensioned off six years ago, and outside of operating a small garden has not worked steady since that time.

"I believe old age pensions should come into effect at age 65 in this country" said Mr. Wood. "When a man raises and educates a family, buys and pays for his home, and at the same time meets all the inevitable expenses such as doctor bills, fuel, taxes, etc., he is not able to lay much aside for his old age."

Mr. Wood became a member of the 57th band on the day after he arrived in Peterborough, and at that time Mr. Glidden was bandmaster. For twenty years he played the French horn in Mr. Glidden's orchestra and played the euphonium in the band. When war broke out he went overseas with the 93rd band and after spending 9 months in England was sent home, because he was too old for active service. After that he spent a year as orderly in the Kingston Military Hospital.

They had four children, three of which are still living. Arnold of Hamilton, Wilfred of 686 George street, Peterborough, who is turnkey at the county jail, and Mrs. William Hughes (Doris), now living at Sudbury.

Arnold went overseas in the last war with the 5th C.M.R.'s and Wilfred enlisted with the 75th Battalion and was later transferred to the 48th Battalion. There are nine grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood plan to observe their anniversary quietly at their home on Sunday, as the children that are away from Peterborough will not be able to get home for the occasion.

Dollars To Doughnuts

By EDITH ELLINGTON

YESTERDAY: Clarence offers marriage, but for Beatrice marriage is not the answer. She watches the city's crowds, hurrying home from work. Then, on sudden impulse, she leaves her limousine, joins them. She goes into a subway, stuffs her mink coat into a parcel locker.

ESCAPE IN A SUBWAY

CHAPTER IV

SHE was out of the car. The door closed behind her, and she was stepping up on the sidewalk. Almost incredibly, a sea of humanity engulfed her. She found herself being carried along, slowly and bumpily, in that pressing, enveloping wave of people.

She could not remember ever having walked down Forty-second street at this hour before. Her wristwatch showed that it was a quarter to six. This crowd, then, was going home from work. Home on the subway.

She gazed at the kiosk in fascination, as she moved out of the stream into a little island of people waiting against a drug store window. Of course, she'd been on the subway. She could close her eyes and see the station at Fifth Avenue and the Park—long and echoing and empty. She could see the way white columns flashed past you as you sat in a car, and hear the noise of air rushing and the rumble of wheels.

Yes, she had ridden on the subway. Years ago. With girls from school, and with her governess before that. But she had never ridden the subway as an adult—never when she could see, hear and understand and somehow feel the difference between these people's lives and herself.

She remembered her grandfather, saying, "There's no fun if you never have any battles to fight." These people battled life, every day. They had worries and struggles and because they had, sometimes they must have fulfillment, too, and triumph.

All at once, her mind was made up. "I'm going to live their way, for a while. I'm going to see what it's like!"

Beatrice Huntington Davenport, in the mink coat that was so dark and shining, stepped out into the stream and let it carry her down the littered steps to the huge, busy subway station below the sidewalk.

The first thing she noticed was a bank of parcel lockers. Quickly, she slipped out of her coat, wadded it up and opening one of the lockers pushed the expensive, telltale bundle inside. She slammed the door, took the key and walked rapidly away.

NO one seemed to have noticed that a slim girl had stopped by the parcels lockers and divested herself of a mink coat the symbol that set her apart from these hurrying, home-going workers.

In her dark woollen dress, with its jacket that was almost a coat, Beatrice thought with satisfaction that she looked rather like a girl who was trying to make a costume suit do the duty of a winter coat that was too shabby.

"It's almost spring," she thought. "If I only earned a little, working in an office somewhere, I'd still be saving for a new Easter outfit. Yes, this costume suit is alright. And the hat—that could be a left over from winter. It makes the suit seem warmer.

Like a girl in a dream, propelled by some powerful subconscious urge, Beatrice hurried to the turnstiles. She found a nickle in her change purse, dropped it into the slot, pushed at the arm of the gate, and went on. At the newsstand from which men and women snatched evening papers, she picked up a paper, left three cents. More steps down. A long platform, jammed to the edges. The black train roared into the station, drowning out the other noises.

Beatrice did not notice what train it was, or where it was going. She had stopped under a little green sign and all the people around her began to fight forward. That train's doors opened right here. She was pushed into the train, and nearly stumbled.

"Grab a seat, girlie!" a swarthy man cried. He darted past her, grabbed one himself. Beatrice realized then that this was the reason for the pushing and fighting. A seat! She took a deep breath, rushed for the empty seat beside the swarthy man, and sat down.

The train was filled in less than half a minute. The doors slid to a close, people began to rattle newspapers and the subway ride began.

BUT Beatrice couldn't read her paper. She was looking about, like an explorer in a strange, wild land. At Thirty-fourth street, the train stopped. More people rushed in, hopefully, for seats. There were no more.

A stout woman with a brown paper parcel plumped herself in front of Beatrice. A younger girl on the other side of the stout woman hung from a white tile rung and when the train lurched Beatrice thought it must have wrenched her arm out.

Once, as the stout woman juggled her parcel and knocked off Beatrice's hat, the young girl caught her eye and smiled. Beatrice thought, confused, "They're all so used to this. Pushing, being pushed. Standing. That girl—the way she smiled—grin and bear it . . ."

She stopped staring at the other people in the car and concentrated on the girl. "She's about my age." Suddenly it seemed very important to examine her carefully, to think about her. A girl so much like herself, yet so different!

"That's a nice looking coat. It's rather like a coat I have. Oh, A copy. I remember, now. In the store, they sell things that look like the good things. . . . But her taste is good. It's like mine. . . ."

The girl was tall and slim. She wore a perky hat that came to a peak. Her hair was rolled into a soft, brown curl at her neck. It shone under the electric light. "Clean," thought Beatrice. But the girl's fingers on the strap were grubby. No gloves. And when she wasn't smiling, but sinking back into her own thoughts, her carefully made-up red lips drooped.

"She's pretty," Beatrice decided. "Not flamboyant. Intelligent looking."

She wondered what it must be like, to be that girl, tired after a day in the office. Or didn't she work in an office? Where else did girls work? Stores? Factories?

Was she going home—Beatrice glanced at the sign in the window—to Brooklyn to the house where she lived with her parents? Or did she live alone?

What was she getting out of life, this girl who wore a cheap imitation of a good coat—this girl who must love nice things or she wouldn't have bought that coat. What was she hoping for, and what did she do to make her hopes be realized? Was she happy? Happier than Beatrice?

"Oh, yes," Beatrice murmured. "Much happier. Because I'm not happy at all."

"You talking to me?" the swarthy man on the seat demanded.

JUST then, there was a flash of intense, white light outside the window. All the yellow bulbs in the subway car went out. Someone screamed. The train jerked to a sudden halt. The people standing up swayed and caught swiftly in the darkness at whatever was nearest.

Beatrice felt something hit her in the chest. All the breath was knocked out of her. It was the stout woman with the parcel. She had fallen, heavily, into Beatrice's lap.

A moment later, flickering pale emergency lights went on in the car. The stout woman picked herself up, muttering. Beatrice got up. "Please take my seat. If there's to be another jerk, I can stand it better than you can."

The woman smiled at her in surprise. "My, that's nice of you, dearie!"

Beatrice was standing up beside the young girl, now. The girl was looking at her with a wry little smile. "Sap!" she said. "Did anybody ever get up for you?"

Beatrice laughed. "I can't remember."

Suddenly, something burst with a crash like thunder. The roar reverberated through the tunnel, and the emergency lights went out.

"Damn!" said the girl. "I hope this isn't going to be another subway fire!"

"Another?"

"Didn't you read about it? Only a couple of months ago. Short circuit or something. There was nearly a riot."

For long minutes, the crowded train was marooned in the darkness. Then impatience began to grow. People murmured more and more fretfully. A woman asked, loudly, "What's happened? What's wrong?"

A man roared, "Guard! Isn't there a subway guard on this car?"

Outside the car, Beatrice saw the feeble light of what could only be a lantern, swaying. A moment later, there was a little hiss of compressed air. The doors in the middle of the car slid open. "Now don't get excited, folks!" a leather-lunged trainman shouted, holding his lantern aloft. "Just a little trouble down the line."

"We must be under the river!" the girl told Beatrice. "Wasn't the last station Whitehall? Yes, that's where we are, all right. Under the river."

"As soon as the lights come on," the trainman was announcing, "we'll all file out and walk back to the station. Now folks, please! Take it easy! No danger. Just a few steps along the catwalk."

Outraged voices rose. A woman shrieked, "I cant walk along no tracks. I can't." A man complained, "Pay a nickel and walk home!"

But the trainman was determined to be cheerful. "Here come the lights, now. All right, everybody. Out this door. Just follow the person in front of you, nothing to it—"

Beatrice and the girl looked at each other. The girl shrugged, and smiled. "If we have to get out and walk, we have to, that's all. Come on!"

Beatrice felt her hand, steadying on her arm. Then she was staring down at the narrow black catwalk along the tracks, and all at once she was frightened.

"I can't," she moaned. "I can't."

Cheese Makers Urged To Increase Output

MARMORA, March 29—(ENS).—In common with other parts of Hastings County, meetings have been held in the Marmora district this week for the purpose of arousing patrons of cheese factories to the need for greater milk production during the coming season at 2 p.m. on Monday, a meeting was held at Cook's factory near Cordova where Hugh Maloney acted as chairman. The speakers were John McCaffrey and Albert Caskey. In the evening a meeting with the same speakers was held at Deloro for the patrons of the Silver Leaf factory with E. D. O'Connor presiding. The meeting for the Marmora factory was held on Tuesday afternoon in the council chambers with John Bell, reeve of Marmora Township, presiding.

The first speaker at this meeting was E. J. Pyear, a prominent official of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association who urged an increased production of cheese as a patriotic duty since it is one of the kinds of food greatly needed by Great Britain. He claimed food was just as necessary to the winning of the war as munitions. Mr. Pyear also outlined some of the results obtained by the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association such as the securing of better prices. He also touched upon the efforts being made to form a national organization representing all branches of agriculture which will look after the interests of farmers.

H. L. Fair, agricultural representative for Hastings County in stressing increased production stated that this year grains and other feeds necessary to an increased production can be used at a profit by the farmer. Mr. Fair also gave much practical advice to his listeners. Inspector McAvoy spoke briefly, urging patrons to be very careful to send milk in which has been properly cooled and kept free of any source of contamination. He also congratulated Marmora factory on its decision to install a modern electrically refrigerated store room for cheese. Mr. Gregor Murray, manager of the Marmora branch of the Dominion Bank was called upon for a few remarks and after a period of general discussion the meeting adjourned.

farm products for the amount of wheat the Government estimates can be marketed.

He said they should receive a price that would not only pay for production but enable them to maintain a reasonable standard of living.

Will Protect Ontario.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, who had been endeavoring for three days to put through a supplementary estimate for $35,000,000 to cover costs of the crop reduction plan, answered claims by Ontario members that a bonus on coarse grains grown in the West would hit Eastern hog producers.

He said that if it were found Westerners went in for such increased live stock production as a result of the bonus, steps would be taken to equalize the situation.

No progress was made and the debate may continue on Monday, if Finance Minister Ilsley's Supplementary War Appropriation Bill of $135,000,000 for 1940-41 is disposed of.

Mr. Hanson claimed Canada's wheat problem began immediately after the First Great War when former importing countries decided to make themselves self-sufficient.

In February, 1930, after four months of depression and with the 1929 wheat crop still unsold, the Government headed by the present Prime Minister had described the situation as seasonal slackness.

"What a vision," he exclaimed "How characteristic of him. Trying the old game of lulling the Canadian people into a sense of false security."

61 Million Loss.

The government's action in fixing an initial price of 80 cents a bushel coupled with the announcement that wheat would at all times be competitive on world markets had "severely damaged" Canadian wheat markets and resulted in an immediate loss of $52,000,000, which eventually reached $61,000,000 on the wheat crop of 1938-39 Mr. Hanson said.

Since the present war began the government's wheat policy had left it in possession of an investment in unsaleable wheat of between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000. This investment would represent, on July 31 next, a holding of 575,000 000 bushels of wheat.

Now, he said, it was proposed that the wheat farmer was to be bonused, "for the first time in Canadian history," not to produce.

"The immediate reaction on me is that it is a clumsy and belated effort to imitate one of the earlier policies of Henry A. Wallace as part of the new deal in the United States," Mr. Hanson added.

"The reaction to the entire proposal is disappointing alike to the producers who will suffer from insufficient farm income, and to the taxpayers who will have to foot the bills."

It was obvious the government could not dispose of all wheat grown and could not be expected to buy it. The government was in the wheat business "and nobody else is," and the quota system was recognized.

Make The Price Fair.

"Why should not the price be a fair one?" Mr. Hanson then asked. "Why should it not be a price comparable with bacon, cheese and other farm products. Why not pay a price at least equivalent to the cost of production?"

Mr. Hanson mentioned the United States "lend-lease" bill and its possible effect on the Canadian wheat situation. Members applauded his reference to the bill and to the generosity of those supporting it.

He said that last year he had urged upon the government the idea of an outright gift of 100,000,000 bushels of wheat to Britain.

"I am bound to say that it never brought a ripple of response from this Government and I have often wondered why."

He again urged that this proposition be considered by the Government to "give some of our abundance to our kith and kin across the ocean."

In his address Mr. Mackenzie urged that agriculture be placed on a parity with the munitions industry.

"I do not agree with the wheat policy of the Government as it has been announced," he said. "I cannot follow him (the Agriculture Minister) in this policy which he is asking the people to accept."

$500 For Each Farmer.

Within the past two or three years Mr. Mackenzie said, close to $125,000,000 from the Federal treasury had gone to the prairie wheat industry. Estimating there were 250,000 wheat growers in the prairies, he figured this meant an average of about $500 apiece for every farmer.

Approximately 50 per cent. of that was provided by taxpayers of Ontario where 40 per cent. of the farmers are paying interest on mortgages, he added.

Mr. Mackenzie said the agricultural situation should be considered as a whole and this particular aspect of it should be submitted to the Commons Agriculture Committee.

Mr. Gardiner said that in a country as large as Canada it sometimes became necessary to legislate for one particular group and sometimes, in helping one section, another suffered.

The fact that this could be done was what made it possible to keep Canada united and the United States united.

compelled to pay the fees, regardless of whether he was a member of the association. The association would also have the authority to order the distributor to deduct the fee from his payment to the farmer if the latter refused to contribute.

Leopold Macaulay (Con. York South) led the attack on the Milk Board and he was aided by Ian Strachan (Lib. Toronto St. Patrick) and John Glass (Lib. Toronto St. Andrew).

H. N. Carr (Lib. Northumberland) and Conservative Leader George Drew protested against the amendment concerning compulsory fees.

Macaulay Would "Fix" It.

He asked Agriculture Minister P. M Dewan why the board wasn't "fixed" so that it wouldn't be necessary for municipal representatives to waste time and money coming to Toronto to appear before it.

"What do you mean, fix it," asked Mr. Dewan.

"I'd cut it off behind the ears," replied Mr. Macaulay.

The worst part, he continued, is that the board is supposed to protect the farmer yet it was holding "a great umbrella" over the whole industry.

"Your Government created it," interjected Mr. Nixon.

"Yes, but it has gone from bad to worse," declared Mr. Macaulay.

He declared that the farmer was receiving only 20 cents on every dollar spent on milk but Mr. Dewan replied the farmer gets approximately half of the 13 cents paid for a quart of milk. In recent cases where the price of milk had been boosted per hundredweight the increase went to the farmer, the Minister added.

H. N. Carr (Lib., Northumberland) and Col. Drew both questioned the amendment which would provide for payment of dues. Col. Drew said this gave the board extraordinarily wide powers and if the Legislature was prepared to adopt this principle of compulsion there was no reason why it couldn't be applied to other matters.

Ian Strachan, Liberal Whip from Toronto St. Patrick, started the storm when he expressed regret the committee that investigated the administration of justice had been unable to delve into the operations of the Milk Board to determine whether it had too great powers.

Another Question

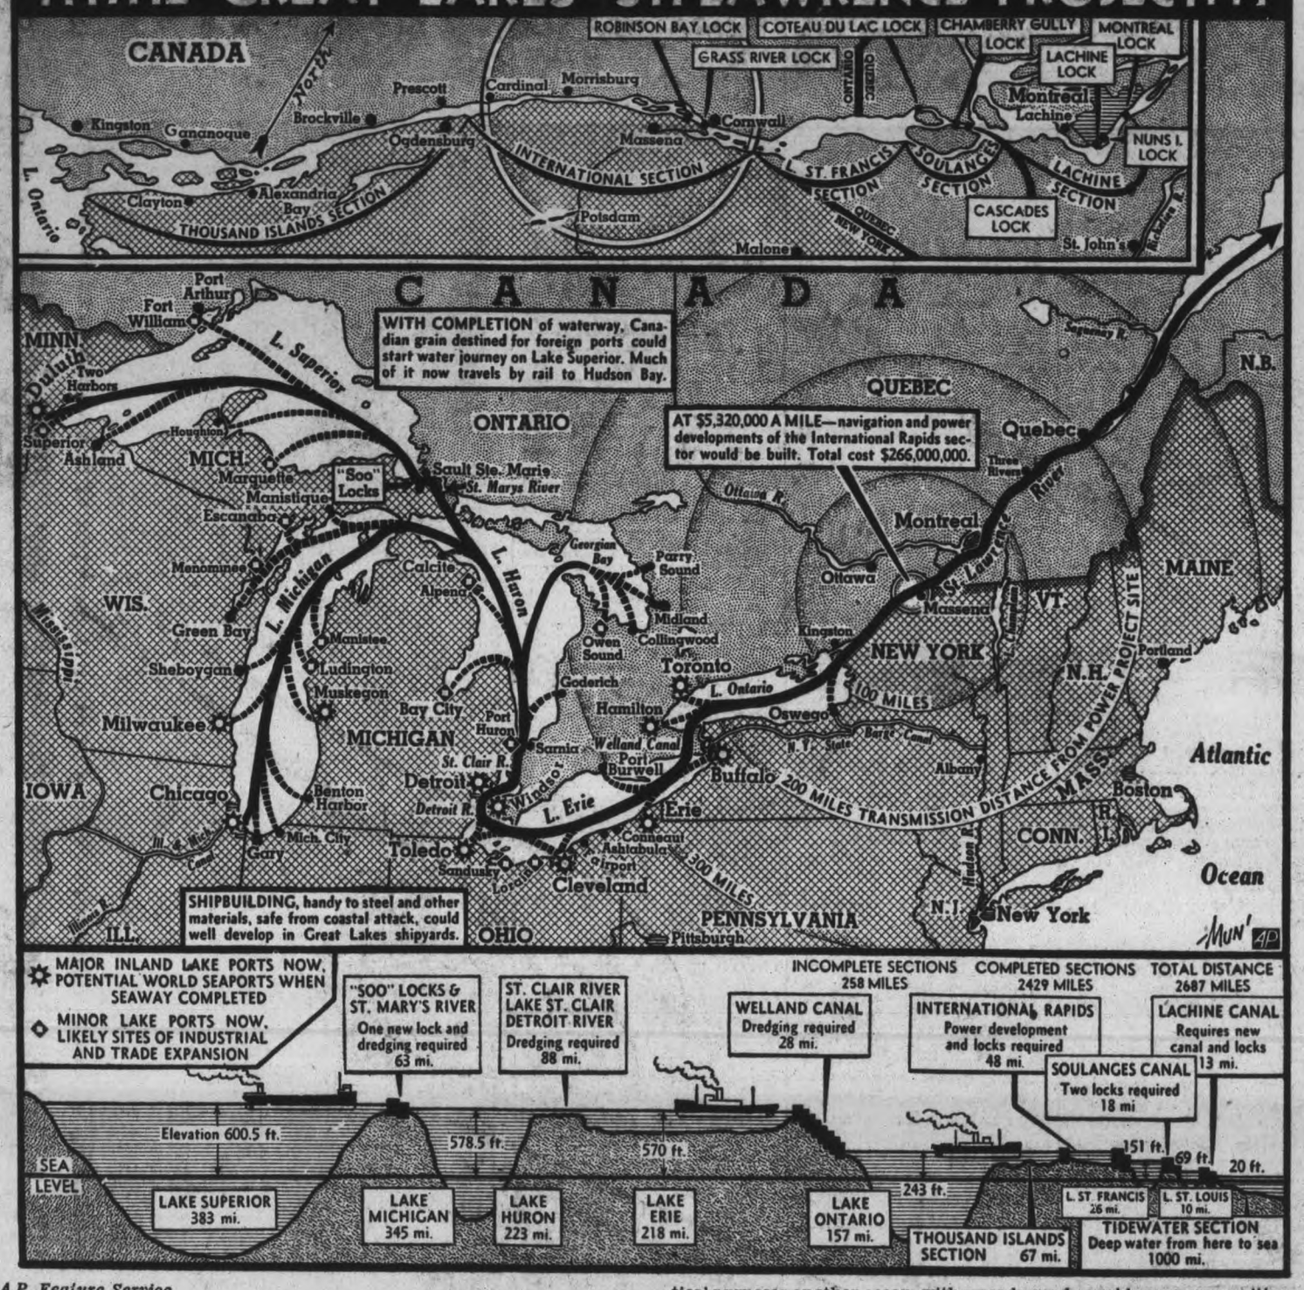
Another Liberal, John J. Glass, asked Mr. Dewan to determine why the consumer paid the same price for milk at the store as he did to have it delivered. He had been told, he said, the delivery cost on a quart of milk was 2½ cents, and there was no reason why this should be returned to the consumer who went after his milk.

The Ontario Department of Labor suggested the manufacture of new model automobiles be prohibited one year before the Federal Government took this action, Hon. Norman Hipel told the Legislature. Mr. Hipel resumed his address which he curtailed Thursday because of an indisposition.

The Labor Minister said it had been ascertained that 500,000 hours of labor were required to produce tools and dies for new model cars and the claim was advanced this energy should be diverted into the production of airplanes.

"The suggestion was not followed until a year later," he added.

...THE GREAT LAKES—ST. LAWRENCE PROJECT...



A.P. Feature Service

Boulder, Bonneville, TVA and Grand Coulee were mighty performances in construction, but Uncle Sam—with Canadian help—is considering a really whopping chore in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway project.

A Canadian-American agreement to carry through the $266,000,000 International Rapids section of the project has been signed. Ratification of the pact, designated by the President as vital to defence, can be compleed by a congressional majority. A previous presentation as an international treaty required a two-thirds vote of the Senate and was lost in 1934.

If the comprehensive seaway program is completed, it will make Duluth, Minn., 2,350 miles from salt water, a port for seagoing vessels. More than half the seagoing ships of the world could touch there. Minimum channel depth would be 27 feet.

It would mean that grain and industrial products from the heart of the continent could move without trans-shipment and at low cost to any port on the globe.

Savings in freight costs—on a probable annual export-import transit of 13,000,000 tons—are estimated roughly at $80,000,000 a year. For instance, lumber from Grays Harbor, Wash., to Detroit could be shipped at savings of from $6 to $12 a ton over present rates.

The Great Lakes already are a teeming water highway. The St. Lawrence deep-water connection with the sea would make them for all practical purposes another ocean, with a ready-made world commerce waiting on its shores.

That's only part of the picture. The electric power possibilities are important—and also a point of argument between opponents and proponents of the program.

Department of Commerce surveys put the cost of steam generation of power in New York City at 10.65 mills per unit and go on to say that St. Lawrence power can be transmitted to the city for 1.6 mills.

The project is within easy transmission distance of major American and Canadian industrial districts. Government proponents of the project are convinced industry will absorb the 1,000,000 horsepower that would be available in four years.

From a national defence standpoint, the project has other claimed advantages. Take shipbuilding, for example. Coastal shipyards would be the first targets for air attack. With the seaway open, all but the largest ships could be built 1,000 or more miles inland, it is pointed out.

Other defence industries could be located inland and still take advantage of low freight costs, it is argued. Opponents say it is too late in the present emergency to start such a project for defence purposes.

The pact does not touch on the friendship and security angle of the project, but Canadian-American collaboration would tend to make the mid-continent area on both sides of the border a fused economic empire.

Big Steel Strike Is Patched Up

BETHLEHEM, Pa., March 29. — (AP).—John V. Riffe, assistant steel workers' organizing committee director, announced today a "settlement" has been reached in the four-day-old congress of industrial organizations' steel workers' organizing committee strike at the giant parent plant of the Bethlehem Steel Company.

An active part was taken in the negotiations by Federal and State mediators, anxious that there should be no delay in work on more than $1,000,000,000 in defence contracts Bethlehem holds.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 29. — (AP).—Morris Mallinger, an official of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, reported today S.W.O.C. unionists had started a walkout at the giant Cambria works of the Bethlehem Steel Company here in protest against a scheduled election by the S.W.O.C.'s rival, the employees' representation plan.

Mallinger said men had started leaving their posts at five sections of the works, but that he did not know yet the number involved. He predicted, however, "several hundred" or "perhaps several thousand" would join the walkout during the day.

The E.R.P. has been ordered dissolved by the National Labor Relations Board but the order has been appealed to the courts.

ance" to Yugoslavia—or any nation—which defends itself against aggression. Welles also hinted that the United States was prepared to "unfreeze" Yugoslavian assets in this country if the nation maintains its independence. The funds were tied up by Presidential order when the old Yugoslav government signed an Axis pact.

The President's message, dispatched to King Peter last night, said:—

"At this moment when your Majesty has assumed the full exercise of your royal rights and powers and the leadership of a brave and independent people, I wish to share with the people of the United States in the expression of our sincere and genuine wishes for the health and well being of your Majesty and for the freedom and independence of Yugoslavia.

"Furthermore, I extend the hope that the relations between your government and the government of the United States may be mutually beneficial in the support of those principles of liberty and tolerance so cherished by the Yugoslav and American peoples."

Yugoslavia's repudiation of the Axis alliance, it was declared in informed quarters, may indicate that the Nazis have reached the end of their conquest by "fifth column" intrigue and diplomacy, backed by the threat of German planes and guns.

American officials were particularly interested in the effect of the Yugoslav developments on Yosuke Matsuoka, Japan's Foreign Minister, now visiting Berlin, and the Japanese government and people.

Pending clarification of the new Yugoslav government's policies, there was intense speculation in diplomatic circles over the next move, with three possibilities most discussed:—

1. The Belgrade government might officially repudiate the Axis pact and prepare—with British assistance—to defend Yugoslavia against any German attack. In that event King Peter might be expected to call upon the United States to provide the "material aid" pledged by President Roosevelt to nations which defend themselves against aggressors.

2. King Peter might temporize, neither formally denouncing nor ratifying the Axis pact, placing his faith in diplomatic manoeuvres to maintain his country's present status—backed up by the fully mobilized Yugoslav army.

3. Internal dissension, along with German military threats, might force the Yugoslavs to compromise with the Nazis, maintain this Axis pact, but secure less onerous terms than the Rumanians and Bulgarians.

Three Soldiers Honored At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, March 29. — (ENS).—Three members of the Midland Regiment home on furlough were honored by members of the Baptist Young People's group on Wednesday evening of this week. The meeting took the form of an "At Home" and Pastor Bryant presided in his usual genial manner.

Towards the close, the guests of honor, Sgt. I. Blair, Pte. Don Nicholas and Pte. Francis Oliver were each presented with a pen and pencil set with leather holder. Frank Oliver made the presentation and Mr. R. eWston gave the accompanying address in which he commended the boys for their sacrifice in voluntarily leaving their homes and friends in an effort to do their part towards stemming the forces of evil. He said, "We have met together to greet and extend our best wishes to you, who have joined His Majesty's forces. You who have voluntarily left your homes and friends and taken your places in the ranks, and have subjected yourselves to military discipline so that you may do your part in maintaining freedom, which is threatened by the powers of evil. We do appreciate this more than we can tell in words. "There are many pleasant associations that we can look back upon, we have been together in the Young People's Union, or in the class at Sunday school, and we hope that these memories will remain through all our lives, and perhaps be of help to all of us. Do no forget that, to some extent, your are our representatives, and that when you do your part in a worthy way we shall be proud that you belonged to us. And when the foes of liberty are vanquished, which we pray may be speedily—we shall welcome you back to take your places again amongst us.

"We would like you to accept this little gift as a remembrance and expression of our desire for your success in every good work that you have undertaken to do. We shall be praying for you."

At the conclusion of Mr. Weston's remarks suitable responses were made by the trio after which refreshments were served by the ladies and the meeting brought to a close.

EXAMINER DIETICIAN ANNOUNCES NEW AND INTRIGUING TESTED RECIPES---BUDGET MENUS---HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Performing Magic With Crumbs

There are lots of things to do with dried bread crumbs besides throwing them out as a feast for the birds. With a little kitchen magic, you can turn the crumbs into a feast for the family. Just add sweetened condensed milk, some nuts or fruit and flavoring to the crumbs, and you'll have crunchy flavorsome and nourishing cookies.

They are no burden on the cookie-maker, for they take only a few minutes by failure-proof recipes that always turn out right. They are delicious with stewed fruit, custard or pie cream for dessert; they are a tasty between-meal pick-up. And they are sure favorites in the school child's lunch, whether it is eaten at home or at school.

Magic Chocolate Macaroons

2 square unsweetened chocolate
1 1-3 cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk.
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup nutmeats, chopped
1 cup toasted bread or zwieback crumbs
30 nut meats.

Melt chocolate in top of double-boiler. Add sweetened condensed milk, stirring over boiling water 5 minutes or until mixture thickens. Remove from heat. Add salt, nut meats and toasted bread or zwieback crumbs (made by forcing through food choped, using coarse knife.)

Drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet, about 1 inch apart. Press nut meat in top of each. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F) 10 minutes or until brown. Remove from pan at once. Makes about 30.

Serve Fish Frequently

By Katharine Baker

Meatless meals twice a week during Lent add up to a lot of hunting around for substitutes. Too often, fish is looked upon as just something to serve when meat can't be used which is a great pity, because fish should have an honoured place in our diet whether other food is available or not. Fish contains many necessary mineral salts and vitamins as well as proteins which make up the most important single food constituent, and Canadian fish is especially good because it comes from pure cold waters where there are rich feeding grounds. Get into the habit of serving fish frequently, not only during Lent but all year round and discover the various delightful ways in which it can be cooked. That is an important point about fish. Many people profess to dislike it and probably do, no doubt because it is so often badly cooked and served the same way all the time. An adventurous jaunt into the field of fish cookery will be well rewarded when the family hail fish days with cheers instead of groans.

This Casserole of Fish is as tasty and nourishing a dish as you would find in a month of Fridays.

Casserole of Fish

¼ pound (1 cup) mushrooms, sliced, 1-3 cup diced celery, 1 medium onion, finely chopped, 4 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, 1¼ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons sugar, 2 cups flaked cooked haddock or cod, 3 cups canned tomatoes.

Saute mushrooms, celery, and onion in butter until tender. Combine with quick-cooking tapioca and remaining ingredients in order given. Turn into greased casserole and bake in hot oven (425 deg. Fahr.) 25 minutes, stirring twice during first 10 minutes of baking. Place unbaked biscuits on top of fish mixture after it has baked 10 minutes; return to oven, and bake 12 to 15 minutes longer, or until biscuits are browned. Serves 8.

No Bashful Blushing for this Proud Pie

Peach Blush Pie will take a proud place on any good cook's table. It's a special hot weather delight that will have the whole family asking for more. See recipe on this page.

Easy Steps In Baking

Since bread in one form or another is one of the most economical and energy-giving foods, you can plan to have it on your table three times a day. Its bland flavor, with all the other good qualities, makes it a desirable supplement for other foods for both children and grown-ups.

Even though you can buy fine breads in great variety from the bakers, most homemakers are proud to display their own fine loaves and rolls. Breadmaking is really fun too, and not at all difficult.

The ingredients required for yeast breads are flour, liquid yeast and salt, with small amounts of sugar and shortening added for flavor. For fancy breads you can add eggs, fruits, spices, nuts or other similar ingredients, to a plain or foundation dough.

Two Methods

There are two methods for making yeast breads, the straight dough method, and the sponge method. The dough method is perhaps most often used. By this method you add all the ingredients at once and knead the dough until it is smooth and satiny, and ready for rising.

The sponge method is one in which the liquid and yeast are mixed and only enough flour added to make a thick batter, which is put in a warm place to become light and bubbly. When this sponge is light, the sugar, salt, shortening and more flour are added to make a dough that is stiff enough to knead.

Because of the longer fermentation required by the sponge method, the bread has a slightly different flavor from that made by the straight dough process. You may like to vary methods occasionally for this reason. Use the same recipef or either method.

Temperatures

Temperatures are important in successful bread-making. First, you must never add hot milk to the yeast, since it will kill the tender yeast plants which cause the bread to rise. If milk is scalded, it should be cooled to lukewarm before the yeast is added.

In cold weather it is a good plan to warm the flour slightly before mixing, since cold flour will chill the dough and delay the rising process. When the dough is mixed, avoid placing it near steam pipes or heat registers to rise and keep it out of cool drafts. Doughs develop most satisfactory if they can be kept at a temperature of 80 to 85 degrees F.

Mixing

It is important to have the little yeast cells well mixed in the dough. The best and safest method is to crumble the yeast into luke warm water, allowing it to stand a few minutes until dissolved. The yeast cells separate and become active so they may begin to do their work as soon as mixed in the dough.

Since different flours absorb liquid differently, most people like to add the flour to the liquid. In this way they can stop adding flour when the dough is stiff enough to be turned out on a board to knead. A simple way to combine the liquid and flour is to measure the liquid into a bowl, add the sugar, salt and shortening, then the flour, a little at a time until the dough is stiff enough to handle.

To obtain a smooth, satin-like, elastic dough, requires eight to 10 minutes of kneading. The time varies with the kind of flour. Remember that an elastic dough, not too stiff, makes the finest finished product. A stiff dough rises slowly and makes coarse-textured bread or rolls.

Rising

After the dough has been kneaded, put into a slightly greased bowl, cover it and set in a warm place away from drafts to rise. The time it will take to rise, until it has doubled in bulk, depends on the temperature and amount of yeast in the dough, as well as the richness of the dough and the kind of flour used. You can tell if the dough is sufficiently light by pressing it gently with a finger. If the impression remains, the dough is light.

Kneading the dough at this point forces out some of the gas, breaks up the large gas bubbles or pockets and brings a new supply of oxygen into the dough for use of the yeast cells.

Molding Into Loaves

After the dough has risen once, been kneaded down and has risen again to almost double in bulk, it is time to mold it into loaves or rolls. Cut the dough into as many pieces as there are to be loaves, and shape into a smooth loaf. Place it into a lightly greased loaf pan. It should come just about half way up the sides of the pan .

Brush the top lightly with melted fat, and set in warm place (80 to 85 degrees F.) to rise until it has doubled in bulk.

Baking temepratures for yeast breads vary from moderate (350 degrees F.) to hot (450 degrees F.) If you like a deep crust, you can bake plain bread at 400 to 425 degrees throughout the baking period. For lighter crust, 425 degrees F. may be used for the first 15 minutes, then reduce the temperature to 350 degrees F. for the remainder of the baking period. Rolls are best baked at moderate temperatures (350 to 375 degrees F.)

The time depends on the size of the loaves, as well as the temperature used. A pound loaf usually bakes nicely in 40 to 45 minutes at 400 to 425 degrees F. Rolls bake in 15 to 25 minutes, depending on their size.

When bread is sufficiently baked, it shrinks slightly from the sides of the pan, and has a hollow sound when thumped lightly.

New Glazings For Hams Oven Baked

New ways of preparing a delicious outer coating for your baked ham always are interesting. When the ham has almost finished the required cooking time and the skin has been removed, you are inclined to wish that there was some other way to glaze its surface rather than the usual brown sugar and clove combination.

You will like the deep red cranberry glaze made by cooking the raw berries into a sweet sauce and basting the ham with it. Then, there is the trick of combining brown sugar with mustard, rubbing it over the ham, dotting it with halved apricots pinned on with long-stemmed cloves and basting it with wine.

A spicy paste made of brown sugar, cloves, flour and apple cider form a delightful crust when baked on the ham. And always, for those of you who do not like a sweetened outer layer — there is pungent, savory barbecue sauce.

To explain the exact procedure when using the cranberry glaze—about 45 minutes before the ham has finished cooking remove the rind, score fat with a sharp knife, and stud the surface with cloves. Return to the baking pan and pour over it two cups of cranberry sauce. Bake for the remainder of the cooking period and just before serving pour over two more cups of cranberry sauce. Here is the recipe for making four cups of sauce.

Cranberry Sauce

1 pound (4 cups) cranberries
1½ cups sugar
2 cups water

Pick over and wash cranberries in a colander and drain well. Place berries, sugar and water in a deep saucepan and bring to a boil. Cook slowly for about 10 minutes, or until the skins are broken.

Ham Paste With Wine

And now for the brown sugar and mustard paste, using halved apricots and wine. When the ham rind has been removed, score the fat into one and one-half inch squares or diamonds, then rub the meat with the following mixture:

½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed.
2 teaspoons dry mustard
Halved apricots
Cloves, long-stemmed
½ cup wine

Combine brown sugar and mustard. Rub it over the surface of the ham. Place an apricot half on each square and secure it with a long-stemmed clove. Return ham to the oven, uncovered, and increase the heat to 400 degrees F. for about one-half hour, basting several times with wine.

Apple cider, spices and brown sugar in a spicy sweet glaze for ham is made by using the following ingredients:

Ham Glaze (For a Whole Ham)

3 cups brown sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
¼ cup apple cider (or pineapple juice.)

Make a paste of the ingredients and spread over the entire ham, making certain that it is well covered. Place in the oven, using a higher temperature than that required during the first period of baking—425 deg. F.—for approximately one-half hour. Do not carve until about 30 minutes after removing ham from the oven. (If you wish the ham to stay warm, leave in the oven with the door open.)

Pass a bowl of cider sauce, so smooth and delicious with its flavorings of mayonnaise, ketchup and apple cider. It is just the right teammate for tender slices of ham.

Cider Sauce

1 cup mayonnaise
3 tablespoons apple cider
1 cup cream, whipped
3 tablespoons ketchup
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon powdered sugar

Mix the mayonnaise and the cider, fold in the whipped cream and gradually fold in the other ingredients until the sauce is smooth and well-mixed.

Peach Blush Pie Delights

No bashful beauty of the pie family is this combination of crispy bran shell and sliced peaches. It's the cherry gelatin that gives it a reputation for being shy!

Peach Blush Pie will take a proud place on your table at any time. It's a special hot weather delight that will have the whole family asking for more—and they won't blush about it, either.

Serve it with whipped cream if you want added richness.

Peach Blush Pie

1 baked all-bran pastry shell
2½ cups canned sliced peaches
2 cups peach juice
1 pkg. cherry gelatin.

Prepare all-bran pastry shell. Drain peaches thoroughly. Add enough water to juice to make 2 cups liquid. Heat liquid and dissolve gelatin in it. Chill only until mixture begins to congeal. Arrange peaches in pie shell and pour gelatin mixture over. Chill until firm. Serve with whipped cream if desired.

Yield: One 9-inch pie.

Bran Pastry Shell

¼ cup all-bran
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup fat
5 tablespoons cold water(more or less).

Roll all-bran until fine and combine with flour and salt. Cut in fat. Add water, a little at a time, until dough is moist enough to hold together. Roll out on lightly floured board to about ⅛ inch in thickness. Place rolled pastry loosely in pan. Trim edge, leaving about ¼ inch of pastry beyond rim of pan. Fold extended edge under and flute. Prick pastry shell with a fork and bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 10 to 15 minutes.

Yield: One 2-crust pie or two 8-inch pastry shells.

Apple Stacks New Dessert

A trio of flavors blend beautifully in this new "dessert-sandwich". Apple butter, cream cheese and bran make the trio— "Apple Butter Stacks" is its name— and you easily make it with this recipe:

Put circles together with apple butter between, using a stack of three for each serving. Spread cream cheese softened with lemon juice on top of stacks. Serve at once.

Yield: 4 servings (3½ inches in diameter).

All-Bran Pastry:

¼ cup all-bran
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup shortening
4 tablespoons cold water, more or less.

Roll all-bran until fine; combine with flour and salt. Cut in shortening. Add water, a little at a time, until dough is moist enough to hold together.

FRESH STRAKBERRY ICE BOX CAKE

Lady fingers weigh very light and 1 pound will make two ice box desserts.

Twenty-four lady fingers, 1 quart fresh strawberries, about 1 cup berry sugar, 3 eggs, well beaten, 1 cup heavy cream whipped, 1 teaspoon of either orange, almond or vanilla flavoring. Select eight or ten of the choicest berries for garnishing. Crush the remaining one with sugar and let stand 3 or 4 hours, then drain off juice into top of double boiler and let heat, and then add beaten eggs and stir over boiling water until it thickens (about 5 minutes.) Let cool, then cut and fold in the whipped cream and the pulp from the berries, to which has been added the desired flavoring. Line mould by standing lady fingers with one end cut off, on their cut-off end to form a ring around mould. Cover bottom of mould entirely with lady fingers so that pieces will hold together when served—filling in any little spaces with the pieces cut from ends. Pour strawberry cream mix over lady fingers in mould and cover and let stand at least 24 hours in ice box. In serving sprinkle top with powdered sugar and garnish with whole or halved berries.

flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon grated nutmeg, ½ pound stoned cut dates. Put the unbeaten eggs and all other ingredients in a mixing bowl together (without any previous mixing or the texture is changed) and beat 3 minutes. Bake in a greased loaf cake pan in oven of 375 deg. Fahr. for 35 to 40 minutes.

RASPBERRY JAM ICE-BOX CAKE

Select a square, not too shallow pan and line it carefully with wax paper, then fit split lady fingers flat side down, all over the surface, filling in the chinks with broken pieces, so that the foundation of the cake is smooth and even. Next cream ½ cup of icing sugar, and 1 cup raspberry jam, mixing very well together, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of 2 eggs or ½ cup cream whipped, and spread half the mixture over the cakes. Cover with a second layer of lady fingers split, and the remainder of the filling. Chill at least 8 hours or preferably longer.

ORANGE ICE BOX CAKE

This must be made 24 hours in advance.

Eighteen to 24 lady fingers, 1 tablespoon gelatine, 1 tablespoon cold water, ¾ cup strained orange juice, 3 eggs beaten separately, ¾ cup powdered sugar, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind, orange slices or wedges for garnish.

To line mould split lady fingers, and cut off one end to stand firm on bottom of mould; make a ring of these upright all around the mould, touching each other and lay others close together on bottom, filling in open spaces with crumbs from the cut-off ends.

Using the top of the double boiler soak the gelatin in the cold water for 5 minutes, then add the orange juice and stand over boiling water until the gelatin dissolves. Beat the yolks, then add the sugar, then the cooled gelatin mixture, then the grated rinds. Just before it begins to set fold in the stiffy beaten whites, and pour into the lined mould. When ready to serve turn out and garnish with orange slices or wedges and top with a little whipped cream.

ALABAMA FRUIT CAKE

Three pounds raisins, 2 lbs. currants (or 1 lb. currants and 1 lb. chopped dates), 1½ lbs. blanched almonds, 1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon, 4 freshly grated nutmegs, 1 lb. sifted flour, 1 lb. butter, 1 lb. sugar, 4 oz. sherry or other wine, 2 oz. cooking brandy, 1 oz. rose water, ½ lb. each lemon and citron peel OR 1 pint orange marmalade may be used in place of lemon and citron peels, 1 dozen eggs, beaten separately.

—Note—If the orange marmalade is used in place of the peels, I think the cake is moister and more delicate—on the other hand the peels make the cake fruitier and chewier.

Prepare the fruits and nuts and peels, by slicing or chopping or shredding and mix with 1 cup out of the required 1 lb. of flour. Cream the butter for at least 10 minutes, then gradually add the sugar to it creaming. Sift together the remainder of the flour and the spices. Beat the eggs with large rotary beater for 5 minutes and add the wine and cooking brandy to them. Sift the flour mixture into the sugar and butter mixture, and alternately add the egg mixture while stirring. Then add the floured fruits and stir or at least 10 minutes—get the family Strong-Arm to help you with this. If the marmalade is used in place of peels add it when the egg mixture is added.

Bake in buttered paper-lined pans. Bake at 275 deg. Fahr. (this low temperature prevents fruit from caramelizing and having that burned flavor characteristic of some fruit cakes) for about 3 or 4 hours—time depending on size of cakes. Cool cakes when baked, then store in closely covered crocks or tin boxes well wrapped in wax paper and towels.

GINGER ICE BOX CAKE

One cup heavy cream whipped, 2 teaspoons powdered sugar, ½ teaspoon flavoring—almond, vanilla, or lemon, and 18 thin ginger snaps. Add sugar and flavoring to the whipped cream which must be stiff. Pile the wafers on top of each other with a good layer of whipped cream between each two, pressing lightly together. Lay the roll on its side on a flat serving platter, keeping in shape. Coat completely with the remaining cream and chill in the refrigerator (not in the freezing tray), for 3 or 4 hours. When serving cut in diagonal slices. These amounts serve 6—an additional dot of whipped cream, sprinkled with finely chopped citron peel is recommended.

READER'S WHITE FRUIT CAKE

One and one-quarter cups white sugar, 1 cup butter, 1 lb. glace cherries (all green or all red or half green and half red), 1 lb. bleached sultana raisins, ¼ lb. citron peel, 5 eggs, ½ cup strong clear coffee, 3 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ lb. ground almonds.

Method—Cream butter and sugar, beat the eggs and add them alternately with the flour (which has been first sifted with the baking powder and salt), add the fruit which has been sprinkled with a little of the flour, then add the strong clear coffee. Bake in pan 9 inches by 9 inches in oven of 350 deg. Fahr. for about 2 hours.

Note—If orange juice is used in place of coffee it is not necessary to strain out the pulp—merely remove the seeds. One-half pound of almonds may be used if desired.

CARD GINGERBREAD

Two cups molasses, 1 cup shortening, 1 tablespoon ginger, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 4½ cups flour (about). Heat molasses and shortening together, do not let boil. When cool add other ingredients, using enough flour to make a stiff dough. Roll in 2 sheets ¼ to ½ inch thick as preferred. Score top with fork tines to give it a corrugated appearance. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. When serving cut in strips or squares. Good hot or cold.

PORCUPINE COOKIES No. 2

(Ice Box Cookies)

One cup light brown sugar, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 scant pound butter or part substitute, 3 eggs well beaten but not separated, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 4½ cups flour. Mix and shape into sausage-shaped rolls and keep cold overnight. In morning slice thinly and sprinkle tops with chopped Brazils or other nuts. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 10 minutes or until edges begin to change color.

NUTTY JUMBLES

One egg beaten, 3 tablespoons thick cream, 1 cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2¼ cups flour, ½ nutmeg grated. Beat egg and cream together, and cream shortening and sugar together. Add egg flour alternately to the shortening and sugar mixure, then nutmeg. The dough should be very soft. Chill. Take small pieces and roll ¼-inch thick, shaping into rings or cut with small doughnut cutter. Sprinkle top with chopped nuts after glazing with unbeaten egg white to make nuts cling. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr., for about 8 minutes. These of course, may be shaped by hand if chilled enough, by breaking off pieces and rolling between palms, placing on baking sheet and pressing with thumb to flatten, when one half of walnut is easy to apply.

Two cups very fine rolled oats (grind them through your food chopper), 3 cups flour, 2 cups brown sugar, 1 cup finely chopped raisins (optional), 1 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda (in the milk), 1 cup soft butter, 2 well beaten eggs; mix together the first four ingredients. If the raisins are used add them too. Then add the milk, and soda, and the butter and eggs. Mix well and roll into balls between the palms about 1-inch in diameter, then flatten on buttered baking sheet and stick pieces of almonds which have been blanched and toasted and shredded in them. The almonds are more easily shredded lengthwise if cut immediately after almonds are blanched and while they are still damp. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until golden.

CHEESE STRAWS

Three cups flour, ½ cup lard, 2/3 cup butter, 1½ teaspoons salt, ice water. With pastry blender or fingertips blend cold lard with flour and salt until it resembles coarse meal. Add cold water to make stiff paste. Divide into two and roll out into sheet ¼ inch thick. Spread evenly with butter that has been kept at room temperature for two hours, using 1/3 cup butter to each half of the paste. Now fold paste into 8 layers and roll out again to less than ¼ inch. Cover thickly with grated old dry cheese to depth of ¼ inch. Roll up jelly roll fashion and turn dough with small end toward you, then roll out thinly and cut into strips 4 inches long by ¾ inch wide with pastry jagger if you have one. Place on baking sheets and chill thoroughly—about 4 hours in refrigerator. Bake at 500 degrees Fahr. for about 8 minutes, turning them about 3 times to make browning even; lower heat if bottom begins to smoke. Remove from oven as soon as straws are flaky and dry.

GENUINE ALMOND MACAROONS

Gradually work the unbeaten whites of three eggs into ½ pound of almond paste, using the hands. In the same way work in 2 cups of powdered sugar until the mixture is free of lumps. Drop by small teaspoons two inches apart onto greased cookie sheets. Bake in moderate to slow oven—325 deg. Fahr.—until light brown. Do not bake too long or they will become brittle when cool.

These keep very well in air-tight box.

HAM PINWHEELS

Tea Biscuit Dough: Two cups flour; 4 to 5 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons shortening, ¾ cup milk (or milk and water), 1 teaspoon salt. Sift together dry ingredients, then cut in shortening with two knives or pastry blender, then quickly add cold milk, miving barely long enough to hold dough together. Turn out on a lightly floured board and roll out into a rectangle ¼ inch thick. Brush top with melted butter, about 2 teaspoons. Spread with minced ham made into a paste by putting through fine knife or grinder twice and moistening just enough to spread. Roll up from long side like a jelly roll, slice across ½ inch thick layer with 1 cut side down greased pan, not touching. Bake at least 425 deg. Fahr., standing pan midway between top and bottom of oven to prevent burning. Best if served hot. Filling may be sausage meat, or liverwurst mashed to a paste or peanut butter.

Short Cuts for Busy Days

(By CLAIRE THOMPSON.)

With some form of war work added to your regular household routine, a thousands and one duties must be crowded into your day. No wonder then that you often long for a magic carpet to bring forth a complete meal and set it on your table!

Perhaps you have never thought of cocoa coming to your aid in times like these. It will, however, provided you use a rich chocolate cocoa. There's a smooth easily blended Jersey brand cocoa on the market now that you will find has all kinds of possibilities!

One is a velvety fluffy chocolate frosting you can make by simply stirring this cocoa, sugar and thick cream together, allowing the mixture to chill thoroughly, then beating it up with a few whirls of a rotary egg beater. This same frosting has other uses, too. You can put it in the centre of little individual sponge cakes—and presto, you have a dessert fit for a party luncheon or an extra special banquet!

Another quick trick you will find a boon is to flavor milk puddings with a few tablespoons of chocolate syrup. The syrup itself is no task to make and a jar of it kept in readiness will solve many a dessert problem. You need such a small amount to produce real chocolate fudge flavor — because the Jersey brand cocoa in the syrup is rich and full strength.

So when minutes are precious and meal planning drab, you will appreciate such short cuts as these to add zest to the dessert course.

Quick Chocolate Fluff Frosting

½ cup cocoa.
½ cup fine granulated or fruit sugar.
1 cup whipping cream.
½ teaspoon vanilla.

Combine the cocoa and sugar and add cream gradually. Mix well and let stand in refrigerator for 5 hours or overnight. Beat until fluffy with rotary beater or electric beater, add vanilla and spread on top and sides of cake.

Note: This frosting will keep for 2 to 3 days if stored in a cool place.

Jiffy Chocolate Cream Cakes

6 large plain cup cakes.
Quick Chocolate Fluff Frosting (recipe above).
Chopped nut meats.

Cut a cone-shaped piece of cake from top of each cup cake. Fill cake with Quick Chocolate Fluff Frosting and replace top of cake. Place a spoonful of frosting on top of cake and garnish with chopped nut meats or coconut. Yield: 6 servings.

Quick Chocolate Syrup

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup granulated sugar.
2-3 cup cocoa.
½ cup water.
2 tablespoons butter.

Combine the brown and white sugars with Neilson's Jersey Broad Cocoa and mix well; blend in the water and add butter; place over low heat and stir until the sugar is dissolved and mixture begins to boil. Boil for 5 minutes, then removed from heat and pour into jar; store in a cool place. Use—To flavor tapioca or cornstarch pudding. Fine as a sauce for plain desserts, cottage pudding and ice cream.

Quick Chocolate Tapioca Pudding

1½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca.
2 cups scalded milk.
¼ cup sugar.
2 egg yolks.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
4 tablespoons Quick Chocolate Syrup (recipe above).
2 egg whites.

Add tapioca to milk and cook in double boiler until tapioca is transparent. Add half sugar to milk and remainder to slightly beaten egg yolks and salt. Pour hot mixture slowly over egg yolks, return to double boiler and cook until it thickens, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, cool slightly and add vanilla and chocolate syrup. Mix well and fold in egg whites which have been beaten until they are stiff but not dry. Chill well before serving. Yield: 6 servings.

Says
MRS. MARY PEASE
Editor of the I.O.D.E. "Echoes" Magazine

"Give me a cake that doesn't need a fussy frosting! That's why this kind, carrying its own sweet topping is one of my standbys. And thanks to that simple recipe in the New Jewel Recipe Book, it's always a success!" says Mrs. Pease, who finds time to contribute a cooking column to the busy publication she edits. The recipe to which she refers is given below.

ENGLISH TOFFEE-PUDDING

Oddly named—because of the method. The flavour is remarkable, and brings applause. A family sweet-course that will rise to an occasion, too.

2 cups sifted pastry flour or 1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sultana raisins
½ cup golden syrup (or corn syrup)
½ cup (lightly packed) brown sugar
8 tablespoons Jewel Shortening
1 tablespoon coffee essence
1 Brookfield Egg
¼ teaspoon baking soda
2 tablespoons milk
Blanched almonds

Measure flour and sift with baking powder and salt; add raisins. Stir syrup, sugar and Jewel over heat until sugar dissolves; add coffee essence, then cool. Beat and add the egg. Make a well in the dry ingredients and add Jewell mixture, combining thoroughly. Add soda, dissolved in milk, and combine well. Have almonds arranged in a thoroughly greased mould; turn in batter, to no more than ¾-fill. Cover mould, or tie down with greased paper. Steam, covered, over rapidly-boiling water, about 2½ hours. Turn out and serve very hot, with suitable sauce.

PERFECT CRUMB CAKE

This type of cake, carrying its own sweet topping, requires no frosting; it is a most usable cake.

½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
8 tablespoons Jewel Shortening
¾ cup (packed) brown sugar
1 Brookfield Egg
¾ cup sour milk or buttermilk
1 cup seedless raisins
2 tablespoons granulated sugar with ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon

Measure flour and sift twice with salt and baking soda. Cream Jewel slightly and gradually blend in brown sugar; sift and work in dry ingredients about half at a time. Set aside ¾ cup of the resulting crumbly mixture. Beat the egg, add milk and stir into greater part of Jewel mixture with the raisins. Combine thoroughly. Turn into greased and floured 8-inch square pan and sprinkle with the ¾ cupful of "crumb" mixture which was saved out; then sprinkle with granulated sugar and cinnamon. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 deg., about 45 minutes. This cake is equally delicious hot or cold.

tablespoon finely grated orange rind (the yellow part only), moisten with just enough cold milk to make a sponge (about 2/3 cup). Roll or pat out on floured board, cut into small rounds and arrange on floured pan. Dip cubs of loaf sugar in orange juice, sprinkle with sugar and bake in an oven of at least 450 deg. Fahr.

WALDONCROFT TEA BISCUITS

Using 2 cups packaged tea biscuit mixture, add the prescribed amount of milk or water on package and add ¼ cup wheat germ—bake, spread on buttered pan at 550 deg. Fahr. for about 7 minutes. Remove from oven and serve immediately cut in squares with plenty of butter—unsalted preferably. You will notice how fast these would be to make and serve.

Boil together until it forms a syrup 1 pound honey and 2 lbs. brown sugar—about 10 minutes slowly. While still warm add 2 lbs. brown sugar, 6 eggs (1 at a time) and stir one-half hour. Add ½ lb. blanched almonds, ¼ lb. each chopped citron, lemon peel and orange peel, 4 teaspoons cinnamon, 4 tablespoons baking powder—enough flour to make a stiff dough. Let stand overnight. Roll out, cut and place almond on top of each cookie and bake. They are usually cut in oblongs 3 inches long and 1 inch wide. These cookies are hard at first, but soften and flavor improves after being kept two weeks in airtight box.

BATTER FOR LEMON MARGUERITES.

(This batter may be used for cup cakes or Petit Fours.)

Two-thirds cup butter, 2 cups sugar, 4 eggs, 1 cup milk, 3¼ cups sifted flour, ¼ teaspoon mace is optional. Put butter and sugar in bowl and beat until blended beat the eggs together for 5 minutes and add. Then add milk alternately with the flour which has been sifted with the making powder and mace if used. Pour into fluted paper cups and bake at 350 deg. Fahr.

When cool cut out "cup" from top, put one tablespoon Lemon Cheese filling, replace "cap" dust top with powdered sugar. Serve in paper cups in which they were baked.

PORCUPINE KISSES

One and one-quarter cups sugar, 4 whites of eggs, 1 cup blanched but not toasted almonds, which have been carefully cut lengthwise and 1 cup cocoanut. Add the sugar to the whites and beat together until quite stiff—about 10 minutes with good rotary beater, then add the nuts and cocoanut and a little vanilla if you prefer it or almond flavoring. Bake on wax paper on baking sheet or board at not more than 275 deg. Fahr. until they turn a light biscuit color—they must not brown—merely dry out.

MINCEMEAT COOKIES

One cup shortening (or half shortening and half butter), 1½ cups sugar, 2 well-beaten eggs, 3½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon ½ teaspoon cloves, 2 cups rich mincemeat, 1 cup walnuts. Cream the shortening and gradually cream the sugar into it, then add the well-beaten eggs. Sift all the dry ingredients together, then sift them into the creamed mixture. To this then add the mincemeat and walnuts. Drop by teaspoonfuls 2 inches apart on greased cookie sheet and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until golden.

CHERRY CHARLOTTE
(May Be Used for Pie).

One tablespoon good quality gelatine, 1½ cups cherry juice, ¼ cup hot water, ¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1 cup pitted drained cherries, ¼ cup of chopped almonds or cashews, ½ cup cream whipped, sugar if desired. Soak the gelatin in ½ cup of the cherry juice and dissolve in the boiling water, then add remaining cherry juice and sugar if cherry juice is not sweet enough. Stir until dissolved then add nutmeg and orange rind. When mixture begins to thicket beat vigorously with rotary beater until it is fluffy. Fold in the cherries, nut meats, and whipped cream. Pour into fancy moulds or 1 large mould and chill. Serve garnished with cherries.

DELICIOUS MINCEMEAT
(Meatless)

Four pounds apples (if you can get them Bishop Pippins are recommended by the reader who sent me this recipe), 1 lb. finely ground suet, 4 lbs. brown sugar, 1 pound choice seedless or seeded raisins, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg. ½ teaspoon cloves. Grind apples and suet and mix with remaining ingredients—cook over very low heat stirring often, until mixture darkens. Use an asbestos mat under pot as it burns readily. Store in crock—the fat comes to top and forms a fine seal—it will keep well and improve with age.

POTATO TEA CAKES

(I found these had one highly specialized place in our week—we had had guests for dinner Saturday night so had no traditional "roast" on Sunday—but we sliced our cold roast beef for Sunday's tea, had plenty of relishes and salad things—and these little tea cakes were high-lighted).

One cup cold riced potatoes (leftover), 4 cups flour, ½ cup shortening, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk. Mix potato, and flour and rub in shortening. Add salt. Add milk. Roll to ½-inch thickness and cut in 3 inch rounds. Set in ungreased baking pan, bake in hot oven to golden brown, about 8 minutes at 450 deg. Fahr. When done split and serve very hot—especially good with cold meat.

EMEM'S MINCEMEAT PINWHEELS

Make Rich Pastry.—The ingredients for plain pastry are 1½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening, 3 to 4 tablespoons ice water. Cut the shortening into the salt and flour or work it in with the finger tips, then add just enough water to make it hold together. Roll out. To make Fich Pastry SPREAD plain Pastry with 2 to 5 tablespoons butter or butter and lard creamed together, covering only half the rolled out paste with the additional shortening, folding the unspread half over the spread half and pinching the edges together, roll out to original size, fold into eight layers, roll out again.

To make the pinwheels spread this rolled out Rich Pastry with mincemeat, spreading it on about ⅛ inch thick—a very thin layer. Then roll up like a jelly roll and chill overnight or at least 4 hours. Leave in the icebox drapped first in wax paper then in tea towel, until needed. When ready, cut in slices about 3/16 to ¼ inch thick and bake at 475 deg. Fahr. until they begin to tinge golden. Of course, serve them hot with tea or coffee.

CHOCOLATE FLAKES
(Not Baked).

Melt ½ pound of semisweet dippink and coating chocolate or dark almost bitter eating chocolate over lukewarm water in top of a double boiler. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup chopped nuts and 2 cups corn flakes. Mix together until the flakes and nuts are well coated. Drop by small spoonfuls onto waxed paper. Put in a cool placed to harden. They will be crisp and crackly and very much of a confection.

CHEESE MUFFINS

I found these superior to cheese tea biscuits which are quite commonly known, because they are so fluffy, yet have a distinct cheese flavor.

Two cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup old graded cheese (dried out), 1 cup milk 1 egg beaten, 2 tablespoons melted shortening. Sift dry ingredients into bowl add milk with which has been mixed the yolk, and melted shortening and cheese. Last fold in stiffly beaten whites, and stir only enough to incorporate them. Pour into greased muffin tins and bake from 20 to 25 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr. Serve as hot as possible—first splitting to butter.

Delicious Fruited Pancakes

To make these delicious fruited pancakes, add 1 cup of thick apple sauce, crushed pineapple, diced orange sections or berries to your favorite pancake recipe. Keep the pancakes small and fry them in bacon drippings. Serve with crisp bacon.

Bread, Rolls

APRICOT BREAD

Three-quarters cup dried apricots, 1 egg, 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 2 cups all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup strained orange juice, ¼ cup water, 1 cup whole pecans. Soak the apricots 15 minutes in cold water. Drain well and chop finely. Beat together very well, the egg, sugar and butter. Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and baking soda. Add the flour mixture alternately with the orange juice and water to the egg mixture, beating well, then add apricots and pecans, stir well, and pour into 1 large or two small well buttered loaf tins. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour for 1 loaf or 50 minutes if in two small loaves.

REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

Two yeast cakes, ½ cup lukewarm water, 2-3 cup shortening, 1-3 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 cup boiling water, 1 cup milk, 7 or 8 cups flour, 2 eggs, well beaten. Dissolve the yeast in the lukewarm water. Dissolve shortening, sugar and salt in the boiling water. When this mixture is lukewarm add the dissolved yeast and milk. Stir in about 3½ cups flour, add beaten eggs, then enough more flour to make a dough that can be handled, but keep it as soft as possible. Turn onto lightly floured board and knead until the dough is smooth and elastic to the touch. Put in a large, well-greased bowl, cover and let stand at room temperature until doubled in bulk (about 1 hour). Work the dough down lightly in the bowl, cover closely, and stand in the refrigerator until needed. The dough will rise a little even in the refrigerator so bowl should be deep—a good utensil is a lard pail lined with waxed paper—for the cover fits closely. Shape while still ice cold, let rise at 70 deg. Fahr. for 1½ hours and bake at 400 deg. F. for 18 minutes.

ICE BOX ROLLS

These are given by popular demand for they have a definite place in hot weather menus—they are such a surprise, when brought forth from the depths of the icebox and put into a hot oven, and served all within about 20 minutes of you remembering you have them.

Two yeast cakes, ½ cup lukewarm water, 2-3 cup shortening, 1-3 cup sugar, a tablespoon salt, 1 cup boiling water, 1 cup milk, 7 or 8 cups flour, 3 eggs, beaten. Dissolve the yeast in the lukewarm

CANDY MAKING AND CHOCOLATE DIPPING

Chocolate dipping seems to be the intriguing part of candy making—and the one thing chocolate dippers have to remember is that the temperatures must be exactly right—you must have a candy thermometer.

First be sure to buy dipping chocolate—this may be purchased in the grocery department of your department store—it is about 40 cents per pound.

CANDIED ORANGE OR GRAPEFRUIT PEEL

The peel from 4 medium-sized oranges, 2 cups granulated sugar, cold water. (If using grapefruit the peeling from 3 medium-sized grapefruits is enough). Using the point of a sharp knife, remove the orange peel in quarters. Cover with cold water and simmer until tender. Drain, reserving 1 cup of the liquor. Lay each piece of peel on the table and carefully remove the inner white portion with the bowl of a teaspoon. Then cut the orange peel into ¼-inch strip. Combine with the sugar and the 1 cup reserved liquor and stir over a low heat until the sugar is dissolved. Cook to 238 deg. Fahr. Cook orange strips in syrup 5 minutes, drain and coat with fine granulated sugar.

If you want recipes for other confections please write immediately, naming what you want and enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope.

TO COVER CENTRE WITH DIPPING CHOCOLATE

Shred the chocolate finely and place in double boiler. The heat of the water in the outer saucepan must not be allowed to go above 130 deg. Fahr. The heat of the melted chocolate must not go above 100 deg. Fahr. or it will spoil the appearance of the finished candies, and it must be cooled to between 80 and 85 deg. Fahr. for dipping the centres. The more the chocolate is stirred and beaten while melting the better. Never allow any water to come in contact with it. When centres are ready for dipping take one in your left hand and put it into the malted chocolate. When completely covered lift it out on the large tablespoon you have been using for stirring the chocolate. With the thumb and second finger (you have to get your hands into this) of the right hand take up the centre and allow to drip well, then place on polished tin tray or heavy wax paper to set. A little practice will make you expert in twirling the drops that cling to your fingers on top of the candies to identify the centres.

GINGER FOR DIPPING

China ginger in syrup is most suitable for dipping. The syrup should be drained off and the ginger cut in irregular shapes and allowed to dry. If crystallized ginger is used wash off the sugar, and let dry. Then coat as above.

Sweet candy centres are dipped in dark dipping chocolate. Nuts, ginger, dates and other fruits are usually dipped in milk chocolate.

MAPLE BISCUIT

(Using Maple Syrup)

Sift together 2 cups flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda, then cut in 1½ tablespoons good shortening, 1 well beaten egg mixed with 1 cup rich sour milk, and add ¾ teaspoon allspice, and 1 cup shaved maple sugar. Stir lightly and drop into grease muffin tins. Bake 20 minutes at 425 deg. Fahr.

The maple sugar may be left out of the mixture in the above recipe, the dough rolled out, the shaved sugar sprinkled over it, and the rolled up jelly-roll fashion, and cut of into biscuits in slices, and baked close together in well-buttered pan—do not stand on bottom shelf in oven or sugar burns.

MAPLE CARAMELS

Two cups sugar, 1 cup maple syrup, 1 cup evaporated milk, 1 cup light corn syrup, ½ cup cream, ¼ cup butter, 2 teaspoons vanilla. Put all ingredients except vanilla into a saucepan and cook over low fire stirring constantly until 248 deg. Fahr. is reached (quite a firm ball in cold water). Add the vanilla and turn at once into a greased pan. When cold turn out of the pan and cut in squares with a sharp buttered knife. Wrap each square in waxed paper.

INGENIOUS TRICKS

Two of them: Number one is buying crystallized ginger and cutting it into slivers and dipping it into powdered sugar yourself and using it to extend and add variety to your dish of nuts and bonbons—ginger is about half the cost and many of your epicure guests will prefer it to mints. Trick number two is to frost grapes—this suggestion has appeared on this page before but it is so good it is worth repeating. Take perfect bunches, preferably quite small—about 8 large grapes or 15 small to a stem—and wash them and dry them thoroughly. Beat the whites of 2 eggs to a froth. Dip the bunches in the whites, shake off the excess egg white gently, dip the bunches in a mound of powdered sugar. See that each grape is as well covered as possible. Dip in sugar again and again to insure even and complete coating, carefully shaking the bunch each time. Lay the bunches on a wire rack to dry. When dry arrange against silver leaves or holly leaves on flat dishes. These are delicious to eat—and just as good to look it.

FONDANT FOR CREAM CENTRES

One pound granulated sugar, ⅛ teaspoon fresh cream of tartar, ¼ pint hot water. Put all ingredients in 2-quart saucepan. Put over hot heat and stir thoroughly with wooden spoon or paddle until it starts to boil, then take out spoon, stir no more and wipe round inside of saucepan with damp cloth to clean away sugar crystals. Bring to 238 deg. Fahr. Pour boiling syrup into large square dish or pan which has been rinsed with water and allow to cool until finger can be comfortably held on the syrup. With a flat wooden spoon or paddle work it slowly ttrough the syrup turning it over and over toward the centre of the dish, until it changes and forms a block of cream. Cover with damp cloth and let stand to ripen for several hours—overnight if possible.

Coloring and flavorings and chopped fruits or nuts are kneaded into fondant made as above.

You may add well drained canned pineapple to the above to make pineapple creams. To make butter cream centres add to half pound of water. Dissolve the shortening, sugar and salt in the boiling water. When this mixture is lukewarm, add the dissolved yeast and milk. Stir in about 3½ cups flour, add beaten eggs, then enough additional flour to make a dough that can be handled, but keep it as soft as possible. Turn onto a lightly floured board and kneed until the dough is smooth and elastic to the touch. Put in a large, well-greased bowl, cover, and let stand at room temperature until doubled in bulk (about 1 hour). Work the dough down lightly in the bowl, cover very closely, set in refrigerator until needed. The dough will rise a little even in the refrigerator, so bowl should be deep. Shape while ice cold and bake at once at 40 deg. Fahr.

SPICED NUTS

One and one-half cups icing sugar, ⅝ cup cornstarch, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon ground cloves, 1 teaspoon allspice, 1 egg white, 2 tablespoons cold water, one-half or one pound of whole pecans or whole walnuts. Measure and sift together the sugar, corn-starch, salt and spices, twice. Arrange in flat baking dish. Combine the egg white and water and beat slightly. Next dip the nut meats in the egg white mixture and drain on absorbent paper (paper towel). Then drop the nuts without letting them touch into the spiced sugar mixture and roll them over. Next place the pan and its contents in a very slow oven of 250 deg. Fahr. and bake for 2 hours. Never let temperature rise or the sugar will burn. When done shake pan to loosen nuts, and let cool on waxed paper. Sugar mixture that shakes off nuts may be used to do another batch.

Casserole

LIVER AND SPAGHETTI CASSEROLE

Four tablespoons chopped onion, 1 tablespoon oil, butter or dripping, 1 cup (or 2 cups if you have it) of diced beef or pork liver, ¾ cup thick tomato pulp, ½ to 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper, 2-3 cup uncooked spaghetti cooked in plenty of salted boiling water. Add the onion to the melted fat and cook until lightly browned. Add the onion to the melted fat and cook until lightly browned. Add the diced liver, parsley and seasongs and cook gently for 10 minutes. Add the tomato pulp obtained by straining fresh or thick canned tomatoes through sieve, and simmer all 20 minutes. Pour this mixture over the spaghetti which has been cooked until tender, drained and turned into buttered casserole. Sprinkle with grated hard cheese and place in moderate oven until cheese is melted and casserole is heated through.

MAID'S-DAY-OUT CASSEROLE

Four tablespoons cooking oil or good dripping, 1 medium sized sweet green pepper, 1 large onion, 1 to 1½ lbs, chopped round steak, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 eggs, 2 cups corn (niblets or fresh cut from the cob), 4 medium tomatoes sliced, ½ cup buttered fresh bread crumbs. Melt the fat in frying pan, add the sliced green peppers and the chopped onion and cook until delicately browned. Add the chopped steak and the seasonings and cook until meat is slightly browned. Remove from the heat and stir into the well-beaten eggs. Put one-half of the corn in the bottom of the largest casserole you have which has been well buttered, cover with half of the meat mixture and then a layer of sliced tomatoes. Repeat all these layers, and cover top with buttered crumbs and bake about 35 minutes at 375 degrees Fahr. This method may be used for leftover cooked meats when a little hot water would need to be added.

With the above casserole main dish provide a large bowl of salad greens which might include cole slaw or shredded outside lettuce leaves, slivers of carrot and celery and plenty of radish roses. Mayonnaise or Russian Dressing.

MARYLAND CHICKEN EN CASSEROLE

This is a convenient and delicate way to prepare chicken and will serve five or six adequately.

A three-lb. roasting or frying chicken, 1 egg, 1½ teaspoon salt, 2 cups bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons butter, 6 slices side bacon, sprigs of fresh parsley or watercress. Clean the chicken and cut into suitable pieces for serving. Beat the egg well and add the salt and cover all parts of the chicken with the mixture, including the gizzard. Then roll each piece in the bread crumbs until the entire surface is well coated and arrange the pieces in a well buttered deep casserole. Dot with bits of butter and bake at 425 deg. Fahr., for appriximately 1¼ hours. Serve from the casserole garnished with the bacon and green leaves.

The gravy in casserole may be thickened with cream and flour, but must be strained to make it attractive.

Serve hot biscuits and a generous stuffed tomato salad with this. The stuffing could be shredded celery and almonds with boiled dressing or mayonnaise.

MACARONI CHEESE CUSTARD

One and one-half cups uncooked macaroni, 3 cups milk, ½ cup buttered crumbs, ¼ cup butter, 2 beaten eggs, 1 teaspoon each chopped onion and parsley, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 cup grated old cheese. Cook the macaroni in salted boiling water until tender. Rinse in cold water and drain. Mix together all remaining ingredients except the crumbs and pour over the macaroni in buttered casserole. Sprinkle top with crumbs and them with paprika. Stand casserole in larger dish containing water and bake for 40 minutes at about 350 deg. Fahr. or until custard part of mixture is set.

BAKED MUSHROOMS EN CASSEROLE

Wash but do not peel one pound fresh mushrooms—if very large cut in halves—if not leave whole. Place in buttered casserole. Make a sauce by melting 6 tablespoons butter and stirring in six tablespoons flour and stir until golden then add either 2 cups boiling water or 2 cups chicken or veal stock OR 1 cup boiling water and 1 cup cream and stir until thickened. Then add 2 teaspoons grated onion, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 1¼ teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce, 1 Oxo cube or 1 teaspoon beef extract. Pour this sauce over the mushrooms in casserole and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. until mushrooms are just barely tender. Serve at once.

Desserts

RUHBARB WATER ICE

This recipe is highly recommended.

Cut into small pieces 2 pounds pink rhubarb. Put into baking dish with 1 cup water and 2 cups sugar. Bake in slow oven (or over very low heat on top of stove) until rhubarb is tender. Strain through cheese cloth or very fine sieve. There should be 1 quart of juice. Pour into trays of mechanical refrigerator to become of water ice consistency or freeze in ice cream freezer. It is a piquant flavor—and definitely a thirst quencher for a dessert on a hot day.

COMPOTE OF STEWED FRUITS

This is good in summer because it may be served so cold. One cup stewed prunes, 2 tablespoons seeded plump raisins, 1 sliced orange and 1 sliced lemond with skins on. Put in double boiler with very little water. Let cook over boiling water until tender, add about 2-3 cup sugar, stir very carefully to not break sliced fruit, and chill overnight.

STRAWBERRY MOUSSE

Three cups fresh strawberries, 1 cup sugar, tablespoon gelatin, 3 tablespoons cold water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 pint heavy cream, whipped. Hull the berries, crush, add the sugar (more may be needed if berries are sour), and let stand 1 hour. Put through the colander or a coarse sieve. Soak the gelatine 5 minutes in the cold water, dissolve over hot water, and add to the berries. When cold and slightly thickened, add lemon juice and cut and fold in whipped cream. Freeze in tray without stirring, 3 to 4 minutes.

MAPLE COCOANUT BLANC MANGE

Four cups milk, 1 cup maple syrup, 8 tablespoons cornstarch, ½ cup shredded cocoanut. Mix the cornstarch with a little of the cold milk and bring the remainder of the milk just to boiling point with the maple syrup. Combine with the cornstarch mixture and cook stirring constantly 5 minutes. Place over hot water and allow to cook until there is no taste of raw starch—about 40 minutes—stirring occasionally. Add the cocoanut and turn mixture into cold wet mould. Cool and serve unmoulded with maple syrup.

PINEAPPLE PARFAIT

This is a dessert which will serve a great number from a small amount of food if you have parfait glasses—I do not have them but am seriously considering buying some for their "eye-wash" value.

Place diced sweetened fresh pineapple in parfait glass filling it two-thirds full. Top with very small scoop of vanilla ice cream—top this with small mound of whipped cream — top this with either a green cherry or small piece of candied pineapple.

RASPBERRY MOUSSE

Three cups fresh raspberries, ½ cup fruit sugar, pinch salt, 1 tablespoon gelatine, 2 tablespoons cold water, ½ pint whipping cream.

Press berries through sieve to remove seeds. Add sugar and salt. Soak gelatine in cold water. Dissolve over hot water. Stir into fruit pulp. When mixture is partially set fold in cream, whipped until stiff. Allow to set. Serves six.

RASPBERRY MOUSSE

I have tried three different raspberry desserts and think this one is better than a parfait or a sherbet. When making a frozen dessert from raspberries be prepared to strain them. The seeds show up very much more than they do when raw.

Three cups raspberries, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, one pint heavy cream, whipped. Crush berries, add sugar and let stand 1 hour, then press through fine sieve and if necessary line it with one thickness of cheese cloth. Soak the gelatin 5 minutes in the cold water, dissolve it over hot water, and add the berries. Chill. When cold and slightly thickened, add the lemon juice and cut and fold in the whipped cream. Freeze in tray of mechanical refrigerator, without stirring, for 3 or 4 hours. These amounts make one quart and will serve 8 people.

STRAWBERRY FOAM

This is most useful before and after strawberries are plentiful.

One egg white, beaten, dash of salt, ½ cup sugar, ½ to ¾ cup mashed and strained strawberries, ½ tablespoon lemon juice. Beat the sugar into the white, then fold in the fruit, using the egg beater for the whole progress. Pile lightly on serving dishes and chill before serving. To serve top with bunch of whipped cream and garnish with half a berry.

For making a frozen dessert with strawberries in your mechanical refrigerator I think this mousse is the best recipe—do not try to adapt hand freezer ice cream recipes for use in your mechanical refrigerator.

(A Delicate Pudding)

One and one-half tablespoons gelatin, ½ cup maple syrup, ½ pint whipping cream, ¾ cup milk, 1 egg. Soak gelatin in ¼ cup of the milk for 10 minutes. Put remainder of milk in double boiler and when hot, pour it into the beaten egg yolk and add ¼ cup of the syrup. Put back in boiler and cook till thick. Add gelatin, rest of syrup, and strain, then add beaten white and whipped cream. Chill.

COTTAGE PUDDING WITH STRAWBERRY SAUCE

One-quarter cup butter, 2-3 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 2 cups of flour, 3 teaspons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cream the butter, add sugar, gradually, then the well-beaten egg. Add dry ingredients, sifted together and milk alternately. Add vanilla. Pour into shallow bread pan and bake in moderate oven of 360 deg. Fahr. about 40 minutes. Serve with Strawberry Sauce made as follows:

Heat about 1 pint of preserved strawberries and juice. Melt three tablespoons butter, add 3 tablespoons cornstarch, stir, then pour over the hot strawberries and juice and stir until thick. Let cook in top of double boiler 20 minutes. Nice additions are lemon rind, or freshly gated nutmeg, and a little salt.

PEACH CABINET PUDDING

One can peaches (peaches and syrup from 1 pint if home canned), 1-3 cup powdered sugar, 2 tablespoons cooking sherry or 1 teaspoon true vanilla (add 1 tablespoon of brandy if for festive occasion), 2 cups milk, yolks 3 eggs, white 3 eggs, ¼ cup granulated, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1½ tablespoons granulated gelatine, 4 tablespoons cold water. Drain peaches, cut in quarters, sprinkle with powdered sugar, and pour over sherry and brandy if used. Make a custard of the milk, yolks, sugar and salt, by stirring over double boiler, and when custard thickens, just before removing from heat add the gelatine which has been soaked in the cold water and stir until it melts. Strain and when slightly cooled add liquor drained from peaches. Stir until mixture begins to thicken, then add whites of eggs beaten stiff. Line a mould or bowl with peaches, pour in custard and chill. Serve with touch of whipped cream or a few slices of peaches.

MAPLE PINEAPPLE AMBROSIA

Shred a pineapple—not too finely—and mix into it ½ pound fresh marshmallows, cut in pieces with sharp scissors. Let this stand on the ice for 6 hours. Just before serving, mix in 2 cups whipped cream, sweetened to taste with thick maple syrup and flavored with the juice of half a lemon. Garnish with candied cherries.

APPLE MALLOW PUDDING

Eight large tart apples, water to half cover them, ½ pound marshmallows (32 if he wants to count them), pinch of salt (maybe some lemon juice.) Wash the apples and peel them. Core and cut into quarters. (However if the apple skins are a nice red leave them on—for they give the finished dessert a nice rosy glow.) Put the apples in a saucepan and add just enough water to half cover them. Cook until the apples are tender—test them with a fork to make sure. Put a large sieve or colander over a large bowl and rub the apples through with a wooden spoon. Cut the marshmallows in halves (or leave them whole if you haven't taken too long to sieve your apples and it is still very hot.) When the marshmallows have softened with the heat beat the mixture with a rotary beater. When every bit of marshmallow is blended with the applesauce, add the pinch of salt. Taste the pudding and see if it seems too sweet. If so add the juice of half a lemon. Some apples being less tart than others might not give the pudding the right tang. Chill the pudding in the refrigerator and it will set some when it is cool.

JELLIED RUHBARB DESSERT

One quart diced strawberry rhubarb, 2 cups sugar, 2 cups water, 2 lemons, 2½ tablespoons gelatin, ½ cup cold water. Wash the rhubarb before dicing it, then place it in baking dish with the sugar and water and cook in a slow oven of 325 deg. Fahr. for about 50 minutes or until it is pink throughout. Stir carefully once before it is soft.

When baking potatoes first let them stand in boiling water for 15 minutes. They will bake in much less time.

If Your Cupboard Is Bare Why Not Make Winter Jams

By Katharine Baker

Perhaps you thought, during the summer when you were making jams and jellies and filling every available container with them that they would last through the winter. But now you probably find that your supply is getting very low. A few more breakfasts, a few more dabs of jelly on this or that pudding and your jam cupboard will be empty.

Right here is where winter jams come to your rescue. These are made by the simple, short-boil method you employed during the summer. Bottled pectin which saved you so many hours of work during the hot weather, is used to make these jams and give you the same sure result—a perfect jam every time.

An interesting flavour combination is Banana and Pineapple and the tang of dried apricots makes another delicious jam.

Banana and Pineapple Jam

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit, 7½ cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar, 1 bottle fruit pectin. To prepare fruit, crush 5 fully ripe bananas to a fine pulp and add 1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) crushed pineapple.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from fire and stir in fruit pectin. Skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 eight-ounce glasses.

Dried Apricot Jam

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit, 7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar, 1 bottle fruit pectin. To prepare fruit, add 3½ cups water and juice of 1 medium lemon to ½ pound apricots. Cover and let stand 4 hours or overnight. Drain fruit, grind or chop fine, and mix with juice.

Measure sugar into large kettle. Add prepared fruit, filling up last cup with water if necessary. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 3 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in fruit pectin. Skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 eight-ounce glasses.

Wife Preservers

If fruit or sauces boil up and spatter the wall behind the kitchen stove, wash off as quickly as possible with a cloth wrung out of lukewarm water. If spots are stubborn, dip damp cloth into soda, apply to spots and rinse with clean, damp cloth.

Strain when done — the amount that you may force through strainer depends on how clear you would like your resultant jelly to be. To the juice add the gelatin which has been soaked for 5 minutes in the ½ cup cold water. Cool and stir in the grated rind and juice of the lemons. Pour into moistened moulds and stand in a cool place to set and chill. Unmould and serve topped with whipped cream. The pulp if not strained too thoroughly makes good filling for tarts or may be added to rhubarb conserve.

RHUBARB TAPIOCA

One-third cup minute tapioca soaked in 1 cup water when it is mixed with ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup brown sugar. When well soaked add 1 cup boiling water and boil till clear in double boiler, as it scorches easily. Add 1 quart (or 2 cups) chopped rhubarb, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon and a dash of nutmeg or mace. Pour into buttered baking dish and bake in a slow oven till rhubarb is soft and tapioca is clear and light brown —about 1 hour. Serve hot or cold with cream.

ORANGE CHARLOTTE

A delicate dessert with plenty of nourishment in it to tempt a food fusser who is always ready to say "No thanks."

One and one-third tablespoons granulated gelatin, 1-3 cup cold water, 1-3 cup boiling water, 1 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup orange juice, whites 3 eggs, ¼ pint cream. Soak gelatin in cold water, dissolve in boiling water, strain, and add sugar, lemon juice, orange juice. Chill in pan of ice water; when fairly thick beat with rotary beater until frothy, then add whites of eggs beaten stiff, and fold in whipped cream. Line a mould with sections of oranges (a few lady fingers between is also nice) turn in mixture smooth evenly on top and chill. (May be made day ahead of serving.)

ORANGE AND CHOCOLATE RIBBON MOULD

Orange Jelly (for the orange layer): 1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, ¾ cup boiling water, 1 cup sugar, ¾ cup orange juice, 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Soak the gelatin in the cold water 5 minutes, then stir the boiling water and sugar into it until all is dissolved. Then add the fruit juices and strain. Pour into bottom of large mould, and allow to chill. While it is setting prepare the Chocolate Jelly (for the bottom or dark layer): 1 tablespoon gelatin, ¾ cup cold milk, ¾ cup scalded milk, 1 tablespoon good quality cocoa, 1 egg, 3 tablespoons sugar, ½ cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, few grains salt. Soften the gelatin in the cold milk and dissolve it in the hot milk. Mix together the cocoa, sugar and salt; add boiling water, stirring constantly. Add gelatin mixture and cook in double boiler, adding slowly the beaten yolk of the egg. Cook until it begins to thicken, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and when cooled add the beaten white of the egg and the flavoring. When it cools and before it is set and when orange layer is set, pour this over the orange layer, and chill. To serve, turn out on the large round plate and surround base with piping of whipped cream.

Fish

BOILED SALMON SUPREME

Order a two or three-pound piece of salmon from the centre cut. Wrap it in cheesecloth to prevent breakage. Have a large pot of water boiling—plunge the fish quickly and carefully into the boiling water, which has been salted. Cover and reduce heat to let it boil gentle. When tender (a 3-lb. piece requires about 35 minutes), carefully remove from water and take off cloth, and try to remove skin in one piece. Place on hot platter and cover with the following sauce:

VELVET EGG SAUCE

(To Be Served with Fish)

One-third cup butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1½ cup fish stock (in which salmon was cooked), ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, yolk 1 egg, yolk of 1 hard cooked egg. Melt butter, add flour, salt and pepper, then stir in fish stock until thick, then add lemon juice and hard-cooked egg yolk which has been mashed to a paste or forced through strainer. Add beaten yolk last and serve immediately.

SHRIMP BISQUE

One-half to ¾ cup prepared canned or cooked shrimps, 1 cup shrimp stock (liquid from can), 2 cups milk, 1 tablespoon grated onion, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon salt, 1½ tablespoons butter, 1½ tablespoons flour. In double boiler heat together milk, shrimp liquor, shrimps and seasonings for about 15 minutes. Mix butter and flour to a smooth paste, add to soup to thicken it, stirring. Let stand over low heat to blend flavors. When ready to serve put small ladle of unsweetened whipped cream in bottom of each soup bowl and pour boiling soup over it.

MAMIE'S LOBSTER NEWBURG

One tablespoon butter, contents of one 7-oz. can lobster, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of paprika, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 tablespoons cooking sherry, 2 egg yolks beaten, ½ cup cream. Melt butter in double boiler, add lobster and cook 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Add seasonings and sherry and cook 1 minute. Mix the egg yolks and cream. Remove from fire, add cream and eggs and beat until smooth. Return to fire and cook until mixture begins to thicken —about one minute. Take from heat at once, serve at once in puff paste shells.

The above method may be varied by using the same amount of halved cooking oysters in place of lobster. Or chopped pimiento or green pepper may be added, or in place of sherry use 1 tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce.

AUDREY'S CLAM CHOWDER

Saute ½ cup chopped back bacon in just enough butter to keep from sticking. Add ½ Spanish onion chopped finely and saute 4 minutes, then add 5 medium potatoes in ½-inch cubes and 2 cups water and boil covered until potatoes are tender. Then add 1 can of coarsely chopped canned Canadian clams and their broth and 4 cups whole milk, and salt and pepper to taste. Let barely simmer covered to heat the milk and clams through. Two tins of clams and broth and 3 cups of milk may be used in place of 1 can and 4 cups milk.

SEA FOOD RAMEKINS

Shrimps, crabmeat, lobster, tuna or codfish are perfect for this dish. Make 2 cups medium thick white sauce; 4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup evaporated milk, 1 cup boiling water (I think this makes a richer sauce than whole bottle milk), and if you want it richer, 1 beaten egg. Season this sauce with paprika and one or two teaspoons Worcestershire sauce. Add 1 to 1½ cups of the chosen sea food, also tiny bits of pimiento, and if the beaten egg is omitted one sliced or chopped hard cooked egg is a good addition—1 teaspoon minced parsley is always acceptable. (If salt codfish should be used cover with cold water, bring to boiling point and drain before adding to the sauce, which will not need salt when cod is used.) Pour all into the buttered ramekins, dust with fine stale bread crumbs, dot with butter, dust with paprika and place in a moderate oven of 375 deg. Fahr. until sauce begins to bubble and breadcrumbs begin to brown. This is especially good served in ramekins the shape of shells.

(An Excellent Supper Dish)

Saute 1 small minced onion in 2 tablespoons butter until the onion is soft but not brown. Stir in 1 tablespoon fresh curry powder, 1 tablespoon flour, and 1 cup liquid —if canned shrimps are used use the stock drained from them and make it up to 1 cup with water. Put in top of double boiler and add 1½ cups shrimps and 2 tablespoons lemon juice and let heat through. In the meantime prepare fluffy boiled rice. Drain the rice well and serve it on hot plates—on each bed of rice place a serving of curried shrimps and garnish with thin slice of tomato or red pepper and parsley or cress.

JACK'S OYSTER RAGOUT

Parboil ½ lb. honeycomb tripe in cut in 1-inch squares. Prepare 1 cup onions, cut in eighths and boiled until tender. Melt 3 tablespoons butter and add 4 tablespoons flour, and pour on gradually while stirring constantly 1½ cups thin cream or top milk. Bring this to boiling point, add the tripe, onions (which have been boiled until tender and well drained) and 1 pint of oysters and the liquor on them. Heat through in top of double boiler. When ready to serve add the yolks of 2 eggs well beaten, about 1½ to 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon white pepper and some paprika. Serve hot in patty shells or on hot toast. A good hearty dish for oyster lovers.

If you know your guests well and that they like fish cocktails the following introduction to your dinner party is quite a sensation:

Using equal portions in each cocktail glass of raw oysters, canned shrimps and flaked lobster—all ice cold—pour over 2 or 3 tablespoons of the following cocktail sauce: Two tablespoons tomato catsup, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ tablespoon prepared horseradish, 12 drops Tabasco sauce, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon black pepper, 1 teaspoon grated celery, 1 teaspoon mixed finely chopped red and green pepper. Mix well together, chill for at least four hours —pour over fish in glasses just before announcing dinner. Garnish with a wee sprig of parsley.

FILLETS OF SOLE MARGUERY

Have your fish dealer fillet two soles for you and include the bones and other trimmings in the parcel. Wipe the fillets with a dry cloth and place in buttered dripping pan, sprinkle with salt and paprika and pour over them one-third cup of white cooking wine. Cover with buttered paper and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. In the meantime boil the fish trimmings in 2½ cups water until the stock is reduced to 1 cup. Melt 3 tablespoons butter, add 3 tablespoons flour and stir until well blended, then pour on gradually the fish stock. Stir until boiling, then add ¼ cup of the wine in which fish was baked and season with salt and pepper. Arrange fillets on hot serving platter, strain over the sauce, garnish with slices of lemon and sprigs of watercress or parsley. (When Rector created this dish he put some little neck clams and some lobster shells in the stock for the sauce—but I have tried to make this easily done for the average Canadian household). The wine in the sauce takes the place of lemon in many fish sauces.

Fillings

LEMON CHEESE FILLING

(For Tarts, Marguerites or even Pies)

Melt ¾ cup butter in top of double boiler and add 2 cups sugar, and stir until well mixed. Then add 6 eggs very well beaten and the finely-grated rind and juice of 3 large lemons. Stir over boiling water until of the consistency of thick cream. This may be cooled and kept covered in glass jar in refrigerator for 1 week, or if to be used right away for tarts, line patty tins with flaky thin pie crust, fill with lemon filling and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for about 12 minutes.

Clever Bride's Dinner Menu As Served to "His Parents"

(By MARY MOORE.)

A little Newly-Wed with millionaire ideas but only a two-figure income (and that in the lower brackets), served a little jewel of a dinner without straining her equipment, budget or self.

It was the first time her newly acquired Mother and Dad were to dine with them and that is a nerve racking experience to any woman anxious to justify her husband's choice.

She had one silver entree dish to serve her vegetables in; not enough money to buy the type of "roast" her mother-in-law could indulge in; she wanted to use the stemmed glasses which were part of his folks gift to them; the following menu is how she met these posers:

Tomato Boullon wth Popcorn
Lamb "Mignon" Style
Mint Jelly Moulds
New Potatoes and New Green Peas with Cream in one Entree Dish
Fruit in Pineapple Shell
Toasted Buttered Plain Crackers
Selected Cheeses Coffee

It will be obvious to you that the tomato bouillon is inexpensive and so is the popcorn—but very seldom served together they made the guests sit up and take notice from the start.

Simple Tomato Bouillon

To one No. 2½ can of tomatoes add 1 oxo cube, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 thin slice of onion, 1 clove, ¼ of a bay leaf. Stew together for 10 minutes, then strain then add enough boiling water (probably diluted by half will suit you because it does me) and it is ready to serve piping hot.

The popcorn may be made well ahead of time and crispened in the even just before serving.

Lamb Mignon Style

Make meat cakes of ground shoulder lamb and surround each cake with strip of side bacon and fasten with toothpick. Broil under hot flame until one side is golden brown, then turn and sprinkle with salt and pepper and finish other side. Never "underdo" lamb.

Have platter heated, and when lamb is on it, garnish with tiny sprigs of mint.

Mint Jelly Moulds

Very few cook books have this recipe, so if you like it cut it out now.

Two cups water, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon white pepper, ¼ to 1-3 cup white wine vinegar, 1 thin slice of onion, 1¾ tablespoons gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, ½ cup (well-packed) very finely chopped fresh mint leaves. Add the seasonings, vinegar and thin slice of onion to the water, cover and cook for about 10 minutes. Then strain and to the two cups of liquid obtained (add cold water to make it up to 2 cups if necessary), add the gelatin which has been soaking in the cold water for 5 minutes. Stir until gelatine is dissolved—if it needs reheating to dissolve the gelatin do so. Then add the chopped mint—you may add more than ½ cup if you wish. Another way to get a mint flavor is to use peppermint oil, and color the jelly with artificial coloring. Pour into individual jelly moulds or pour onto flat pan and chill. If individual moulds are used, dip them in hot water for an instant just before tipping them out. If moulded in flat pan, cut into diamonds, by cutting through the jelly diagonally with hot knife. These will be very popular so serve them generously.

New Potatoes and New Peas Assembled

Boil small new potatoes in their jackets until just done then skin them. Boil new peas until just tender. Place potatoes in warmed entree dish, pour over them ½ cup hot cream which has been thickened with 1 tablespoon slour blended with 1 tablespoon melted butter. When cream is over potatoes, sprinkle the peas in the interstices. Sprinkle all with a little salt and black pepper.

Fruit In Pineapple Shell

Now the fruit in a pineapple shell is very simple to do—but most sensational to behold.

Wash a well-ripened pineapple very well, then with sharp knife cut it in halves lengthwise smack through the "pine". Cut out the core in a wedge shape and discard it. Then with sharp pointed paring knife cut the pineapple in criss crosses until most of the flesh can be lifted out—leave the rim of the halves in good shape so they don't show knife marks. To the pineapple cut from the centre add about 6 halved strawberries, 6 sliced green maraschino cherries. Sprinkle this fruit with about ¼ to 1-3 cup of berry sugar and chill thoroughly. (Other fruits that may be used in pineapple shell with pineapple are Honey dew melon balls and black cherries.) When chilled for at least 4 hours it may be served in the pineapple shell—one pine turned in each direction on the serving plate. Half circles of lemon may be passed or used as a garnish on the rim of the pineapple at the base of the pine.

To give the meal as much effect as possible our bride spirited her guests to the living room for coffee. While their son held them in conversation she unobstrusively removed the dishes and food from the table—the two of them did the dishes afterward, and "Mother" never caught on to the fact that she had been a guest in spirit as well as fact—no meal to help put on the table—no cleaning up afterward—quite a triumph for a gal.

Gravy,

EMEM'S GIBLET GRAVY

Gently boil the cleaned heart, gizzard and liver of the turkey for about 2¾ hours, adding water if needed. When done, trim gizzard and chop all three finely. When the turkey is done lift it onto its hot platter and return to warm oven. Pour off fat in pan and scrape out all brown gravy clinging to pan—putting this into the giblet stock (this usually gives the gravy enough salt if the turkey has been properly dredged. There should be at least 1 quart of gravy stock. Stir ⅓ cup flour into 1 cup cold water to make a paste. Stir into gravy stock and stir until it thickens. Then strain and taste to see if it needs salt and pepper. Add chopped giblets and reheat.

The strong arm of a man is necessary to make the potatoes as creamy and fluffy as I have in mind. Heat the cream with the butter and salt and pepper (cream or evaporated milk make the potatoes richer in color than milk), and when the potatoes have been drained, shake them over the heat for a moment to dry off. Then give them a vigorous preliminary mashing, then add the butter melted in the hot cream, and beat for at least five minutes—keep hot by standing potato pot in larger pan containing boiling water.

TRUE HOLLANDAISE

One-half cup butter, 2 egg yolks, ½ teasoon salt, dash of cayenne, 2 tablespons lemon juice, ⅓ cup boiling water. Cream the butter and put one-third of it with the egg yolks, salt, cayenne and lemon juice in a double boiler. Cook very slowly, stirring until mixture begins to thicken—about 3 minutes. Then add second third of butter and as it thickens, the rest of the butter. Cook very slowly (or it will curdle) until mixture will coat a metal spoon, then add the hot water, cook 1 minute and serve. It requires about 20 minutes to make from beginning to end. If your Hollandaise does curdle at your first try you may add to it ½ cup cup medium white sauce, mix well and serve. Hollandaise will not reheat after it is cold unless it is stood in porcelain or glass dish, in larger dish containing hot water.

BROWN GRAVY

Make gravy in pan in which meat was baked by adding 1 point boiling water, and 5 tablespoons flour which have been stirred into ½ cup cold water to make a paste, and stirring until thick, then straining into hot gravy dish.

Hollandaise

FRUIT CREAM DRESSING

One egg beaten light, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-3 cup sugar, juice, ⅓ lemon, juice ⅓ orange, ¼ cup heavy cream whipped, ½ cup canned pineapple juice. Combine egg, which has been beaten light, with the flour and sugar. Add the fruit juices and cook in double boiler stirring constantly until thick. Cool and fold in the cream whipped. This amount will serve five—but as this dressing will keep if well covered for 3 days on ice, you mightb e wise to make double the quantity—this will encourage you to make fruit salads oftener.

Icing,

EMEM'S ALMOND PASTE

Note: Add the orange flower water and almond essence when putting almonds through grinder as they facilitate grinding.

One pound blanched almonds, 1 teaspoon orange flower water, 1 teaspoon almond essence, 2 pounds icing sugar, 2 eggs. Put almonds through grinder with flavorings, using finest cutter. Mix sugar in well. Add well beaten eggs, and knead the mixture with the hands until it is perfectly blended. To keep almond paste roll it into balls or oblongs and wrap very well in heavy waxed paper, then in cloth then keep in air-tight tin container.

½ cup lemon juice, 1 quart of additional juice—cherry, grape, diluted jelly, peach or any mixture of these or others; 2 lbs. raisins (or 1 pound raisins and 1 lb. currants), 3 lbs. brown sugar, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg, mace, alspice, ½ teaspoon cloves. Cook very slowly over very low heat 3 hours, stirring. Seal. Makes at least 6 quarts.

ORANGE WHIRLS

Prepare biscuit dough as above using 4 tablespoons butter in place of the shortening called for. Roll out ¼-inch thick, trim into neat oblong, spread with Orange Filling then roll up like jelly roll and cut evenly in slices ½-inch thick with sharp knife. Place on well-greased cookie sheet out side down and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 12 minutes, and while still warm sprinkle with powdered sugar.

ORANGE FILLING FOR ORANGE WHIRLS

Mix together the juice and grated rind of—large orange, juice and grated grated rind of half a lemon, 1 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, and ¾ cup water. Cook over boiling water till thick, then fold in the well beaten yolks of 2 eggs, or 1 whole egg. Cook 2 more minutes stirring, remove from heat and beat with rotary beater until velvet smooth. Cool before spreading. May be used for tart or pie filling.

LEMON PIE FILLING

One cooked pastry shell, 1 cup sugar, 1-3 cup flour, 1 cup scalding milk, dash of salt, 2 egg yolks, beaten, 3 tablespoons butter (1 tablespoon will do), 4 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 teaspoons finely grated lemon rind, meringue. Mix the sugar and flour well, add to the hot milk in top of double boiler, stirring constantly until it thickens—about 5 minutes—stirring occasionally. Add beaten yolks with butter. Cook 2 more minutes. Then add lemon juice and rind when filling is away from heat, and pour into shell. Cover while hot with meringue made by beating 4 to 6 tablespoons sugar into the leftover egg whites. This is best if served very cold. Do not let stand very long before serving.

Mayonnaise

EMEM'S MAYONNAISE

One and one-quarter cups chilled salad oil, 2 eggs or 2 or 3 yolks, 1 teaspoon each, salt, mustard and sugar, juice of 1 lemon. Beat eggs or yolks well in cold bowl, and add dry ingredients. Then begin adding cold oil 1 teaspoon at a time until ¼ cup is added, beating thoroughly between each addition. At this point the mayonnaise has definitely begun to emulsify, and oil may be added 2 tablespoons at a time, being sure you beat in each addition thoroughly before another is added. When 1 cup of oil is added you may begin adding the lemon juice just a little at time as you add oil, until both are all used.

Vinegar may be used in place of lemon juice, but is not as delicate—a little paprika and pepper may be added to the dry ingredients.

SOUR CREAM DRESSING UNCOOKED

(Good for Fish Salads)

One and ¼ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon cayene, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup salad oil, 2 tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar, ½ cup chili sauce, 1-3 cup stiffly beaten sour cream. Put ingredients in small jar and shake very well before serving. This should all be used at one meal.

SOUR CREAM SALAD DRESSING

One cup sour cream, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon mustard, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon mustard, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Mix dry ingredients, combine with the egg, slightly beaten, add cream slowly and cook in double boiler until like custard; when quite cool add vinegar.

SALMON MAYONNAISE

This is a dish beloved by epicures, but for the life of me I don't see why ordinary mortals are not serving it oftener—it's simple and requires only ingredients we use in other ways.

Three slices salmon—Gaspe or Restgiouche is preferable of course, cold water—Spices; ½ bay leaf, 2 cloves, 2 slices lemon, 1 small sliced onion, 6 slices carrot, 1 sprig parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup each vinegar and white wine if on hand, 1 cup mayonnaise dressing, 1 teaspoon granulated gelatin, ½ tablespoon cold water. Wipe salmon cut in 2-inch slices, each weighting 2-3 pound, put in a pan, cover with cold water and add seasonings. Let stand at least 2 hours, then cook slowly over heat until fish is tender—about 20 minutes. Skim from pan, carefully remove skin and bones, keeping shape of salmon steaks as intact as possible, cool and cover with 1 cup mayonnaise to which has been added the gelatin soaked in cold water and dissolved by stirring while dish is standing in larger dish containing hot water. Let chill thoroughly. The salmon should be chilled on platter or plate on which it is to be served.

Wife Preservers.

If you are inclined to drop your electric razor when shaving, tape a looped shoestring to the razor cord. The shaver can slip this loop over his thumb when shaving, and there is then no danger of dropping the razor to the floor.

Miscellaneous

APPLE SAUCE

Peel, quarter and core enough apples to fill a flat casserole. Make a syrup by boiling 1 cup sugar and ¾ cup water together for 5 minutes. Pour over the apples and bake 45 minutes in an oven of 350 deg. Fahr. or until apples are tender. Sprinkle with ¼ cup extra sugar when done and the grated rind of 1 lemon while still hot, and put under broiler until sugar and edges of apples are faintly scorched. Good served hot or cold with cream.

ORANGE TOAST

Grate the yellow rind from one orange and mix with one-quarter cup sugar. Add enough orange juice to moisten the sugar to a spreading consistency. Spread on fingers of hot buttered toast, and run under hot broiler for a few moments to melt the sugar and begin to tingle them golden.

YORKSHIRE PUDDING

Two cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, beaten, 2 cups milk, beef drippings. Sift the flour and salt together. Add beaten eggs then milk. Beat mixture smooth and let stand 1 hour. One-half hour before dinner, pour all but one-half cup of the drippings from pan in which beef is roasting, push roast to one corner of pan and pour in Yorkshire Pudding, increase heat in even to 450 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes, reducing it to 350 for remaining ten minutes. Serve roast on hot platter surrounded with Yorkshire Pudding cut in squares. Make rich gravy from drippings poured from pan. There should be plenty of gravy.

Handy Cabinets In Kitchen Are Real Time Savers

There is room for all the pots and pans and similar utensils in this convenient closet designed by Good Housekeeping Institute.

Dishes hot from the range may be set on serving counter to right of the range, and those ready to be served on counter to the left, beside the door to the dining room. Below this counter is a vertical file for trays, platters, cookie sheets, etc. Sliding shelves for casseroles, etc., are in the cupboard beneath the other counter. China, glass, etc., may be stored in the cupboards above both of these counters.

Pass The Molasses

Whiffs of freshly-baked gingerbread or molasses cookies drifting through the kitchen have such a cozy appeal. Here is something lusciously tasty, of which we can eat our fill with no ill-effects. And we are right, plus. Plus, because scientists now inform us that wholesome molasses is a rich source of "availalbe iron—the iron which body actually aborbs and uses. That molasses is second only to beef liver as a food source of iron is a recent nutritional discovery.

Iron is essential for good health; and as each succeeding year brings greater knowledge of foods and nutrition, we learn how to get more of our needs from our foods and less from medicines.

Most foods that we eat contain some iron, and a varied diet assures us a goodly supply. The trouble is that the amount of iron in most foods we eat is so small that eating enough of them to get the day's iron requirement is almost impossible. Also, some foods lose their iron in cooking; vegetables, for example, which have been cooked for too long a time in too much water. Many of us don't eat a varied enough diet, with the result that the average American diet is deficient in iron. It is by including in each day's meals at least one iron-rich food like liver, molasses, apricots, raisins or oatmeal that we can tip the balance to the side of adequate iron.

Three tablespoons of molasses supplies about 1-3 the day's iron requirement. Since no iron is lost when molasses is cooked, any recipe using 1 cup of molasses and serving five people give each one a generous third of the day's iron requirement. Think of molasses when planning meals, use it regularly, and use more of it when the family seems to have that pale, below-par look.

Hot Water Gingerbread

½ cup shortening
½ cup granulated sugar
1 egg, well-beaten
1 cup pure New Orleans molasses
2½ cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons baking soda
½ teaspoon powdered cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup hot water

Cream the shortening, then add the sugar and blend thoroughly. Add the beaten egg and the molasses. Then add the dry ingredients which have been sifted together, and the hot water alternately, and mix thoroughly. Bake in greased shallow pan 9 inches by 9 inches by 1½ inches in a moderate oven of 350° F. for 45 to 50 min. Or turn into greased and floured cup cake pans; bake in moderately hot oven of 375° F. for 20 to 30 min. Makes about 2 dozen cup cakes. To serve 2 or 3, make half the recipe using ½ a beaten egg, or use the whole egg, reducing the hot water 2 tbsp. Bake in greased and floured cup cake pans in moderately hot oven of 375° F. for 20 to 30 min. In using an electric beater, allow the shortening to stand at room temperature until soft. Cream shortening until the consistency of mayonnaise—about 1 min.—using high speed. Add the sugar gradually, and beat until creamy and fluffy—about 2 min. Add the egg, unbeaten, and beat about 1 min.—using high speed. Add the sugar gradually, and beat until creamy and fluffy—about 2 min. Add the egg, unbeaten, and beat about 1 min. at high speed. Scrape the bowl, add molasses; beat until well blended, using medium speed about 30 seconds. Reduce speed to low, add dry ingredients, sifted together, and a little of the hot water to moisten. When the batter is smooth, add the rest of the hot water slowly, using lowest speed, and beat until well blended.

Muffins

MAPLE MUFFINS

These are grand with lemon marmalade.

Sift 2 cups flour with 4 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt; with finger tips rub in ¼ cup butter. Mix together 2 well beaten eggs, ½ cup milk and ¼ cup maple syrup. Add to the dry ingredients with just as little beating as possible. Turn into buttered muffin pans and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. Broken pecans or walnuts make a nice addition to these—½ cup. These are more delicate if baked in very small gem pans.

CREAM SCONES

If you have a fast gas oven and baking comes easily to you these are a breakfast or tea time sensation too good to miss. Two cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 4 tablespons shortening, 2 eggs, 1-3 cup milk. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Work in shortening with finger tips until mixture looks like coarse meal. Beat eggs well (reserving one egg white for tops) and mix with milk. Make a well in centre of flour mixture, add the milk and eggs all at once and stir until well mixed. (This should form a soft dough. If it does not add a little more milk.) Turn out on a lightly floured board and knead quickly while you count ten. Pat or roll out lightly to ¾-inch thickness and cut in small diamond shapes. Brush tops with egg white and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in oven of 450 deg. Fahr. about 10 or 12 minutes.

"HICK FINN" MUFFINS

One-quarter cup of butter (or lard and butter mixed), ¼ cup sugar, 1 egg, 2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 1 cup berries—blueberries are best but sliced strawberries are good too and are possible to buy at this time of year.

Grease your muffin pans first. Put the shortening and sugar in a bowl—being sure all your measurements are level, and mix them together well. Break the egg into it and beat them all together hard. Measure 2 cups of sifted flour and put it into the creamed mixture. Then add part of the milk, mix a little, then add more of the flour, then more milk, and repeat until all flour and milk are in. Now add the cleaned and dried berries, just stirring enough to mix them through. If there are no berries plain muffins are good too—you can serve marmalade with them.

Fill the greased pans two-thirds full. Put them in the oven and bake about 20 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr. When done lift out of pans with fork onto plate covered with napkin.

ORANGE MUFFINS

(12 small muffins, 2¼ inches)

One-third cup fat, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg, ½ cup all-bran, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, ½ cup orange juice, ¼ cup milk, 1¾ cups flour, 2 teaspons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon soda.

Cream fat and sugar thoroughly. Add egg and beat well. Stir in all-bran, orange rind, orange juice and milk. Sift flour with baking powder, salt and soda. Add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 30 minutes.

BRAN GEMS

(Using Buttermilk)

1½ cups flour, 2-3 cup bran, 1 teaspoon soda, 1¼ cups buttermilk, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 egg, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons fat, melted, 1-3 cup dark-brown sugar.

Mix ingredients. Beat for one minute. Half fill greased muffin pans and bake for 15 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve warm or cold.

Strain the whole mixture into a mould which has been rinsed with cold water. Stand in cold place until it sets. Serve it with plain cream or whipped cream. When jelly is cool and not quite set, halved, stoned, stewed prunes may be added or sliced bananas are a nice addition.

RASPBERRY JELLY

Four cups raspberry juice, 7½ cups granulated sugar, 1 cup liquid pectin.

Use 3 quarts raspberries. Press through sieve, then drain through jelly bag. Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan. Mix well. Bring to boil and stir in pectin. Boil hard ½ minute. Remove from heat and skim. Pour into sterilized glasses. Seal with hot paraffin.

Note: 2 quarts raspberries and 1 quart red currants may be used in above recipe.

Red Currant Jelly (Bar le Duc): Use same method as above for Red Raspberry and Red Currant Jelly, adding 1 cup water to currants when mashing and using only ½ cup pectin.

SPECIAL PEACH JAM WITH CHERRIES

Twelve large ripe peaches, 3 oranges, 2 small bottles maraschino cherries, white sugar. Peel and cut peaches very finely (cut the peeled whole peach down in narrow segments like an orange and then in strip around, which gives you oblong pieces to pull off the stone with a knife.) Cut the orange skins very finely as you would for marmalade and the pulp the same way with scissors. Add two small bottles of maraschinos, cut in with their juice, and add ¾ cup sugar to each cup fruit. Bring to boil and boil gently for 25 minutes, and bottle as above.

This is rich and rare and you must use it only for special occasions.

RASPBERRY AND RED CURRANT CONSERVE

Four cups stemmed currants, 4 cups raspberries, 6 cups sugar.

Mix and let stand one hour. Heat slowly stirring often, until boiling point is reached. Boil 10 minutes. Pour into sterilized jars, and seal at once.

FRESH APRICOT JAM

Three cups prepare apricots, ¼ cup unstrained lemon juice, 7 cups sugar, ½ bottle pectin. To prepare apricots, pit about 2 pounds ripe washed apricots, cut into quarters, and mash with potato masher—do not peel. Measure sugar and prepared fruit into enamel kettle, mix well, add lemon juice. Quickly bring to boiling point, stirring almost constantly while heating. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from heat and stir in pectin, skim and pour quickly into sterile jam jars. Paraffin as directed above.

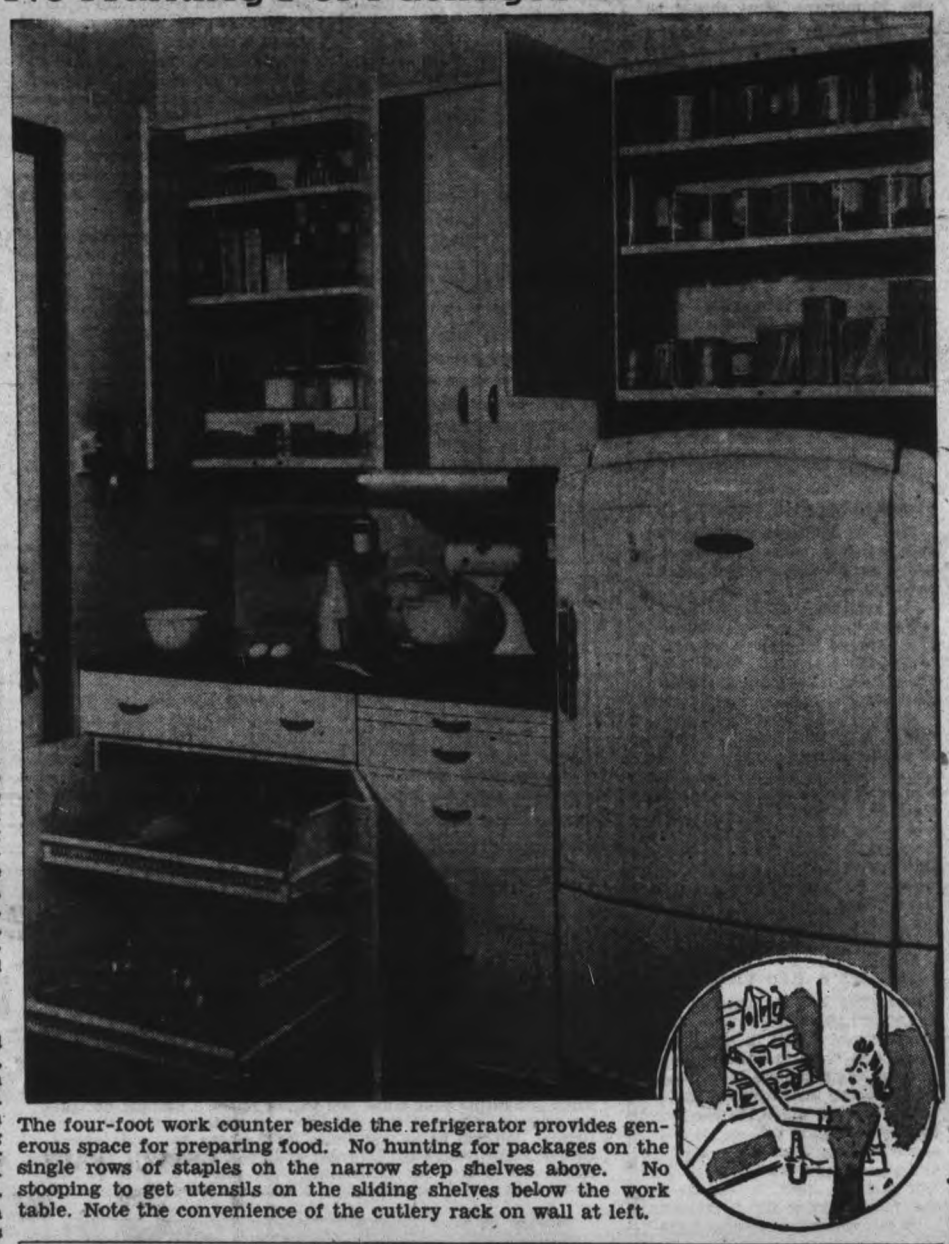
No Hunting For Packages



The four-foot work counter beside the refrigerator provides generous space for preparing food. No hunting for packages on the single rows of staples on the narrow step shelves above. No stooping to get utensils on the sliding shelves below the work table. Note the convenience of the cutlery rack on wall at left.

GOOSEBERRY AND RED CURRANT JAM

Top and tail 3 pounds ripe red gooseberries; put them into an enamel saucepan with 1 pound stemmed and washed red currants, and 4 pounds sugar. Stand aside for 5 hours to "ripen," then slowly heat through, stirring often, and let boil slowly for 30 minutes. Pour into jam jars, and paraffin.

RASPBERRY AND RED CURRANT JELLY

Use equal parts of both fruits—I found 1 heaping quart of berries and one heaping quart of red currants made a good match. Wash the currants leaving the stems on, mix with the raspberries and mash in enamel kettle with ½ cup water until fruit is broken and put over low heat, stirring often, and let it boil 1 minute, then strain through jelly bag. For each four cups juice, use 1 pectin and 7 cups sugar. Boil juice, add sugar, boil, immediately turn off heat, skim, bottle into hot sterile jam or jelly glasses, immediately cover with paraffin, cool, cover with second coat of paraffin, tipping jars to make paraffin flow well around edges, cover with tops of paper, label and keep in dark place.

Meats

SALLY'S PERFECT BROILED LAMB CHOPS

Choose loin or kidney chops a little less than one-inch thick. Grease broiler rack with some of the fat trimmed from chop. Place under very hot broiler, not more than one-inch away from direct heat, for one minute, then turn, and allow other side to sear, then reduce heat to medium and allow second side to cook 5 minutes, then turn and give first side 5 minutes, turn again for about 5 minutes—lamb chops one-inch thick require 15 minutes including searing heat and medium heat, to make them done all through. Serve on very hot plate garnished with watercress, and pass mint in the form of jelly, sauce or raw.

BRIGAND STEAK

These sound like a camp-fire and they are ideal for it, but our youngsters love them so well, I do them in the oven or under the broiler and find them equally nice.

If you are doing them in oven you would use wooden or steel skewers from the butcher—if over the camp fire you need to whittle down some willow twigs.

For each serving 1 half slice of either side or back bacon, 1 slice onion, 1 small piece "whaffled" steak. Arrange in order given on skewer or twig and turn over coals or under broiler until bacon is crisp and steak and onion are done. If baked turn only once. Sprinkle with salt and place on half a bun or slice of bread on plate—or eat out of hand.

CHILI MEAT BALLS

Mix ½ lb. chopped beef and ½ pound of chopped pork, 1 egg, 1 chopped onion, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon chili powder. Soak 1¼ cups bread crumbs in water. Squeeze out and mix with meat. Shape into balls. Put in a baking dish with ½ can condensed tomato soup, ¾ cup water, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 onion, chopped, and ¼ cup chopped green pepper (when in season). Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes to 1 hour. Serve on bed of macaroni or spaghetti.

ROAST BEEF (Hotel Style)

The roast should weigh 6 pounds to be perfect — although smaller roasts may be done equally well.

Wipe a boned rib roast with a damp cloth. Sprinkle all over with salt, pepper and paprika. Put on rack in roasting pan, dredge meat and pan with flour. Put in oven 400 deg. Fahr. cover, and cook allowing 10 minutes to the pound plus 10 minutes. Meat should be turned over when half way through cooking. This give a medium done roast—for well done—give the roast 15 to 20 minutes longer.

BAKED CHOPPED STEAK WITH ONIONS

Mix 1½ lbs. chopped beef with 1-3 cup of undiluted evaporated milk. Season with salt and pepper. Shape into two large round flat cakes. Spread each with 1 tablespoon of prepared mustard. Peel and cut 4 medium onions into thin slices. Separate into rings. Arrange meat cakes in baking pan, shortcake fashion, with sliced onions between layers and on top. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Dot with 2 tablespoons fat and bake in over of 350 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes. Cover in last half hour of baking. Baste occasionally. Serve with Baked Potatoes.

YEARLING LAMB CHOPS

With the lambs chops serve cole slaw supreme, caraway rye bread, mince pie with Danish blue cheese, and coffee.

Six yearling lamb chops, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup olive oil or other salad oil, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, ½ cup grated cheese is optional. Mix salt, pepper and oil. Marinate the chops in this mixture, then broil on one side for about 4 minutes (to marinate is to soak). Cool and spread uncooked side with white sauce made from butter, flour, milk and Worcestershire. Sprinkle with bread crumbs mixed with grated cheese. Place on glass baking dish and bake about 40 minutes at 325 deg. Fehr., finishing under broiler to brown well.

DORMAY'S BAKED VEAL LOAF

Have the butcher put through the mincer together 2 lbs. shank of shoulder veal and ¼ lb. ham trimmings and ½ lb. salt pork, ½ cup crumbs, ¼ cup tomato juice, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons minced onion, ¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning or sage, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons fat (for basting). Soak the crumbs in the tomato juice for 5 minutes, then mix with all remaining ingredients, mixing very well. Form into an oval roll (shape of rye bread) and place on large enough baking dish that onions may be placed around it. Bake in oven of 300 deg. Fahr. for 2½ hours, basting every 15 minutes with the fat, baste the onions in pan with fat that accumulates. A little hot water may be poured over bottom of pan to start the baking—pan may be covered or not—if it is remove lid during last 15 minutes of baking to brown loaf.

Serve on large hot platter, surrounded with baked onions, with garnish of parsley between each onion.

KABOBS (OR SHASLIK)

If you are French it is Brocehette; if you are a Cossack it is Shashlik, if you are a Turk, so it is Kabob—if you happened to be Canadian it is small slices of meat roasted on a skewer.

Any thin-cut meat will do—sirloin or porterhouse steaks, hearts of lamb chops, chicken livers, fresh pork tenderloin, veal cutlet—any one of these with a small slice of breakfast bacon sandwiched in between each slice to baste it while roasting. About 3 or 5 2-inch squares of meat cut ¾-inch thick are the average serving. Spear the meat on a skewer or a long pointed apple twig, put on a piece of bacon, another piece of meat and so on, until you think it looks like enough for one serving—then hand it to the guest and tell him to turn it over the embers until it is done to his liking. A weiner may be done in the same way—however, the skewer has to be thin and the weiner fat.

HOT VEGETABLE CONSOMME

Only a veal shin bone free of meat and consequently free from the butcher, and simple vegetables, like ¼-inch diced celery, carrots, onion, and finely diced parsley are needed. There was pepper flavor but no sight of it, so it must have been strained out. Boil your veal shank at very low heat for 2 hours, strain — there should be 2 quarts broth—add 1 tablespoon salt, pepper berries—about 4 crushed—½ cup each finely diced, celery, carrots and onions—all raw—and if liked 1 tablespoon macaroni alphabets. Boil for just 10 minutes. When serving sprinkle top of each soup bowl with very finely chopped parsley. Pepper berries will drop to bottom of pot. If you do not trust this method, add salt and pepper, boil 5 minutes, strain through triple cheese cloth—before adding vegetables.

BREASTS OF FRIED CHICKEN

With very sharp pointed knife, remove each side of breast of chickens. Trim off edges of skin to make breasts neat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dip in heavy cream, then in flour or sifted bread or cracker crumbs. Saute in butter or half and half butter and lard until delicately browned, turning about four times, then cover and either reduce heat to a minimum or place in oven of 325 deg. Fahr. to cook through—if chicken is a roaster or broiler it should not take more than one-half hour to complete cooking.

The serving is important—since asparagus is in its prime—place breast in centre of hot dinner plates, place asparagus leaning against it with tips nearly meeting in centre. Put hollandaise on base of tips, and surround with border of hot home-made or packaged potato chips.

You can imagine it is a jewel of a dinner.

VEAL OR PORK CHOPS WITH PAPRIKA SAUCE

Six medium thick veal or pork chops, 2 slices of side bacon to each chop, 1 cup sour cream, 1 tablespoon paprika, salt. Fry the bacon in a little melted butter and when done, remove from pan and keep warm in a low oven. Fry the cutlets to a golden brown in the baconfat, add a little hot water and simmer until chops are tender, seasoning with the salt and paprika. Add the cream gradually, stirring until the sauce thickens. To serve, put some fluffy boiled rice in centre of dish and place the bacon strips around in a border. Arrange the chops on the rice ar pour the sauce over.

Canned salmon turned out of large can in the moulded sha may be treated in exactly the sar way—omitting the cooking in t fat—the bacon is friend, salm put in fat, cream poured ov then paprika, and baked.

SUNDAY'S SLICED CHICKEN DINNER

On Saturday while the chick was boiling, I shredded a fre pineapple, sprinkled it with a l tle honey and white sugar cover it and let it stand in the ice b until I needed it for Sunday—t was our dessert.

Place the sliced chicken meat strainer and heat through in ste over boiling water. Make gr for some of the cooking liquor, a when serving pour over chicken hot plates.

We served boiled rice with t —after the rice was cooked plenty of boiling water we drai it, then poured about 1 cup chicken broth through it—sa the broth of course for tomorro soup—then place a mound of

EMEM'S MOCK CHICKEN LIVER SPREAD

Purchase from your butcher one pound lean fresh pork trimmings, and ¼ pound pork liver. Cook these together for 10 minutes in 1½ cups boiling water, then force through the fine knife of food chopper. Add to these mixed meats, 1 cup of broth from boiling them, 3 tablespoons fine sifted cracker crumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon white pepper, and mix very well to a smooth paste. This is a very cheap and delicious sandwich filling and will make 12 two-slice sandwiches, If bread is sliced thinly it will make 40 to 48 sandwiches (when slices are cut into tea size sandwiches) for afternoon tea.

Pies

RHUBARB MERINGUE PIE

Two cups red chopped rhubarb—pour boiling water over it and drain in five minutes. One cup sugar, 2 egg yolks, (use the white for meringue with ¼ cup sugar and pinch of baking powder), 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 3 tablespoons water. Mix all these ingredients—and pour into crust which has been brushed with white of egg and partially baked in oven of 500 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes. Return whole pie to oven and bake about 25 minutes at 375 degr. Fahr. Best served cold, but on the same half-day as baked.

OLD-FASHIONED APRICOT TART WITH LATTICE TOP

Use recipe above for rich plain paste and line pie with crust—you should increase the above recipe—making 1½ times the rule to give extra paste for lattice top. Slice fresh apricots into crust, sprinkling with sugar using about 1 cup in all. (Soaked dried, or canned apricots may be used in place of fresh.) In my opinion apricots need no addition of lemon—but some folks like the added richness it gives. When filling is complete cover with twisted strips of paste, criss-crossed lattice fashion, and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, reducing heat to 350 to finish baking.

LEMON CHIFFON PIE

This special pie to which I refer was at least 2 inches high in the centre and was such an intense shade of yellow I suspected parts of its being synthetic. But the first taste was a delightful surprise.

One tablespoon gelatin juice from 1 large lemon, ¾ cup juice from canned pineapple, 2 or 3 eggs (three eggs give it a deeper yellow color and make the pie higher), ¾ cup sugar. Beat the yolks with ¼ cup of the sugar, then add the juices and cook in top of double boiler until thickened. Soak the gelatin in the meantime in ¼ cup cold water for 5 minutes, then stir it into the egg mixture while it is hot. Stir well, then cool and just as it begins to congeal add the egg whites which have been beaten stiff, with the remaining ½ cup sugar, beating them together until they are smoothly mixed and will just pour into the baked pie shell. Chill immediately. This may be served with whipped cream but it is not at all necessary.

MAPLE SYRUP MERINGUE PIE

One cup maple syrup, 2 egg yolks, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ cup water, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt. Cream the flour and butter together, add the yolks, beat well and then add maple syrup and water. Cook the mixture in a double boiler until thick. Pour into baked pie shell. Cover with meringue made from remaining whites to which add 6 tablespoons sugar and beat until stiff. Bake meringue 30 minutes in slow oven.

CANNED PLUM PIE

Remove stones from 1 quart of plums and to the juice add ½ cup sugar mixed with 2 tablespoons of minute tapioca and allow to stand at least 15 minutes. Line pie plate with chilled plain paste, brush with egg white and pre-bake 10 minutes to give bottom crust a glaze and prevent soaking. Fill with plums prepared as above, cover with top crust, and bake at 475 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 to finish baking (about 20 minutes more is enough because plums are cooked.) When served it should be sprinkled with powdered sugar, and cheese passed. Plum Pie is best served warm.

STRAWBERRY CHIFFON PIE

One baked pastry shell, 1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, 4 eggs, separated, ¾ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 cup mashed fresh strawberries, drop of red coloring, ½ cup heavy cream whipped. Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes. Add to the beaten egg yolks, ½ cup sugar, salt and lemon juice. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until the mixture will coat the spoon (this will take from 5 to 8 minutes). Stir in soaked gelatine, berry mixture and coloring. Let cool. When it begins to thicken cut and fold in the egg whites which have been beaten until stiff with the remaining sugar. Pour into baked pie shell and chill thoroughly. Just before serving garnish with whipped cream. An added garnish of halved berries is desirable.

NOTE ON KEEPING UNDERCRUST OF PIE DRY

Much of the success of a filled pie depends on the dryness of the crust under the filling. When crust is ready for baking brush it over with unbeaten egg white, and bake at 500 deg. Fahr. for first 10 minutes, reducing heat to finish baking. The white forms a very thin coating through which the filling cannot soak.

BERRY PIES

(Uncooked Berries)

Raspberries, loganberries, saskatoons, red currants all are good made up this way.

One pastry shell, 2 cups prepared berries, 1 cup whipped cream. Powdered sugar. Bake pie shell. Prepare berries, and put one layer in baked shell, sprinkle with powdered sugar and spread with about 1-3 of the whipped cream, add more berries, sprinkle with sugar and cover with remaining cream. Very dleicate, use immediately.

CRISS-CROSS PINEAPPLE TART

Heat 2 cups crushed pineapple. Mix ¾ cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, and 2 tablespoons flour. Add to the hot pineapple and bring to the boiling point, stirring constantly, and add 1 teaspoon butter. Cool slightly, add 1 beaten egg and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Pour into pastry-lined pie pan and arrange strips of twisted pastry across the top criss cross fashion. Bake at 450 for 10 minutes, then at 350 for 30 minutes.

PEACH CREAM PIE

Line a pie pan with pastry. Blend 1 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons corn starch, spread ¾ of this mixture over the pastry. Fill with canned peach halves — hollow side up. Sprinkle with remaining sugar and cornstarch. Carefully pour over it ½ pint of cream, putting some in each hollow. Bake in hot oven of 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes—then at 350 deg. Fahr. until peaches are tender and cream thickens.

EMEM'S ELDERBERRY PIE

One 16-oz. can solidly packed elderberries, 3 tablespoons arrowroot, 2-3 to ¾ cup grapefruit juice, 2 to 3 tablespoons sugar (depending on sweetness of elderberries), juice of ½ lemon, and a little rind. Mix together the arrowroot (if none on hand use cornstarch), and sugar and add these to all the other ingredients and cook in top of double boiler, stirring occasionally for 15 minutes. Cool. Line pie plate with rich pastry, put in filling, cover with rich top crust, bake at 460 deg. Fahr., sprinkling with sugar after 20 minutes. Finish baking at about 375 deg. Fahr. Serve with creamed Roquefort Cheese for perfection.

RAISIN PIE (Without Eggs)

One pastry shell, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup cold water, 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup chopped seeded, OR 1 cup seeded raisins, 1 tablespoon finely grated lemon rind. Mix ingredients in order given, cook in top of double boiler, stirring until mixture begins to thicken (about 10 minutes). Cook 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Let cool before filling cooked shell. Hot oven 15 minutes, moderate oven 15 minutes. If a 2-crust pie is preferred, cook the filling in the crusts—not in the double boiler. A lattice top is preferable to a top crust.

CARAMEL NUT CHIFFON PIE

One cup less 1 tablespoon granulated sugar, 2 cups milk, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, 3 eggs, separated, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1¼ cups ground Brazil nuts or chopped filberts or pecans. Melt 6 tablespoons of the sugar in a frying pan until it is golden and syrupy. In the meantime combine the milk and gelatin in top of double boiler and bring to scalding point, stirring occasionally. Then add the caramelized sugar, stirring constantly. When the sugar and milk are well blended pour a little of them over the slightly beaten egg yolks, stir well and return all to double boiler, stirring constantly, until the mixture will coat a spoon. Remove from heat. Add salt and vanilla and nuts. Make a meringue from remaining sugar and whites.

MAPLE CUSTARD PIE

Three eggs, ½ cup maple syrup, hot milk, ½ teaspoon salt. Beat the eggs very well and add the syrup and hot milk. Line pie plates with tender crust and pre-bake for 5 minutes, then pour in filling and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. until filling is set.

PIE CRUST FOR PANDOWDY

Rich plain paste: 1 cup pastry flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup shortening, 3 tablespoons butter, about 2½ tablespoons cold water, ½ or 1 tablespoon finely grated lemon rind. Add salt to flour, cream in shortening, but not butter, then cut in water and rind, and knead together just enough to make paste hold, then roll out on floured board to size of pie plate. Fill deep pie plate with sliced peaches, add sprinkling of sugar over each layer, using 1 cup of sugar in all, and add dots of butter over top; put on top crust and slash to allow juices to bubble and steam to escape or put small cup in centre of fruit to collect juices and put on crust without slashing it. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for about 15 minutes, then reduce heat and finish until peaches are tender. To make this pie very elegant, serve with touch of whipped cream into which you have strained some Baumert or Philadelphia cream cheese. No sugar in the cream.

CHEF'S LEMON PIE WITH MERINGUE

One of your best Baked Pie shells; 4 tablespoons arrowroot or cornstarch (arrowroot makes a clearer mix), 1½ cups sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 cups boiling water, 4 beaten egg yolks, ½ cup lemon juice, 1 tablespoon finely grated lemon rind, 3 tablespoons butter, and for meringue 3 egg whites and 6 or 8 tablespoons sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Mix together the arrowroot or cornstarch with sugar, and salt and when well mixed add the boiling water and stir over boiling water until it thickens, then cover and cook 40 minutes, stirring occasionally — this long cooking eliminates raw starch taste and is the secret of good lemon fillings. When done pour over the very well beaten yolks and return to double boiler to cook for 2 minutes, then add lemon juice, rind and butter, cool somewhat and pour into baked pie shell which has been glazed by brushing with egg white half way through baking, to prevent soaking. Cover with meringue made by beating 3 white until foamy then adding 6 or 8 tablespoons sugar and beating until stiff, then adding vanilla. Bake meringue on pie at 275 for at least half hour.

Wife Preservers

If you have no cream for coffee beat the yolk of an egg, add one teaspoon sugar and a very little water, divide it among the coffee cups, and pour coffee in.

APPLE CUSTARD PIE

Cream 1 tablespoon butter with 1 cup sugar, then add 2 eggs well beaten, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 1¼ cups grated sour apples and ⅓ cup cream, whipped. Grate the apples into the mixture to prevent browning, and fold in cream last. Pour into pie shell with high walls which has been parbaked 10 minutes, to prevent crust soaking. Bake in oven of 400 deg. Fahr. standing pie on bottom rack with heat on full for 5 minutes, to thoroughly bake bottom crust, then raise pie to centre rack in oven to bake filling. This pie should be used within 1 hour of baking to be at its best.

HIGH STANDARD APPLE PIE

Pastry: Two cups pastry flour, 2-3 cup shortening best quality or 1-3 cup butter and 1-3 cup vegetable shortening, 1 teaspoon salt, about 4 tablespoons ice water. Sift the flour once, measure it, sift it again with the salt. Measure the shortening and work it into the flour either with two knives, your fingers or a pastry blender, until it resembles coarse meal. Then add the water a little at a time to one portion of the flour-and-flour mixture, toss that portion just enough to make it hold together, and then leave it alone. Add water to another portion and continue until the whole mixture has been watered and can just be lifted hanging together. Roll out a little more than half the dough on a lightly floured board and leave the remainder in the refrigerator until time to use it. Roll out the crust to fit a medium sized pie plate, and fit the crust to the pie plate. Put in refrigerator to chill. Now prepare the apples—Wealthies and Jonathans and Maiden's Blush being excellent; McIntosh, Grimes Golden and Wagener being good. Winter apples that are excellent are Northern Spy, Rome Beauty, Rhode Island Greening, Baldwin and Spitzenberg.

Pare, core and slice the apples at the last minute to prevent browning. Cut thinly and prepare about 1 quart to fill an 8-inch pie plate 1-inch deep. Tart apples require 1 cup sugar, many others require only ½ to ¾ cup—you must use your own judgment for this. When apples are new spicing seems superfluous; later on sprinkling of either cinnamon or nutmeg or mace are advisable.

Very lightly moisten edge of chilled lower crust which has been filled with apples and sugared, and roll out and fit on upper crust which should be rolled to fit as nearly as possible and slashed to allow steam to escape at centre. Press edges with fork tines or thumb and finger. Bake at 500 degrees Fahr. for 10 minutes, reducing heat to 350 to finish baking—test apples through slash in crust to see if they are done—requires 35 to 40 minutes to bake.

(FROM CANNED PLUMS)

One No. 2 can of sour plums, 2 tablespoons minute tapioca (if syrup on plums is very sweet no sugar need be added; if not add from 2 tablespoons to ¼ cup sugar mixed with the tapioca; 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon butter. Let filling stand, well-mixed for 1 hour, then put into bottom crust, cover with top crust, bake same as Elderberry Pie. Serve sprinkled with powdered sugar and pass old Cheddar Cheese.

CHERRY MERINGUE PIE

Line pie pan with rich crust. Fill with cherries. Into 1 cup sweet cream stir 2 egg yolks, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup sugar. Pour this over the cherries, and bake about 30 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Beat together the white of 2 eggs and 4 tablespoons sugar to make meringue and spread over cherry filling and put in very slow oven to bake and brown meringue.

Cocoa Is Fashionable

(By CLAIRE THOMPSON.)

Just as smart as the spring styles is the new chocolate cocoa now on the market. Fashion experts suggest accessories of "Cocoa Fudge" to blend with milady's Easter suit but food specialists are all talking about cocoa itself—the rich chocolate kind that has so many uses in cookery.

Although cocoa flavors and enriches puddings, sauces, cakes, ice creams and candies in the modern kitchen, its most famous use is that of making a delicious beverage—hot cocoa.

The longest way round sometimes brings the best results. That is the case even in making cocoa with the new Jersey brand chocolate cocoa.

Cocoa made by hastily throwing all the ingredients together is likely to be flecky and uneven. It will have an uncooked taste too. It takes a little longer to cook your cocoa and water first but you will have a smoother texture and better flavor this way.

What are the advantages of using a chocolate cocoa? First, you do not need as much of this cocoa because it is extra rich and dark. Then too it is cheaper than cake chocolate.

You will appreciate the finer qualities of this smooth Jersey brand chocolate cocoa when you use it in such receipes as the following which have been tested and approved by the research department of this bureau.

Hot Chocolate Cocoa

1 level teaspoon Cocoa.
1 level teaspoon sugar.
Speck of salt.
1-3 cup warm water.
¾ cup milk.

Mix cocoa, sugar and salt in top part of double boiler. Add water and mix until well blended. Cook over low heat for 4 minutes, stirring constantly. Add milk gradually and set pan over hot water continuing to cook until the mixture is thoroughly hot. Beat the cocoa with a rotary egg beater until light and frothy. Add a few drops of vanilla, if desired.

Whipped cream or a marshmallow on top gives added flavor and helps to prevent the skin from forming on top of the cocoa. Yield: 1 serving.

Cocoa For A Crowd

1 cup cocoa.
1½ cups sugar.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 quart water.
2½ gallons milk.
2 teaspoons vanilla.

Mix the cocoa, sugar and salt in a saucepan. Add the water and mix until well blended. Cook over low heat for 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Scald the milk in double boiler. Add the cocoa syrup to the scalded milk and cook for 10 to 15 minutes. Beat the cocoa with a rotary egg beater until light and frothy. Add vanilla and serve. Yield: 50 servings.

Cocoa Fudge

5 level tablespoons cocoa.
1 cup granulated sugar.
½ cup brown sugar.
Speck salt.
½ cup water.
½ cup milk.
2 level tablespoons butter.
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Combine the cocoa, granulated sugar and salt together and mix well; add the water and milk and cook over a low flame until the sugar is dissolved, stirring constantly. Boil the mixture without stirring until a small amount of the mixture forms a soft ball when dropped into cold water (235 degrees F.). Remove from the heat and add butter and vanilla. Cool to lukewarm (110 degrees F.) and beat until the mixture thickens and loses its gloss. Pour at once into a greased pan (8 x 8 x 2 ins.) and when cold, cut into squares. Yield: 18 large pieces (approximately).

30 minutes. Add remaining vinegar and seasonings—boil for 5 minutes and seal in hot sterile jars.

MOULDED CRANBERRIES

Select choice cranberries—one quart. Boil together 2 cups sugar, two cups water, 1 3-inch stick of stick cinnamon, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind for 8 minutes. Then add the picked over and washed cranberries to this syrup which has been strained, and cook for about 5 minutes without stirring. The cranberries do not have to burst to be cooked and keep their shapes.

The cranberries have jellying power themselves too, but to mould them firm enough to be handed about for Christmas gifts they need additional gelatin. So while the cranberries are simmering soak 2 tablespoons gelatin in ½ cup cold water for 5 minutes. When chanberries are cooked pour some of their syrup over the gelatin — just enough to stir into and dissolves it. When it is dissolved pour the cranberry sauce into it and stir very gently to mix it well, but not break the berries. Then pour into moistened moulds to jell and chill.

HORERADISH SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup skim milk, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon, 3¼ to 4 tablespoons prepared horseradish. Add horseradish after sauce is removed from heat.

The above sauce is good with many pork dishes.

SWEET CUCUMBER PICKLES

1—With care select 25 long slim cucumbers an soak them whole in brine two weeks. Brine: 2 cups fine salt, 1 gallon hot water cool before using.

2—Remove from brine, wash and let stand in cold water 24 hours.

3—Wash thoroughly in cold water and slice and let stand in alum water 24 hours. Alum Water: 1 tablespoon alum to 2 quarts water..

4—Wash again and cover with liquid made of 1 quart white vinegar, 2 quarts sugar, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 sticks cinnamon, 1 tablespoon whole cloves. Heat and pour on pickles four mornings in succession.

Keep submerged in vinegar covered with plate, weighted down with clean rock. Crock should be kept in cool basement.

The sink's hose spray may be used to dampen clothes for ironing, and also to give the house plants a quick and easy shower bath when they need it.

SLICED CUCUMBER PICKLE

Select 25 medium sized cucumbers and wash them well and slice in half-inch slices. Soak in brine for 3 hours—using 2 tablespoons salt to each quart of cold water—make enough to cover pickles. Drain well at end of 3 hours. Add 1 pint vinegar, 1 pound white sugar, 1 teaspoon celery seed, 1 teaspoon turmeric, 1 teaspoon dry mustard. Bring to boiling point and boil hard for 5 minutes only, then seal in sterile jars.

CUCUMBER SALAD PICKLE

One quart gherkin-sized cucumbers, 10 medium sized cucumbers chopped, 1 quart onions, ground in food chopper, 1 pint vinegar, 1½ teaspons celery seed, 1 teaspoon curry powder, 1 tablespoon mustard, 2 cups sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 teaspoons tumeric, soak gherkins in brine of six tablespoons salt and 1 pint water overnight. Combine flour, mustard, tumeric and a little of the vinegar to make a paste. Heat vinegar with sugar until dissolved and add mustard paste to vinegar slowly, stirring constantly, until it thickens. Add all vegetables and celery seed and curry powder, simmer gently for 15 minutes, watching carefully. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

GREEN TOMATO PICKLES

One peck green tomatoes, 3 large onions, 3 sweet red peppers, ¼ cup salt, 2 tablespoons mustard seed, 1 tablespoon celery seed, and 1 quart hot vinegar, ½ pound sugar. Chop or slice vegetables and spread in layers in enamel or earthen container, sprinkling each layer with salt until all vegetables and salt are used. Let stand overnight, and in morning drain. Add mustard seed, celery seed and hot vinegar and boil 5 minutes, then add sugar and cook slowly until vegetables are clear but not too limp, then seal hot in sterile jars.

SWEET CHILI SAUCE

Fifteen choice red tomatoes, 3 large onions, 1½ hot red peppers, 1 pint white wine vinegar, 3 good peaches, 3 pears, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 oz. whole mixed spices, 2 cups light brown sugar. Cut up tomatoes; chop onions, peaches and pears fairly fine, cut peppers very finely. Mix vinegar, salt and brown sugar, then stir the mixture into the fruits and vegetables, add the whole spices (which must be tied loosely in a cheese cloth bag or piece of muslin; leave a long piece of string on bag for easy removal), remove spice bag when spiced to taste. All tastes differ; use your own judgment for spiciness. Cook mixture for about 2¼ hours in large pot, pour into sterilized jars and cover at once with hot paraffin or membranes of cellophane. If paraffin is used add second coating when cold. This quantity makes four one-pound jars of choice relish.

APPLE CHUTNEY

One quart chopped green tomato, ¼ pound salt, 1½ quarts vinegar, 1½ pounds coarse brown sugar, 1½ dozen sour apples, 3 medium sized Spanish onions, ½ pound green ginger, 3 shallots or 3 small green onions minced, 3 ounces chili peppers, ¼ cup mustard seed, 1 pound Sultana raisins. Sprinkle chopped tomato with 2 tablespoons salt, let stand 12 hours and drain. Dissolve remaining salt with the sugar and vinegar. Peel and slice thinly or chop the apples, ginger and onion. Put all ingredients in saucepan, cook gently until apples and onions are tender—about 30 minutes. Seal in sterile jars. This quanttiy makes 7 pints of excellent chutney.

MUSTARD PICKLES

Two quarts small white onions, 2 quarts gherkin-size or sliced cucumbers, 2 heads cauliflower, ½ cup salt in enough boiling water to cover the pickles and onions, 6 sweet green peppers (seeded and chopped). Let cucumbers and onions stand in brine overnight. Drain in the morning and add the peppers, cauliflower flowerets, and 2 quarts weak vinegar. Cook the vegetables in the vinegar till onions are tender but still firm. Add the following dry mixtured moistened with water: 1 cup sugar, 1 cup flour, 1 tablespoon tumeric, 4 tablespoons dry mustard (mixed with about 2 cups water to a paste.) Cook all together until thickened, then seal in sterile jars.

Puddings

PLUM PUDDING

One cup flour, 1 teaspoon each salt and cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon allspice, ½ pounds each raisins, suet, currants, ¼ lb. each citron and candied lemon peel, 1 cup brown sugar, 6 eggs, 4 cups stale fine bread crumbs, ½ teaspoon each nutmeg and cloves. Sift the flour, salt and spices. Chop or grind the suet very finely, add the fruits and peels (the former washed and dried) well dredged with flour. The peels should be very finely sliced. Soak the crumbs in 2 cups milk, and add the sugar and well beaten eggs to them. Combine with the first mixture. Turn into well buttered mould and cover and steam 5 hours. Keep cool and covered.

AUDREY'S APPLE COTTAGE PUDDING

Two cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, ¼ cup butter, 2-3 to ¾ cup milk, ½ to 1 teaspoon vanilla, Northern Spy apples—about 5. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, mix in the butter which should be soft with the back of a wooden spoon into the sugar, then add the egg which should be beaten slightly and the milk, and sift in the flour mixture. Add vanilla. Pour half this mixture into buttered pudding dish which has a layer of half the apples on the bottom. Add remaining apples, cover with another layer of batter and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 30 minutes. We like this pudding because there is a high proportion of apples to the batter. So many cottage puddings have a very thick layer of batter and the apples seem to disappear at the bottom. Best served hot with cream or lemon syrup.

Supper Dishes

PERFECT CHEESE OMELETTE

Four eggs, ¼ to ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup hot milk or water, 4 teaspoons butter, ½ to 2-3 cup old cheese coarsely grated. Separate the eggs, beat the yolks with salt and pepper and milk and cheese (keeping out about 2 tablespoons cheese to garnish finished omelette.) Beat whites stiff and fold into yolk mixture. The pan must be ready and hot but not too hot.

The butter should mildly bubble—pour the omelette in holding the dish close to the pan to pour. Spread evenly with fork. Reduce heat after it has cooked rather fast for 1 minute. To see if it is cooked about 2-3 way through lift edges of omelette—and when nearly done put in oven under broiler to dry off top. Fold over by creasing in centre, slip onto hot platter, and sprinkle top with remaining cheese, garnishing with parsley.

Spanish Omelette may be made same as above omitting the cheese, and just before folding putting between folds sauteed mushrooms, green pepper, tomatoes, onions, parsley—small amounts of each or any of them in combination are good, butter is needed, and extra flavoring—paprika being a fine addition.

BAKED MUSHROOMS

Prepare 1½ pounds fresh mushrooms, by washing them in three waters, by rubbing them gently between the hands—they do not need to be scrubbed nor peeled. Place in buttered baking dish for which you have a cover, season with salt and black pepper, dot with 3 tablespoons butter and add ½ cup cream. Cover and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes. Now a nice addition to the liquid that forms under them if they are for a Fast Day is a teaspoon of Vegex—(are you familiar with this all-vegetables extract with a meat flavor?). If not for a Fast Day use a teaspoon Beef Extract, or cube to flavor this basting broth. Baste mushrooms twice during baking, and remove lid to give them a slightly baked appearance just before serving.

Corn Fritters

One cup canned corn (preferably Bantam), ⅝ cup sifted flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains paprika, 1 egg. Sift the dry ingredients and mix with the corn. Beat the yolk and white of egg separately and add yolk to mixture, then fold in white. Drop by spoonfulls into hot fat at 370 deg. Fahr. Drain on unglazed paper.

MEAT PASTIES

These little numbers, while they are inexpensive to make, are more often thought of as a delicacy and the product of a clever cook. If you can make good pastry you can be that "clever cook."

Rich Pastry—One and one-half cups flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening, and additional 2 to 5 tablespoons shortening or butter, 3 to 4 tablespoons cold water. Sift together salt and flour, and cut in the ½ cup cold shortening with knives or pastry to make a mealy appearing mix, then add just barely enough water to make it hold together. Roll out into a thin rectangular sheet. Have the additional shortening or butter creamed — then take 1-3 of it, dot over half of the rectangle, fold other half over onto it, roll lightly. Repeat twice more, thus using all the shortening.

To make the pasties, cut out the rich pastry in 4-inch squares, lay on each 1 rounding teaspoon of a cooked meat mixture (see below), fold corners in envelope shape, turning the points up a little. Bake at 475 deg. Fahr. for 12 to 15 minutes.

Meat Mixture—The filling may be of minced cooked meat, moistened with sauce or cream or thinned catsup, or of meat or cooked vegetables mixed. It should be highly seasoned and any odds and ends of vegetables may be used. The pasties may be made of minced row meat, in which case they require longer baking.

MEAT DOVES

(Hungarian Method)

For these you need the outer leaves of a cabbage. Wash the cabbage as usual, separate the leaves, pour boiling water over, let stand 5 minutes. Have ready well seasoned cooked meat, better if bound with 1 beaten egg, drain each leaf well, put 2 to 4 tablespoons filling on leaf, roll the leaf. (Half meat, half rice is a good combination.) Have ready a deep saucepan in which (for ½ lb. meat) 1 onion slice has been panfried 3 minutes in 1 tablespoon fat. Lay cabbage leaves on the onion with folded edge down, cover with 2 cups stewed tomatoes and cook very slowly 2 hours, covered. These must not be moved or they will fall apart—they are best made in dish in which they may be brought to table—they could be started in casserole on top of stove and put in oven for baking.

Provide tea biscuits or corn muffins to serve with these plus a salad and you have a fine inexpensive main course.

MEAT GRIDDLE CAKES

(As Made in the Deep South)

Two cups cornmeal, 1 cup flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon soda, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 cup sour milk, 1 cup water, 2 tablespoons melted shortening, ¾ cup finely minced raw or cooked ham, or bacon. Sift dry ingredients together, add the milk and water, then shortening, then ham. Beat well, bake at once slowly, turning once. In the South these areoften served with old-fashioned Milk Gravy—to the fat in pan add a little butter and 2 tablespoons flour, stir well, add 1 cup milk and ½ teaspoon salt and stir until thick, then strain, before serving.

(As the French Would Do It)

Make a thin batter thus: 1 cup flour, 1½ cups milk, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 egg beaten. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt; beat the egg well and add the milk to it. To 2 tablespoons fat in frying pan add 1 tablespoon grated onion and saute for 3 minutes. To this add 1 cup minced cooked leftover meat and stir for 3 minutes over low heat. Add the onions, meat and fat to the batter and stir well. This may be cooked in small cakes, buttered, sprinkled with minced parsley and rolled before serving, or in large cakes treated in the same way or folded once like an omelette. These make an excellent luncheon.

MUSHROOM PATTIES SUPREME

For 25 people order 4 pounds mushrooms. Wash and clean by scrubbing with soft brush. Remove stems and slice them thinly—slice caps into four crescents. Place in pan large enough to hold them and saute in ½-pound or a little more of butter until butter comes in contact with all the mushrooms. You may have to do only 2 pounds mushrooms at a time.

This amount requires 1 cup flour stirred until smooth into 1½ cups water to thicken it—stir this into the sauteed mushrooms until it all thickens. At this point it may be removed from heat and put into porcelain or enamel or glass dish overnight. Day of using prepare 1 lb. new green peas (or best canned peas may be used if peas are out of season in your community) and cook until barely tender and immediately remove from heat or they lose their bright green color—be sure to cook them without cover. When cooked, drain them and add to the mushrooms along with 2 finely chopped pimientoes, 1 pint heavy cream, 1 pint whole milk (the flour all ready added is sufficient to thicken these.)

Reheat all in double boilers stirring frequently. Do not reheat this over direct heat. Serve on warmed puff paste patty shells.

SAUSAGE LOAF

One cup sausage meat, 1 cup stewed tomato, 1 cup mashed potatoes, 2 cups crumbs, 1 cup cooked navy beans, 1 egg beaten, 1 tablespoon fat, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1 teaspoon sage, 2 cups Horseradish Sauce. Mix all ingredients (except sauce), press into loaf pan OR shape into oval roll, and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 40 minutes.

(These amounts are for four people.)

Three tablespons quick tapioca, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup (8 oz. package) spread cheese (or if none is handy, hand grate old Cheddar cheese and when measuring it pack it tightly in the measuring cup), 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Stir milk and tapioca together, let stand 15 minutes, then cook over boiling water for 15 minutes, add cheese and still until melted. Pour a little of this mixture over the slightly beaten yolk, and return to double boiler, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and fold in stiffly beaten whites, then add salt and sauce. Pour into well buttered baking dish, having it not more than 2-3 full, and stand dish in larger dish of hot water, and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 4 minutes. Serve immediately. This souffle needs a hot sauce of some kind—mushroom tomato, or pea, all are good.

EMEM'S WAR-TIME WELSH RAREBIT

Make up first 3 ingredients: 2-3 cup hot water, 1-3 cup tomato juice, 1 tablespoon cornstarch—make a basic starch mix by mixing the cornstarch with the tomato juice in top of double boiler, then pouring it over 2-3 cup of boiling water and stirring until it thickens over boiling water, then covering and allowing to cook. Now this mix is best if it stands overnight, for it becomes a tender jelly, but usually you are in a hurry for a rarebit, so if you cannot make this starch paste ahead of time let it cook 40 minutes, stirring occasionally and it will have to do (let it cook 40 minutes even when it can stand overnight). The remaining ingredients for the rarebit are: 1 package (8 oz.) of spread cheese, 1¼ teaspoons salt, ¼ to ½ teaspons mustard, ¼ to ½ teaspoon white pepper, 2 teaspoons sugar, ½ teaspoon paprika. When cornstarch base is ready add all remaining ingredients, stir over boiling water in double boiler until cheese melts and all ingredients are smoothly mixed—serve on buttered toast points immediately—this amount will serve four people. Double the recipe for generous portions for six. If this recipe appeals to you strongly, double the cornstarch base and keep half of it on hand in a covered jar for the next time you want Welsh Rarebit—it keeps well in the refrigerator for 5 to 6 days.

GRANDMA'S ENGLISH SOUFFLE

Melt 2 tablespoons butter, add 2 tablespoons flour, blend, add ¾ cup warm milk, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon paprika and stir until thick. Remove from heat and add 8 ounces "spread" cheese or grated old cheese—stir until cheese is all melted. Pour part of this over the beaten yolks of eggs, then return to double boiler. Cool to about 125 deg. Fahr. then fold in the stiffly-beaten whites. Pour into medium sized casserole well buttered, and bake 50 minutes at 325 deg. Fahr. Serve immediately. We think baked buttered new potatoes make a nice accompaniment to this souffle, because they can be baked together.

CHEESE DROPS

(An Economy Dish)

Two cups leftover mashed potatoes, salt, pepper, ¼ teaspoon celery salt, ¼ cup whole milk or evaporated milk, 1-3 to ½ cup grated old or spread cheese, 1 beaten egg. parsley or watercress. Mix all ingredients except greens and beat until smooth. Drop from dessert spoon onto butterd baking pan, and brush tops with beaten egg, and sprinkle with paprika. Bake standing pan nearer top than bottom of oven so they will brown quickly—and puff a little. Serve as soon as taken from oven, garnished with parsley or cress.

CHEESE AND RICE CROQUETTES

All cooks are not confident deep-fat-friers—but this is an easy beginning.

One pound spread cheese or grated old or new Canadian, 2 cups cold fluffy boiled rice, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 egg. Add egg, butter and a dash of salt and pepper to rice and mix well. Form the cheese into small balls (or if grated add directly to mix.) Cover cheese balls with the rice mixture on all sides so the cheese is inside the rice covering. Form into balls, by rolling in fine crumbs, then in beaten egg diluted with a little water, then again in crumbs. Fry in hot deep fat at 380 deg. Fahr. and drain on unglazed paper. These are best when served with a creamed vegetable or one with a sauce of some kind.

Cheese is also grand stuffed into black cherries, or chilled, drained, canned figs or black grapes for fruit salads—try it in any course—it works for me.

EMEM'S CHICKEN A LA KING

Two tablespoons chicken fat or butter, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ½ cup chicken stock, ¼ cup scalded cream and ½ cup scalded milk mixed, ¾ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup cold boiled fowl cut in strips, ¼ cup thinly sliced mushrooms, 2 tablespoons each finely shredded green pepper, and chopped canned pimiento, yolk 1 egg. Melt fat, saute mushrooms and green pepper in it 3 minutes, then add cornstarch and salt and stir until blended, then pour on slowly on hot stock, and milk and cream and stir until thick. Add additional butter bit by bit, fowl and pimientoes. Let heat through, beat the yolk, pour a little of the mix over the yolk, and return all to double boiler, stirring for about 1 minute. Serve on toast strips or small patty shells or in nest of mashed potatoes.

BAKED POTATOES AL FRESCO

Bake medium or large potatoes—small ones are apt to char right through. The fire must be embers. When you dig them out of it 40 minutes later, handle them with gloves on—crack them in the middle like a soft boiled egg, hold them over a plate and scrape out the snowy white part and immediately discard the shell or the charred pits will mar your inside treasure—plenty of butter on it. For campers or picknickers.

CORN ROAST A LA RECTOR

You need a slight slope of firm ground, a flat rock (or piece of sheet iron) and a spade. Dig a six-inch trench a little way into the slope—a foot perhaps—and then widen it out bottle-fashion to two feet deep and 15 inches wide. Cover the narrow part of the trench with the flat rock leaving gap below to allow smoke to escape. Build the fire in the wide part at least ½ to 1 hour before you need it, then it has settled down to embers. Cover with chicken wire. Cover this with ears of corn—husks on, of course—some folks dip them in water first to delay charring—and with as much stem as possible left on. There it roasts—having to be turned once—and the smoke goes out the horizontal flue.

The husks char almost completely through, but the corn is pure yellow or white just as it started and the flavor defies description. Rector says he ate nine ears of corn at his first sitting.

FINNAN HADDIE DELMONICO

Some of these breakfasts have a way of running into money and this recipe has all the fine flavor one expects for breakfast, but little of the expenses.

Soak about 1¾ pounds of filleted smoke haddie—or if the fish is whole there should be about 2¼ pounds, in equal parts of milk and water for several hours, then drain and place over fire in fresh cold water to simmer for 10 minutes. Drain, chill, and flake, removing all bits of skin and bone. Cook together until bubbling 4 tablespoons butter and 3 of flour; add ¾ cup of milk for each cup of flaked fish, and cook stirring until thickened. Season sparingly with salt and generously with white pepper, then add the fish, 1

This is grand with asparagus tips and melted butter, or serve a tossed green salad as an accompaniment if it is a hot night.

One cup shortening, 2 cups flour, 1-3 cup rich milk, 1½ pounds fresh mushrooms, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon chopped green onions, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ cup cream, 1 tablespoon paprika. Cut the shortening into the flour and moisten with the milk. Line a deep pie dish (or individual ramekins) with it. (Baking dishes must be good looking enough to take to table.)

SHEPHERD'S PIE FOR A KING

One and one-half pounds shank, neck, rump or chuck of beef, ¼ cup flour, 1½ teaspoon salt, 1 onion, chopped, 1-3 cup diced carrots, 1-3 cup diced turnips, 1-3 cup diced celery, ½ cup peas, enough hot water to cover meat, 2 cups mashed potatoes, with milk and seasoning added, 1 egg beaten. Wipe meat and remove from bone cut into 1-inch cubes, and roll in flour. Put a little of the fat from the meat in it—you may need to add lard or oil. Add enough water to cover meat.

If you have any bones lay them on top of the meat and simmer until the meat is tender—about 2½ hours. In the last 45 minutes of cooking remove bones, add salt and vegetables, and more water if needed. If desired, other vegetables may be used, and the stew may or may not be thickened. Pour the mixture in to a large casserole. Add beaten egg to mashed potatoes and pile lightly on top of stew. You have to compete with many chefs in restaurants for appearance of a Shepherd's Pie as they use pastry tubes—so can you for a small cost—they work magic and are a recommended investment. Brown pie in hot oven of 450 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes.

NORMANDY VEAL AND HAM PIE

Please note that the ingredients in this recipe are largely spices—besides the meat—so do not judge the recipe as being complicated until you read it.)

Order 2 pounds of breast veal and have your butcher bone it and send the bones in the package, ½ pound raw lean ham sliced thinly, 1½ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 2 bay leaves, ¼ cup summer savory, 1 tablespoon gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, ½ cup bread crumbs, ¼ teaspoon thyme, ¼ teaspoon marjoram, ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind, ½ teaspoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 egg yolk, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, flaky pastry. Cut the veal into one-inch cubes, cover with water, add bones and simmer until tender. Strain off broth, return bones to it. Season the broth with salt, pepper, bay leaves, summer savory, and let simmer for an hour. Strain, add gelatin which has been soaked in the cold water, stir until blended, then cool. Cook the ham in boiling water for 10 minutes. Make forcemeat balls by mixing together the bread crumbs and all remaining spices. Rub into this the lemon juice and rind, butter and yolks. Stir until well blended then make into balls, using 1 tablespoon of the mixture for each ball. Butter a deep baking dish and arrange meat in layers, filling up crevices with forcemeat balls. When all ingredients have been used, pour strained broth over all and cover top with flaky pastry. Bake at 425 for 15 minutes, then 350 for 40 minutes. When nearly done brush crust with milk or egg white and return to hot oven for glaze crust for a few minutes.

SOUTHERN CHICKEN PIE

Dress, clean, and boil one large fowl (6 or 7 pounds) in water to immerse at least 1 inch. Add one small onion cut up, and cook slowly at simmering point, covered until chicken is tender—about 2½ hours. When chicken is half cooked add ½ tablespoon salt and ½ teaspoon white pepper. Remove chicken, strain and skim off fat. If you have 5 cups stock left thicken with ½ cup flour stirred into 1 cup cold water until smooth. When boiling hot and thick add 3 tablespoons butter and more salt as desired. Place a small cup in centre of large baking dish—around it arrange rather large pieces of chicken taken from the bones, pour the gravy over so that it covers the chicken by at least ½-inch and cool the whole dish. Make pastry very rich, and chill. (If you are using puff paste make extra to cut into diamond to pass at table in addition to the crust.) Put crust over cold chicken and gravy, pinch well to rim of baking dish, and make several large incisions in top to allow steam to escape. Bake in oven of 450 deg. Fahr. (500 for puff paste), and crust is golden.

SALMON MOULD WITH SOUR CREAM

Slide the contents of a 1-pound can of red salmon onto buttered baking dish, after draining off the excess liquid in can. Pour over this mould 1 cup sour cream, sprinkle generously with salt and paprika, and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. without basting, for about 20 minutes—this heats through the salmon, and makes golden crust on cream. The salmon cooked with sour cream needs no lemon or sauce of any kind and is delicious. Very quick and easy.

CASSEROLE OF SCALLOPED LOBSTER AND GREEN PEAS

To serve eight people purchase 2 cans of lobster (7 or 8-oz. and drain or use 1 pound cooked lobster from the fish mongers. Make 2 cups medium white sauce using part cream; 5 tablespoons butter melted and stirred with 4 tablespoons flour then add 1 cup hot milk and stir until thickened—add 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, the lobster, broken somewhat, 2 cups cooked green peas (these peas done.) You probably will not need any salt, but will need a little should not be boiled 1 second more than 10 minutes or they will lose their bright green color and be too white pepper. Pour into buttered glass casserole and cover with sifted crumbs to which add 2 tablespoons melted butter and stir well, sprinkle top of crumbs with paprika—now it is ready to put away until baking time. Bake about 35 minutes at 350 to heat through and brown to golden. About 10 minutes before it is done put the bagful of store rolls in the oven to heat through.

SOUR CREAM WAFFLES.

Two eggs, ¾ cup sour milk, ¾ cup sour cream, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1½ cups pastry flour. Beat the yolks with the milk and cream, add the sifted dry ingredients, and fold in the beaten whites last. These waffles are particularly fine.

SOUR CREAM FROSTING

Boil 2 cups sugar with 1 cup sour cream to soft ball stage. Cool and add ½ teaspoon maple flavoring, pinch of salt and ½ cup chopped pecans or peanuts or walnuts.

MY MOTHER'S MEAT PIE

Emem's Hot Water Pie Crust: Pour 1-3 cup boiling water over 2-3 cup lard (or part lard and part butter. Stir till lard is melted, then add 2 cups flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon baking powder sifted together. Stir with fork until smooth. Roll into ball, wrap very well and keep in ice box until needed.

When hot water pie crust is at least one day old roll out into 2 crusts lining a deep pie plate with one of them. Pour in meat pie filling: At least 2 cups ground left-over meat (beef and pork mixed are best, but beef alone is good), 1 medium onion grated, 2 medium potatoes chopped into about ¼-inch cubes, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon or a little more of salt, if on hand 1 tablespoon chopped parsley. Now from somewhere you have to produce 1 cup of liquid—part of this liquid could be left-over gravy or liquid from bottom of roasting pan—or if it has to be all water let it be boiling hot and if possible flavor it with an oxo cube. Mix all ingredients—and to keep pie crust from 'soaking' brush it with egg white, bake for 10 minutes in oven of 500, then fill with meat mix, put on top crust, pinch down edges, brush top with egg white or evaporated milk to give it a glazed finish and bake at 500 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 for 20 minutes or until crust is golden and done.

Serve pie in wedges as you would apple pie. It is good to pass either catsup or chili sauce or serve this with escalloped tomatoes. Mother used to serve a tomato sauce with horseradish in it but my memory of it is dim and I have not tried to imitate it.

BANANA FRITTERS WITH ROAST BEEF AND GRAVY

Cut underripe bananas in halves lengthwise, then in halves crosswise so that each banana makes four fritters. Dip in fritter batter made by sifting together 1 cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, then add 2-3 cup of water and beat very smooth (about 3 minutes). Add 2 tablespoons olive or other salad oil. Fold in 1 stiffly beaten egg white just before using. Fry in hot fat at about 375 degrees Fahr. for 6 or 7 minutes, turning once. Drain on unglazed paper and keep warm until all are done.

These are more piquant than Yorkshire pudding with roast beef, but must be accompanied with brown gravy. If served for dessert pass lemon sauce. You may use pineapple slices in place of banana and serve pineapple fritters with baked ham.

CHICKEN LIVER OMELETTE

Allowing one egg for each serving and 1 tablespoon boiling water for each egg and salt and pepper, beat this all together until as foamy as possible. In frying pan or table grill place 3 tablespoons butter or very good frying oil, and put in this chopped livers and fry them gently for about 2 minutes, then pour over the egg mixture. As it cooks lift it along the edges permitting the liquid portion to run underneath that which is already cooked. When cooked but not too firm, fold over, and cut into wedge-shaped pieces. Serve garnished with toast points and parsley.

SCRAMBLED EGGS, GRILLED TOMATOES AND BACON

Take 3 medium ripe tomatoes, eight slices of bacon, six eggs, 6 or 8 tablespoons cream, and 4 slices of wheat or white toast. Cook the bacon until crisp and set aside on paper towel to keep warm and drain. Cut tomatoes into thick slices, dip in flour, sprinkle with salt and a little sugar, brown these slices in the bacon fat being careful not to break them. Place on the toast. Scramble the eggs with cream and a pinch of salt. Place a portion of the eggs on each tomato on the toast, and garnish sides of toast with 2 slices for each serving. These amounts serve four.

APPLE, SWEET POTATO AND SAUSAGE CASSEROLE

One and one-half pounds sweet potatoes when peeled after parboiling, 2 cups sliced apples (Spys are best) one or one and one-half pounds small link sausages. Put layers of sliced apples and parboiled peeled sweet potatoes in buttered casserole sprinkling salt and pepper and a little brown sugar and dots of butter over each layer. Cover top with sausages, pour about ½ cup boiling hot water between cracks to moisten potatoes and apples, and bake at about 350 deg. Fahr. for about 30 minutes or until sausages are cooked—if apples are sliced too thickly this will need ¾ hour.

This makes a delicious one-piece supper.

LIVER AND SPAGHETTI EN CASSEROLE

Four tablespoons chopped onion, 1 tablespoon fat, 1 cup of beef or pork liver diced, ¾ cup tomato pulp, ½ teaspoon salt, pepper, ½ tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 cup uncooked spaghetti. Add the onion to the melted fat and cook until lightly browned. Add the diced liver, parsley and seasonings, and cook for 10 minutes. Add the tomato pulp obtained by forcing partially drained tomatoes through a sieve, and simmer for 20 minutes. Pour this mixture over the spaghetti which has been cooked until tender in boiling salted water, drained and turned into buttered casserole. Sprinkle with grated old cheese and place in a moderate oven until the cheese is melted and the whole is heated through.

WEST COAST CASSEROLE

One-half cup sliced stuffed or ripe olive, one 1-pound can of salmon, 1 cup medium white sauce, ¼ cup genuine mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons any kind of chopped relish, ¼ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 1½ cups buttered crumbs.

Remove bones from salmon and separate it into large pieces. Mix white sauce, mayonnaise, relish, salt and pepper. Place one-half salmon in a casserole, cover with a layer of crumbs and half the white sauce mixture. Repeat and top with crumbs. Bake in a hot oven of 425 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. These amounts serves 6.

SCALLOPED HAM AND VEGETABLES

In the bottom of a buttered large casserole place small pieces of left-over cooked ham. Cover with a layer of thinly sliced raw potatoes, then a layer of thinly slice onion. Continue the layers thus until the dish is filled having a layer of ham on top. Season with pepper, paprika, a dash of sage, and thyme if liked and possibly a litle mace. Blend 2 tablespoons of flour with 2 cups milk and pour over the materials in the casserole. Bake for one-half to three-quarters of an hour in an oven of 375 deg. Fahr.

If you are traveling on train or airplane and your coffee or tea swings back and forth in your cup and spills over, keep your spoon standing in your cup, even if it is not considered "the thing to do." With the spoon standing in the cup the liquid cannot get up enough momentum to spill, it is said.

Salads

JELLIED GRAPE AND APPLE SALAD

Two and one-half tablespoons gelatin, ½ cup cold water, 1 cup grape juice or apple juice, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 pint dry ginger ale, ¾ cup halved and seeded grapes, ¾ cup diced tart apples. Soak the gelatin in the cold water for 5 minutes and dissolve in the heated grape or apple juice. Add the sugar, stir until dissolved and allow to cool. Add the ginger ale, allow to partially thicken by standing until cool, and pour over the fruit which has been arranged in cold wet moulds. Chill and serve with whipped cream. It may be moulded in a ring mould.

TOMATOES STUFFED WITH SCRAMBLED EGG SALAD

Select even sized tomatoes, wash and scoop out much of the centre, dredge with salt, turn upside down on plate to drain. Fill each tomato with freshly made scrambled egg highly seasoned, let cool and chill. Mask with mayonnaise dressing.

An attractive way of serving is on a large round chop dish, the stuffed tomatoes in a circle about the edge, the center filled with lettuce hearts cut in strips and mixed with sliced tomato.

TOMATO AND CHEESE JELLIED SALAD

One tablespoon good quality gelatin, 1½ cups tomato pulp (strained canned tomatoes or tomato juice or even tomato soup would do), ½ cup boiling water, ¾ to 1 cup grated cheese, 1 hard cooked egg sliced thinly, salt and pepper and if tomato soup is not used a little sugar. Soak gelatin in ¼ cup tomato juice, gelatin in the hot water, then stir into the tomato pulp, add about 1 teaspoon each salt and sugar (see above), and about ¼ teaspoon pepper (these last three should be varied to suit your taste). Place slices of hard cooked egg around sides of mould, and sprinkle in the grated cheese. When jelly just begins to thicken pour into mould, then chill. Serve on lettuce and pass mayonnaise—garnishing plate with celery hearts.

APPLE SALAD CUPS

Six medium-sized dessert apples, 1 cup cottage cheese, salad dressing, English walnut meats, 6 lettuce cups. Remove the cores of the apples being careful not to break through the bottom, dig out much of the meat of the apples, leaving a wall about ¼ to ¾-inch thick. Combine the apple removed with cottage cheese moistened with salad dressing—preferably mayonnaise. Stuff the apple with the filling. Serve on crisp lettuce cups; top with a dot of your favorite dressing and a whole walnut half or chopped walnuts.

SHRIMP OR SALMON OR TUNA SALAD

This salad is excellent because the mayonnaise is included in the mould—flavor is fine.

One tablespoon good quality gelatin, ½ cup hot water, 1½ cups either shrimps, salmon or tune, ½ cup genuine mayonnaise, ½ cup finely chopped celery, ¼ cup mild vinegar or vinegar from gherkins, ½ teaspoon salt, cayenne. Soak the gelatin in the vinegar and dissolve it in the hot water. Break fish small, add celery, salt, cayenne and mayonnaise and add all to dissolved gelatin. Mix well, mould in small moulds. Serve on lettuce garnished with parsley.

JANUARY CRESCENT SALAD

Select a large red spy or McIntosh apple, and scoop out the centre leaving a wall about ½ or ¾ inch thick. Mash about half of the scooped out apple with soft white or cream cheese (good quality cottage cheese is nice too) and add just a bit of mayonnaise. Stuff the apple with this mashed apple and cheese and let it chill well—when ready to serve cut the apple carefully into slices and the slices into crescents. Use four of these crescents for each individual salad and four large orange segments—arranged like the petals of a flower on a bed of lettuce—In centre place a quarter of a banana—stuck crosswise of the banana—stuck with any kind of nuts and around base of it place halved cherries. Serve with fruit cream dressing.

JELLIED NOEL SALADS

Two tablespoons gelatin, ½ cup cold water, ½ cup blanched almonds, ¼ cup lemon juice, ½ cup boiling water, ½ cup stuffed olives sliced, ½ cup small sweet cucumber pickles, 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper, ½ cup hot clear consomme or hot chicken broth (either would be canned), ¼ teaspoon salt, green coloring if desired. Soak gelatin in cold water, melt in hot water and hot consomme, then add sugar and salt and lemon puice and cool until it begins to congeal, then add all remaining ingredients and pour into individual moulds to chill. Serve on lettuce cups or bed of watercress.

Three whole sections of oranges and three whole sections of grapefruit (a convenient form of this comes canned), completely free of membrane,are needed for each person to be served. Wash and dry the flatter outside leaves of lettuce and arrange them on pretty salad plates—green glass is especially nice. Place alternates overlapping section of orange and grapefruit in a row. French Dressing with Roquefort must have been created for this salad—make it with 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, dash of cayenne, 2 tablespoons vinegar, lemon or orange juice, 6 tablespoons salad oil, 1 tablespoon crumbled Roquefort (or Danish Blue). Mix and pass immediately.

JELLIED WHITE MEAT SALAD

Use either cooked veal, lean pork, parboiled sweetbread, chicken, or tuna.

One and one-half tablespoons gelatine, ¼ cup of cold water, 2½ cups hot strained white stock in which meat is cooked (if the meat you use provides no broth use canned consomme), ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups cold cooked white meat, 1 cup finely chopped celery, 3 tablespoons each chopped green pepper, pimento and olives. Soak the gelatin in the cold water, and stir into a hot broth until dissolved, then add salt and chill until it is beginning to thicken. Have the meat cut into ½-inch dice and add it and the prepared vegetables to the gelatin mixture, pour into large moistened mould and chill. Serve on bed of crisp lettuce leaves or shredded cabbage or lettuce, and garnish with fancy cut beets, sliced olives, parsley, and pass Russian Dressing.

PINEAPPPLE JELLY SALAD

One tablespoon packaged gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, ½ cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon sugar; ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup canned crushed pineapple (do not use fresh), 2-3 cup grated mild cheese or packaged cream cheese, ½ cup whipping cream, lettuce, mayonnaise (pimientoes or green pepper may be uesd with this.) Sprinkle gelatin on top of cold water and let soak 5 minutes, then stir it into the boiling water. Add sugar and salt. Add lemon juice, and pineapple and cool.

FRUIT SALAD SUNBURST

This was merely a cut up salad of apples, fresh sultana grapes, and bananas cut in ½-inch cubes and marinated with sweet cream dressing—but over it on the salad plate was arranged alternate sections of oranges and grapefruit in a sunburst, centred with a cherry.

JELLIED ASPARAGUS SALAD

Two tablespoons granulated gelatin, 1 cup cold water, 1 cup boiling water, 1 cup weak vinegar, 3 or 4 cloves, 3 cups asparagus tips, two whole hard cooked eggs. Soak gelatine in cold water. Boil 5 minutes, then strain over the soaked gelatin and stir until gelatin is dissolved. The arrangement of this jelied salad is all-important. In bottom of mould pour ½-inch layer of jellying liquid and allow to get firm, then on it place a row of asparagus tips, crosswise side by side (the mould is best if loaf shaped), and on them place the hard cooked eggs which have been cut in halves lengthwise, and are placed end to end to stretch the length of the mould—around these pour the jellying liquid—you may be be able to add all of it without floating the ingredients, if not add just enough to hold the asparagus and eggs in place and allow to set again, then add remaining jellying liquid. A nice addition to this salad is pimiento cut in long strips and placed between each asparagus stalk. Radishes make a cool garnish when this salad is turned cut.

We recommend turning this salad out on a platter, garnishing with radish roses, and serving it in slices at the table, being sure that the stalks of asparagus are included in each slice. Pass hot cheese biscuits. Serve cream of chicken soup as a first course.

Wife Preservers

In making muffins, don't overmix the batter. It should be lumpy. If overmixed the muffins will be tough and slow to brown.

Soups

QUICK BROWN STOCK

(Practice making this stock alone will show you the rudiments of good soup making—the essential flavorings and possibilities of dilution.)

Three tablespoons fat—preferably drippings, 1 onion sliced, 2 lbs. half meat, half bones, 1-3 cup each diced carrots, celery, turnips, 3 quarts cold water, 1 tablespoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper. Prepare vegetables by washing and scraping and cutting into ½-inch cubes or match-like strips. Melt the fat in the soup kettle and brown the onion in it (about 3 min.). Add meat, brown slighsly, and remove from kettle. Brown the vegetables in the same fat for about 3 minutes. Add the meat, water, bones, salt and pepper, bring to boiling point, and boil 30 minutes, removing scum the instant it forms (this is the secret of clear soup). Add the seasonings and cook slowly one hour. Strain out ingredients but the bones may be left in—when meat would have to be removed and cubed, if this has not been done when first added. This stock will form the base for many other soups besides being complete in itself.

MOCK CREAM OF LOBSTER BISQUE

Four cups whole milk (stock from boiling veal bones may be used in place of milk), ½ cup shredded salt codfish, 2 cups tomato pulp, 2 slices onion, ½ bay leaf, speck of thyme, sprig of parsley, 1-16 teaspoon soda, 4 tablespoons oil or butter, 2 tablespoons flour, dash of paprika. If fish is very salty, soak first for 20 or 30 minutes. Scald milk and codfish in double boiler for 20 minutes, strain out fish. Cook together the tomato and seasonings for 10 minutes, strain and add soda. Melt 2 tablespoons fat in saucepan, add flour and blend thoroughly. Add milk and stir until it boils. Take from heat and add the hot tomato gradually. Season with paprika, add salt if needed. Add the remaining 2 tablespoons fat. Serve with 1 tablespoon whipped cream seasoned with paprika and a little salt. This is an excellent imitation of Lobster, however genuine lobster bisque may be made by this recipe, substituting canned or fresh lobster for the cod-fish and leaving the lobster in the soup.

PUREE OF BLACK BEAN SOUP

Two cups dried black beans, 1 small onion chopped or grated, 2½ quarts cold water, 2 tablespoons either finely chopped bacon or ham or bacon fat, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1½ to 2 teaspoons salt, chopped celery or ground celery seed are optional,—and a little finely grated lemon rind is a professional touch. Wash beans and soak in 2 quarts water overnight, pour off excess water, add onion (and celery if used), and 2½ quarts water, salt and pepper and cook for 2½ hours, simmering slowly, adding meat when cooking first starts if used, adding fat when cooking is done if it is used. If you do not want to strain this soup it should be cooked longer to make the beans softer—but if not force through strainer at this point, reheat in top of double boiler, adding lemon rind at this point if used, and serve. You may need to add more water as the soup cooks.

BACK COUNTRY TOMATO SOUP

(This soup is best when served where the remainder of the meal is salad and a substantial dessert course).

One-quarter pound side bacon (smoked is best), 1 No. 2½ can tomatoes, 1 tablespoon grated onion, about 3 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon black pepper, 4 tablespoons flour, about ½ or 1 teaspoons fresh curry powder, ½ bay leaf, 1 quart water (if you prefer your soup to be made of milk substitute whole or skim milk for the water and add ½ teaspoon soda mixed with some of the rendered out bacon fat.) Saute the bacon and onion together for 5 minutes until bacon is golden, then add the flour, stir together until they are blended, then add the tomatoes stirring until they thicken, then add all remaining ingredients and stir until heated through, or heat through in top of double boil without stirring. Of course this soup may be strained, but is more robust and nourishing if served as it is. Melba toast is a nice accompaniment.

EMEM'S SOUP POT SOUP

A good way to start your soup is to buy ten cents worth of cracked veal or beef bones. Let these simmer in 4 quarts water for at least four hours—the additional simmering they get when vegetables are added is all to the good.

Three other ingredients are indispensable—tomatoes either stewed or juice; a small amount of grated onion, and the finely chopped top leaves of celery. The so-called cereal ingredient is variable—rice, barley or macaroni alphabets.

If your soup pot contains these things you have a good base for soup that should last for days and days if you keep adding vegetable stock, chop bones, clean salad scraps from the table. Salt, pepper, paprika, and a bit of thyme or bay leaf are to be added at the discretion of the cook.

Always chill your soup once so that you may skim it free of fat.

Finely chopped fresh parsley on top of your soup bowls when they are served is not only an appetizing garnish but a valuable source of food minerals.

CREAMED CHIPPED BEEF

If you are to serve more than four people buy your dried beef from the butcher or delicatessen where you can have it sliced as thinly as possible—and it is less expensive than buying it in jars. These amounts will serve eight.

One-half pound dried beef sliced wafer thin, 3 cups thin cream or very rich whole milk, thinly sliced toast or heated puff paste patties. Soak the dried beef in boiling hot water for 5 minutes, then drain thoroughly. If cream is used it must be made into a thin white sauce, by melting 6 tablespoons butter, adding 3 tablespoons flour, stirring until blended, then stirring in the scalded milk until thick. Keep all hot in top of double boiler until ready to serve. This may all be made in a chafing dish in the dining-room if you are lucky enough to own one.

Note: If the milk is used in place of cream the dried beef should be frizzled in the butter or the cream sauce before stirring in the flour.

Emem's Chicken Soup

The broth could be diluted to make a quart of it. To this add 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1 cup finely sliced onion, 2 tablespoons best rice, ⅛ teaspoon white pepper, a teaspoon salt (if cooking broth is unsalted), and if on hand, ¼ cup peas or finely sliced green pepper or chopped parsley—boil just until the rice is tender, then serve.

Sauces

HOT CHOCOLATE DE LUXE

First I must warn you that this is best if served with something savory—for instance if you spread rich pastry with creamed cheese instead of minecemeat—the resulting little cheese pinwheels would be an epicure's idea of a perfect accompaniment: Three squares unsweetened chocolate, and ½ cup cold water. Put in saucepan over low heat and stir until the chocolate is melted and smooth. Then add ½ cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt and stir over low heat for 5 minutes—never leave it or it might burn. Cool. When cool fold in ½ cup cream which has previously been whipped fairly stiffly. Flavor with 1 teaspoon vanilla.

To serve the above perfection put a small ladleful or a good tablespoon of the mixture in each cup and fill it with very hot milk. If you like it very sweet add more sugar to the chocolate when making it. Without the cream this chocolate sauce is nice piping hot on vanilla ice cream.

RECTOR'S DEVIL SAUCE

(Best on roast, barbecued, broiled or fried fresh pork.)

Three small cloves of garlic cut in halves, ½ cup tarragon vinegar, 11 tablespoons dry mustard, 1 crumbled bay leaf, 1 dozen whole black peppers, 1 teaspoon fresh paprika, ½ teaspoon each salt and cayenne pepper, 2 10-oz. cans of condensed tomato soup, 1 teaspoon beef extract, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire, 2 tablespoons A-1 sauce, and 2 tablespoons butter. Boil together the mustard, peppers, bay leaf, salt, pepper and paprika in the vinegar and simmer until it has boiled down half. Strain that and force a little of the pulp through the strainer, then heat the tomato soup and add the strained liquid to it. Dissolve the beef extract in one-third cup of water and add it and the Worcestershire and A-1 sauces. Serve very hot.

EMEM'S BEARNISE SAUCE (For Vegetables and Fish)

Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, ¾ cup liquid—boiling water, stock from boiling vegetable over which sauce is to be served or milk, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, few grains cayenne, yolk of 1 egg or 2 may be used if desired. Melt butter in top of double boiler, add flour and blend, then pour in hot liquor and stir until it thickens—then add seasonings and butter and lemon juice and pour a little of this over the beaten yolk, then return yolk mixture to top of double boiler, and stir over boiling water for one minute. This sauce is a good base for many variations—yolk of hard-cooked egg forced through the grater is a nice addition when the sauce is to be used on spinch. If to be used on green beans add a tablespoon finely chopped pimiento.

Sandwiches

DIVINITY SANDWICH LOAF

(This is excellent to get ready on Saturday for one of those magic meals you like to spring on the family for Sunday's tea.)

You may have the bakery remove crusts from loaf of fresh white bread and slice it into four lengthwise slices—or do it yourself. Butter slices on one side with soft butter.

Red Filling: Mix together 1 cup minced ham, 1 finely chopped canned pimiento, and enough mayonnaise to make it spread easily. Spread this on bottom buttered long slice of white bread.

Yellow Filling: Three hard cooked eggs chopped finely, salt and pepper, mayonnaise—yellow coloring if you wish.

Green Filling: 1 3-oz. package white cream cheese, 1 or 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper or parsley or watercress—if watercress is used you need at least ½ cup tightly packed. Green coloring may be used if desired.

Spread second long slice of bread with yellow filling and place on top of red filling; spread third slice with green filling and place on top of yellow filling; place last slice of bread with buttered side against green filling. Press down quote firmly. Spread all over outside of loaf with cream cheese—soften two 3-oz. packages cream cheese with sweet cream and spread. Chill overnight covered with roasting pan. I think loaf slices more firmly if not covered with cheese, wrapped in wax paper and tea towel, and pressed down with weight overnight. Then when ready to serve spread surfaces with cheese. Slice in 1-inch slices and serve on tea plates garnished with cress and carrot curls—Serve at table.

TUNA SANDWICHES

Tuna has never been a special pet of mine until now—and the reason for my new-found ardor was their thick moistness. The tuna was shredded so fine by grinding in food chopper I presume that it mixed evenly with about half its bulk of mayonnaise. This was spread on ⅜-inch white bread about ¼-inch thick—this made a sandwich about 1-inch thick—they were cut in fingers about 1-inch wide so were not clumsy—the sandwich tray was garnished with slices of dill pickle.

ORANGE AND SPANISH ONION SANDWICHES

This must be made with a delicate touch—you know it is the suspicion of garlic in a salad that gives it piquancy—in the same spirit the Spanish onion must be sliced thinly for this sandwich.

Using fresh whole wheat bread sliced ¼-inch thick by the bakeshop, spread it very thinly with butter or soft peanut butter. Pare oranges with sharp knife cutting through to the pulp to peel off all the membrane. Slice oranges not more than ⅛-inch thick with very sharp knife. Cover bread with layer of sliced oranges, trimming orange slices to exactly fit bread—cover orange with slice of onion not more than 1-16 inch thick, then cover with buttered slices of bread. Press sandwiches together after wrapping and let stand at least 1 hour—most folks like a little salt or a little lemon mayonnaise on this sandwich.

HOT CHICKEN SANDWICH

Use all white bread very fresh, with crusts removed. Place on hot plate, cover one slice with bits of chicken, pour over about 2 tablespoons rich chicken gravy (made from cooking broth), cover with second slice of white bread (crustless), top with mound of mashed potatoes, cover with generous serving of rich chicken gravy—serve with slice of apple jelly. This is a nice quick supper, and served with a generous salad is simple and good.

CREAM CHEESE AND PECAN OPEN FACE SANDWICHES

Spread small rounds of rye or brown bread with soft butter, then with Philadelphia or Baumert cheese—around outer edge put border of pecans—and put a candied cranberry or better still dot of quava or apple jelly in centre—this should not be more than ½-inch in diameter.

Tarts

PUFF PASTE TARTS WITH APRICOT GLAZE

This recipe is recommended for cooks who are successful for paste makers. However it is complete enough for novices, but should be read carefully first and rigidly adhered to.

Puff Paste—½ pound butter, ½ pound pastry flour, ¾ cup ice water. If salted butter is used was it to wash out the salt, sweet cream butter may be procured if ordered ahead of time from your dairy. Reserve 1 tablespoon of the butter, and shape remainder into flat square cake about ½-inch thick. Have all materials and utensils as cold as possible. Cut two tablespoons butter into the flour, moisten to a soft dough with the ice water and chill. Knead on a floured board until smooth and elastic—at least 2 minutes. Cover and let stand a few minutes, then roll out to a rectangular shape about ¼-inch thick. Place butter in the centre of lower half of paste, sprinkle lightly with flour, fold other half of paste over it, pressing edges firmly together to enclose as much air as possible. Fold the right side of paste under the enclosed butter, the left side over again, enclosing the butter, press edges closely, cover and left chill 5 minutes. Turn half way round and roll as before. Repeat 3 times enclosing as much air as possible each time. Use as little flour as possible on board and roll ing pan. When done fold over in four folds, wrap in tea towel and chill thoroughly. Most failures in making Puff Paste come from not chilling paste.

To Make Tarts From Puff Paste—Make 3-inch fluted rounds. From centres of half the rounds cut 2-inch round. Moisten the edge of each 3-inch round with cold water, lay on "ring," press edges lightly together. This gives a hollowed centre for the filling. Prick all over with a fork. Bake on baking sheet at 500 deg. Fahr. after shaped paste is chilled through.

EMEM'S BANBURY TARTS

Make your best plain paste—using proportions to go with cups flour. Roll it out thinly and spread over half of it a thick layer of the filling mixture; 1-3 cup currants, 1-3 cup chopped walnuts or pecans or almonds, 3 tablespoons water, 2-3 cup raisins, 1-3 cup sugar. The amount of water may be lessened if the raisins are moist. Cover this with the other half of the pastry and press lightly all over the filling, pinching it down at the sides to prevent leaking while baking. Sprinkle top with sugar, cut in squares, bake in a hot oven of 425 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes. For extra professional appearance, brush with beaten egg yolk diluted with little water before sprinkling top with sugar.

These may be baked before cutting into squares; or same filling may be placed on square of pastry in one triangle, and other half triangle folded over to form traditional Banbury tarts. These may be baked at 475 deg. Fahr. as there is no danger of them bubbling over.

RASPBERRY TARTS

Two egg whites, pinch salt, ½ cup fruit sugar, 1 pint fresh raspberries.

Add salt to egg whites and beat until stiff. Beat in sugar. Fold in raspberries. Pile in baked tart shells. Bake in slow oven, 300 degrees F., until meringue is firm—about 30 minutes. Makes six tarts.

GOOD FRESH FRUIT

Paste Tarts.—Quartered, stoned, greengage plums (or other sour plums) pre-cooked in rich sugar syrup for 5 minutes, then drained. Or fresh plum jam; thick stewed rhubarb; gooseberry preserve; you may springle fruit with extra berry sugar before gazing if needed.

Apricot Glaze For Tart.—One-quarter pound dried apricots, 1 cup water, ¼ cup sugar. Soak apricots in the water 12 hours, drain, remove skins, return to water in which they were soaked, cook slowly 15 minutes, remove from heat. Press through sieve, add sugar, mix thoroughly, keep in glass jar—it will keep at least two weeks on ice. This may be used as a filling for tarts, or diluted a little with water after it is baked. It makes an excellent glaze, and is what is used by professional bakers.

Vegetables

BAKED STUFFED ONIONS

Six medium sized Spanish onions, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper or canned pimiento, 2 tablespoons fat or salad oil, ¾ lb. chopped beef, 2 tablespoons catsup, salt and pepper, ¼ cup sifted dry crumbs. Peel the onions. Cut off tops and scoop out a little of the centres. Cook them in boiling salted water until almost tender but still firm.

Chop up the centres of the onions and cook in the fat over moderate heat with the meat and green pepper or pimiento. Break meat apart with fork as it browns. Then add the catsup, salt and pepper and bread crumbs. Fill the onions with this mixture and place in deep baking dish, adding a little water to bottom. Bake covered at 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 min. basting occasionally. Serve with Tomato or Cheese Sauce.

MASHED TURNIPS AND POTATOES

Soak equal amounts of turnips and potatoes, both pared, in cold water for 1 hour. Drain and add boiling water and boil quickly with 2 teaspoons salt until very tender, then drain, shake over low heat, and mash, adding salt if needed, white pepper, butter, and a little cream or evaporated milk—mashing to remove all lumps. Serve with brown gravy. (This method converts turnip-avoiders to turnip-lovers).

BAKED ONIONS

My hostess used Spanish onions—but local onions can be nice too—bake same length of time as loaf, basting frequently and sprinkling with paprika during last 15 minutes.

STATES EXPECTED TO SEIZE LUXURY LINER NORMANDIE AND OTHER FRENCH CRAFT—4 DANISH VESSELS TA KEN OVER IN PHILIPPINES.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, March 31—(AP).—The crews of the German freighter Eisenach and the Italian liner Fella, anchored at Punta Renas, set their ships afire this morning and were promptly ordered arrested by the Costa Rican Government.

The Fella is a 6,072-ton motorship passenger liner owned by the Italian Line and built in 1926 at Trienste. She traded between Italy and United States Pacific coast ports before the war.

Last December Costa Rivan police intercepted an attempt by some of the ship's sailors to haul down a British flag in front of a building. Early this month it was reported that Costa Rican groups urged the government to take over the Fella and the Eisenach to keep them from being scuttled.

The Eisenach, a 4,177-ton freighter, traded between the West Indies, South America and her home port, Bremen. She was built at Stettin and formerly was known as the Aida.

In October, 1939, shipping circles reported that the freighter was suspected of supplying Nazi U-boats with fuel. At the same time she was tied up at Punta Arenas, Costa

Air Arm Torpedoes Slow Battleship Littorio
Navy Catches Duce's Ships At 10 p.m.
1,500 Fascists Drown, 900 Taken Prisoners

By LARRY ALLEN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

ABOARD HM.S. WARSPITE, Flagship of the British Mediterranean Fleet at Alexandria, Egypt, March 31.—(AP)—Britain's fighting ships paraded into port today apparently unscathed in the victorious "Battle of the Ionia Sea" in which at least five Italian warships sank under their blazing guns.

Besides sinking three—and possibly four—of Italy's biggest cruisers and two—perhaps three—destroyers, the British fleet scored three aerial torpedo hits on the crack, new Italian battleship Littorio and left that 35,000-ton capital ship heavily damaged.

The 15-inch guns of Britain's battleships turned the Italian cruisers into a mass of flames when the Fascist fleet was surprised heading eastward in the Mediterranean last Friday.

All the Italian ships, and possibly another cruiser of the Bandanere class and another destroyer, went down in the two hours between 10 p.m. and midnight that night.

After the battle was over, British officers said, they still could hear heavy firing and surmised that, in the darkness, the Littorio mistakenly might have opened fire against some of her own warships.

In addition, three German aircraft were shot down and more than 900 Italian seamen and officers were taken prisoner.

(The Admiralty in London said the figure was more than 1,000.)

About 1,500 Italian seamen were believed to have perished, since the normal complement of the vessels destroyed was about 2,500.

No British warship was hit and there were no casualties on any British surface vessel, naval officers declared. Two British aircraft are missing.

Jubilant naval men hailed the battle as the greatest fought so far in the Mediterranean and declared it probably had blighted permanently any ambition Mussolini still might have had to make his fleet a vital war factor.

The Royal Navy suddenly got its long-awaited chance to come to grips with Il Duce's navy when the Fascist fleet was reported off Cape Passaro, near Italy's toe, Thursday.

For the first time since the Battle of Jutland, the British fought a night battle involving capital ships, and next night when destroyer forces made contact with an Italian flotilla of cruisers and a Littorio class battleship near the western end of the Greek island of Crete.

A second Italian force, including two battleships, cruisers, and destroyers also was reported by air scouts slightly to the north.

Littorio Is Hit.

Fleet Air Arm torpedo bombers immediately flew from the aircraft carriers, heavily attacking the Littorio and cutting her normal top speed of 32 knots down to 15 with several hits which seriously damag-

Vichy said the protest would be made through the United States Embassy in London.

Two Peterborough Men Die And Woman Is Badly Injured

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent.)

COBOURG, March 31. — Three men were killed and a woman lies critically injured following a head-on collision between a big Smith transport and a light coupe near Cobourg at Sunday midnight. It was the worst traffic disaster during the past decade on a stretch of road noted for mishaps and today police are still trying to piece together the complete story of the tragedy.

Archie W. Patterson, Jr., R.R. 5, Peterborough, believed to be the driver of a light coupe was instantly killed as was Derwood Dafoe, 44 Rose street, Toronto, the transport driver. A passenger in the coupe, John Jewell, 121 Stewart street, Peterborough, died an hour and a half later in the Cobourg hospital and his wife, Mrs. Vera Jewell, who recovered consciousness two hours after the accident condition is described as critical.

Travelling North

The accident occurred shortly after twelve o'clock. The coupe was travelling north out of Cobourg and the big transport south towards the town. Following the crash the transport went off the road, jumped a deep ditch and came to a stop in a field about twenty feet from the highway. The coupe travelled a short distance along the highway and stopped a tangled mass of wreckage in the ditch.

The impact was described by eye-witnesses by residents as blood curdling.

Great Victory Nets Seadogs Just 2 Words "Well Done"

ALEXANDRIA, March 31—(CP).—"Well done."

With those words Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean fleet, today closed a message to his men reviewing the fleet's success in its week-end action against the Italian navy.

Admiral Cunningham's message follows:

"Operations just concluded have given us a notable success over the enemy. Skilful handling of our cruisers and untiring efforts of the fleet air arm have kept me well informed of enemy movements and the well-pressed attacks of torpedo aircraft on the Littorio so reduced the speed of the enemy that we were able to gain contact during the night and inflict heavy damage.

"The devastating results of the battleships' guns are an ample reward for months of patient training. This work was completed by destroyers in the admirable way we have come to expect from them.

"The contribution of engine-room departments to this success cannot be over-emphasized. Their work not only in keeping their ships steaming at high speed for long periods but in work on maintenance under most difficult conditions has been most praiseworthy.

"I am very grateful to all in the fleet for their support on this and all other occasions.

"Well done."

2 Hun Raiders Caught At Brest Dock

Scharnhorst, Gneisenau Straddled By Bombs; R.A.F. Gets 2 Tankers

LONDON, March 31 — (CP). — Royal Air Force bombers and fighters blasted the French invasion coast and German Channel shipping by daylight today in a fiery follow-up to a night raid on the Nazi battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau at Brest.

The air over the Dover Strait was declared "humming" throughout the morning and early afternoon with British planes, and the crump of falling bombs could be heard plainly on this side of the Channel.

Observers watching through glasses also saw water shooting into the air near the German-occupied shore. This was believed to be a continuation of attacks on German shipping which earlier in the day was reported by the Air Ministry to have left two German tankers afire and sinking off Le Havre.

In last night's attack on Brest the Air Ministry said that no direct hits were observed on the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, but that their docks were "straddled from all directions by medium, large and very large bombs."

Chief Raid Culprits.

The 26,000-ton Nazi sister ships are believed to have led the assault by surface craft and U-boats in recent merchant operations in the Atlantic. (The Germans claimed 126,000 tons of British ships were sunk in combined German naval assaults on convoys beginning March 22. This figure was not confirmed).

While the R.A.F. swarmed over the Channel, German "Big Berthas" on the French coast pumped shells into the Dover area. The shelling started at 11 a.m. (6 a.m., E.D.T.) and continued at irregular intervals.

Several houses were damaged by the Nazi shells, but no casualties were reported. One shell fell beside a churchyard, tearing up a tombstone and shattering windows over a wide area.

Small forces of aircraft started other fires in an attack on the harbor at Calais.

These operations were followed up today, an official announcement declared, by a raid in which British bombers scored five direct hits on

Expect Hitler's Ultimatum At Midnight

Predict Hun Demand For Demobilization, Attack Upon Refusal

BELGRADE, March 31.—(AP).—Relations between Germany and Yugoslavia grew worse by the hour to-day and the German legation secretary declared that only an "unexpected miracle" could save the situation.

The secretary announced that German Foreign Minister Viktor Von Heeren was leaving for Berlin, and at the same time the Yugoslav minister to Germany, Dr. Ivo Andric, arrived unexpectedly from Germany.

An unofficial German source declared Hitler intended to wait only until midnight to issue an ultimatum demanding demobilization of the 1,200,000-man Yugoslav army—the same demand which was reported to have touched off last week's upset of Ygoslavia's pro-axis government.

Hitler was said to be waiting only until all axis nationals could get out of the country, and then if the Yugoslavs failed to meet the expected ultimatum Germany woud attack.

An exodus of axis nationals, on orders from Rome and Berlin, was proceeding. All trains leaving the city for Germany and Italy were jammed, and many seeking to leave were left on station platforms.

All Out By Midnight.

Deadline for completion of this exodus was reported set for midnight.

British Capture Diredawa Key Rail City

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, Mar. 31—(CP). — Diredawa, on the Addis Ababa-Jibuti railroad, has been in British hands since Saturday, it was announced officially to-day.

This puts the British forces only 200 miles east by railroad from Addis Ababa, Ethiopia's capital, and in control of the only railroad link between that inland city and the coast.

(The Italians acknowledged yesterday that Diredawa had been abandoned.)

The British communique merely said:

"Diredawa was occupied by our troops on the afternoon of March 29."

An earlier communique had announced occupation by British forces of Carsa, between Harar and Diredaaw.

British forced moved up from captured Harar, second largest town in Ethiopia, to cut the Addis Ababa-Jibuti raidroad at Diredawa, whose Italian defenders withdrew inland.

That would break the Italians' only rail link with the outside world and leave them to fight it out around Addis Ababa, with British and native forces closing in from the east, south and northwest.

Canada's Army Horses Gone

Cavalry Units Now Cover Day's Ride Inside An Hour

TORONTO, March 31 — (CP). — Tanks have replaced horses in modern military world and Canada has not lagged in transforming her army into a potent striking force on wheels. Ontario is the centre of training and operation of this mechanized force.

Development of the Canadian armored division and tank brigade goes on apace at Camp Borden, biggest military camp of its kind in the Dominion. At present the men being trained for the highly-specialized duties required for the efficient performance of these formations are being put through the preliminary phases. Soon they will be manning the armored vehicles and various types of tanks expected to roll from Canadian factories in ever-increasing numbers.

Former cavalry units—including such famous formations as the Governor-General's Horse Guards, the Royal Canadian Dragoons and the Canadian Cavalry Regiment—have been absorbed by the armored division and other mechanized branches. Where these men previously marched or rode, they now roar by in fleet carriers, covering as much ground in an hour as they formerly did in a day.

The principal military camps in Ontario have been etsablished at Camp Borden, Petawawa and Niagara-on-the-Lake. Camp Borden is the training centre of the Royal Canadian Air Force and serves as a depot for thousands of infantrymen as well as the home of the armored wing. Engineers and artillerymen are being trained at Petawawa.

Early in the war eight infantry units in Ontario as well as numerous artillery and auxiliary units were mobilized. Despite the fact that many of these units were sent overseas with the first and second divisions there now are more men under arms in Ontario than in any other province.

The number is estimated at 15,000 but this is never constant because

Mollison Among Fliers In Convoy – Over For U.S. Bombers

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, March 31.—(CP)—Still another British passenger ship has dodged German's bombs and submarines to reach Canada with her complement unharmed, though her skipper reports one other ship in her convoy was sunk.

Nazi planes attacked the convoy twice in a single day, the captain reported last night. He set the planes' bag as a single vessel and classed as "tommyrot" stories of passengers that four vessels had been sunk.

One passenger said he understood submarines tried to stalk the convoy, but were driven off by escorting warships. The fighting vessels, too, winged one of the bombers by gunfire.

The vessel brought over James Mollison, coming to Canada for the first time since he flew the Atlantic solo on a westward flight in 1931. The veteran flier, wearing the uniform of the Air Transport Auxiliary, came over to fly an American-built plane to Britain—his first trans-Atlantic crossing.

The U.S. machines are "excellent" he said, "and the more we can get the better.

"The final victory depends greatly on the deliveries of these planes," he declared. He expected to see the rate of delivery rise still higher.

On the same ship came Sir Robert Clive, retired diplomat; Prof. Herman Finer, author of "Mussolini's Italy," Sir William Bragg and Charles Darwin, scientists. Sir Robert and Prof. Finer will lecture, while the other two visitor will tour Canada and the United States, respectively, to study and co-ordinate for war purposes the efforts of scientists on this side of the Atlantic.

Pro. Finer expressed the opinion it would take "continuing hard blows" to knock Italy out of the war. Revolt in Italy was possible, but he added he "wouldn't say that Italy is near collapse now."

Stir Labor Trouble In Ontario Says Stringer

TORONTO, March 31 (CP)—The outlawed Communist party still has a large and active underground membership which is attempting to foment labor trouble in industries engaged in war work, Commissioner W. H. Stringer of the Ontario Provincial Police says today in his annual report.

The commissioner says the party whose leaders are either interned or in hiding, has also attempted in recent months to create resentment among youths called for military training.

"Literature has been distributed in military training camps, colleges and schools, calling on youth to organize and fight the present system

US Nabs 60 Ships As Axis Crews BreakMachinery

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31—(AP).—The lightning action of the United States in taking over more than 60 German, Italian, and Danish merchantmen in American ports was expected to-day to develop into a hemisphere-wide move to thwart the departure or sabotage of long-idle Axis vessels.

A preliminary inspection showed that almost all of the Italian vessels taken over had been rendered useless by "wholesale sabotage," government authorities said.

That a violent Axis protest would be forthcoming was taken for granted in informed quarters, and the belief was that the dramatic events of the week-end had brought relations between the United States and tion as "serious but not hopeless," declared to-day it was "practically hopeless" and added: "A decisive turn for the better is not impossible, but it would be an unexpected miracle."

A special train ordered for tonight was expected to take the last of the Axis nationals except legation members out of the country. Others had hurried out in excited crowds, jamming automobiles, river boats, and almost hourly trains last night.

Their home governments ordered them to quit not only Serbia but the reportedly friendlier provinces of Croatia and Slovenia. Three thousand were hurrying from Croatia alone.

(The German radio claimed yesterday from Berlin that Yugoslavia had closed the entire German-Yugoslav frontier except for one-crossing between Maribor and Spielfeld. Germans were being advised to leave Yugoslavia by way of Hungary and Rumania.)

Sidewalks in front of the German legation in Belgrade were piled with packing cases bearing the name of the Nazi Minister, Viktor von Heeren. His wife was expected to go to Vienna as quickly as possible by special train. Families of other Axis diplomats also were leaving.

Von Heeren conferred yesterday with Momtchilo Nincic, Foreign Minister of the Yugoslav government set up last Thursday after overthrow of the regency of Prince Paul.

Position said Vague

The result of that talk was not disclosed. German circles declared, however, Yugoslavia's position remained "very vague" despite German attempts to obtain a definite statement of the government's policy toward the alliance.

The Belgrade press described Yugoslavia's two big factions Serbs and Croats, as closer together than ever before since the formation of the new government.

German correspondents continued to claim, however, that the Croat peasant leader Vladimir Macek, who carried over into the new government as vice-premier, still was awaiting clarification of the government's foreign policy before giving it his support.

One of the last stories sent out of Yugoslavia by German correspondents hinted that General Simovic was considering a drive through Albania.

These stories quoted the Premier as telling the Italian minister:—

"Yugoslavia is not going to be enclosed. If the Germans go to Salonika (Greece) the Yugoslavs must get to the sea by way of Albania."

Yugoslav official circles said there was absolutely no confirmation that such a statement had been made.

of government."

To combat the party's activities in war plants, efforts have been made to strengthen the protective facilities of the plants while known agitators are kept under surveillance.

Referring to other "foreign-ism advocates," Commissioner Stringer declared the spreading of Nazi propaganda is still carried on by word of mouth. Fascist organizations no longer exist as organizational subverters. Nearly all the leaders of the national unity party have been interned and this group has all but ceased to operate.

"The Jehovah's Witnesses sect is still quite active, but rigid enforcement of the regulations is having the desired effect. Huge quantities of literature have been seized and confiscated."

The "special branch" set up at the outset of war to combat subversive activities has touched upon the activities of 20,000 persons. Deputy Commissioner H. S. McCready directs this branch which has a staff of an inspector, two clerks and 10 agents.

The branch operated under great secrecy and the investigations were carried out in a discreet manner so as not to embarass innocent persons who sometimes were reported as members of subversive and outlawed organizations.

"One of the chief difficulties in making investigations concerning possible subversive acts has been the great reluctance of the majority of persons reporting such cases to give evidence in court," the report adds.

of the coming and going of units. An indication of the growth of military activity in the province is the doubling of the staff at headquarters of Military District No. 2 in Toronto since the start of the war.

With the new development of mechanized forces has come a problem in recruiting the specialists and tradesmen needed to manage and care for the machines. The need for mechanics and expert drivers is reflected in the decision to carry on recruiting indefinitely for these classifications in M.D. 2.

As a result of the influx of legions of foreign soldiers Ontario has assumed a greater international flavor in military training than any other jurisdiction in the British Empire outside of Britain.

The army and navy branches of the Royal Norwegian Air Force began training at Camp Little Norway in Toronto last summer. This winter the Netherlands legion moved into training quarters at Stratford and a month later a Belgian legion began training at Cornwall in the eastern part of the province.

About mid-winter negotiations began for a training ground for a Polish legion made up of Poles from all parts of Canada and the United States.

The numbers of men in these foreign legions have never been disclosed.

with South America in a new field, along with enlarging foreign credits. Fashion designers are invited to copy the models—secret for the present—provided British goods are used to their manufacture.

The girls are all professional models, selected for their beauty and personality, in addition to their ability to show off clothes. All are tall, lissom and sophisticated and average 22 years in age.

Nine British fashion houses created the clothes for the venture and the models are designed by such famous names among London dress stylists as Rahvis, Digby Morton, Capt. Molyneaux, Paquin, Peter Russell, Norman Hartwell, who designed the wardrobe of Queen Elizabeth for the Royal tour, and Stiebel & Worth.

Wartime censorship has been extended to these creations and the King and Queen at a private showing are the only ones to have viewed them. The clothes were kept in a bomb-proof vault while in Britain.

The girls will receive only a fraction of the pay they received in the night clubs, or as photographer and dress models before being selected for the mission. Present pay ranges from $15 to $25 a week in Canadian funds in addition to expenses.

Civilian transatlantic pilots who made the trip with the girls reported a "very interesting crossing." The aviators told how they were informed they would be making the trip in company with a "Government mission" and described their pleasure when the mission proved to be the fashion tour.

"Lights and onions" were the chief delights of the girls when they arrived here—both being scarce in Britain, they explained. All were anxious to taste the Broadway night life which will be under the watchful eye of chaperone Mrs John Tatton-Brown who is just as striking as her charges.

Claims It a Plot.

NEW YORK, March 31—(AP).—Italo E. Verrando, general manager of the Italian Line in the United States, declared today that the seizure of Italian ships in the United States was in accordance with a pre-arranged plan which had been "in the offing for some time."

"All ships were supposed to be seized by the United States Government for use as planned," he said. "Everybody knew that."

Verrando did not elaborate.

At the same time, Federal officials said that although no order had been issued in Washington it was "quite possible" that the Government would take over the $60,000,000 liner Normandie and five French freighters tied up in New York harbor.

Last night the United States seized 70 German, Italian and Danish ships after many Italian vessels were found sabotaged.

It was learned that New York police had compiled a list of French ships tied up here.

The 1,029-foot liner Normandie took refuge here at the outbreak of war. She is docked in the Hudson River with a skeleton crew.

Her owners, the French Line, have been spending more than $1,000 a day to keep the 83,423-ton vessel seaworthy.

French freighters laid up here are the Leopold L.D., 5,267 tons; Ile de Noirmoutier, 5,703 tons; Ile de Ouessant, 6,187 tons; Ile de Re, 5,104 tons, and Mont Everest, 5,120 tons.

4 Grabbed in Philippines

MANILA, March 31 (AP)—Four Danish ships in Philippine waters were taken under protective custody today by the United States Navy.

A bombing plane carried 15 men to Cebu, in the central Philippines, to take over a vessel tied up there. Naval crews of 15 men each boarded three Danish craft in Manila Bay.

Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander-in-chief of the United States Asiatic fleet, said the four ships were taken over by the Navy to prevent sabotage.

The four, aggregating 23,800 tons, are the Gertrude Maersk, Grete Maersk, Hulda Maersk and Marchen Maersk.

An "Act of War"

PORTLAND, Ore., March 31 — (AP)—The captains assertion that it was "an act of war" rose yesterday above the guitar playing and singing of the wine-drinking Italian officers and seamen of the Italian motorship Leme.

As U.S. Coast Guardsmen took armed possession of the vessel and hustled its officers and men to the county jail, Capt. Giovanni Polonio, told reporters that "war likely will come" as a result of the action.

"I never expected to have an experience like this in this country," the captain said. "It is really inhuman what they are doing—really improper. Even prisoners of war we do not treat like this in Italy."

Just "Propaganda"?

ROME, March 31 (AP) — The Italian radio professed today to believe that reports of United States seizure of Axis merchantmen were British propaganda but, if true, it was an action "far from peaceful."

"This action of the United States government, if true, would surprise us because, being unjustified, it would appear to be inspired by motives far from peaceful," said the broadcaster in English.

and the scene of destruction that met the eyes of motorists following the crash was almost indescribable. Both men were unconscious when police arrived. All were taken to the Cobourg hospital following first aid by Drs. Blackwell and Wilkins of Cobourg, and later victims were removed to McFayden's Undertaking Parlors. A passenger car driven by Royal Canadian Air Force men conveyed Jewell to the hospital and the ambulance was used for the others.

Tangled Mass of Steel

The car was reduced to a tangled mass of steel and wreckage, while the transport which travelled about a hundred feet south after the impact, went across the ditch near a culvert where the tractor turned over the trailer continued on, ripping through a fence and coming to rest in a clump of cedars.

The cab was reduced to matchwood and the chassis was badly twisted. In the midst of this wreckage police found the body of the transport driver. Patterson's body was thrown clear of the car, and he was dead when police arrived.

The accident was investigated by Chief Constable W. J. Carey, Constables Don Erskine and Edward Houghton of the Cobourg Police Force and Provincial Constable David Adair. An inquest is likely.

The stretch of road where the accident took place is perfectly straight, and the exact location of the tragedy is between the House of Refuge and the siding which crosses the highway at the Dye Works. It is about a half mile north of the bad level crosing which has claimed so many lives in recent years.

Police can offer no explanation of the crash, and Mrs. Jewel the only survivor is in no condition to make any statements as yet.

A. W. Patterson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Patterson, R.R. 5, Peterborough, and is also survived by his wife, formerly Etta Stewart, 130 Park street and two small children. He was 34 years of age. Three sisters also survive, Mrs. Frank Buchanan, Mrs. Walter Hargreaves and Mrs. Cecil Bannon.

John Jewell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Jewell, 121 Stewart street, Peterborough. His father has been an employee of the Board of Works for years. Mrs. Jewell, the survivor was formerly Vera Barrett, and they were married last summer. She had been employed prior to her marriage in Brook's Grill and at the Elite Grill as a waitress.

The three left Peterborough on Sunday afternoon in Patterson's car when he is reported to have volunteered to drive Jewell and his wife to Cobourg. They were on their way home at midnight when the crash took place.

One Killed In Toronto.

TORONTO, March 31 — (CP). — Frank Skelton of Toronto was killed and four others were injured today when an automobile crashed into a street car at the intersection of St. Clair Avenue and Warren Road.

The injured are Alto Schroeter, Miss Kay Hamilton, Miss Florence King and Miss Dorothy Lindley. Miss Hamilton is a sister of Reggie Hamilton, Toronto Maple Leafs hockey player.

Police expressed the belief the automobile driven by Schroeter became caught in the street car tracks, swinging the machine into the path of the trolley. It was practically pancaked under the front of the street car.

Schroeter was driving the others to work in a factory at suburban Leaside when the accident happened.

Instead they are living in barracks, complaining of the lack of sufficient food . Almost all are ill.

They described gurs as an unfurnished barracks built in ankle-deep mud where internees were perpetually hungry and ridden with disease.

More than one internee out of 10 died, they said. Some estimated the deaths as high as 12 a day.

This is borne out by reliable independent testimony to the effect that the gurs camp commander used only 40 per cent of the maximum daily food budget of 11½ francs (about 23 cents, nominally).

The visiting party, however, found evidence of recent efforts to improve conditions in all French refugee camps, with the exception of Argeles, beach camp for Spanish militiamen near the Spanish frontier.

The party was rushed through one admittedly-modern barracks at Le Vernet, the internees standing at attention and forbidden to talk. But despite the severe punishment often meted out in this camp, they organized a silent demonstration, each holding out a handful of bread to show the size of their day's ration.

Instead, it claimed, the freighters carried 15,000 tons of rice from Madagascar and French Indo-China for Algeria and Marseille; 1,500 tons of vegetables and seed from Morocco for the unoccupied zone; and about 7,000 tons of oranges from Morocco for Algeria.

An authoritative source, saying French opened fire to prevent the normal process of "visit and search," declared Britain intends "fully to maintain" her belligerent rights of blockade despite Vichy's objections.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Economic Warfare said Britain had information that a "German program" for shipments from unoccupied France to Germany included important war materials.

This schedule, he asserted, included "priority" between January 16 and March 1 for the following items among others: 30,000 tons of bauxite, 10,000 tons of aluminum, 1,700 tons of raw rubber, and 2,200 tons of Chilean nitrate.

"It long has been known that French merchant ships have been carrying goods to French ports from which they soon reach Germany," he said.

Royal Air Force bombers also joined in the attack, scoring hits on cruisers and destroyers.

British fleet units pursued the Littorio, but firing range was reached only as darkness fell and it was not known whether she was hit again.

All British forces then joined in the attack, crippling the cruisers Pola, Zara and Fiume with shells from their 15-inch guns.

Destroyers followed up the fusillade and rammed home torpedoes which finished the cruisers off in a convulsive death dive into the sea.

A fourth cruiser was believed also to have gone down under the guns of the 30,600-ton Warspite, the Valiant, a sistership; and the 31,100-ton Barnham, which smashed the Vincenzo Giobzerti and Maestrale to bits.

Others Are Damaged

Another Italian destroyer, which launched torpedoes as it was withdrawing behind a heavy smoke-screen, also may have been hit. Some damage was known to have been inflicted on other Italian ships.

After the smoke of battle had cleared away, British warships picked up 849 Italian sailors and 61 officers from life rafts. Because the presence of German aircraft around the British ships made further rescue operations impossible, officers said, at least 300 Italian sailors are known to have perished.

This flagship sighted three cruisers and from two to four destroyers about 150 miles west of Crete about about 9 p.m. Friday.

"Shortly after nine o'clock," a gunnery officer of the Warspite told me, "the battleships Warspite, Valiant and Barham were ordered to close position after a unidentified vessel was reported stopped....

"At 10 o'clock we were approximately in position.

"At 10.20 we sighted a number of darkened ships on our starboard bow.

Enemy On Both Sides.

"Almost simultaneously we were challenged by another ship on the port beam. The fleet was turned to starboard to bring us on opposite course to the remaining cruisers and our heavy armament was brought to readiness.

"A few seconds later one of our destroyers, the Greyhound, switched her searchlight on a third ship in the enemy's line. We recognized her as one of the eight-inch-gun cruisers of the Zara class. Subsequently it was learned she was the Fiume.

"The Warspite's 15-inch guns at once opened fire at very close range. The first broadside struck the cruiser with devastating effect.

"The whole ship, from foremast funnel to aft burst ito a mass of flames. The after-turret was blown clean over the side. After one more broadside caused a fresh outburst of fire, the ship was hopelessly crippled.

"We switched fire to the next cruiser in line, the Zara. Again the first salvo produced an incredible effect. She burst into flames.

"By now the entire battle fleet was in action. Destroyers sank the cruiser Pola. Our searchlight illuminated two enemy destroyers. These were ideally placed for torpedo attacks against us and turned and launched torpedoes."

The War Today

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The Royal Navy's great victory over the Italians in the Ionion sea probably has done much to shorten the battle of the Mediterranean and to limit the time during which Italy will resist the Allies.

The victory, greatest of the war, will have the effect of releasing British ships for work in the Atlantic where they are sorely needed to combat the German submarine menace.

The announcement last night that the United States had seized some 60 German, Italian and Danish merchantmen tied up in American ports gave promise of still further lightening the load the navy must bear on Atlantic patrol. There will be no need from now on to watch for any of these vessels, no chance of their slipping out of port to make a run for it.

The United States' move may be copied by other countries in the Americas and Washington observers believe President Roosevelt will seek to make the seizures effective throughout the western hemisphere. Whether the vessels will be turned over to British crews in the United States after repairing damage inflicted by their own crews has not been made clear.

It is considered more likely that the United States will claim title to the vessels, employ them in Inter-American trade and lend their equivalent in tonnage to the British merchant marine.

The United States Department of Commerce, employer of the Coastguard whose men were sent aboard the ships; did not claim immediately that German or Danish ships had been damaged, but Italian crews were said to have admitted carrying out their sabotage on orders from their diplomatic representatives.

Informed persons in Washington expressed the view the United States action had brought an open diplomatic rupture with Germany and Italy measurably closer, but looked for no immediate talk of war as the action was taken under a 1917 Espionage Statute which has recognition in international law.

Elsewhere the Axis fared badly. British forces made further rapid advances in Eritrea and Ethiopia, and it appeared the fall of both countries was fairly imminent.

Germany apparently despaired of repairing her damaged relations with Yugoslavia and ordered her nationals to leave that country.

Germany still awaited a reply to her demand for an explanation of the action by the new government of Gen. Dusan Simovic in refusing to ratify the friendship agreement signed by its predecessor.

There was talk of a combined British-Yugoslav offensive in Albania to drive the Italians quickly into the sea and end the war there, permitting a later drive against Germany, but the talk was unofficial. That something new was afoot was seen, however, in the return to Athens of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and General Sir John Dill, Chief of the Imperial General Staff.

They have been in Egypt since their last visit to Greece.

Two RAF Planes Only Loss In Sea Battle

LONDON, March 31 —(CP)—Five Italian warships—and perhaps two more—were sunk by British naval forces in a great week-end sea battle in the eastern Mediterranean and more than 1,000 Italian survivors have been picked up, the Admiralty announced today.

Except for attacks by German dive bombers, a communique said, 200 or 300 more could have been rescued during the engagement—biggest of the war—in which serious damage was inflicted on an Italian battleship of the 35,000-ton Littorio class by aerial torpedoes.

Athens dispatches said survivors of three destroyed cruisers, the 10,000-ton sisterships Fiume, Pola and Zara, had been landed at Piraeus, port of Athens, along with men from a destroyer which the British Admiralty has not claimed.

The Admiralty said the destroyers Vincenzo Gioberto and Maestrale were sunk, along with the three cruisers, that a third destroyer was a "probable" victim and that the 5,069-ton cruiser Giovanni Delle Bande Nere possibly had been sent to the bottom.

The destroyer in the Athens reports was given as the Alfiera, which is not listed in recent authoritative naval manuals. There is a Vottorio Alfieri, however, and naval officials said this might be the one meant.

Naval officials unhesitatingly called the action the Royal Navy's outstanding success of the war.

French Start Something.

At the other end of the Mediterranean, other British warships sought to halt a French convoy and

216 Soldiers Arrive At Camp

The strength of the personnel of the Training Centre here was increased last evening with the arrival of 216 men from No. 3A District Depot, Kingston, who arrived in Peterborough by special train.

The men have been stationed in the artillery depot at Kingston and are here to carry out two months' training. All are members of the Canadian Active Service Force.

This morning the men were posted to No. 2 and No. 3 Companies and commenced their duties immediately. A number of the men have enlisted for some weeks while others have joined the Active Service Force during the past few days.

The training of artillery men in infantry training is in line with the policy laid down by the Department of National Defence at the outbreak of the war, that all branches of the army would received elementary training and on completion of this will specialize in the branch of the service for which they enlisted.

An increase in the strength of the Training Centre will be noted from now on, and according to Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., officer commanding, the camp will be at full strength of 750 early in the summer. This with officers and members of the administrative and training staff will bring the camp to a total strength of nearly 1,000.

The first group of recruits to join the 21-year-old class who reported four months training ten days will continue to show great interest in their work, and improvement in their bearing and marching is noted daily.

Are You a Sufferer From Rheumatic Pains?

These pains come from an inflammation in the muscles and are generally caused by a deposit of poison in the blood called uric acid which produces the irritating and painful effect that causes many days and nights heavy with pain.

During the past 60 years Canadian people have found that by purifying the blood stream, Burdock Blood Bitters aids them to enjoy freer body movement with less rheumatic pain, as B. B. B. helps to tone up the system and clear up the uric acid in the blood, and probably help fortify the system against future attacks.

Cobourg Firemen Get Two Alarms

COBOURG, March 31 (ENS) — Cobourg's fire department had a busy time on Saturday, when it was called out twice, once in the morning and again in the afternoon.

Neither fire did any damage. the morning call coming as a result of a smudge fire which started in the rear of S. Bate's Billiard parlor, with the smoke causing some concern as it filled the barber shop owned by J. J. Nebbens in the front of the building, which is situated on King street. The brigade succeeded in putting out the smoldering fire with little trouble.

The second call brought the department on to the northwestern end of the town. A grass fire burning in an empty field just south of the C.P.R. railroad tracks on the west side of Ontario street was the scene of the second try. The local firemen quickly beat out the grass fire with shovels and brooms. No material damage was done on either occasion.

Scout Leaders Confer In Port Hope

PORT HOPE, March 31.—(ENS). —District Scout leaders met in a one day conference here Saturday under the forceful leadership of Field Secretary E. T. Jones, Toronto. With more than fifty registrations including a group from Providence, a small village which is conducting scout work despite the loss of its leader through joining the active service, officials consider the meeting was highly successful. The program opened at nine o'clock Saturday morning and terminated with a banquet Saturday evening. St. Mark's Parish Hall, Mill street, was the scene of the day's activities.

Addressing the Scouts and guests at the banquet, the Rev. N. S. McKechnie, minister of the Port Hope Baptist church, depicted the characteristics which the founder of the movement, the late Chief Scout Baden Powell, set forth as desirable traits in a good citizen and compard them with the Nazi creed.

In his opening remarks Dr. McKechnie related the chief reason he had never become a scout was that Lord Baden Powell had not founded the movement when he was of scouting age, but rather the late Chief Scout's reputation was due to his military record, at that time.

Promote Good Citizenship.

The purpose of scouting was to promote good citizenship, Dr. McKechnie related. "Lord Baden-Powell was thinking of the boys in the old country and din't realize the movement would spread." He wanted to spread good citizenship, no country can be greater than the citizens of that country."

"Every country is only as great as its citizens," the speaker told the Scouts. Canada is great geographically and possesses great assets but it is no greater than its citizens.

"What do we need in a good citizen?" the speaker questioned. "We need men who are industrious, men who have ability to do things, to see possibilities, men who are on the alert, just as a Scout must be."

"We need men loyal to the king and country. We need honor.

Realing the qualifications of good citizenship, Lord Baden-Powell created certain high standards in scouting, including the oath of loyalty.

Scouts must be practical and willing to serve. "He said a man is not a good citizen if he isn't practical, and so you have your badges," Rev. McKechnie said.

Lord Badel-Powell in his scouting instructions wanted everyone to learn to be out-of-door men, for without good health we cannot give good citizenship the Scouts were told.

They taught the boys of Germany to be loyal to Hitler and his group whether right or wrong," the speaker said, comparing the Scout movement with the youth movement in German. 'Baden-Powell said to be loyal to right only."

"They have been taught to be disloyal to their families, and that it is clever to deceive. They have no sense of honor. Hitler has taught the youth of Germany to have no honor," it was said. The conditions have created serious problems for after the war there will be a generation of honorless Germans to consider.

Touching on the future, Dr. McKechnie told the Scouts that though they were still boys the time was rapidly approaching when they would be men, taking their place with those who are already serving for the cause. "We in this country where scouting is taught, are going to need the kind of men scouting produces," he said. "In leading Scout packs you are doing a fine work if you are doing what Baden-Powell set out to do, to promote good citizens."

Cubmaster Mrs. J. Mitchell thanked Dr. McKechnie for his address and A. S. M. Donald Venton, Bowmanville, moved a vote of thanks to St. Mark's church for the use of the Parish Hall and to the Women's Club for the splendid dinner. The Scouts did justice to the heaping plates of cold meat, mashed potatoes and vegetables, with apple pie and whipped cream. Mrs. J. T. Freestone graciously accepted the vote of thanks on behalf of the assembled members of the club. Mr. H. C. Hersy, president of the local association and chairman of the program, moved a vote of thanks to Field Secretary Jones for his splendid work at the conference. Three rousing cheers were evidence of the Scout leader's appreciation of his efforts.

The conference opened with prayer by Rev. Terrence Crosthwait, rector of St. Mark's Anglican church. Following registration the Scouts were divided into patrols and day's program which was in effect a refresher course in Scout work, got under way.

Field Secretary E. T. Jones lectured on "The Patrol Spirit." "Patrol Instruction and Corners" and conducted the conference in general. Scout Master Howard Jordan, principal of the Central Public school, spoke on "Patrol Organization" and "Heights and Measurements." Members of his troop also gave a demonstration of a Court of Honor. Scoutmaster Harry Vaneverdingen led in "Patrol and Troops," while Harold Fox spoke on Signalling and V. Harwood displayed rope work.

Convened by Roy Burham, the banquet was presided over by Herbert Fulton and department heads. The supper was attended by some 40 members of the factory staff, including the office force and dyeing chemists. Solos were sung by H. Fulton, Julia Bulger, Jack Mowatt and Winnie Henley. Big Transport Is Wrecked Near Welcome

PORT HOPE, Mar. 31—(ENS).—When Walter Gillespie's heavily loaded transport took the ditch near Morrish on Highway No. 2, it took a crew of men ten hours to clear away the wreckage and right the truck. East-bound, Gillespie apparently went to sleep at the wheel while proceeding down a grade, careened across the road and proceeded down an embankment, not however before twenty-four guard posts were snapped of like matches. A large Hydro pole and some evergreens along the fence into which the truck slithered to a stop were also broken. Wires and cable from the Hydro pole and the guard rail fence were twisted in the wreckage, and the load of steel was dumped at random for 150 feet along the ditch.

Despite the heavy toll of property damage, Gillespie was uninjured in the accident, and was only shaken up.

Highway Traffic Officer Hugh McKellar who investigated the accident, stated Gillespie had gone to sleep. He was en route to Peterborough with a load of large steel plates when he set up a near record at knocking down guard rail posts.

A heavy duty wrecker truck was called on to remove the truck from the mud in which it became lodged. After considerable effort it was dragged back on to the road, permitting Hydro and highway employees to repair the damage. The steel sheets were dragged across the road and lined along the highway.

There's a Nasty Leak

How much do the Germans know of what is going on in Canada? If the addresses recently made in the Canadian Senate are factually correct then we have to believe that Berlin has an intimate knowledge of all that is going on; that it knows the date of departure of all our vessels, the number and placement of all our troops, and in a general way is so well informed that our efforts at secrecy amount to nothing at all.

Senator C. E. Tanner said: "Never a ship leaves the shores of Canada that they (the Germans) do not know about. There is nothing done they do not know about. They have a system."

Senator John T. Haig told of a gentleman in Winnipeg who was anxious to know when a ship, on which his son was going overseas, was to leave, but he could secure no information. The son while in mid-Atlantic turned on the radio and heard from Berlin the date on which the ship had left Canada. Heard too that it had been torpedoed. That part of the story was propaganda but the date of the sailing was correctly given.

Senator Dandurand said he had a relative in Quebec not far from where boats dock. He noticed in the evening one of the Empress boats at the dock almost below his window. In the morning he turned on his radio to the short-wave and learned from Germany that the vessel had left at a certain hour for New York. Scarcely believing the report the man hastened out to see for himself and found the vessel had left at the time reported on the radio.

That makes very interesting reading, although not of the comfortable sort. We have not the least fault to find with the Senators for discussing it openly, because if there is remedy to be found and applied then we have to know for certain that a miserable situation exists which we have not thus far succeeded in controlling or eliminating.

Possibly we started under a handicap in this country because for so many years we allowed people to come and go and asked few questions. We did not possess the suspicious mind of the European nations, but merely took it for granted that people were welcome here and we were glad enough to have them. That is, we had a wide open field in our country for the secret service departments of other nations, for the spies or the plotters or the schemers.

We did little enough about it until the war started, and to the credit of our R.C.M.P. it must be said they scooped in a great many people who were undoubtedly acting as foreign agents. But the statements made in the Senate indicate that the system of espionage has not been flattened out, and the Senators have reason to believe it is still in existence and in active operation.

We do not believe that our policy of giving out no information regarding the movement and departure of troops should change. That would not help matters, but would tend to make it even easier for the enemy to come into possession of information. But if the Senators are right — and their open statements indicate they are—there is something stiff and stern to be attended to. Admittedly the departure of a troopship is something which would be known to many hundreds of people, but the means of sending that information to Germany is something which can be known to very few. Instead of raising the lid the proper course seems to be to clamp it down tight, and do the clamping down process where it will be effective. A large order we admit, but in view of the claims made in the Senate there can be no other course open.

They Have To Whisper

If there is what we call spirit left in France it is necessary to hunt for it outside of the government as constituted at Vichy. There the opportunity for expression is stunted; it is under the eye and also the heel of the German.

But it broke out at Marseilles, the place where the late King Alexander of Yugoslavia was assassinated when he visited France in 1934. Alexander was the father of Peter II who has taken the throne of the Yugoslavian nation.

At the place where the king was killed there is a monument, and it was there that a crowd of 10,000 gathered and brought flowers for the purpose of decoration. The movement was entirely spontaneous and it seemed the right and proper time for them to sing again the "Marsellaise," something which has been fading from the French mind.

All this took place, according to the story from the Associated Press writer, "after word was whispered through the city that a new anti-Axis Yugoslav government had been formed."

Those few words "whispered through the city" tell us a great deal which might otherwise be difficult to understand. In our land we receive such news openly; we can read it in a spirit of elation and without fear. In France the news is whispered through the city. We anticipate the day, and we will slave and fight for the day when good news will be shouted through that land.

Slivers On The Chairs

Japanese Foreign Minister Matsuoka started in at Berlin and has gone on toward Rome. He had previously explained in his own very polite way (and which fooled no one at all) that he was merely on a visit to become acquainted with the people behind the powers with which Nippon had recently become associated. Truth is he was on hand because he was needed so he could be given to understand that the Axis powers were not bent on a tea party but meant business, and Japan would have to knuckle down and attend to that business.

It was rather remarkable that from Berlin should have come the report that the Japs should begin an attack on British Singapore. It was not merely a veiled suggestion that it was time for Japan to become active, but a plain demand. If Japan expected to get anything out of world war then Japan would be expected to put something in. And probably a good deal more than will ever be taken out.

So if Matsuoka came with bows and friendly gestures he was sent on his way to Rome with a bayonet stuck in his grip. In Rome we do not know exactly how the situation will be presented to him. It is hardly likely that Mussolini will draw the visitor to one side and close the door so he can talk in confidence. Were he to do so he could spin him quite a yarn, and tell him in an unusual way what it costs to become associated with Berlin.

Mussolini could recite stories of the days of his dreams of another Roman empire, how his son Vitro bombed Ethiopians in order to bring them a new civilization. He could go on and recite how the invading army of Graziani had been turned back on its way to the Suez, how fort after fort had toppled to the British, and how Churchill's threat of his African empire being torn to shreds had already come to pass.

If time and inclination permitted Mussolini could carry the recital across to Albania where he encountered the Greeks. He could tell of his men who had fought gloriously—and died the same way. But he could not speak of a single success for Italian arms from first to last. If he used figures he would have to say that in prisoners and casualties he had lost 250,000 men, which is equal to the total enlistments in Canada in all branches of the service.

Whether Foreign Minister Matsuoka will hear as sour a note in Rome as in Berlin we know not. That Yugoslavian upset occurred right in the midst of the Berlin show, and we believe the minister from Tokyo had timed his visit so he would be on hand when there was rejoicing over yet another convert entering the Axis camp. But when the convert had apparently entered he turned around and walked right out again. So we cannot but wonder what the foreign minister from the East has in mind, as there appear to have been some slivers on the chairs wherever he was asked to be seated.

Yes—Build a House

Mayor Hamilton has issued an appeal to the citizens of this city, and the text is simply: "If you are thinking of building a house, then go ahead and do it."

We know of a number of people who have done this very thing in recent years and we have yet to hear of one who admits he made a mistake. No matter if the price of stocks went up or down the house was there. Other holdings could fluctuate but the home was there every time the owner returned. It was as good as ever.

Those who have acquired homes in Peterborough within recent years have found that the amount of taxes they are required to pay has been decreasing; they have found also that the insurance premiums are considerably less than they used to be.

Those who have built new homes with insulation have also found it costs them less money to heat the premises. All these are favorable conditions, and they all have their bearing on home building and home owning.

Every new house which goes up in this city or in the township near it is going to lessen the danger of a housing shortage. If a family moves from a rented house to one of their own they have released a house for use. We commend the Mayor's idea to citizens generally.

Playing With Danger

Since war effort touched our industries into full production there have been several cases brought to court where the charge has been much the same—action taken to keep men from joining a labor union or dismissal for those who are alleged to have been active in the formation of a union.

Usually the defence offered is much the same. There was no more work for the union man to do, and so he was laid off until things picked up a little. There was no other place in the works where he could be used; the fact that he happened to be a union man was just an incident.

Fortunately we have had few strikes, but there is seldom (if ever) good reason for blocking a legitimate trades union, and doing that is one sure way of looking for trouble. The workers have exactly the same right and reason for forming their organization that the employers have for becoming associated with one of their own.

No Present Need

A proposed amendment to the Municipal Act, being considered in the Legislature, provides that persons appointed as clerk, treasurer or auditor would have to be certified by the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs.

As a rule municipalities make a fairly good job of selecting their officials. Now and then there may be a misfit, but the occurrence is not frequent, and on that score it is difficult to see what improvement would be made by the Department of Municipal Affairs adding an O.K.

With auditors it may be different. There have been cases where in some municipalities the auditing has been done by an individual because there was not much money to be spent, and therefore a cheap man seemed desirable. That tendency, too, is passing, and the reason is that the lesson of having a person not qualified doing such work has been expensive. And lessons of that nature are the kind not readily forgotten.

COUSIN EZRA

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Next door to Cousin Ezra's place, the little widow full of grace, lives quietly all alone; it bothers Cousin Ezra some, about her chores that must be done, in keeping up a home.

¶ The water runs along her walk, the lowest spot around the block, and freezes into ice; so when it thaws a bit she chops, and Ezra says she almost drops, he's seen her once or twice.

¶ So Ezra could not stand the scene, it burned to flame within his bean, caused manly power to stir; he got his axe and off he went, upon a gallant mission bent, he'd clean the walk for her.

¶ He used his axe and shovel too, and soon the little task was through, it was a kindly plan; the widow beamed on Ezra then, and said of all the village men, he was the finest man.

¶ That day when Ezra's wife went out, he heard her give a startled shout, he hurried to the spot; below the steps the ice was bare, and she had slipped and sprawled right there, her ankle swelled a lot.

¶ So Ezra's doing the housework now, more furrows line his worried brow, his wife don't want to talk; but she suggested yesterday, 'twas time for him to slip away—and clean the widow's walk.

President Can Do Just About What He Likes

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — Although the lease-lend authority voted by congress to President Roosevelt specifies that he mustn't send American vessels to escort shipments of Yankee-made war supplies to Britain or any other country in arms against the Nazi - Fascism-Japanese alliance, constitutional authorities generally agree that he can do it if he chooses to.

Chas. P. Stewart

Under the constitution the White House tenant is commander - in - chief of the army and navy, meaning, as most experts interpret fundamental law, that he can employ either or both of them exactly as he sees fit, regardless of any prohibition embodied in a mere piece of current legislation.

In other words, that particular part of a congressional act like the lease-lend measure doesn't hold water; the chief executive's army and navy commandership can be qualified only by a constitutional amendment, first voted by the national lawmakers and then ratified by the states, at their respective capitals. Of itself, congress' vote is insufficient. And it usually takes quite a while to get a constitutional amendment ratified. It can't be done at all, occasionally.

In the meantime, if the constitutionalist consensus is right, F. D. R. can disregard that anti-convoy clause in the lease-lend enactment with perfect legal propriety. Maybe it wouldn't be diplomatic of him to do so, considering the obviousness of congress' feeling on the subject, and maybe, for that reason, he'll refrain from doing it. But it isn't certain.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark was largely responsible for wangling into the lease-lend bill the wording at lease implying that the U.S. won't transport war supplies to Britain, Greece, et. al. in American cargo carriers or assign men-o'-war to accompany and protect their cargo carriers through belligerent waters.

WHAT CONGRESS CAN DO

IT APPEARS that congress is entitled to prohibit American merchant shipping to venture into danger zones, at the risk of being sunk and thus probably involving the U.S. in other countries' hostilities. There's nothing in the constitution making America's merchantile marine subject to a presidential commander-in-chieftainship or anybody else's. In that matter a congressional mandate is final.

The U.S. army and navy are different. The president's their boss. Unless and until the constitution's altered it seems he can do whatever he pleases with 'em.

He can order war craft wherever he thinks best.

He can order land soldiery and military aviators abroad if he wants to, despite congressional objections, if any.

The president can't declare war, to be sure; that's a congressional perogative. The president can wage undeclared war, though. It's a commonplace that he can create a state of affairs that leaves the legislators no choice but to come across with a formal declaration.

Congress does have one theoretical string on the White House.

It takes a lot of money to wage even an undeclared war, and congress can refuse to let the president have it.

There's a possibility (not a practical but a theoretical one) that the lawmakers might draw the line on digging up the funds to finance the dispatch of a big expeditionary land force overseas.

NAVY IS DIFFERENT

BUT what about the navy? We have to have one; it has to be roving all over the oceans and congress can hardly balk at providing it with adequate funds to keep it afloat and primed for action. It isn't like a land force, which can't be transported to foreign parts without considerable expensive preparation. A navy has to be prepared everlastingly to go wherever it's ordered to go. And the president gives the order—without necessarily consulting anybody, if he deems it necessary to start shooting in a hurry.

A land soldier, in the United States, doesn't unlimber his firearms on very short notice, unless there is an invasion and there's no immediate prospect of that. Right here there's nobody for him to shoot at. He has to travel a long distance to get within range of the other fellow.

But suppose the case of an American warship, escorting a British merchantman to Britain, with a cargo of stuff the British need to fight Germans with. And suppose a Nazi submarine pops up and opens fire. That American warship immediately has got to reciprocate. The fight starts automatically and unavoidably. And a fight, once started, is hard to stop or keep from spreading.

The navy's what worries U.S. isolationists—and some who aren't so very isolationistic.

"'Ere, 'ow long's your name been Adolf?"
—London Daily Herald.

• Living In Two Rooms

EDITOR EXAMINER: Sir,—Mayor Hamilton has grudgingly admitted that we should have about a hundred of the government pre-fabricated houses in Peterborough.

The city council has decided not to take advantage of the Dominion legislation for rent control as long as landlords "play fair."

A nice state of affairs.

Rents are going up all over town and factory workers and other small wage earners are finding it harder and harder to make ends meet. Now we have the prospect of a thousand or more men being engaged at the C.G.E. alone during the next few months. Most of these men will be married and some will have families, while most of them will come from out of town. The Johnson Motor Co. are going to take on men also. So that these houses will have to be made of rubber or else the sides will burst.

Here is how a great majority of ordinary factory workers are getting by right now, and have been for some time. Many families are cramped up in from two to four rooms. I and my wife and child are living in two rooms, for which we pay sixteen dollars a month. The house in which we live rent for thirty dollars a month, which of course is too much for a working man to pay, and so we (or somebody else) rent two of the rooms for sixteen dollars.

Many more people are moving outside the city limits, and some people who have received work here lately, haven't even bothered to move to town at all. Then there are those people who are living in houses which are just about ready to fall apart. Not a few houses are like this in Peterborough.

As one of the hundreds of factory workers who make less than fifty cents an hour, I would like to express my opinion(which is the opinion of most of my fellow workers.

The price of food is creeping up day by day almost imperceptibly. In fact we pay for almost every single thing we buy except beer (and the sooner that goes up the better). Most of us are pledged to buy War Savings Certificates and to pay installments on the Community Chest Fund. Hundreds of people are just beginning to work steadily after years of depression, when work was scarce and unsteady. We can't all build new houses this spring, just because we haven't been out of work for a few months. The way things are today I won't have enough saved for a down payment on a house for about forty years.

Everywhere we hear the cry "Work, Save and Lend for Victory."

Give us a chance to save and lend. Bring that Rent Control Board to Peterborough. It will see that there is "fair play." That's why it was brought into existence. The rents have only just begun to go up. The decision of the council will give confidence to a certain type of property owner, and rents will be sky high before long. Rents will have to be controlled as the situation grows worse, and we might as well have it now.

Also order about five hundred prefabricated houses for Peterborough and get an option on some more. That's a good job you have there, Mr. Hamilton. Try and hang on to it.

Yours truly,
W. G. T.

Peterborough, March 29.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

My son, despise not the chastising of the Lord, neither be weary of his correction.

For whom the Lord loveth he correcteth, even as a father the son in whom he delighteth.

Happy is the man that findeth wisdom and that getteth understanding.

For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold.

She is more precious than rubies; and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared with her.

Length of days is in her right hand, and in her left hand riches and honor.—Proverbs 3.

A Bit of Nonsense

Too Bad

"Did she promise to marry you?"

"Oh, yes; but I've got to wait until they move next month. Just at present there's no room for me in her mother's house."

To Be Candid

She: Here's a story of a man out west who bartered his wife for a horse. You wouldn't swop me for a horse, would you, darling?

He: Of course not (pause), but I'd hate to have anyone tempt me with a good motor car.

Contrast

"It's great to spend a day in the country away from everything, isn't it?"

"Well, you surely show up in a better light when you're away from everybody else."

Doubtful

"I get wonderful recipes over the radio," gushed the bride who was entertaining her family for the first time. "I got one for Egyptian stew and one for a never-fail stain remover this morning."

"Which is this?" asked little Willie, tasting the stew with which he had just been served.

Costs Less, Too

"My dear friend, you can loan me two hundred dollars? I have just recovered from an operation for appendicitis."

"Appendicitis? Your doctor doesn't know his business. He should have operated for gall stones."

MOTHERS AND FATHERS UNDERSTAND

Fun-loving and lively, racing home for that snack they have been thinking about for the last half-hour in school. Certainly, Mother will be there; and she will always want to be when these youngsters come home.

The girls will come skipping in anytime, hungry and bursting with that small talk they think is so important that Mother should hear it. Dad will hear all about it later.

Dad is very fond of this family of his. More than once he has thought back to that chat with a friend who seemed to feel so much satisfaction because he had made a properly-planned Will and made sure of the future protection of his wife and family.

Dad remembered that talk because he had been impressed with the arrangements this friend had made under his Will. Later on he talked over his own ideas with us and looked into this matter of appointing an experienced executor to manage his estate.

Now he knows that should he pass on, particularly while his family are still of younger years, their Mother will always be free to give them her full, loving care—entirely relieved of the worrying business of making the estate earn a living for them. That will be the responsibility and duty of this Trust Company.

PETERBOROUGH BADMINTON PLAYERS DEFEAT KINGSTON CLUB

Powerful Royals Are Drubbed By OHA Winners

MONTREAL, March 31 — (CP)— Toronto Marlboros, hardly conceded a chance to take a game with Montreal's powerful Royals, skated off with a 6-2 upset victory here Saturday and forced a fourth game in their best-of-five Eastern Canada semi-final Allan Cup playoff series.

Royals, who waltzed through their first two games with the Ontario champions, still hold a 2-1 edge in games, on the strength of a 3-1 win in Montreal ,and a 3-2 verdict in Toronto. The teams play the fourth game of the series at Toronto. Monday and, should Marlboros win, the fifth and deciding contest will be staged here Wednesday.

The three-time Quebec Senior Hockey League and Provincial champions, expected to make a clean sweep of the series, gave one of their poorest exhibitions of the season against the close-checking Toronto team, who practically slowed down the pace to a walk.

Marlboros Gain Lead

The visitors sported a one-goal lead at the end of the second period on tallies by Defenceman Alex Davidson and Centre George (Punchy) Imlach, while Bert Janke, also a defenceman, fired a low drive past Baz Bastien for Royals counter. Both team had several scoring opportunities but lost them through poor shooting and passing.

In the intermission between the second and third periods a recording of McNamara's Band was played. It was a fatal mistake. Out came the famous McNamara brothers, George and Paul, to figure in three goals and complete the rout.

Davidson and Imlach each got a pair of goals, while the other Toronto markers were credited to Johnny Inglis and Eddie King. Johnny Atcheson picked up two assists as he set up the plays for Janke and Russ McConnell.

Eddie Powers, Toronto coach, shook his lineup slightly. He injected Paul McNamara and Greg Kirby into the series for the first time. They replaced Scotty Mair and Don Dunbar.

Royals Disorganized

Royals, forced to play tight, close-checking brand of hockey favored by Marlboros, were completely disorganized throughout the contest and only rarely showed flashes of their accustomed dash and brilliance. Marlboros, on the other hand, also failed to impress and the small gathering of 5,000 kept up almost continual clapping for action.

Heroes Of Bruins' Victory

Porky Dumart, LEFT, and Herbie Cain were the heroes of Boston Bruins' 2-1 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs in the fourth game of their four out of seven series. Dumart opened the Boston scoring and Cain scored the winning goal when he slammed a rebound past Goalie Broda in a scramble in front of the Leafs' net.

Quaker Girls' Basketball Team Wins 22-5 From Belleville Lasses

The Quaker Aces' basketball team put on one of its best performances Saturday evening in Belleville to defeat the homesters by a 22-5 score in an exhibition contest. The game was played as part of a double-header, with the Trenton Fliers defeating the Belleville "Y" in the men's game.

The Quaker girls worked hard from the start and only nice defence work by their opposition kept them off the scoring sheet in the early minutes. It wasn't long before this continued pressure proved too much for the Belleville girls, and by excellent passing and accurate shooting, the visitors ran in several baskets. Peggy Lawless opened the scoring with a long shot and was followed by counters from Dot Weese, Mary Duncan and Eleanor Craig. While this was going on, the Quinte team was doing everything but hitting the ring due to the fine defensive work of Eleanor Kirn, Peggy Lawless and Vera Wood. Finally the Y team managed to get their combination going and Minnie Rowbotham scored their first two points on a pass from H. Verkerk. The half ended with the Peterborough team adding another three points to their total on scores by Agnes Grady to make the score read 11-2.

The Aces started the final half with the same accurate shooting and passing that built up their early lead and soon had a commanding margin with scores by D. Weese, E. Craig, M. Duncan, and P. Lawless. The homesters were never really in the game after this deluge but kept up a bombardment of the basket but without much success. They were unable to work through the Quaker defence for close-in shots and had to be satisfied with long range shooting which didn't bring results. H. Garrow scored once for them and H. Verkerk added another on a free throw to bring their score to five just before the whistle. There was no scoring in the last minute, although the Belleville girls had several shots that rolled around the rim but just wouldn't go in. The final count left the visiting Quakers on top by a 22-5 margin.

The teams:

Quaker Aces (22)—P. Lawless 4, E. Kirn 4, D. Weese 6, M. Duncan 5, E. Craig 4, V. Wood, A. Grady 3.

Belleville (5)—J. Sherry, M. Rowbotham 2, I. Corby M. Miller, R. McClelland, D. Stead, H. Verkerk 1, H. Garrow 2, A. Cross.

Playoffs In Western Canada Four Teams Are Left In Allan Cup

WINNIPEG, March 31—(CP). — Two ranking Senior hockey teams in Western Canada face elimination from the Allan Cup playdowns tonight in crucial tests at Lethbridge and Regina.

Trail Smoke Eaters, 1939 world amateur hockey champions, need only a drew in their battle with Lethbridge Maple Leafs to advance in the Western final for the Patton Cup. At Regina the Rangers can put the 1939 Allan Cup winners—Port Arthur Bearcats—on the sidelines with a win.

Losses for Trail and Regina, however, can only prolong both series for one game and give the other teams an equal chance of reaching the Western final.

In the Junior picture Edmonton Athletic Club moved to Saskatoon for their fifth and deciding game with Saskatoon Quakers Tuesday after the Athletic Club pulled a surprise 7-2 win at Edmonton Saturday to square the round 2-2.

At Regina, a 19-year-old midget-sized right winger, Grant Warwick, paved the way for Rangers' 5-3 overtime win Saturday over Port Arthur, giving the Saskatchewan champions a 2-1 edge in the best-of-five series.

In the other Senior affair, sparkling goalkeeping by veteran Andy Young, Saskatchewan product, stemmed a late Trail rally for a 3-2 victory that kept Lethbridge Maple Leafs from elimination. Youngsters on Lethbridge's team played a prominent part in the game.

Rangers, led by six youths up from Junior company—Warwick, Sandy Sandelack, Scotty Cameron, Frank Mario, Alf Kunkel and Garth Bush—are favored by the Lakehead crew.

Phillies Get Nagel

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 31—(AP)—Connie Mack, manager of Philadelphia Athletics, on Saturday announced the sale of Outfielder Bill Nagel to the Phillies for $7,500.

Last year Nagel hit 37 home runs for Baltimore of the International League, where he was placed on option after a trial with the A's in 1939. He came back to the A's last week after refusing to report for training in Toronto.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis then ruled that an option player must be given a spring trial with the parent club before a second optional assignment could become effective.

Ben Hogan Defeats Little By 2 Shots

ASHEVILLE, N.C., March 31 — (AP)—Having scored his first individual victory of the Winter and entrenched himself more solidly as the head of the cash-won list, Ben Hogan goes on to Augusta today one of the top choices for the Masters' Golf Tournament starting there Thursda.

Hogan didn't do ver well over the Biltmore Forest Country Club course yesterday morning. Still he had it in him to rally for a two-under-par closing 69 that beat Lawson Little by two shots.

Hogan led Little four shots starting the day; lost nine with a 75 to Lawson's great 66 to be five back of the U.S. Open Champ at lunch time and then made up those five and two besides when Little took a baffling final 76 because he couldn't get a putt to drop

By FRED D. CRAIG

When Pete Langelle fired a goal past Frankie Brimsek late Saturday night he practically sank the good ship Boston so far as the Stanley Cup is concerned. The counter, shot at the end of more than seven minutes' overtime gave the Toronto Leafs a 2 to 2 win and put them out in front in the cup race three games to two. The Day men, in short, are only 60 minutes away from qualifying for the finals and the sixth game will be played on their own ice tomorrow night. That means they have a big edge over the Bruins who would have to win in Toronto tomorrow and then take the seventh game on their own cushion to grab off the series. The battle is not over yet, of course. The Bruins will put up a terrific fight to avoid elimination and Tuesday night's game is likely to be one of the hardest of the whole series. But the Leafs are in a choice position strategically and it should mean a lot.

* * * * * *

Saturday night's game seems to have been a typical cup contest, close, hard checking, with both teams playing cautiously and cagily, taking few chances and thereby converting what should have been one of the fastest and most thrilling exhibitions of Canada's national winter pastime into a contest about as exciting as the old-time heavyweight wrestling matches. The broadcast was interruptad for fifteen minutes Saturday night to put a speech by President Roosevelt on the air and when the hockey program was resumed the candid Mister Ryan, Boston announcer, informed the air audience that they hadn't missed anything during the fifteen minutes. That was the payoff on the drab nature of the hockey played. Leafs scored first and Boston tied it up in the first period and then the teams battled for over an hour without a score and with few real chances.

* * * * * *

As often happens in Stanley Cup fixtures it was not the super-stars but the ordinary run-of-the-mine hockey players who monopolized most of the glory. The All-Star candidates on the two lineups were shoved into the background by some of the less-heralded performers. Toronto's goals were scored by Lex Chisholm, Oshawa's gift to the Leafs who was making his first appearance in the playoffs and by Pete Langelle who hasn't done much in a scoring way all season while Boston's counter was notched by rookie Pat McReavey, just up from Hershey. The real star of the Leafs was the hard-hitting defence man Bucko McDonald who drew few votes from the All-Star selectors while the man picked as the outstanding Boston performer for the night was Milt Schmidt who was crowded off both first and second all-star outfits.

All Quiet On The Ball Front

With the passing of March and the O.B.A. annual meeting just around the corner baseball should be taking on a certain liveliness in Peterborough but up to the present writing there has not been a murmur from the camp of the Petes. Uncertainty as to military training and war work seems to be the obstacle in the path and the fact that those things are not interfering with baseball activities in some other ball centres does not seem to interest the local moguls. The situation is all the more difficult by reason of the fact that if Peterborough is to have senior baseball this summer a big job of rebuilding will have to be done and it cannot be undertaken too soon. Certainly the material in town would have to be reinforced before there would be a chance of fielding a team capable of meeting senior opposition.

* * * * * *

The Examiner has referred several times lately to the fact that Peterborough needs leadership to give 'teen age players in baseball, hockey and other sports a chance to develop. One sport that has found a few champions in basketball and this winter a school for youngsters around the 12-year-old mark has been carried on in the Y.M.C.A. gym by Doug McPherson and Walt Ward who have been coaching the kids all season in the finer points of the cage game. The results have been surprising. The youngsters have been improving steadily and along the right lines and their ball-handling and shooting are surprisingly clever as fans who saw them in action last week would be quick to acknowledge. The school has some stars in the making and most folk will be surprised if out of the training the lads have received doesn't emerge a bunch of basketball players that will win laurels for their home town.

* * * * * *

While Peterborough Collegiate senior basketeers were beaten in the Cossa final series in Toronto Friday night, Coach H. L. Bamforth and his players are to be congratulated upon a very successful season. The outlook last fall was not very bright. There was a scarcity of material, especially of reserve players, and reports of the strength of the Bowmanville High School squad made the chances of the Petes earning a trip to Toronto for the finals appear rather remote. But the squad, although short of subs, improved steadily all season, won their section from Port Hope after dropping a game in the radium town and then surprised Bowmanville by defeating them in the playoffs for the group title. The Bowmanville cagers tied the local students here and thought they had the round in the bag but P.C.V.S. won by eleven points in Bowmanville to take the group championship. In the finals they were beaten 31 to 24 by a strong St. Catharines squad but gave the winners a real battle for the honors, despite their lack of man-power. In fact they pulled up to within three points of the winners in the second half but the pace was too much for them on end.

* * * * * *

The Red Wings Are In

The close-checking Detroit Red Wings who have been consistently sticking in third place in the N.H.L. all season ran true to form at Chicago last night and throwing a blanket barrage of checks over the Black Hawks defeated them 2 to 1 in overtime to take the semi-final Stanley Cup round in two straight games. Now Jack Adams' team are all ready for the cup finals with Leafs or Boston and all set to play the same kind of canny hockey they have used to advantage all season. It will not be pretty nor spectacular but it may cause a lot of trouble for a tired Bruin or Leaf team. They give little away, those Red Wings and they stick to their checks closer than porous plaster. And that Stewart-Orlando defence is not the softest in the world to get through. Any bird that tries to beat them with his head down is likely to wake up in a hospital bed.

* * * * * *

The Kingston Combines and Owen Sound Wreckers are all even after four games of their final series. In the fourth game at Owen Sound on Saturday night, the Combines, with Honey Tompkins back in the lineup defeated the Wreckers 5 to 2 and so the two outfits are just where they started in nearly a week ago. They move back to Kingston for further action and we rather like the Combines' chances of coming through. They are inexplicably weak at times but they usually manage to pull themselves together when the checks are down and trot out their best brand of hockey when they need it most.

N.H.L. Benefit Game

OTTAWA, March 31 — (CP). — Alex Connell, former National Hockey League goaltender, left last night for Toronto, where he hopes to enlist players for a proposed benefit match next month between two N.H.L. all-star teams.

Connell said proceeds of the game would be used to aid firefighters in Britain. A post-season game between picked N.H.L. teams formerly was an annual feature here.

While in Toronto, Connell will sound out Manager Conny Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs and Manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins on the possibility of landing some of their players for the game. He said he had received a promise of co-operation from T. P. (Tommy) Gorman, general manager of Montreal Forum.

Marlboros Beat Oshawa 4-1 To Regain Lead

TORONTO, Mar. 31. — Hal Cotton's on-again, off-again Marlboro Juniors were definitely "on" Saturday night. The star-studded Dukes, with championship fervor apparently rekindled, raced to a 4 to 1 victory over Oshawa Generals before 5,270 paying customers at the Gardens.

Victory gave the Toronto team a 3 to 2 lead in the 4-of-7 series for the O.H.A. Junior A title. Sixth game will be played in Oshawa tonight. If Marlboros win the series will terminate. An Oshawa victory will necessitate a seventh game at the Gardens on Wednesday night.

Revamp Lines.

Marlboro officials transposed left-wingers Gaye Stewart and Tommy Depew for Saturday's game. The result was a smoother distribution of power, both on attack and defence.

Stewart showed more of the punch and zest that enabled him to win the group scoring championship as he teamed perfectly with Al Percival and Doug Gillespie. This new unit contributed all Marlboro goals, Stewart getting two and the others one each.

Depew moved into Stewart's former spot on a line with Red Wiest and Bobby Dew. The backchecking of this trio was a highlight in the victory.

Percival broke up a scoreless deadlock when he batted in the rebound of Ernie Dickens' shot while Sawyer was serving a penalty early in the second period. Percival made a brilliant play shortly after, cutting across the Oshawa defence in calm fashion and sliding the puck to Stewart for the second Marlboro goal.

Sawyer Gets Goal.

Oshawa capitalized on a penalty to Goldham to reduce the deficit. Sawyer got the puck back of the Marlboro net after a shot by Eddols and despite having Dickens literally draped all over him, passed the puck out. It hit Goalie Joe Cleary's stick, and rolled into the net.

Before Generals could close the gap, Stewart made it 3-1 for the Dukes with the help of Gillespie and Dickens. In the final period, Gillespie counted on a brisk backhander after a nice play with Stewart and Percival.

TORONTO LEAFS ARE WITHIN ONE GAME OF STANLEY CUP FINALS

Pete Langelle From Heron Scores Winner

By H. M. PETERS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

BOSTON, March 31.—(CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs were but one game away from the Stanley Cup final today, thanks to a quick-thinking play by a couple of their lesser stars Saturday night — a play that gave them a 2-1 overtime victory over Boston Bruins.

Pete Langelle centre of the third line, took a passout from his linemate, Red Heron, and blazed it right back into the Bruin goal, with a backhand lift.

Leafs and Boston Bruins had battled through three regular periods and 17 minutes and 31 seconds of extra time when suddenly Pete Langelle

The red light came on, the crowd of 16,200 moaned, Bruins skated dejectedly off the ice as a tired but happy bunch of Toronto players pounded the backs of the two forwards, and Reg Hamilton, defenceman who started the winning play.

Leafs Have Won Three

That was the story of the goal that put Toronto in the driver's seat in their four-of-seven series with the Bruins for the right to enter the final. It gave the Leafs a lead of three to two in games, and a chance to wind it up on home ice Tuesday. If the Bruins can even the series in that game they will come back to Boston for the seventh game Thursday.

Sharing the hero's role was Lex Chisholm who showed that his long layoff since Feb. 1 has not affected his shooting eye. In a last minute shift Coach Day put him in uniform in Don Metz's place alongside Billy Taylor and Dave Schriner, and all three were in on a pretty goal in the sixth minute of the game.

The teams were playing five men aside, with Gordie Drillon and Milt Schmidt in the penalty box for high sticking, when Taylor passed from behind the Boston net to Schriner who slid the puck across to the unmarked Chisholm. Lex tipped it carefully into the empty corner of the cage.

Bruins Even Up.

The lead lasted almost 10 minutes. Then Bruins, who fought back desperately, clicked on a power play. Herb Cain passed back to Dit Clapper and when Clapper's long shot boomed off Goalie Turk Broda's pads, young Pat McCreavy pounced on it. The former Owen Sound, Ont., boy, taking part in his first playoff series, made no mistake in flicking it into the empty cage.

For the second and third regular periods both teams played rugged, hard-hitting hockey, with no advantage to either side.

Leafs' superior condition gave them an edge in the overtime and they used it to the full to rain rubber on Brimsek until a penalty to Jack Church for tripping set them back on their heels and almost cost them the game In one hectic Bruin attack Bucko McDonald came from nowhere to fall on the puck just as Herb Cain, hero of the fourth game, was about to shoot at the empty corner.

It was Toronto's second victory of the series in Boston They took the second game here March 22 by a score of 5-3 after losing the opener here 3-0 March 20. After those two games they played a pair in Toronto, winning 7-2 last Tuesday and Bruins taking Thursday's game 2-1.

Bruins missed Bill Cowley, the National Hockey League's leading point scorer, who aggravated his knee injury in Toronto last week.

Detroit Wins In Overtime To Kayo Hawks

CHICAGO, March 31.—(CP)—Gus Giesebrecht's goal after nine minutes of sudden-death overtime shot Detroit Red Wings into the Stanley Cup finals Sunday night with a 2-1 victory over Chicago Hawks in the second game of their best-of-three series.

A crowd of 16,516 fans watched Giesebrecht combine with Mud Bruneteau and Syd Howe for the goal that spelled the end of the hockey season for the Hawks, who had advanced to the semi-finals by putting out Montreal Canadiens. It was Chicago's first loss on home ice since the playoffs started.

The Wings struck suddenly to take the deciding game. After a listless third period with the score remaining deadlocked after each team had scored in the second, the overtime opened raggedly with both teams apparently content to wait for a break.

Picks Up Rebound

Then Howe and Bruneteau, two of the three players left on the Wings of today who starred when Detroit rode the hockey heights in 1936 and 1937, broke through the Chicago defense, and Giesebrecht, following in fast, picked up the rebound to drive the puck cleanly past Goalie Sam Lo Presti.

Up to that time, it had been a bruising close-checking game with Referee Mickey Ion handing out a multitude of penalties to keep tempers in check.

The Wings, who took the first game at Detroit 3 to 1, opened the scoring early in the second period when the Hawks were two men short. Alex Motter bagged the counter from well out, with Howe and Carl Liscombe assisting.

Hawks Equalize

Chicago wasn't long getting that one back. While Defenseman Jimmy Orlando of the Wings was serving one of the four penalties he drew down in the match, Doug Bentley sailed the puck past Goalie Johnny Mowers from near the blue-line. March and Dahlstrom drew assists on the play.

Detroit now meets the winner of the Toronto Maple Leafs-Boston Bruins series in the Stanley Cup finals. Presence of the Red Wings in the finals bring nearer to a climax the story of a long comeback that Manager Jack Adams started his club on three years ago.

Millbrook Fire Damage Being Repaired

MILLBROOK, March 31 (ENS)—The work of tearing down the upper story of the F. C. Scott building, in the rear, where the fire of Saturday night did the most damage, and where apparently it started, is being proceeded with, E. J. Powell being in charge.

Only the lower floor will be rebuilt, and the upstairs store room will be dispensed with entirely.

Mr. Scott estimates his loss from the fire at approximately $1,000.00, included in this being the large wall mirror which was broken in the furniture store, the contents of the store room, and some damage to the stock through removal, smoke and water. Mrs. H. Ellis, whose apartment is in the adjoining building across the laneway from the Scott which is one of the oldest in the village, was the first to give the alarm, notifying the McPherson's in their apartment over the furniture store.

Miss M. L. Collins entertained the Women's Guild of St. Thomas' church for its March meeting at her home, King street centre, the president, Mrs. William Simpson, taking the chair. During the discussion of business items, it was decided to hold the proposed congregational apper on Thursday, April 24.

The hostess served lunch before the gathering dispersed.

Private Alex Harkness, of the Midland Regiment, Ottawa, is spending a furlough with his wife and family here for two weeks.

The Young Peoples' Union enjoyed a pot luck supper for its meeting this week, games and other recreational activities following the happy hour found the well-laden tables. For the devotional period, Captain B. B. Dawson, Quartermaster of the Midland Regiment, Ottawa, a former popular and efficient president, who is home on leave, took charge, assistants being Beatrice McDowell and Phyllis Kidd.

Melville Ball reports seeing the first robins, locally, two of these welcome spring visitors being spotted early Monday morning. Others have been seen since, and crows are now fairly common in the village and vicinity.

Channel Coast Ablaze

Royal Air Force bombers smashed at the docks of German-occupied Brest last night and subjected the Channel invasion ports from Calais to Boulogne to an attack so intense that fires lighted the English coastline.

Shore watchers said the British raids on the invasion ports were on a "comparatively large scale" and the ministry of information labelled the attack on Brest a "heavy" one.

German aerial activity over Britain was light during the night. London had a brief alert and bombs were dropped in eastern England and in the east and southeast of Scotland but little damage and no casualties resulted.

One German bomber was destroyed yesterday.

Nazi bombers Saturday night struck hard at the port of Bristol and gave London its first night alert in eight nights.

In attacks at sea, a British bomber sank a German anti-submarine vessel off the Loire River estuary on the west coast of France with a single bomb.

U.S. Nabs 60 Ships

the Axis powers close to an open rupture.

German and Italian authorities here maintained a stony silence, pending instructions from their foreign offices, but the master of one Italian ship called the step "an act of war."

In all, some 300,00 tons of shipping were taken into protective Federal custody by the coastguard in a rapid-fire series of operations from New England to the Gulf Coast and the Pacific North-west. There were two German ships, 28 Italian and more than 30 of Danish registry.

20 Italian Ships Wrecked.

Twenty of the Italian ships, officials said, had been put "completely out of business" and Captain Ranise Ernesto of the Italian freighter Mongiola taken over at Galveston, Texas, said he had received orders from the Italian naval attache at Washington to destroy the machinery of his ship. Informed of this statement, the naval attache refused to discuss the subject. Masters of some other Italian vessels, however, manifested no surprise when the coastguard details came aboard, as if they had been expecting just such a visitation.

Officials here were of the opinion that there was good ground for the belief that other Western Hemisphere nations would follow the example of the United States in taking over the Axis shipping which has used their harbors as sanctuaries since the start of the war.

Germany has about 40 ships in Latin-American ports, and Italy considerably fewer.

The United States Government was believed to have acted primarily because of the reported discovery of sabotage, but the decision may also have been influenced by the indications of a concerted German-Italian attempt to get as many Axis ships as possible out of Western Hemisphere ports.

Some Axis ships put out to sea from South American ports during the week-end to try to break through the British blockade, and others apparently were getting ready to depart.

They Found Something.

The freighter Villaparosa, anchored these many months at Wilmington, N.C., was the ship that touched off the surprising train of events, it was learned. On Saturday, Navy officials decided that it was more desirable to have her moored some distance up the river from her anchorage. When they boarded her, they found her machinery completely dismantled.

Acting promptly upon this discovery, the Navy Intelligence found other evidence which strengthened the suspicion that widespread, systematic sabotage was in progress, it was said.

The information was laid at once before President Roosevelt, and it was with his approval that the coast guard got its orders for the abrupt and surprising rush of activity which put the Axis and Danish shipping in federal custody.

The government acted under an anti-sabotage statute of 1917 which authorizes the coast guard to assume custody of foreign ships and remove their crews when a captain permits wilful damage to the vessel. This law also provides that any ship that actually had been sabotaged may be declared forfeited to the United States.

Protective Control

Herbert Gaston, assistant secretary of the treasury, said that the action of taking control of the ships was "purely protective" and "designed to prevent the further wrecking of damage which would constitute a menace to American ships and traffic being carreid on in the harbors of the United States."

The large-scale operation was carried out virtually without incident. In the case of one Italian ship at Jacksonville, Fla., resistance was reported encountered, but apparently it was promptly overcome.

Coast guardsmen, wearing side arms, did most of the work.

In most cases the crews of the ships were removed at once and placed in the custody of federal or local officials.

The belief here was that they would be subject to the same restrictions imposed on crew members of the scuttled German liner, Columbus, who have been detained by federal authorities since they came ashore.

As far as could be learned, all the reported instances of sabotage were confined to Italian ships.

exchanged shots with shore batteries on the Algerian coast, the Admiralty said, in the fourth clash between Britain and her former ally since France capitulated last June.

Two British planes are missing as a result of the action against the Italians in Ionian waters off Greece, between the islands of Sicily and Crete, and two German dive bombers were shot down, the Admiralty said.

"Severe losses were inflicted on the enemy," the Admiralty's third communique on the encounter asserted, but "no damage or casualties have been sustained by any of our ships."

Sighted by aerial scouts on Thursday to the east of Cape Passero, in Sicily, the Italian force was attacked by Royal Air Force bombers who scored several hits and reduced the warships' speed until heavy British ships could gain contact.

"Close action was joined" only as darkness fell Friday, the Admiralty said.

Light naval forces sighted a Littorio class battleship with accompanying cruisers to the southwest of Crete on Friday morning, it said, while air scouts reported two battleships, cruisers and destroyers to the north.

The Italian warships then hauled round and proceeded west at high speed, but slowed down by air attacks, were attacked by British battleships and light forces that night.

"As already announced," the Admiralty said, "the eight-inch cruisers Pola, Zara and Fiume, the large destroyer Vincenzo Gioberti and the destroyer Maestrale were sunk.

"It is probable that one other destroyer was sunk and possible that the six-inch cruiser Giovanni Delle Bande Nere was sunk as well."

The latter is a vessel of 5,069 tons.

Call Italians To Rescue

The British signalled to the Chief of the Italian Naval Staff the position of the Italian seamen survivors with a suggestion that a hospital ship should be sent.

"A reply was received," the Admiralty reported, "and it is therefore possible that some of the men may be rescued."

It listed as saved Captain Despisi of the cruiser Pola, but declared Admiral Cantoni, commanding the Italian eight-inch cruiser squadron, was missing.

The Admiralty said in regard to the French convoy, "reports had been received....that the convoy carried important war material for Germany" and that Britain's only interest was in the "normal procedure of visit and search."

The convoy was called upon to stop outside Spanish territorial waters, a communique said, whereupon "French shore batteries opened up on our ships, notwithstanding that they were merely engaged in the exercise of our legitimate belligerent rights.'"

"His Majesty's ships were compelled to reply in their own defence, and hits were observed on the shore batteries," the communique went on, adding that the French merchant vessels and their escort were not fired upon. The convoy took refuge in the nearby French port of Nemours, Algeria.

French Bombers Attack.

On the way back to Gibraltar, the British vessels were attacked twice by French bomber formations, "but without suffering damage or casualties."

One of the four French ships, an informed English source said, was loaded with rubber from Bangkok and destined for Germany.

(The Vichy government claimed that "a large British naval force attacked in French waters...a convoy of four French merchant ships."

(The convoy's escort, the 1,500-ton torpedoboat Tempoun, land batteries and aviation "replied to the fire of the aggressors and turned them away," it alleged.

(A French spokesman, who termed the escort only "symbolic," declared the British "aggression" unjustified because it was plain that the ships were going from one French colony to another with food for the civil population).

Britons believed the latest blow at the Fascist fleet left Italy only two—or perhaps four—undamaged battleships, of eight at the start of the war, and 13 of the 19 cruisers she had. Two battleships under construction may have been launched since Italy entered the war, they said. Three Italian battleships were said to have been damaged in the November 11 raid on Taranto.

Haile Selassie's Ethiopian flag over Addis Ababa soon, declared the Fascist survivors of the long battle for Cheren also seemed in a hopeless position as they retreated toward the Eritrean capital, Asmara.

British authorities placed Italian casualties in the seven-week fight for Cheren at 5,000 to 6,000 and said "so far we have captured 3,775 prisoners including 68 officers."

The rest of the Italians were reported being bombed and machine-gunned from the air along the Cheren-Asmara road as they sought to hold back the British by rear guard action.

Observers expressed doubts that the remaining 26,000 to 31,000 Italians could hold Asmara long and said even if they retreated to the Port of Massaua escape would be cut off by British naval forces in the Red Sea.

(The Italians announced yesterday their troops had withdrawn to the west from Diredawa in the face of the British drive against the town 200 miles by railway east of Addis Ababa.

(British advances toward the Eritrean capital were said by the Italians to have been checked by counter attacks.)

Gallow Upsets Court Proceedings

Asks For Trial By Jury Hearing Opens

There came very close to being no trial of the suspects in the C.D.S. burglary case in the county judge's criminal course this morning.

Although the four men had elected speedy trial before the county judge, Louis Gallow, whom the crown had planned to try first, upset the machinery when he was arraigned by declaring that he elected to be tried by judge and jury, claiming that he had understood his case would not be reached until Thursday and that he had no witnesses ready.

His Honor Judge Smoke was about to declare that under the circumstances all four men would therefore be tried by judge and jury when W. B. Common, K.C., of the Attorney-General's Department who is the special crown prosecutor, asked for a ten-minute adjournment. "It may be possible to straighten this matter out" he said.

The adjournment was ordered and during the recess the crown prosecutor and Mannis Frankel, defending the prisoners conferred with the result that the crown accepted a proposition from the defence that the order of trial be changed and that Lawrence Burns should be tried first, followed by Thomas Nicholls, then William Bradd and finally Louis Gallow.

On that understanding the four prisoners all changed their plea to trial before Judge Smoke and the case of Lawrence Burns was proceeded with.

Wants Judge and Jury

A bombshell was thrown into the proceedings when Gallow was arraigned.

"I elect trial by judge and jury" he declared when asked how he elected.

Mr. Frankel arose in explanation of the change. This morning the accused has apparently changed his mind" he said, remarking that his instructions had been that there would be trial by judge.

"I was never notified about this" Gallow said, "I understood that Burns was to be tried first and my case would me heard about Thursday. I am here without witnesses."

After the matter had been straightened out by re-arranging the order of trial the crown's case against Lawrence Burns was commenced with W. B. Common, K.C., prosecuting, assisted by V. J. McElderry, K.C., while Mannis Frankel conducted the defence.

The evidence heard this morning was largely a repetition of that given at the preliminary hearing except for the statement of John McConnell, caretaker of the C.D.S. store, a new witness, that he had found the furnace room door of the store had been jimmied. This had not been mentioned in the police court proceedings.

J. H. Jamison, manager of the C.D.S. Store here was the first Crown witness. He repeated his evidence given at the preliminary inquiry as to the position of the office and as to the connection between the store and the hallway to the apartments over Dean's restaurant next door. He identified the safe produced as the small inner safe taken from the large safe in the office.

"I firmly believe it to be our safe," he said.

Witness also identified an overnight bag produced as very similar to one that had been stolen from the C.D.S. Store on the night of the safe cracking, and an axe that had been found near the safe as one that had been in the hardware department of the store on the Saturday night previous.

Mr. Jamison also identified a ledger card he had picked up on the floor near the safe and that he had handed over to Lorne Henderson, investigator for the T. Eaton Company. He recognized he said by a mark on it.

In cross-examination by Mr. Frankel, witness said he would not swear that the overnight bag introduced as an exhibit was the identical bag that had been in the store. "It is similar to the bag in the store," he said.

Caretaker Called

John McConnell, caretaker of the C.D.S. Store was a new Crown witness. He testified to locking all the doors on the Saturday night. The door leading into the apartment had been nailed up for years and there were a number of bed springs piled up against it.

McConnell told of discovering the burglary on Sunday morning. He first noticed that the furnace room door had been jimmied and on investigating had found the safe turned over on its back on the floor. He had noticed two bars at the top of the stairs and saw other tools near the safe. These he identified from tools produced and they were entered as exhibits.

Miss Mary McGrath, cashier at the C.D.S. Store told of putting the money in the safe on Saturday night before the burglary. She said the money had been put in bags and placed in the safe. Witness said the total amount in the safe was between $4,000 and $4,500 of which about $3,000 was in cash.

Three Die In Worst Eastern Ontario Traffic Crash Of The Year

Rural School Raises $35 For War Victims

With remarkable ingenuity the students of School Section No. 3, South Monaghan, known as the Brick School, have sent in one of the finest contributions per capita to the British War Victims' Fund ever made. This school has only eight pupils. They made blocks for a quilt, then the mothers and ladies of the section held a quilting bee at the home of Mrs. George Beebe, and the students sold tickets for a draw on it. The draw, made by Joe Bradshaw, one of the students, and resulted in ticket No. 209 being declared the winner. This ticket was held by Mrs. Harold Marshall of 35 Conger street, Peterborough. The amount realized, $35, was handed in to the credit of the Fund on Saturday afternoon by Miss M. Winslow the teacher of the school.

Shortly after the Fund was inaugurated in Decembe the Cheerful Workers Bible Class of St. James' Church donated $50 to the Fund. They have now come forward with a second donation of $25, and are the first organization of this kind to repeat, and a splendid repeat it is.

Under the War Charities Act, an audit of the books pertaining to the Fund is required to be made March 31. Ed. Humpage, C.A., city auditor, will make this audit without charge, as a contribution to the Fund, and his report on same will appear in a few days.

Several good-sized donations are in the offing, and whichever one comes in first will have the privilege of putting the fifth £500 over the top.

Father And Son Service Held At George Street

The story of "The Lost Word," by Henry Van Dyke, was told to the fathers and sons in George Street United Church on Sunday night by Rev. Herbert W. Piercy of Niagara Falls. Mr. Piercy is a widely known Bible reciter and dramatic interpreter of literature who for the past 20 years has devoted himself entirely to his chosen work. His style is that of an intense dramatist, and the feeling with which he told of the father who had his soul given back at the sound of a young voice calling "father," was full of pathos.

Mr. Piercy, in his telling of a story, and in scripture readings, takes the parts of the various characters described, and is most effective in those with dramatic qualities. In his reading of Elijah and the prophets of Baal he was most dramatic, and all in the church were astounded at the depths of feeling brought into the old story.

Most of the fathers and sons in the congregation were in the church on Sunday night, celebrating "Father and Son Day." Homer Borland led in prayer, and moved a vote of thanks to the guest speaker. Bill Greatrix, on behalf of the sons present, announced the first hymn. Leo Copp made an announcement in connection with the Father and Son banquet to be held on Tuesday evening. Mr. Piercy will again be the speaker for this occasion.

An exceptionally fine selection was heard by the male quartette "Steal Away," sung by H. Batten, L. Graham, J. Telford and F. Skitch.

The fathers and sons met in the Sunday School Auditorium, and then proceeded into the main church in a body and occupied the centre pews.

15 Young People Join St. Andrew's

At the quarterly communion service on Sunday in St. Andrew's church fifteen young people who had made profession of faith and had been trained in a series of preparation classes by the minister, were received into the full membership of the church. Two adults also were received on profession of faith and nine persons by certificate from other churches. The attendance at the communion service was the largest which the church has had for many years. The roll of young people of last year classes was called, and the members stood in response to their names.

Johnson Motors To Build Addition

Announcement of an extension to the present factory of the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company (Johnson Motors) is made today and tenders for the general contract and the installation of the sprinkler system will be received up to Thursday, April 10 at 12 noon EDT by Hy Wood, plant superintendent.

This is the third indication of expansion on the part of this fine industry, as it has taken over the old Canada Crayon plant on George street, and rented the Imperial Oil property buildings as a storage building during the last year.

Plans call for a two storey, brick and steel building with saw tooth roof, approximately 110 x 115 and plans were prepared by W. and W. R. L. Blackwell, architects, of Peterborough. The proposed addition will be built to the east side of the existing factory on Monaghan Road, and its construction should add to the volume of building which is contemplated for this spring. Work will start shortly after the acceptance of a succesful bidder and will be rushed to completion with all possible speed.

The Johnson Motors Company here, headed by Hugh Campbell has shown an aggresiveness in going after business that is beginning to bring satisfactory results, and the factory is said to be operating at peak right now. There are now well over 300 men and women engaged by the company in the office and factory, and aside from the extra work due to wartime demands, the regular production schedule for peacetime needs, shows an encouraging increase despite the troublous times.

Frost Found Down 5 Feet

Under the blanket of snow which covered the fields throughout this district there was little frost during the winter, and it was not long in vanishing under the effect of the late March sun, R. L. Dobbin, Utilities Manager, told the Examiner this morning.

"On the other hand we have come across places in town where the frost got down 5½ feet to the bottom of our hydrants," Mr. Dobbin said. "Sometimes about half an inch of water accumulates at the bottom of the hydrants, and along in March after that cold spell in the first week or so we found this water was freezing, showing that the frost was penetrating to that depth.

In other places where our men and Hydro men have been digging they found signs of frost were quite shallow.

Probably the early falls of snow before winter set in laid a blanket on the ground, and the frost did not get through it all winter to any extent. But, in the city and along the highways snow is plowed away and this protective covering is removed."

Mr. Dobbin remarked that Alex Huston, Charlie Moore and the rest of the farmers should not have any loss to their fall wheat fields if April does no damage.

Banquet Given Midland Unit

CAMPBELLFORD, March 31.—(ENS)—Home for a furlough members of the First Battalion Midland Regiment were feted at a banquet given in their honor by the Corporation on Saturday evening. Close to sixty attended the affair. Mayor F. F. Long wished the boys Godspeed on behalf of the council and citizens of this town who he said were proud to have them back once more. He spoke of the fine discipline and conduct of the men both during their present furlough and also when they were stationed here last fall.

On behalf of the men Lieut. J. F. Bygott responded with warm thanks while his father, Major J. M. Bygott, a veteran of the last war, proposed the toast to the King. Remainder of the program was devoted to community singing led by Salvation Army Adjutant Ken Graham with Donald Bennett supplying the piano accompaniment.

One unscheduled part of the evening came when five recently wedded members of the regiment were applauded as they were asked to stand to be recognized. The couples were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Nicholas, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Frederick, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cubitt.

Councillor Harry Fowlds moved a vote of thanks to the ladies of the Parish Guild who had catered for the banquet and the evening was brought to a close as the soldiers gave three lusty cheers. Each soldier was presented with a large package of cigarettes.

Nutrition Course Will Aid In Budget Problems

In these days when price changes almost make one's head whirl, to keep the family table plentifully supplied as has been the custom, and still keep an eye on the expense account, housekeepers have to be qualified economists, budget experts and marketers. To the experienced shopper, these price increases will be noted and allowance made for the articles, but to those who have little occasion to do their shopping personally it might perhaps not be noted, except in the monthly check-up. Things are really to expensive when one considers world conditions. Our spices and tea, just to mention two items in a list of thousands, have to be shipped from far-off lands, and with the increased cost in transportation, plus the risk of loss of shipment, it stands to reason that these will be reflected in the price to the consumer.

We have bread, butter, eggs, bacon, milk and all the other staples in plenty, and if they do cost a few cents more, stop and consider what some of the people in Europe would pay for just one of our fine Canadian meals. The main point is, there is no scarcity of the most healthful and nutritious foods, and we are also enjoying, in addition to this, many fruits, vegetables, cakes and meats which are unprocurable in other parts of the world. Did you ever consider as you enjoy a meal in which the lowly onion is used as a vegetable, that in Britain, onions are priceless? Yet we accept them as commonplace and of little note.

Housewives and business girls with their own little apartments, to whom the balancing of the food budget is becoming a worry, may find help in their problem by attending classes in food-purchasing, meal-planning and budgeting which are to open in the Domestic Science kitchen of the Collegiate, Friday evening, April 4, covering eight Friday night lessons from seven o'clock until nine, with Miss Mary Kirkwood of the Collegiate staff in charge. The course is sponsored by the Ontario Division of the Red Cross Society in an effort to give reliable information along lines of wartime nutrition, now a subject of paramount importance. Mrs. C. B. Muir is local convener of the undertaking.

A reception was held afterwards at the bride's home, with Mrs. McNaughton, aunt of the bride, pouring tea. Waiters were Miss Marjorie Irwin Miss Mary Crowe and Mr. Leslie Crowe.

Farming Is Vital War Work Project

Now that the farmers are starting to make preparation for the planting of spring crops, the call will go forth for workers. There has been a great deal said during the winter about the scarcity of farm help—a problem which would have to be met when the time arrived, and now the time is here.

A story of the preparation of the women's land army for immediate service comes from Toronto. Started last year with just a few willing volunteers, the women's land army has grown by leaps and bounds, and now recruiting for spring work has been started. Mrs. Dorothy Walcot, organizer of the army, is hopeful that the demand for farm help will be answered with additional enlistments of young women who are willing to do this work.

In Britain the women have made it clear that they are capable of handling the many chores on the farms, and have received wide acclaim for the enthusiasm and willingness with which they have undertaken this occupation, hitherto carried on by men. But now the men are in service, their assistance is unavailable. The women step into the breach and assist the farms in planting, tending and harvesting their crops so that the people of Britain may have food.

Farming is classed as a war work project, just as the making of ammunition, and is just as vital. Without ammunition the battle is lost, but without food the people are lost. All-out aid to the farmer will have to be the slogan for 1941.

DOROTHY DIX

Flee the Gold-Digger or You Will Always Rue It. The Girl Who Demands Luxuries Before Marriage Will Keep Up Her Leech-Like Ways All Her Days.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a poor young man working hard to get a start in the world. Not long ago the girl to whom I am engaged had a birthday and suggested an article as a present that cost more money than I had in the world at that time. I explained this to her, but she insisted on having it and I bought it by getting it for so much down and so much a month. Just a month later she startled me with a purchase where $100 was involved, which she seemed to think was my obligation also, and she is continually reminding me of the desirability of an engagement ring. Her people are well-to-do—worth dollars to my cents—yet every time she calls me on the phone from her house the charges are reversed on me. I feel the need of competent advice. ANXIOUS.

ANSWER—You certainly do, son, and mine is to escape from the clutches of this gold-digger while you still have the chance. If you don't you will be one of those poor, miserable husbands whose wife wife keeps his nose to the grindstone all of his life. If you marry this girl you will spend your life toiling like a slave to buy her fine clothes and cars and to send her on trips and to provide her with an expensive home, and she won't care a rap whether she works you to death or not. All she is interested in is getting the thing she wants, and no matter how much you give her she will be like the daughter of the horse leech, always crying MORE, MORE, MORE.

You will always be in debt and just about three jumps ahead of the sheriff, and you will be miserable and unhappy and nerveworn and harried by debts, for she will always spend more than you can make.

You will never get anywhere because you will never be able to save up enough money to go into any business on your own account, or to make any good investment, or even to leave a poor situation on a chance of getting a better one, because you won't have a dollar saved up and can't risk being out of a job.

Don't marry that kind of a girl, son. There are so many easier and pleasanter ways of committing suicide than by being gobbled up by a greedy woman.

Use Sense in Arguments

Dear Miss Dix —The man to whom I am engaged and myself have agreed to let you decide the fairness of this proposition. He agrees to sacrifice smoking from 10 to 15 cigarettes a day to two or three a week, provided I sacrifice my feelings on the subject enough to let the subject drop and never bring it up again. All that I ask is that he give up smoking cigarettes and in return I offer to give up any one of my pleasures, but if he continues to smoke he gives up the right to criticize anything I do. PERSISTENT.

ANSWER—It seems to me that you are both making a mountain out of a molehill, and that if all you have to quarrel about is a cigarette you are hard put for a subject of disagreement. However, it isn't the cigarette you are fighting over. The man is fighting for personal liberty and you are fighting for the privilege of bossing him, and if I were the man I would stick to my cigarette If I died for it.

But be wise, children. Have enough sense to realize that tolerance is the greatest of all the domestic virtues, and that the less you interfere with each other's personal tastes and habits, the better chance you have for happiness.

Why should either one of you give up any innocent pleasure for the other one? Can't you see how much more comfortable you will be if each concedes to the other the right to indulge in his or her own personal ways?

If wives would let their husbands smoke in peace and husbands would lay off their wives' paint and powder and hair-dos, there would be a lot more happy homes than there are now.

About Casting The First Stone

Dear Dorothy Dix—My wife and I are both well over 40 and will soon celebrate our silver wedding. We love each other dearly and have had a most happy married life. We have a family of three children of whom any parents might be proud, and my wife has been a model wife and mother. But several years ago she had an affair with a doctor. She tells me she was not in love with him, but did this to pay me back because I had admitted to her that I had not been a paragon before marriage. She says she is not sorry for what she has done; that she has had her little fling just as I had mine and is satisfied to stay by me from now on.

I don't know what to do. I am passionately in love with my wife and feel like letting the thing go, for there is no doubt in my mind that she is just as much in love with me as ever, and that she is sincere in her statement that she will never repeat her offense. It is three years since this happened and I have noticed no change in her attitude toward me. PUZZLED.

ANSWER — "Let him that is without sin among you cast the first stone." You have the words of the Great Teacher to direct you in dealing with your wife. If she forgave you, why should you not forgive her? Her offense against you is no worse than your offense against her. Her sin no blacker than yours. So wipe off the slate and kiss and forget it.

Feeling as you do toward your wife, you would be utterly miserable apart from her. Furthermore, it would wreck your life to break up your home and be parted from your children and to blacken their good name by bringing shame upon their mother.

Nor is your wife a constitutionally immoral woman, a woman without inherent principle whom you cannot trust and whose influence would be bad upon your daughters, so you don't have to consider that side of the subject.

She has done a very foolish thing in paying you back in your own coin because two wrongs have never yet made a right, and I think that she will find that revenge is always a boomerang that turns and rends the hand that throws it. She has had her fling, but I wonder if she really enjoyed it as much as she thought she would and if, when she looks at her little girls, she doesn't wish that there was nothing in her life that she would be ashamed for them to know.

She stabbed back at you and hurt you as much as you hurt her, but I wonder if she doesn't realize that her act killed something fine and sweet between you that can never come to life again.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A PARTICULARLY lively and productive day is forecast from the prevailing lunar and mutual aspects. There may be a greatly accelerated state of affairs especially in the launching of new projects or in the inauguration of fresh ways and means for spurring static affairs into motion, possibly under great pressure and thoroughly practical tactics, in which skill, initiative and energy are brought into full play.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of much activity and progress along really constructive and practical lines. Unusual enterprise and initiative will be brought to bear on new objectives as well as to stimulate stagnant or frustrated efforts. This may be under high pressure and with direct action, elders, superiors and those in power assisting.

A child born on this day should be energetic, practical, skillful and masterful although having a friendly, gracious and generous nature.

Sugar Advanced Cent To Ban Any Speculating

OTTAWA, March 31 — Heading off speculators, the Government today in advance of the budget clamped a tax of an extra cent on every pound of sugar sold in Canada.

For his unprecedented action in putting a tax into effect before it is announced, Minister of Finance J. L. Ilsley took advantage of the sugar control machinery set up by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

At his request the board tonight ordered all sugar refineries to advance the price one cent tomorrow morning. The extra cent will be collected by Sugar Administrator S. R. Noble and turned over to the Government.

Canadian sugar consumption averages around 100 pounds per person a year. The new levy will thus mean from $11,000,000 to $12,000,000 a year to the Government.

Both Mr. Ilsley and the Wartime Prices and Trade Board issued brief statements announcing the levy. Mr. Ilsley's statement made it clear that the machinery of the sugar administrator would be used to collect the extra levy only until the budget is brought down.

The budget is now expected a week from Wednesday, which will be the last day Parliament sits before the long Easter vacation. It is possible it may come earlier, but in any event the debate will wait over until after Parliament reassembles on April 29.

Action on sugar was taken today "as a result of a tendency toward heavy buying in anticipation of a possible increase in the excise tax on sugar in the forthcoming budget," the statement of the Wartime Prices Board explained.

Dollars To Doughnuts

By EDITH ELLINGTON

YESTERDAY: Jammed into the subway, Beatrice notices a pretty girl, tries to figure if she is happy. Suddenly, the lights go out. The car stops short. The girl suggests there may be danger of a riot. A trainman arrives, tells passengers to walk back to the station. Beatrice is terrified. "I can't. I can't."

FRIEND FROM HUNTINGTON'S

CHAPTER V

"Oh, yes, you can!" the girl said cheerfully. "You can always do the things you have to do. Get hold of me, now. That's it. Jump to the catwalk. Come on, jump!"

Her teeth set, holding back her fear with an effort that was like warding off a physical blow, Beatrice clung to the girl. She closed her eyes for a tiny second. The narrow black catwalk, the shine of the tracks, the swift thought of how horrible it must be to be pushed off the platform—to be crushed under the wheels of an oncoming train. . . . Then she jumped, and the jar of her tall heels on the wooden walked shocked through her. It brought common sense with it, and a quick, steadying sanity.

"I'm all right," she said. "Sorry I was silly."

"Multiply it by a few thousand, honey, and you've got a riot," replied the girl. "I know mobs. Getting scared is like tuning in on the invasion from Mars. First thing you know, everybody else has hit the wave length, they're all scared too, and they're fighting and pushing and trampling and—well—" She laughed. "Keep your chin up."

The subway tunnel, under the river, was black and damp. White-faced people, feeling their way along to the station that must lie somewhere ahead, were silent and cautious. Beatrice felt, walking with them, her hand in the hand of the girl ahead, that they were like ghosts, threading their way through this blackness. Fear and danger squeezed their hearts.

"What's a million dollars now?" she thought oddly. "I'm the same as they are, here. We're all equals, now."

Once she stumbled on some gravel, and the girl turned to catch her. "Be careful!" As if it really mattered to her. Beatrice peered through the murkiness, astounded. "But I'm a perfect stranger," she thought. "Why should she care?"

She heard a child's wail. Looking back, she saw a big man carrying a little girl. "Not his child," she knew at once. "But he's helping. Doing the best he can."

In that dark tunnel under the river, with danger pressing around them—an unknown danger none of them realized that they were more than equals, these subway-riding strangers. They were friends, sharing a common peril. Lifting helping hands to weaker friends. This girl ahead, bucking Beatrice up; that man, carrying someone else's child.

She never knew how long it was she walked in darkness, in that narrow file along the catwalk. Minutes. Hours. Perhaps a lifetime. All she knew was that some truth she had glimpsed, sitting in her car and watching the anonymous throng pushing past her, became more clear and more intelligible, here in the subway.

"Now I understand them. They're all people, like me. The same dreams and desires, the same hopes and fears. Money cushioned me away from them, but now the bars are down. I'm part of them and they're part of me. I like them!"

Hearteningly, the lights of a station ahead gleamed through the darkness at last. A little sigh of relief went up from the plodding humans, and the girl turned to Beatrice. "Land ahead!"

How gallant she was

The people ahead of them went faster. Soon she could see that they were going up a little stairway. They were on the platform. It was light, and they were calling encouragement.

"Simple, nothing to it!" a man cried. "Come on, only a few steps now."

Beatrice and the girl with her mounted the steps, too. Relief and thanksgiving washed over Beatrice. They were safe.

The girl with whom she walked in the tunnel said, "Return to normal. Come on, let's get out into fresh air!"

Most of the crowd was staying, though. Fretful now, they were demanding. "Ain't there goin' to be no more trains? We want to get home tonight!"

On the stairs going up to the street, Beatrice paused a moment. "I feel as though a steam roller had gone over me," she confessed.

The girl said, "Me, too. I hope there's a place around where we can get some coffee."

It was cold outside. Cold and dark, with a sharp wind that cut through Beatrice's thin jacket. But how good it was to be in the street again! How good to see the dark sky, and the little glinting stars! It was minutes before Beatrice noticed that the neighborhood in which she found herself was distinctly peculiar. Old buildings, and dingy stores, and shabby men shuffling by on thep avement . . .

"An awful place to be marooned when you're dying for a cup of coffee," said the girl. "If it were beer, now. Or some smoke."

"Smoke?"

"It's the standby of hobos and bums," grinned the girl. "Alky, split with water." She was looking about with eyes that recognized and tagged the street. "We'll have to walk a couple of blocks to get anything."

Somewhere in the tunnel Beatrice had turned her ankle. It was throbbing now. She became aware of the fact that she could not remember ever having walked so much, except in the country.

"My feet hurt," she said.

The girl laughed. "You should talk! I stand on my feet all day, selling. If my feet didn't hurt, I'd get alarmed. They'd be turned to stone, see?"

"Selling?" Beatrice repeated. "You work in a store?"

"Huntington's. In the basement."

Beatrice caught her breath. This girl worked in Huntington's! She worked in the store which Grandfather had founded; the store which kept Beatrice on Park Avenue, the store which paid for her car and mink coat and the polo ponies for Clarence . . . What would she say, if she heard Beatrice telling her, "I own Huntington's?"

She wouldn't believe it, of course. "She'd stare at me." Beatrice thought swiftly, "and look around for a telephone so she could call an ambulance and have me taken to the lunatic asylum."

For a moment the coincidence seemed incredible. That out of a city with seven million people, Beatrice, who owned Huntington's, should have picked a subway car in which to ride and found herself side by side with a girl who worked in Huntington's. But in the next breath, she realized that it wasn't so startling, after all. Hundreds of girls worked in Huntington's. Girls who kept the stocks, girls who modeled clothes, girls who ran the elevators, girls who typed the letter and answered the telephones and wrapped the packages.

"Where do you work?" the girl was asking.

Beatrice fought out of her revery. "Work? Oh! I well——the fact is—I'm not working just now."

"I wondered," said the girl, amazingly. "That's a good-looking outfit you've got on. But chilly."

"My—my winter coat was—shabby." How fortunate she'd thought that out, right after she stuck her coat into the parcel locker!

"Doesn't do to look shabby when you're job hunting," the girl said. "Funny, though. If you didn't need a job, you wouldn't be looking for one. So really, they ought to give the jobs to the girls who look the shabbiest. They need it the most. Only they don't do things that way. That would be too sensible."

She turned her head and looked at Beatrice appraisingly. "I bet they'd take you on at Huntington's! You're just the type. Refined. Clean cut, good-looking. You don't look broke."

Her voice jeered. "They want a salesgirl selling 50-cent gloves to look like a deb. And you do. Honestly, you're just the type. Let me take you down to Huntington's! I know they'd hire you!"

NORWOOD

War Workers Get New Supply Call

NORWOOD, Mar. 31— (ENS). — Another urgent appeal has been received by cable from the Canadian Red Cros headquarters in London, England, calling for unlimited supplies of blankets, quilts and relief clothing. The need also for further shipments of socks, sweaters, scarfs, helmets, gloves, mitts, pyjamas, bedjackets, dressing gowns, bandages and wash cloths will soon be urgent.

All available supplies for which there has been a demand have already been disposed of, amounting in all to 1,211,657 articles since the beginning of the year. In addition, 502,660 surgical dressings have been requisitioned as well as 596 cases of clothing.

The Canadian Red Cross overseas with its three large storehouses has sent steady streams of supplies into devastated areas of Britain, but the need is for more and more.

Will every woman take this as a personal invitation, and if you have not already done so, get in touch with your local Red Cross branch, I.O.D.E. Chapter, Women's Institute, or any other organization that is endeavoring to meet this ever-increasing need. They will be delighted to have your help, in one or more of their war undertakings.

Please do it now. There is no time to be lost.

Nelson, president of the Northumberland County Cheese Producers' Association was chairman of the meeting and the name of Mr. Fry was submitted along with that of H. F. Way for the position but as the former was given the majority vote his name will be sent to the Department for appointment. It was anounced that the producers' meeting originally scheduled for March 18 would not be held April 7. It was decided that that funds in aid of the Federation will be voted on by the Cheese Producers at a subsequent meeting probably at the first meeting of the Cheese Board.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 31.—(ENS)—Something of the record was made at the Campbellford hospital within the past seven days when four families were presented with babies, all of them girls. The demands placed on the maternity ward taxed the department to capacity as the mothers, nearly all of whom came from Seymour, entered the hospital. The proud parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ian Ostofi, March 26; Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Meiklejohn, March 27; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stillman, March 23; Mr and Mrs. Gordon Dunham, March 22.

Spirit Of Rockne Is Undimmed

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Mar. 31 — (AP). — Ten years after....yet the flaming legend that is Knute Rockne burns bright and steadfast at Notre Dame University.

Exactly a decade ago to-day, the brilliant Notre Dame football coach died as the plane which was carrying him West crashed on a Kansas plain. Yet those 10 years have served only to intensify, rather than dim, the spirit of Rockne which enfolds the Notre Dame campus.

It's there during the roaring rush of exciting Saturday afternoons each fall when the breeze whips gaily at a thousand pennants in the jammed stadium he helped build.

And one feels it also during the grey, quiet days of winter, when the students talk of Rockne teams and Rockne stars, and argue long over the chances of another Rockne glory era ever coming to Notre Dame again.

The world of sports knows the Rockne record, which stamped the Norwegian immigrant as the greatest strategist American football has known, a man who developed the shift play to its highest degree of perfection, and as perhaps the greatest all-around coach the game ever knew.

The book, too, tells of his great teams and individual stars. But it cannot tell of the character of the man—a character which enabled him to leave to Notre Dame a heritage of memory on which time has made no inroads.

Soldier Injured Splitting Wood While On Leave

HAVELOCK, Mar. 31—(ENS). — Sergt. Borden Jones of the Midland Regiment now stationed at Ottawa, who at present is on his 10 days' furlough, met with a serious and painful misfortune on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock at the home of his mother, Mrs. Robert Jones. He was in the act of splitting some wood when unfortunately the axe glanced off to one side, cutting his right foot very severely, almost severing the big toe. Drs. Joseph Holdcroft and D. J. Holdcroft were summoned immediately to look after the injury.

The Belmont Women's Institute are surely doing their bit to win the war. On Thursday a special meeting was held in the Preneveau Town Hall when 36 ladies turned out, coming in the morning, bringing their dinner, and remaining all day to quilt. Five quilts were finished, some of the tops having been donated, and others pieced by the Institute. A pot-luck dinner was served at noon and after a half-hour of visiting was spent, they resumed their work quilting. These finished quilts will be given to the Havelock-Belmont Red Cross Society.

The members of the Belmont Institute held a euchre and crokinole party in the Town Hall, Preneveau, on Friday night, commencing at 8 o'clock. Eight tables of euchre were played and four tables of crokinole, and with about 70 in attendance. The euchre tables were looked after by Miss Iva Smith, the ladies' first prize going to Mrs. Jack Bannon.

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE FIRST THING TO DO AFTER MAKING whatever deductions you can from the opening lead and the opponents' bidding, your first job, after seeing the dummy laid down by your partner, is to count up your winners, in the case of a No Trump contract, or your losers, in the case of a suit contract. The number of apparent losing cards in your "master hand" may be small enough for you to have a sure thing way of making the contract. If so, don't try anything that jeopardizes it. If not, then and then only figure out ways and means to cut down the number of them which may possibly cost the loss of another trick.

After leading his heart K and seeing the dummy's singleton, East switched to his spade 9 to prevent ruffs. The declarer promptly took this with the dummy's K, then led to his diamond A and ruffed one of his two losing hearts with the spade 4. Noting a dearth of entries now to his hand, he decided to accept philosophically the loss of another heart trick, since he still could make his contract if either minor suit finesse would work. So he led the spade Q to his A and promptly tried the club finesse, which lost to the K. West led his heart 3 to East's 10 and the latter returned the club 9. The declarer tried a finesse of the 10, which lost to the J, and he was down one.

How easy this contract was. North, who had lost one heart trick, could have treated both minor finesses as sure to fail and still make his contract by ruffing his two losing hearts. For this he needed two early entries to his hand. The first could have been by winning the second lead, the spade 9, in his own hand. He then could have ruffed one heart. The diamond A would have furnished entry for a ruff of the last heart. With his contract now safe, he could have tried for an overtrick by laying down the diamond K and another diamond, hoping for an even split of the suit. When that developed, he could have won any return, dropped trumps and used the club A as an entry to play the thirteenth diamond for a club discard, thus making an overtrick.

A lovely address, penned by Miss Olive Day and read by Mrs. Lewis, expressed the feeling of the community. The little Misses Mary Milburn and Betty Cockburn presented the Trudes with a beautiful mantel clock. Mr. Trude expressed his deep appreciation on behalf of himself and family for the lovely gift. The evening was pleasantly spent in progressive peanut euchre. The prize for the highest score was won by Gerald Harrison. Lunch was served at midnight.

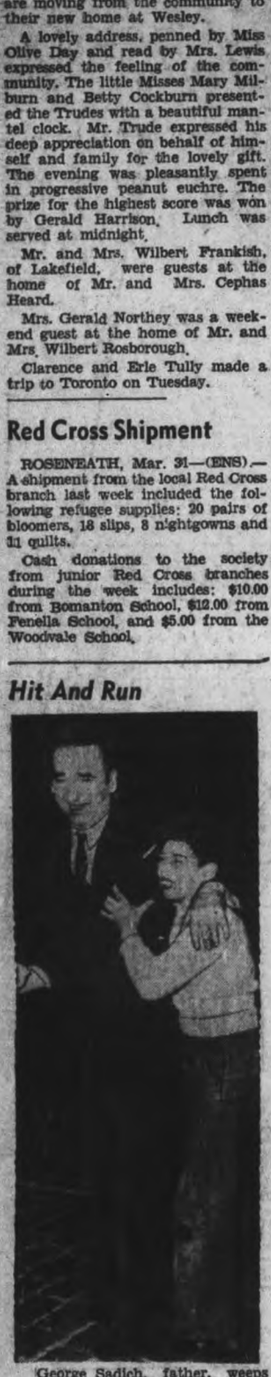
Hit And Run



George Sadich, father, weeps hysterically as he clings to his son, Nick, who is also weeping and griefstricken. They are looking, almost unbelievingly at another son, Stephen, 9, who lies dead after having been trapped beneath a street car in Chicago. He has been hurled under the street car by a hit and run driver.

First Syrup Of Season Sells At $3.00 Gallon

The first maple syrup of the season was offered on the market on Saturday by Max Barr of Omemee at $3.00 a gallon. He reported only a light flow of sap during the week, but next week-end should produce a general supply for Peterborough folks.

Eggs were again plentiful, opened at 20 to 25 cents a dozen, with most of the sales up to near the noon hour at 20 to 22 cents, and finally dropping to 18 cents towards the close.

Butter was in the same groove as a week ago at from 35 to 37 cents.

Broilers were down to 33 cents and chickens sold at 22 and 23 cents a pound, and one big turkey was priced at 25 cents a pound.

Wilbert Rosborough quoted $12.00 for a bushel of alfalfa seed, a reminder that sowing time is drawing near. H. N. Gill's meat prices were: Baby beef 16 and 18 cents, beef 12 and 14 cents, and pork 12 and 14 cents. George Mullen had pork at 12 and 14 cents.

White Star potatoes were $1.15 and $1.25 a bag and Irish Cobblers $1.00. Fred Stinson's vegetable prices were: Onions 35c a peck and $1.25 a bushel, beets, carrots and parsnips 25 cents a peck, turnips 3 for 10 cents.

Norman Moncrief said that his supply of McIntosh Red apples was run out. His prices were: Northern Spies 40 and 50 cents a peck, and $1.50 to $1.90 a bushel; Russets $1.40 a bushel. Starks $1.15 and $1.20 a bushel.

The weather was sunny but cold, and attendance was about average. A few odds and ends of wood were offered, but the bulk supplies were missing.

Manitoba Vote Tests Opinion Of Coalition

WINNIPEG, March 31—(CP). — Manitoba's April 22 election will be the first electoral test for a coalition government in Canada since the outbreak of war.

Hon. John Bracken, premier continuously since Aug. 8, 1922, of Progressive and, later, Liberal-Progressive governments, announced formation of a coalition cabinet last Nov. 4.

The premier expressed hope the union "will result in a spirit of unity on the part of all our people with respect not only to the war but to progressive measures to meet the immediate post-war problems."

Supporting the government during the subsequent legislature session were the 23 Liberal-Progressive members, 14 of the 15 Conservatives, the six Co-operative Commonwealth Federation members, four of the five Social Crediters and three of the four independents with two seats vacant in the 55-member house. Opposed were Miss Salome Halldorson (S.C. St. George), Gen. H. D. B. Ketchen (Con. Winnipeg) and L. St. George Stubbs (Ind. Winnipeg).

Mr. Bracken took into the cabinet Hon. Errick Willis, Conservative leader, Hon. J. S. Farmer, C.C.F. leader, two other Conservatives, James McLenaghen and Alex R. Welch, and a Social Crediter, Norman L. Turnbull.

Two veterans of the Bracken government, W. R. Clubb and I. B. Griffiths, gave up their portfolios and, after the legislature session, resigned their seats to accept appointments as chairman of the government Liquor Control Commission and commissioner of the Manitoba Farm Loans Board respectively.

1932 And Later

Liberal-Progressives won 38 seats in the 1932 provincial election but Mr. Bracken found his Legislature strength greatly reduced after the voting in 1936 when 23 Liberal-Progressives were elected.

The premier was able to carry on with support of the five Social Credit members and two independents. The government's majority was not clearly established, however, and on opening of the first session of the house in 1937 Mr. Bracken announced he would demand an immediate provincial election if the government were defeated on a major issue.

The only major test of strength in that first session came on Mr. Stubbs' motion to abolish the two per cent provincial wage tax established in 1933. With Social Crediters supporting the government the motion was defeated 29 to 25. Two years later the wage tax was reduced to one per cent on a government motion.

Mr. Bracken carried on through the next three sessions without encountering serious difficulty. Most important legislation before the house during that time provided for financing the city of Winnipeg's relief costs. A royal commission investigated the city's financial set-up and the legislature authorized the city to raise additional revenues through taxes on liquor sales and power consumption and through increased water rates.

For Agriculture

Supporting Premier Bracken in a fight for better treatment of agriculture, the legislature passed resolutions urging Dominion legislation to protect debt-burdened farmers from their creditors and to establish "parity prices" for farm produce.

In the fifth and last session, with the coalition cabinet in office, government legislation received easy passage. The house adopted unanimously a Bracken resolution urging the Dominion to make the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act effective in Manitoba and approved a bill which would authorized the courts to reduce principal of a farm debt where crop conditions show returns insufficient for the farmer to meet his indebtedness.

Status of coalition in the election is not yet established but leaders of all groups supporting the union have announced their candidates will run their own party banner as coalition supporters. Whether more than one coalition supporter will seek any one seat is still to be made known.

Sea Losses Hazy For Past Week

LONDON, March 31—(CP).—Few reports on the war at sea filtered through neutral sources in the week ended March 28.

Dispatches from the Madeira Islands reported the loss of the 3,028-ton freighter Andalusian, while another advice recorded the loss of the 975-ton Danish ship H. H. Peterson, which apparently was in the British and Allied service.

An unidentified 6,000-ton supply or troopship and a 10,000-ton tanker, both believed Italian, were sunk by a British submarine in convoy south of Italy, while a Greek submarine accounted for the 5,451-ton Italian supply ship Carnia, also while in convoy.

The British Admiralty's summary for the week ended March 16 showed a loss of 71,773 tons of British, Allied and neutral shipping in the period, a sharp reduction from the totals of the two previous weeks.

Twenty-two People Enjoy Potluck Supper

HAVELOCK, March 31—(ENS)—The Parish Guild of St. John's Anglican Church held its monthly pot luck supper on Thursday, March 27, in the parish room. Ten members were in attendance and twelve visitors. President Mrs. H. W. Roche presided.

It was decided to hold a home-made cooking sale and afternoon tea on Saturday, April 6, proceeds to be given for talent money.

Quilting was the main work of the afternoon, and a special vote of thanks was extended to the visitors for coming out to help. At 5.30 o'clock a pot luck supper was served, and much enjoyed, the charge was 15 cents and proceeds amounted to $4. By special request Mrs. George Watson, one of the visitors, gave a reading entitled, "Is This Heaven."

John Bull Signs Lease To Uncle Sam

Millbrook Group Packing Bale For Indian Band

MILLBROOK, March 31—(ENS)—Mrs. C. M. Westmacott took the chair for the March meeting of the W.A. of St. Thomas' church, held at her home, King street west, last week.

Mrs. Percy Hamilton read the lesson, and the president led in the W.A. Litany, after which the Dorcas secretary, Mrs. Norman Lamb, reported contents for the annual bale about completed, and an unusually large number of quilts included with the clothing which goes to a Blackfoot Indian school. Extra quilts, and other articles, will be sent from the W.A. House in Toronto, to Missions within the Arctic circle. The bale will be packed early in April.

The treasurer, Mrs. J. E. Allen, explained that there is no increase in the W. A. assessment locally this year, and during the discussion regarding funds it was decided to hold the usual silver teas in June, at the home of Mrs. T. A. Campbell, and in the fall at the Mrs. Westmacott's home. Mrs. William Simpson, wife of the rector, read an interesting letter from the Rev. William Simpson, now in 'free' China, an increasing number of bombings interfering with the mission work, and compelling frequent retreat to the bomb-proof shelters; Mr. Simpson is, however, going on with his study of the Chinese language as opportunity is afforded.

Miss Rose Macnamara took up the chapter from the study book, "Conflict," the material dealing with the mission work of the Christian church in Japan, and the difficulties which are steadily increasing, bringing the conclusion that if the church is to survive in that land it must be under native leadership.

Mrs. W. Wilkinson and Mrs. N. Lamb were the supper hostesses, and for the April meeting this duty falls upon Mrs. T. A. Campbell and Miss Muriel Smith; no refreshments are served, according to a plan being tried out, but the hostesses put in their mite-boxes the approximate amount that would have been expended for the lunch.

Local boys, enlisted for active service, who are home for two weeks' leave include: Quartermaster B. B. Dawson, Privates F. C. Tickner, H. Whitemore, Orville Guthrie, Harry Freelove, H. Whyte, all of the Midland Regiment, Ottawa. Colonel Gamey was in the village on Tuesday, and orders for cutting short the leave were given, "some point east" being mentioned as the next place of training.

W. F. Fallis, who operates a milk route from "Windermere Farm" pure-bred Holstein herd, had the misfortune, on Sunday morning, to have a "spill," which included the three large cans of milk being brought to the village, when the sleigh he was driving was overturned in the ditch near Miss Pethick's store at the station. The icy condition of the road, and the deep ruts, were responsible for the accident.

Mrs. Edmund Ball, who spent last week in Peterborough the guest of Miss Florence McNaughton, at the Y.M.C.A., and of Mrs. J. B. Carvolth, Monaghan road, returned home on Sunday.

The School Board, at its regular March meeting this week, decided, on motion of G. F. Harrington and D. K. Chiles, to ask the Ontario Safety League to lecture here on "Child Safety," at a date convenient to the organization.

On motion of Harrington-Chiles, the requisition from the United Counties of Durham and Northumberland for maintenance and debentures for 1940 amounting to $3,592.63, was approved and ordered forwarded to the counties' treasurer.

Armand Pinette Dies In Nashua

Many Peterborough citizens, including older ball fans will be sorry to learn of the sudden death at Nashua, N.H. of Armand J. Pinette, who was employed here in the early days of the Canadian Nashua Paper Co. Limited and who played centre field for the Peterborough Central Ontario League ball club 20 years ago.

Pinette came to Peterborough from Nashua when the local plant was opened and lived her for three or four years, during which time he made many friends.

News of his passing came to Vic Hamilton of the Canadian Nashua Company from "Pete" Travers, who too was here when the local plant was in its early years and who is now superintendent of the parent plant at Nashua.

A Nashua paper says of Mr. Pinette's death:

"Armand J. Pinette, foreman in the wax slitting department at the Nashua Gummed and Coated Paper Company was stricken ill at his home on the West Hollis Road, this morning and died before arrival at St. Joseph Hospital where he was being rushed in the ambulance. He had been in his usual good health and worked last night. He was stricken a short time after arrival home. Mr. Pinette was born in this city August 11, 1894, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthime Pinette. He had been employed at the Card Shop for many years and had been foreman for the past 7 years. He was a World War veteran and a member of Gate City grange. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Pauline Pinette, three brothers, a sister and several uncles, nephews, nieces and cousins."

7 Cruisers Superior Italians Lose Their Biggest Sea Battle

SIX-INCH ORION BAITS FASCISTS TO DOOM, TORPEDO PLANES AND BOMBERS SPRING TRAP, WARSPITE, BARHAM, VALIANT PICK VICTIMS, DESTROYERS 'BURY' THEM

LONDON, April 1—(CP). —A naval officer declared today the Italians had three battleships, 11 cruisers and 14 destroyers in the Eastern Mediterranean battle last Friday and Saturday against Britain's three battleships, one aircraft carrier, four cruisers and an undisclosed number of destroyers.

The Italian force was lured into the path of the big British guns, it was officially disclosed. The light cruiser Orion, mounting only six-inch guns, was the bait for the trap. On Friday the Orion for four hours played the role of a "fugitive" from the Italians until the main British forces closed in.

"Some" destroyers from the Greek fleet participated in the engagement in which three, possibly four, Italian cruisers and two, possibly three, destroyers were sunk. In addition, the 35,000-ton battleship Vittorio Veneto was damaged.

The naval officer said the battle was historic and that the losses inflicted on the Italians without any British damage or casualties was "nothing short of a miracle."

A naval officer said the commander-in-chief, Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, concluded that the Italian force's "probable intentions were to attack our co...

Mexico Seizes 12 Freighters As 6 Axis Craft Burn In Peru, Venezuela Ports

Vichy Envoy Notifies U.S. He "Understands", States Not Grabbing French Ships; Washington Overlooks Danes In Inquiry

WASHINGTON, April 1—(AP).—Germany and Italy have demanded that the United States release Axis ships taken into protective custody during the week-end and also members of the crews, it was learned reliably today.

MEXICO CITY, April 1—(AP).—A responsible source at the Mexican Navy Ministry said orders had been issued to marines and customs guards at Vera Cruz and Tampico to place 12 German and Italian ships in "protective custody."

Four More Set Ablaze.

CARACAS, Venezuela, April 1 —(AP).—Fires broke out simultaneously early today on three Italian and one German ship in Puerto Gabello and hours later the conflagrations were uncontrolled.

The ships are the Joli Pascio, Teresa Odero and Prottera, Italian tankers, and the Sesostris, German freighter.

The fires caused alarm in the city and crowds gathered at the docks. Crewmen threw themselves into the sea to escape and were picked up by launches.

Vichy Speaks Up

WASHINGTON, April 1 —(AP)— Gaston Henry-Haye, Vichy Ambassador to the United States, told newspapermen today after a state department visit it is his "understanding" that the United States would take no action against French merchant vessels tied up in American ports.

The ambassador said that while the United States might carry out a surveillance of all foreign ships in American ports it was his understanding that French vessels would not be taken over in the same manner the United States coast guard took over Italian, German and Danish vessels.

Despite Axis protests over the "protective" seizure of Axis shipping, the U.S., with an eye to criminal prosecution, sent federal agents to investigate sabotage found on most of the vessels.

The investigation was directed only against German and Italian ships. For the present, at least, the seized Danish ships were not included.

Urge Nation Be Ready As Hun Units Move Up

BELGRADE, April 1 (AP)—Government circles said today Yugo-[illegible] is seriously considering [illegible] Russia and Turkey in a [illegible] declaration.

Such a [illegible] said to have been proposed by the Soviet Union but ignored by Regent Prince Paul, who was ousted last week with the Cvetkovic government that signed the Axis three-power treaty.

(Russia and Turkey issued identical statements March 25 pledging each other "full and comprehensive neutrality" in the event that either is obliged to fight to defend her territory.)

Belief was expressed in informed quarters here that such a declaration could have an important psychological effect on the critical relations between Germany and Yugoslavia.

Hun Divisions On Border

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, April 2. —(AP).—Germany, which triumphantly welcomed Yugoslavia into the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance only a week ago, completed formal evacuation of her nationals from this country today under circumstances suggestive of approaching armed conflict.

Five Nazi divisions—approximately 75,000 men—were reported massed on the Hungarian-Yugoslav frontier within a few hours after German Minister Viktor von Heeren left Belgrade for Berlin.

Reports were current that an ultimatum from Hitler might be expected at any moment, demanding that Yugoslavia demobilize and fulfil the treaty of alliance with the Axis which the ousted regency government signed last Tuesday in Vienna.

Premier Dusan Simovic, meanwhile, held the Yugoslav army of 1,200,000 men ready for instant action.

Hun Take Pick Of Cargoes

U.K Charges Marseilles Feed Line For Berlin

LONDON, April 1 (CP) — The government today charged the Germans "take their pick" of cargos entering Marseille, Mediterranean port in unoccupied France, and disclosed it is negotiating with the United States on the delicate question of tightening the embargo on its former French ally.

Hugh Dalton, Minister of Economic Warfare, told the House of Commons that figures "purporting to be official" show that in December and January alone 450 vessels with cargos of about 500,000 tons entered Marseille.

"Large numbers of reports from a variety of sources leave no doubt that the Germans take their pick of all incoming cargos while the Italians are permitted to take smaller picks," he said.

LIMA, Peru, April 1 — (AP) — Peruvian troops have occupied the workshop and hangars of Lufthansa (German Airline) at Limatambo airport. There are two Junkers airliners at the hangar. The occupation was carried out last night.

Vichy Issues Protest

The Ambassador told newspapermen that since there was no direct diplomatic intercourse between Vichy and London the Vichy government was asking the co-operation of the United States in transmitting the note.

Henry-Haye also said that he would explain to State Department ...ials the details of a barter ar...ement under which foodstuffs ...been exchanged between the ...ied and the unoccupied zones ...rance.

Fascists Guard U.S. Embassy As Matsuoka Visits Rome

ROME, April 1—(AP). — Steel-helmeted troops were stationed around the United States Embassy today, presumably as protection against possible demonstrations.

Similar action was taken at the Yugoslav Legation where, in addition, some streets were blocked off.

While there was a considerable number of troops in the vicinity of the U.S. Embassy, they were less conspicuous than at the Yugoslav Legation, being drawn up mostly along side streets.

Shortly before noon, scores of schoolboys paraded with big Japanese, German and Italian flags in honor of Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka of Japan, who arrived here yesterday from Berlin.

The Foreign Minister was received by King Victor Emmanuel and was the King's guest at luncheon.

His afternoon schedule included conferences with Mussolini and Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano.

Turks See Balkans Losing Hitler War

ISTANBUL, April 1—(AP).—Turkish newspapers expressed belief today that Germany would lose the war because of the Balkan situation.

The newspaper Vatan declared in an editorial: "Germany will lose the second Great War sooner than expected, not by reason of American aid and the British Navy but chiefly because of her great error in miscalculating the will to independence of some small Balkan nations."

The newspaper, Yeni Sabah, said: "Hitler promised that by early

Terrific Explosives Also Used On Bremen

LONDON, April 1—(CP).—A new type of high explosive bomb produced results which "appeared to be devastating" in a raid on the German port and industrial city of Emden last night, the Air Ministry announced today.

Bremen also was heavily hit, with shipbuilding yards the principal targets, but the Ministry mentioned the new bombs—their nature not announced—only in the raid on Emden.

"Masses of debris flying through the air were outlined against the glow of the fires," a communique said in describing the effects, "and the results appeared to be devastating."

The Ministry of Information quoted a pilot as saying he saw "houses take to the air" when the bombs burst.

Smaller-scale raids were made on Bremerhaven and Oldenberg and the Nazi-held Netherlands harbor of Rotterdam.

After the administrator's meeting with the council, Mayor J. C. Anderson said that the rent control chief had said that in some instances rent increases in Oshawa had been "very unsatisfactory."

Train 'Gets' Load Driver Escapes

WHITBY, Ont., April 1 (CP) — A Canadian Pacific Railways Express from Montreal today smashed into an automobile transport from Oshawa at a level crossing near here today, scattering its load of three automobiles and a light truck over the right-of-way.

Harold Mothersill, driver of the transport, was uninjured when the express sheared off his big machine guns behind the cab.

Mothersill said the locomotive passed so close to him he could feel the heat from it. He said he neither saw nor heard the express coming.

Police Chief Elliott of Whitby said Mothersill "got over the tracks with his tractor but that was all. The train sheared off the trailer and banged and battered the cars, truck and trailer down the tracks."

There was no serious damage done to the train.

Shelve Bill To Control Broker Firms

Attorney-General's Action Comes As Surprise To Members

TORONTO, April 1.—(CP).—Reluctance on the part of Hon. Gordon Conant to interfere unduly with business has prompted the Attorney-General to take the unusual step of withdrawing a bill he had sponsored in the Ontario Legislature. The measure, one to license business brokers, was withdrawn yesterday while the Legislature was in committee of the whole.

Mr. Conant's action was a surprise to the members and C. G. Elgie (Con. Toronto Woodbine) said he regretted it.

Purpose of the bill was to license and control persons who act as agents in the sale and exchange of businesses which are listed as "going concerns." It would bring these persons under the control of the Ontario Securities Commission.

The Attorney-General said he sponsored the measure as a result of representations made to him during the past three years and he believed, personally, that it would be the means of checking on unscrupulous agents and salesmen in their dealings with people, "particularly poor people."

However, it also represented another control and regulation of business.

"I am personally opposed to the regulation of business by governments to any greater extent than is absolutely necessary" Mr. Conant declared.

"I have often said previously and have no hesitation in repeating at

Baby Is Slapped By Small Boy

Small boys held the spotlight in police reports today, furnishing near-sensational news.

The oddest story comes from 208 Dublin street, where a boy 4½ years [illegible] alleged to have struck a baby [illegible] in a baby carriage on the verandah. Mrs. William Dorrington, 16 Victoria avenue, was visiting her mother on Dublin street and left the baby in the carriage on the verandah. The cries of the child attracted her, and she found the baby with a bruised face and a small boy ran off the verandah. The police report did not say whether anyone had actually seen the attack or not, but the child was taken to a doctor for treatment. The police, after investigation, explained the situation to the little boy's parents.

Rings False Alarm

Shortly after two o'clock on Monday the entire fire fighting brigade was called out to a box alarm at the corner of Dalhousie and George street, only to find that it was a false alarm. A man saw two boys, one four and the other six, tinkering with the box, and after the alarm had sounded he followed the pair home, then notified the police. The Fire Chief and police issued a stern warning to the parents and the children that the offence is a most serious one.

William Curtis, age 18, who had pleaded guilty to six charges of breaking and entering, was remanded. He is reported by police to have admitted burglarizing Roseborough's service station, and Vitarelli's hamburg stand.

Ted Corrigan, 22, of Otonabee, charged with assault with intent to rob was also remanded until April 8, when there was no stenographer in court.

Two Burn Off Peru

CALLAO, Peru, April 1 (AP) — Two German merchantmen were set afire and their seacocks opened by their crews early today in Callao harbor after their attempt to leave the port had been thwarted by a Peruvian cruiser.

The two vessels, the 5,898-ton Leipzig and the 5,576-ton Monserrate, tried to leave the harbor shortly before last midnight some hours after two other Nazi merchantmen sailed without papers.

The Peruvian cruiser Coronel Bolognesi, however, stopped them by firing five shots, and warning shots, and were ordered to port, where they two vessels still were burning hours later.

The ships which sped away from the harbor after nightfall last night with lights doused were the 5,619-ton Muenchen and the 4,883-ton Hermonthis.

With the Leipzig and the Monserrate, they had been here since the outbreak of the war.

The Leipzig and Montserrate only recently were loaded with 2,000 tons and 1,300 tons, respectively, of Cotton brought by a Japanese commercial mission.

Both are cargo-passenger ships. The Leipzig, owned by the North German Lloyd line, and the Monserrate, owned by the Hamburg-American line, were built in 1938 and both operated before the war between Europe and South America.

Hun Destroyer Gets It

A British plane scored two bomb hits on a German destroyer off the Frisian Islands yesterday, causing the vessel to come to a standstill with a heavy list, the Air Ministry said.

Other R.A.F. units bombed German supply ships, gun emplacements and troops in "a busy and successful' series of offensive actions.

Two tankers were set afire and left sinking off La Havre, and a supply ship, one of a convoy of eight protected by German warships and fighter planes, was damaged.

The sorties cost the R.A.F. two planes.

The Frisian Islands are off the northern coast of the Netherlands.

The German destroyer damaged was said by the Air Ministry news service to have been escorting a small convoy. When last seen it was listing heavily and "black smoke was pouring from the stern," the news service said.

Later yesterday afternoon another German convoy was sighted and a direct hit clouded one of the ships in quantities of black smoke, the service said.

Troops Raked.

Gun emplacement and camouflaged buildings among the sand dunes on one of the Frisian Islands also were attacked.

"German troops were on parade in front of one of the buildings as our aircraft roared over only 50 feet above ground," the service added.

"They ran for cover but our aircraft came back again to see many of the troops lying on the ground and the others immediately scattered. An army cook in white scuttled into some bushes near at hand.

"On another of the islands our aircraft found a long, gray army hut with many German troops standing around it. A direct hit on the hut produced volumes of black smoke. During this attack our aircraft came down to 10 feet."

A German bomber crashed in flames in southwestern England today and three bodies were recovered. The Information Ministry said another bomber was destroyed in the Midlands.

Mrs. L. S. Clarry Passes Away At Age Of 94

In the death of Mrs. L. S. Clarry on Monday afternoon at the family residence, Millbrook, the village and district lost its oldest resident. Mrs. Clarry had reached the age of 94. In comparatively good health up until a couple of weeks ago, she was stricken down with a cold which developed into bronchitis which carried her off surrounded by most of the members of her family.

The funeral will be held from the Clarry homestead, Park Road, Millbrook, on Wednesday, the service at the house to be conducted by Rev. A. L. Sisco, B.D., of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, of which the deceased was a faithful member, assisted by Rev. Dr. G. S. Easton of Trinity United Church, Peterborough.

Mrs. Clarry has up until a few weeks ago been enjoying comparatively good health and her passing will be mourned by many, particularly the people of the village in whom she always took such a deep interest. Her mind was as clear and keen as it was years ago, and she was each day interested in the affairs of her household.

Mrs. Clarry was formerly Harriett Kellett and was born in Millbrook on October 16, 1846. She resided in the village all her life and was not only the oldest native but the oldest resident of the district.

Daughter of Pioneers.

She was the youngest daughter of Robert Kellett and his wife, Margaret Tweddell, who settled in Millbrook, Ont., in the year 1844. At least that was the year in which her father took up residence in the village, her mother and three older children arriving from Ireland one year later. Here she spent her girlhood, grew to womanhood, married and reared a family of eight children, seven of whom are living.

She was married in 1868 to Lewis Simpson Clarry, who passed away in 1930. The late Mr. Clarry was a native of Prince Edward County. His father was a native of Ireland, settling in Peterborough as a child with his parents. Later the family moved to Prince Edward County where the late Lewis Simpson Clarry was born.

Mrs. Clarry leaves to mourn her passing two sons and five daughters. The former are Lewis Frederick, K. C., of Calgary, Alberta, and Ernest Simpson of Toronto. The daughters are Miss Mabel of Peterborough, Miss Gertrude and Miss Augusta of New York, Miss Blanche at home, and Mrs. Maxwell G. Cameron of Ottawa. There are three grandchildren, Mrs. Alan Harrop of Calgary, and Miss Norah and Mr. Jack Clarry of Toronto, the latter an officer with the Canadian Army overseas. There is one great-grandchild, Lewis Harrop of Calgary.

Mrs. Clarry had two brothers and two sisters, all of whom have passed on. The Kelletts as well as her mother's family, the Trevors, were originally of English stock, settling in County Cavan, Ireland, at the time of Cromwell. It was from Cavan, Ireland, to Cavan in the New World that her parents came.

Grand Old Lady of District.

To the people of Millbrook and Cavan, Mrs. Clarry was looked upon as the grand old lady of the district and she well merited that title. All her girlhood and boyhood friends and residents in the early days of the community had passed on, but her memory up until the last was ever fresh concerning the early settlers and incidents associated with them. She was the source of authentic information on people prominent in the public, social, and church life of the village and township of Cavan during almost the past hundred years and of the subjects that were of local, Dominion and world-wide importance during her time.

Her friends feel that it is to be regretted she had not written a book of memoirs as she was well qualified to do by reason of her great interest in people and affairs, her keen sense of humor, and her rare literary ability. In her home were to be found many rare old volumes, all of which she prized highly and many of which were passed on down to her by her father.

Mrs. Clarry's depth of reading was such that she could discuss most entertainingly the lives of the great statesmen of the past hundred years. Since her childhood she had been a keen student of public affairs and enjoyed telling of early political campaigns in Durham. She has always been a staunch Liberal.

Of the early incidents of Millbrook and Cavan, Mrs. Clarry had almost countless interesting and amusing stories. She, as a child, remembered and had talked to men from Cavan who were called out at the time of the Mackenzie rebellion.

Her personal remembrance of the district included such pioneer family names as the Deyells, Swains, Suttons, Howdens, Berrys, Sowdens at many of whose homes she used to visit as a girl. She well remembered the frequent visits to her father's house of Joseph Scriven, author of the hymn, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," and over whose grave at Pengelly's Landing on Rice Lake, a monument has been erected in recent years to his memory by his admirers.

Led a Religious Life

Mrs. Clarry since her girlhood led a deeply religious life. Her knowledge of the scriptures and her interest in and study of the great religious leaders of her time proved to her a sustaining influence throughout her interesting and fruitful career. She would quote extensively from the Bible, which she read and studied since childhood and right up until a few weeks ago she loved to hear over the radio the outstanding preachers of the present day.

When the Church Union movement came up, she strongly supported it, believing it was in the best interest of the three religious bodies concerned. Although the Presbyterian Church of the village voted to stay out of the Union she transferred her membership to the United Church. She was a life member of the Women's Missionary Society of Grace Presbyterian Church, and since the Union, had held a similar office in the Women's Missionary Society in St. Andrew's United Church.

She had witnessed many changes in the community. She could recall the building of the first railway through the village; the line from Port Hope to Lindsay by way of Bethany and later the branch line from Millbrook to Peterborough. She knew the village when it was a thriving young industrial centre with its two tanneries, its distillery, two foundries, a flax mill, three grist mills, a planing mill, several carriage shops and seven busy hotels. In more recent years she had seen it as a peaceful village, of one-half its former population with no industrial establishments.

No home in the district had carried on for so long a time under one regime. She considered this one of her greatest blessings. Although her sons and daughters and grandchildren are residents in widely-scattered cities she always looked forward to their quite frequent visits to the old homestead.

The late Mrs. Clarry was known to many Peterborough people, her daughter, Miss Mabel, having been for some time organist and choir leader of Trinity United Church, and to her, friends in Peterborough offer their sincere sympathy.

7 Cruisers

between Egypt and Greece."

When reconnaissance planes reported Italian cruisers southeast of Sicily about midday March 27, the officer said, Admiral Cunningham was at Alexandria with the main body of his fleet.

The cruiser Ajax, veteran of the battle of the River Plate, and the Orion, Perth and Gloucester already at sea were ordered to a position south of Crete.

The battleships Warspite, Valiant and Barham, and the aircraft carrier Formidable at Alexandria were ordered to "raise steam with all dispatch."

They left that afternoon.

At 7.49 a.m. the next day, reconnaissance planes again found the enemy—one Littorio class battleship, six cruisers and seven destroyers—about 35 miles south of Gavdo Island, which is south of Crete.

Vice-Admiral Henry Pridham-Wippell, with the Orion and the other cruisers, was about 40 miles to the southeast, and Admiral Cunningham was about 95 miles farther southeast with his battleships.

The British cruisers turned north, made contact with the Italians, and then turned southeast to "draw the enemy into the mouth of the lion waiting for him," the officer continued.

Italians Get Suspicious.

The Italians, however, turned north-west and the British cruisers followed to keep in touch. After sighting the Littorio class battleship 16 miles north about two hours later the British cruisers again turned south-east to keep out of range and draw the enemy toward Admiral Cunningham.

Half an hour later, at 11.30, torpedo bombers from the Formidable attacked the Littorio class battleship. One possible hit was reported and the enemy force headed for home.

The British cruisers lost touch, but almost immediately joined forces with the battleships and the "whole of our forces pressed on after the enemy," the officer related.

About this time naval bombers again attacked the Italian force, including the Littorio class battleship, and registered one torpedo hit. The planes attacked again in the early afternoon and this time reported three torpedo hits on the Littorio class battleship.

Between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. Royal Air Force Blenheim bombers scored two direct hits on a cruiser, one on a destroyer, and two probable hits on another cruiser.

At 4 p.m. Admiral Cunningham received a report from the planes that the Littorio class battleship's speed had been "drastically reduced," the narrator continued, and the Commander-in-Chief ordered the cruisers to press on to regain touch.

They did, just after dusk, and some of the accompanying destroyers were ordered to attack. Others stayed back in order to screen the battleships.

A Nice Surprise

At 10:10 p.m. the Italian cruiser Pola was reported damaged and stopped about three miles to port, or left of the battle fleet, which turned at once to engage it.

While approaching the Pola the battle fleet sighted three more Italian cruisers crossing in front from starboard, or the right side.

"The battle fleet at once opened fire," the officer said. "The enemy must have been taken completely by surprise."

The first salvoes hit at a range of about 4,000 yards and "practically wrecked" two heavy cruisers.

Italian destroyers astern of the cruisers then turned and fired torpedoes, and the British battle fleet turned to avoid them.

"Exactly what followed is still obscure," the naval officer said, "but two British destroyers certainly did considerable execution."

He said the Italian Littorio class battleship "probably moved off during the action between our battle fleet and the enemy cruisers."

It also appeared probable, he said, that "during the night the Littorio class battleship became heavily engaged with her own forces as heavy gunfire was heard at the time and from a direction which made it impossible that any of our forces might be engaged.

This supported previous reports from Alexandria to that effect.

The Jervis' Role.

In an interview the captain of the Jervis disclosed that his ship and other destroyers raced westward at full speed in an effort to intercept the crippled Italian battleship, and that when unable to locate it they returned eastward. Two or three hours after dark, he said, they sighted the flaming hulls of the Pola and Zara.

The Jervis received orders from Cunningham to finish them off, as by this time the British battle fleet had steamed eastward. The Jervis then approximately eight miles from the Zara, threaded her way through 600 to 700 Italians in the water. As the Jervis approached the Zara did not fire a single shot or torpedo. At close range the Jervis let go four torpedoes. There were two ear-rending explosions and the burning hulk plunged to the bottom.

The Jervis then proceeded approximately a mile eastward, after picking up eight survivors of the Zara, to sink the burning hulk of the Pola. The Jervis approached the Pola broadside, as the latter was unable to fire her guns except straight ahead, since her electrical controls had been destroyed by the shells from the British battleships.

Planes Down Low.

Twenty-two Italian officers and 236 men of the Pola were taken aboard the Jervis over an improvised gangplank erected from one quarterdeck to the other. Then a single torpedo finished off this cruiser.

Two British bombers were lost during the protracted air attacks on the Italian warships. The attacks on the battleship were described as among the most daring ever attempted, through a terrific Italian barrage.

One of the British planes went down to within 10 feet of the water at a distance of not more than 200 yards from the Italian warships to let go their explosive "fish."

It was considered extraordinary that only two British planes were lost in this action, in which the attacking pilots literally flew through tons of shells.

and there were indications his government had strengthened its position by reaching an agreement with discontented Croat elements.

Reports from Zagreb said Vladimir Macek, the Croat leader who has been seeking assurances that the new government would respect the interests of the big minority he represents, had reached an understanding with Simovic and would remain in the cabinet as vice-premier.

Agreement Made.

It was understood Macek would return to Belgrade to-morrow to cement the agreement.

The government sought to calm the public as a welter of rumors circulated throughout the country, but took extraordinary measures to meet any emergency.

He told the population in a broadcast address last night "there is no cause to worry," and that the government "is trying to remain on friendly relations with all neighbors." But he added, almost in the same breath:

"In the inerests of the State the people are all required . . . if destiny orders, to give their lives for the good of their homes, fatherland, king and all the people. The army, air force and navy are ready to do their duty."

All Germans Out

The train on which Von Heeren departed for Berlin pulled out of the Belgrade station only eight minutes before the midnight deadline he had set for the departure of all German nationals.

Approximately 1,000 Germans were crowded aboard. The train was an hour late in leaving because of the strain on railway facilities caused by the frantic rush of persons of many nationalities seeking to flee the country.

Von Heeren said tersely he would report to German Foreign Minister Ribbentrop "immediately" upon arriving in Berlin, but made no other comment.

Italians joined German nationals in the hasty exodus.

Some diplomatic sources expressed belief that, despite strained German-Yugoslav relations which Nazi quarters described yesterday as "desperate and practically hopeless," a flareup might be delayed 10 days because Hitler is not ready for decisive action.

(This view was given some support by dispatches from Berlin, which quoted a foreign office spokesman as saying "the time for Germany to take a stand has not yet arrived.")

War Equipment Shortage Being Overcome

OTTAWA, April 1.—(P).— Canada entered its new fiscal year today with assurance from Defence Minister Ralston that the "serious shortage" of military equipment encountered in 1940-41 is gradually but surely being overcome.

Last night Col. Ralston gave the House of Commons a summary of the supply situation which he last reviewed in November. It had to be a cautious statement, he said, because his staff officers were not keen on broadcasting information which spies were willing to risk their lives to obtain.

"I have faith that Canadian industry will do the job that is before it," said the Minister. "It has had its disappointments and discouragements. These have been translated into set-backs and discouragements for us, but we are not lying down.

"We are going ahead full blast, endeavoring to make the best of what we have, seeing that the cardinal policy is observed. That is to send overseas all we possibly can and also doing everything we can to speed up production by regulating our priorities.

"We in the Department of National Defence will not rest until we have everything needed to equip our troops. We are not boasting but we do feel that substantiti progress has been made and that the very serious shortage of equipment which I mentioned both in July and November is being gradually but, I think, surely overcome."

For Second Reading

The minister spoke as the Supplementary War Appropriation Bill, authorizing expenditures of $135,000,000 in the fiscal year which ended yesterday, was approved in committee on the resolution stage. The bill comes up for second reading to-day.

3 Railwaymen Are Killed In Train Wreck

INKERMAN, Ont., April 1.—(CP)—A defective freight-car axle was unofficially blamed today for a spectacular smashup which killed three Canadian Pacific railwaymen, injured six other persons and left the wreckage of a locomotive and a score of cars littered along the double-track roadbed.

Engineer Fred Plato and Fireman Wallace Plunkett of nearby Smith Falls were almost instantly killed when derailment of a speeding eastbound freight last night hurled their passenger locomotive into the flimsy, wooden station of this eastern Ontario town.

Section Foreman William Maxwell of Inkerman and Mountain, Ont., was fatally scalded by escaping steam as he stood in the station doorway. He died early this morning in Ottawa Civic Hospital.

Still in hospital at Ottawa, in serious condition from burns suffered when the wrecked locomotive poured searing sparks and steam into the station building, was Station Agent Edward Pennett. Hospital attendants said he was expected to recover.

Mail Clerk A. Slack of Smiths Falls, aboard the passenger train, suffered two broken ribs. Four other persons—Passenger Conductor H. Guppy of Smiths Falls; his trainman C. Riley of Perth, Ont.; Sectionman Asa Hanes of Inkerman and another man, D. MacDonald of Montreal—suffered minor hurts.

About 25 passengers were riding

Painting Tanks Discussed By Commission

COBOURG, April 1 — (ENS). — Cobourg Public Utilities Commission held its regular bi-monthly meeting on Monday in the Utilities Building on Division street south, with all members present. The chairman, Jack Delanty, presided; the other members being His Honor Mayor J. D. Burnett, and Commissioner Harry McGuire.

The Commission passed for payment four accounts: the regular accounts of the electric department were $457.38, the water department's were $1,547.59. The prepaid accounts were: electric department $2,768.18; the water department, $2,500.00.

The Commission discussed the painting of the water tank situated at the northern end of town, and the manager said that firms from Belleville and Trenton were interested in securing the job. W. Stewart of Kitchener had visited the tank and he was prepared to offer a thorough cleaning job inside and out, with three coat sof paint. He had suggested a price which the Commission was not willing at this time to make public. The recent visit to Toronto, re an insurance scheme, was laid over for more discussion, when further particulars are available.

The Whitby Commission had been contacted as to some information in regard to new lighting equipment which Whitby had installed. A letter from H. Pringle of that town disclosed that Whitby had installed 30 standards on a block at a total cost of $14,667.18. Mr. Pringle's letter said they had received help from one of the Hydro men on their project. The Mayor of Whitby and Mr. Pringle offered to explain the new system if the local commission cared to call on them. No action was taken by the Commission members on this issue.

A letter in regard to a special rate to Fall fairs, travelling shows and circuses was read. The manager explained that it would probably not affect the local utilities very heavily. However, it was as well to know about these things, he said. The meeting adjourned on motion of Commissioner McGuire and Mayor Burnett.

Bonusing Of Coarse Grains Is Opposed By W. F. Rickard

Bonusing of coarse grains in Western Canada means inevitably the stimulating of competition against the Ontario farmer, W. F. Rickard, M.P. (Durham) declared in his speech in the House of Commons Thursday in which he declared his intention of voting against the policy of the government of which he is a member.

"Since I came to the House six years ago I have tried on several occasions to place before Parliament the condition of the dairy farmer in Canada, and more particularly the position of the farmer of Ontario," Mr. Rickard said.

"To-day all industrial activity in Canada continues to increase with the expansion of war demand. There is an increase of employment and non-agricultural income. According to the Minister of Finance (Mr. Ilsley), our expenditure on the prosecution of the war for the year commencing April 1, 1941, will amount to approximately $1,460,000,000, the largest sum which was ever voted by any parliament in Canada. Included in this sum is an item of $177,928,000 for the expansion of industry, which indicates that the productive capacity of Canadian industry will be substantially increased, and therefore should lead to an enlargement of domestic demand.

Since June, 1940, the continuous rise of wholesale prices has been inevitable. All commodities have risen to some extent, and for the month of February averaged 84.6 of 1926 as compared with 82.8 the previous year. Prices of farm produce have also risen slightly, but have not yet made up the loss sustained in the early part of 1940. This may be due in large measure to the low price of wheat. All live stock registered some strength in February, and should continue to show gains as the domestic demand increases.

I have here an index of living costs on the 1935-39 basis; they rose from 108.0 in the month of December to 108.3 in January, 1941, but the general index in the year from January to January was 108.3 this year, compared with 103.8 in January, 1940, showing that the cost of living increased by 5 per cent.

Difficulties of Export

At the present time exportation of agricultural products is difficult because of the uncertainty in the supply of shipping. To-day the bulk of Canada's exports goes either to the United Kingdom or to the United States. We have heard a great deal of discussion of late from some hon. members of the opposition about what this government has or has not done for the relief of the farmer. I believe that the hon. member for Huron North stated last November, referring to the farmers, "We never did get a fair deal from any government, least of all from this one." The hon. member for Haldimand, of course, brough in a want of confidence motion in the government with which motion, I wish to say, I do not agree. I believe I am safe in saying that this government since 1935 has done more for the Canadian farmer than any government since confederation. I took the trouble to look up some of the prices of farm products from 1930 to 1935, and then from 1935 to 1940. Here are the figures of the prices of bacon hogs, live weight; beef cattle, and lambs, on the Toronto market:

Year	Hogs.	Beef Cattle.	Lambs.
1930	$12.32	$8.79	$11.01
1931	7.51	6.29	8.96
1932	4.70	5.51	6.77
1933	5.54	4.63	6.92
1934	8.60	5.50	7.62
1935	8.90	6.40	7.70
1936	8.46	5.50	9.00
1937	9.00	6.25	9.60
1938	9.50	6.26	9.00
1939	8.80	6.90	9.50
1940	8.70	7.85	10.50

We all know that the price of cattle in 1941 on the Toronto market has been anywhere from $8.50 to $9.50 and as high as $10. In the case of lamb, prices are somewhat lower. We might go back to 1926, as some have done, and take it on the basis of 1926-29. I could give prices of cheese, milk and eggs and of many other farm products, but those three are enough to allow a comparison of prices as between 1930-35 and 1935-40. We owe a great deal to this government and particularly to the Prime Minister (Mr. Mackenzie King) for the agreement he made with the United States whereby we sell our cattle in that market. We are getting the best price for beef cattle that we have had in many years. We are selling all our surplus cattle to the United States, and I believe that up to date it has not been necessary to send any cattle to Great Briain as part of the war effort. The United States is taking all our cattle and will take more if it can get them.

We have heard the suggestion that the price of farm products should be put on the basis of 1926-29, but so far as cattle are concerned I believe we have had, in 1941, a price well above that figure. Of course, in the dairy industry, cheese constitutes one of the chief products, and we are selling to Great Britain at a price of 14.4 cents all the cheese we can produce. This government is adding another 3/5ths of a cent, making it 15 cents, with a bonus of $2 on 94 score cheese and $1 on 93, and the province of Ontario is giving a bonus of two cents, making the cheese price in Ontario to-day 17 cents, f.o.b. Montreal. In my opinion Ontario to-day can produce the producer of cheese a contract at that price. We have a contract with Great Britain for 112,000,000 pounds, and I think we should be able to supply that quantity at the price offering.

Summer Butter price.

Then there is the butter situation. We have heard a good deal of discussion of price pegging, the setting of a minimum price. Perhaps the butter situation did give rise to a lot of discussion and may have started the whole story, but I do not think the government made any great mistake in setting the price. I could never see why speculators should buy 60,000,00 pounds from the farmers at 21 cent a pound and be allowed to sell it to the consumer at 40 and 42 cents. But that is what was taking place. I believe that if the price board would set a minimum price which would be reasonable to the farmer for the summer, the producer of butter would be much better off than if he took the market price of 20 or 21 cents, and obtained 42 cents in the winter.

Then there is the hog situation, about which there has been considerable discussion. We have an agreement with Great Britain. Someone has suggested that we should send bacon to Great Britain free. Others think that we are not getting enough and should take the price Great Britain is paying us and the government subsidize to the 1926-29 level. We have promised to supply Great Britain with 420,000,000 pounds of bacon, and since that contract was entered into, we have been producing an average of 3,000,000 pounds of bacon a week in excess of the contract. Great Britain has agreed to take 1,000,000 pounds a week more than the contract, which mean that to-day we are storing in our cold storage plants 2,000,000 pounds a week. I wonder sometimes, if the price of bacon were raised to the 1926-29 level, what we would do. I image we would have more hogs ten times over than we could see. History proves that the minute you make anything really profitable for the grower, you get too much of it.

A word about the apple situation. I am interested in apples, and I believe that the apple growers of Canada are more than satisfied with the assistance given them by this government. I do not think any member of the house will contradict that statement. We have sold our apple at a reasonable price because we have received protection from this government.

The Wheat Problem

I come now to one of the most important items of legislation, namely, the wheat problem. Some days ago the Minister of Agriculture gave a summary of the situation. He announced the policy with regard to wheat, whereby wheat deliveries are to be taken up to 230,000,000 bushels at a price of 70 cents, basis Fort William No. 1 northern. This will mean considerably less income for the western farmer; there is no doubt about that. But to offset the acreage being taken out of wheat, it is proposed that $4 an acre be paid for summer-fallow, $2 an acre for sowing to grass seed, and $2 an acre for coarse grain. The idea is to reduce wheat acreage by 9,000,000 acres. We in Ontario have been and still are willing to help the western farmer, and for a period of years we have paid our share of the many millions of dollars contributed towards the assistance of the west. We are still willing to do that; but we do feel that the bonusing of coarse grain, particularly bonusing, to the extent of $2 an acre, the western farmer to grow coarse grain, is going a step too far.

I am not so much opposed to summer-fallow, although I do not believe that is the right thing to do either. I think, as far as grass seeding is concerned, that is something which should be encouraged. We have broken up too much land in the west for the growing of wheat, and it would be a good idea to get it seeded back. I would be more willing to pay $4 an acre to seed down than $4 an acre for summer-fallow or $2 an acre for coarse grain. I am afraid we shall be establishing a precedent of fixing a price on coarse grain just as we have on wheat. As the hon. member for Victoria, Ontario, said, I would rather pay a little higher price for wheat, perhaps 72 to 75 cents, and stick to wheat, than bonus the growing of coarse grain to come in competition with the eastern farmers, which to my mind must happen; I cannot see anything else for it. The amount itself may not be so great but the principle of the thing seems to me absolutely wrong.

Declares Opposition

As far as this proposal is concerned I as an Ontario farmer do not feel that I can support it, especially if this coarse grain clause is left in. I hope the government will consider this seriously and for the sake of the hog producer and the grain grower in Ontario leave this clause out. If that were taken out, I believe we could explain to our people the reason why it is of advantage to bonus summer-fallow and grass seeding. We realize fully

COBOURG

Placing Truck Back On Road Was Huge Task

COBOURG, April 1 — (ENS). — Workmen yesterday labored for hours in the task of removing the traces of Sunday night's bad accident in which three people died. The wreckage of the small light couple was removed early to Wilson's Motors, Division street, but the Smith transport took a greater effort. The tractor was removed from the empty field a twisted mass of steel. The trailer was first unloaded by a crew of men under the direction of Harper Hinds, the local Smith traffic manager. Prentice Motor Works had a crew of men engaged in using acetylene torches and hydraulic jacks for most of the day before the large trailer could be restored to movable condition.

Provincial Police Officer D. Wilson was on the scene of the accident, as well as local police, and a continual stream of traffic stopped alongside the wrecking all day.

Visitors to the scene of the tragedy were coming and going all during the daylight hours and expressions of disbelief and horror were heard as the tragic scene unfolded before their eyes. No clean explanation of the triple tragedy which took the lives of Derwood Dafoe, John Jewell and A. W. Patterson has as yet been learned, as the only survivor of the crash, Mrs. Vera Jewell, young wife of John Jewell, lies seriously injured in Cobourg Hospital. Her condition is described as being "critical," and her chances of surviving are said to be only fair.

The most priceless thing on earth is good health. Are you endangering your health by not paying sufficient attention to the danger signals that nature is giving you?

Headaches, sore throat, bronchial cough, pain over sinus, constipation, kidney and liver conditions, pain over appendix area and urinary bladder. These are all warning signals, if you will heed them.

RADIONIC EXAMINATION will determine the cause of any of these symptoms. If you have infection of the sinus, teeth, tonsils, kidneys, appendix, bowel, etc., the Radioclast will find it and trace it to the part affected. Don't neglect your health by not knowing what the cause is.

Nothing Like It Before

Prime Minister Churchill and Ambassador John G. Winant from United States placed their signatures on a document in London the other day, and that document is so unusual that it has probably created history at which the world at other times might have blinked.

It provides United States with air and naval bases in eight British Western Hemisphere possessions from Newfoundland to Guiana. The significance is that it associates the affairs of the British Empire with those of United States so deeply and so absolutely that it will be almost impossible to break the things apart either now or at any future time.

The situation is worth study. When United States accepted these bases for the purpose of adding to the outer ring of defence for her own mainland there was much to consider. Much which might not appear on the surface, and it has been listed this way:

Could United States accept these bases without having the fullest right to defend them? Naval and air bases are subject to attack in war time and United States and Britain recognized that.

Could United States defend these bases without at the same time defending the British territory in which they are located? If an attack were made it would not be confined to the [illegible] marked off as a naval or air base. [illegible]area

Then came the third question which follows logically after the [illegible] Could the United States [illegible] other two: British territories in [illegible] occupy these necessity without th[illegible]ase of pressure or administer them[illegible]e fullest authority to bluntly, could [illegible] Or to put it more [illegible]cumstances United States in such cir[illegible]ances take possession of them?

There is not a single question or suggestion stated here which is not entirely logical. Between two bargaining nations it might require months to settle all that is involved, but the agreement is already signed, and the signing was announced simultaneously in London and Washington.

So what has take place really is this: Britain offered United States vital parts of the Commonwealth with which to defend itself (United States), to defend the Western Hemisphere, with which to make possible the enforcement of the Monroe doctrine and with which to preserve that larger freedom for which this war is being waged.

By signing that document United States is committed to the responsibility of fighting to protect all the British Commonwealth in which these eight new bases are located. The pact is signed for a period of 99 years, and that is accepted as meaning in perpetuity—or for all time to come.

The Washington Bureau of the Christian Science Monitor admits that in recent months there has been a deal of loose and easy talk that United States should either secure or seize certain British possessions as payment of the last war debt or as security for the Lease-Lend bill.

So it is reasoned the signing of the new agreement could only come because two nations had found their interests are identical. All that is not covered in the written agreement is made possible only on the basis of mutual friendship, faith and confidence. The Monitor Washington Bureau comes to the conclusion that "This may well be the modest, prophetic, potentially powerful beginning of Union now." Nothing like it has ever been done before.

How Hitler Is Regarded

It has been the privilege of the Examiner in recent days to hear expressions of opinion from several Canadians who are of German extraction. In one case the father had come from Germany and in another case the grandfather, and so on. There are sections in Ontario, particularly in the Western portion, where such families are quite numerous. We have read of them at times but it was more interesting and more satisfactory to talk with people and hear what they had to say about it.

It did not require urging to turn conversation in that direction. They seemed full of the sort of indignation which yearned for expression. One plain statement was just this:

"Hitler and his Nazi business has done something which nothing else could ever have done. It has placed us in a wrong light in this country. He is not of the Germany which our parents or grandparents knew. A good many people regard him as the anti-Christ spoken of in the Bible, and many of us are in agreement. With a clear mind we can pray and work for his utter and complete destruction and we can fight and we can give to see that such destruction is brought to pass. We have reason to know that the older people of Germany did not want war any more than we did in this country. We know too that when Chamberlain visited Munich and when it appeared war had been averted the women wept for joy. That was an expression from the real old Germany. But this new thing in Germany we detest to the point of plain hatred. The ideas of the Nazis are as foreign and as distasteful to us as they are to the rest of the people in Canada."

We were assured that such was the view of virtually all the German-extraction residents in the district in which these people belong. It was also stated there are German families in Canada who live in fear that anything they may do will bring punishment upon relatives still living in Germany, but that feeling was wearing out. The reason is they do not fear Hitler to the extent to which they did a year or so ago.

Doing Something Silly

The Italian naval attache in Washington is credited with having forwarded instructions to destroy the machinery of all Italian naval vessels which had tied up in ports of United States since the outbreak of the war. There are several German vessels in the same position and also from Denmark.

The result is that United States has taken control of them all, and [illegible]es has a law which provides such [illegible]d there is done. It was passed duri[illegible] should be and says that when [illegible]ing the last war, by its own crew [illegible] vessel is sabotaged may be declared an American port it States. [illegible] forfeited to the United

There [illegible] action would be two reasons for such [illegible] on the part of the crews of these [illegible]els: (1) the United States might enter the war and seize this shipping, and (2) that the owner countries would not have much chance to make use of them in the future and would therefore put them in such condition that they would be useless to any other nation.

Possibly the Italian official who spread the word may have been acting under instruction, but he has made somewhat of a mess of the whole thing. Officers and men of United States went and took control of every last ship. The flag of the owning country was removed and that of the United States went up in its place. The crews were bundled off to Ellis Island where they gather together those whom it is desirable to deport from the country.

No doubt the wreckers had been at work for days, and what they were doing is not going to improve the manner in which United States looks upon these people and their efforts. If there is one miserable country in the world which needs a bit of good will from the outside it is Italy. It is neither great enough nor strong enough to defy any nation, and it was nothing short of the poorest kind of silly effort to turn toward the business of wrecking.

Would Ask Him To Leave

Lt-Cmdr. R. T. H. Fletcher, Labor member of the British Parliament, asked why the Japanese ambassador to Britain should not be asked to leave the country. He went farther and suggested that he should be told to get out. What's more he made all this known in an address where all who cared to do so could listen.

Admittedly we know little enough about the method of framing British foreign policy; there may be sufficient reasons for doing nothing to interrupt the present standing.

But there are some things which are known. Japan came out openly and placed itself in alliance with the Axis powers.

Within recent days the Foreign Minister of Japan has been visiting in Berlin and in Rome, where he was in conference about the part which Japan was to play in the prosecution of the war. His arrival was timed to coincide with the signing on of Yugoslavia, something which slipped and slumped badly.

The British M.P. claims that the ambassador to London, by reason of the immunity which he enjoys, is in a position to forward a good deal of information to his government, and his government is an unfriendly one. For those known reasons there is good cause for the plain statement which said he ought to be asked to leave the country. Japan cannot possibly be tied to the Axis powers and be anything but unfriendly to Britain, and Britain cannot afford to harbor an unfriendly ambassador and all the retinue connected with his office.

Italy Keeps On Paying

For a good many years before the war broke there were people who sang songs and wrote poems about the British Navy. [illegible] Admiralty itself said little. It [illegible]ut the Admiralty always to have been its policy to [illegible]eems always as little as possible. And it's still [illegible]ay as little [illegible]ke that.

The Mediterranean fleet pulled into Alexandria, and apparently there was nothing unusual in its appearance.

And yet that fleet had just steamed in from an engagement in the Ionian Sea in which at least five Italian ships of war had been sunk.

Not damaged or battered, or put out of the running until repairs were made. But sunk. Sent to the bottom.

Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham issued one of those close-clipped statements for which the Admiralty is noted. He merely paid tribute to the members of the crew and did not overlook those in the engine room nor elsewhere. And it all ended with only two words: "Well done."

When the Italian navy loses five war ships it is one way of strengthening the British Navy to that extent, and if Italy and its Axis partner ever needed anything right now it is more sea power—not less.

We cannot but wonder how long this program will have to be continued before it dawns on the Italian people to what extent Mussolini has dragged them down and chained them which are pushed them to enterprises ruinous. Nothing short of desperately

He deliberately took his nation into the war about ten months ago, and he did so because he wanted to be in on the kill; he desired to be in good standing as an active participant when the spoils were being divided. He had entirely misinterpreted the spirit of the British people, and he had missed with equal ignorance the strength of the British Navy.

And how he has paid and will keep on paying!

Not only is Mussolini paying, but it is the people of Italy on whom the burden falls. They could do nothing about it when Mussolini shoved them into the war. They have been able to do nothing about seeking to salvage even remnants of their African empire, and they have been powerless to move while their navy goes in lots of five to the bottom of the sea. And the tragedy of the whole thing is that Italy could have gone on its way, attending to its own business. Except for Mussolini.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Viscount Halifax, British ambassador to U.S., took his first vacation in 15 months, and announced: "I'm going to get on a horse and stay there until he's tired, and then I'm going to get off."

Meeting is called in London, Ont., to see what can be done to head off the sale of potatoes from the Maritimes in this province. A recent survey of 300 retail stores in Toronto showed that but three of them were offering Ontario potatoes.

Detroit driver whose car is reported to have gone 36 feet through the air was fined $20 in court at London. A circus would probably be willing to pay good money for an act like that, but it does not go over so well with the traffic officers.

Three cruisers and two destroyers were lost to the Italians in a fight with the British in the Mediterranean, and the British suffered no casualties and no damage to the fleet. The Italian commander must have forgotten his instructions to keep out of the way.

A California specialist treated Wendell Willkie's throat during the election campaign and forwarded a bill of $13,000 to the Republican party headquarters. If it's not paid there then we dare say it would be quite all right to pass the hat in this country.

DIET

(By A.R.K.)

¶ My Cousin Jake would eat no cake, he said it made is stomach ache, he'd been advised to fast; for every time he went and ate, he did so at alarming rate, his insides would not last.

¶ Then Cousin Jake cut down on pie, he really didn't know just why, it rather left him flat; he'd read the newest diet list, and from it all the pie was missed. 'twould make him bulging fat.

¶ He shook his head at spuds I know, and started eating rather slow, that way he'd get relief; and when he'd done that cutting down, why Cousin Jake would up and frown, when he saw slabs of beef.

¶ When there were cookies on the shelf, Jake started thinking of his health, and then he'd shake his bean; if he filled up with all such stuff, he feared the night would turn out rough, he'd have a painful dream.

¶ But Jake cut down so much I know, he couldn't hardly up and go, and he looked rather tough; he figured that the reason was, he followed far too many laws, was stoking not enough.

¶ So Jake chucked out his diet list, at meal time not a thing is missed, his appetite was keen; when anything is passed to him, he lifts it up above his chin—and licks his plate off clean.

CAP and BELLS . .

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

BY the time this paper reaches your hand you will no doubt be thoroughly conscious of the fact that this is April Fool's Day. If you have not been caught off your guard at least once, and if you have not played an April Fool trick, however modest, upon someone, then the traditional humor of this country is on the decline, and I predict a black future for everybody. Today is All Fools' Day, in medieval times a special day of topsy turvy merriment, when a Lord of Misrule was substituted for the mayor of every town and [illegible] the churches, a clown [illegible]when, in place for a day took the bishop's priests mad[illegible] and the younger A great[illegible] fun of their superiors, safet[illegible] day, in fact, and a splendid [illegible]y valve in a world that some[illegible]mes suffered from too much authority.

C & B

Like many another English festival, April Fools' Day was hated by the Puritans, who could not bear the sort of unbuttoned enjoyment for which it stood. During the period of the Commonwealth it was suppressed, like May Day, and it never wholly recovered. Now April Fools' Day is a mere shadow of its former self, a festival which we remember and enjoy to some extent, but not in the old boisterous way. Such passionate medievalists as the late G. K. Chesterton believe that much of the world's misery could be banished if we would revive these ancient festivals of the common people. I cannot agree. Nothing has ever been achieved by turning the clock back and anyway, there are no common people any more, so far as I can see. We all want to be a little better than we are, which is a laudable ambition but on which robs us of a great deal of simple fun.

C & B

There are one or two interesting historical associations with this day. It was on April 1, 1712, that Lord Bolingbroke stated that in the war of the Spanish Succession the Duke of Marlborough had not lost a single battle, and yet the French had gained their point, the succession to the Spanish Monarchy. Dean Swift, the most bitter and brilliant man of his time called this statement "a due donation for All Fools' Day." It was on this day in 1810 that Napoleon married Maria Louisa, the Archduchess of Austria. It was a magnificent occasion, and to commemorate it the Emperor caused a medal to be struck upon which was a representation of Cupid bearing a thunderbolt. In the light of what we now know, this was rather funny, for as a lover the Little Corporal was anything but mighty. The French were not slow to comment on the curious choice of a date for the royal nuptials, and referred to the Emperor as "unpoisson d'Avril." Why the French call an April Fool an April Fish must always remain one of the mysteries of language. That is their expression, however, and before the war it was usual about this time of year for the shops in Paris to sell charming chocolate fish, much as we sell Easter rabbits.

C & B

A HUNDRED years or more ago, when the traffic in the London streets was not heavy, they were the favorite playground of groups of boys, and these were particularly active on April Fools' Day. Some of their jokes which have been preserved for us do not seem excruciatingly funny, but no doubt they did well enough at the time. They would cry to a passerby "Sir, there's something out of your pocket." "Where?" the victim would ask. "There, sir!" "What?" "Your hand, sir — April Fool!" So also it was usual to stop a lady and to tell her, very politely, that she had something on her face; when she enquired what it was, she would be informed that it was her nose, and hailed as an April Fool. The essence of these jokes is that they do not give the victim any chance to defend himself. Modern variants of these ancient wheezes are used by those people who call up a number at random on the telephone. When a voice replies they ask "Are you the lady that washes? When the voice indignantly denies this they cry "Oh, you dirty thing!" and ring off.

C & B

The most popular of all April Fool jokes has always been the Fools' Errand. The person who is being made a fool of is sent on a long errand at the end of which he is either given a beating or is publicly ridiculed. In Scotland this used to be called "Hunting the Gowk." Gowk is an old word for a cuckoo. The person who was the butt of the joke was sent with a note to someone at some distance from his home; inside the letter was written,

On the first day of April
Hunt the gowk another mile.

The recipient of the letter would then direct the 'gowk to someone else, also far away, and so he would wander from one to another, until his suspicions were aroused. In London children were often sent to shops for 'half a pint of pigeon's milk', or to a bookseller for a work called "The Life and Adventures of Eve's mother."

C & B

There is much to be said for the celebration of April Fools' Day. No one ever comes to any harm through a mild joke and too much seriousness should be avoided under all circumstances.

DOING HIS BIT

A KACHIN hill man in the North Triangle of Burma offered a Government official ten baskets of paddy (unhusked rice) as a gift to help win the war. WANTED MORE RENT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I noticed in your paper of Friday, March 28, a statement by Mayor Hamilton: "I don't want to see Peterborough made a rent control area." And why not? A control board is certainly needed here. There seems to be some antiquated law in force that gives the landlord all the rights and the tenant none. For instance, the landlord does not need to give a just cause for having a tenant evicted. Here is one case.

A certain landlord owns a house in the west end. One day, after several requests to have the kitchen redecorated (which was in very poor condition when the tenant moved in, and which the landlady had promised to do) she came to look at it. She found the house in satisfactory condition inside (as she herself admitted, although the outside is badly in need of paint and repair, through no fault of the tenants).

She evidently promptly decided for herself that she could get forty dollars for it instead of the thirty she was getting. Saying that she'd see about the kitchen she left and immediately went to a real estate agent and listed her house there as for rent at forty dollars and sent the tenant a notice to move on the first of October. She was told by the tenant that it would be impossible to move on that day because a baby was expected the last of September, but she said that would make no difference, and if necessary she would have the sheriff put them out.

Knowing that she would likely not be allowed to raise the rent ten dollars, she evidently decided to make the tenant move and then re-rent for forty dollars. However, when the baby was only a few days old she sent the bailiff to the tenant with a statement to sign that within two weeks they would move. Naturally the tenant refused to sign.

Now, the tenants were in every way desirable tenants. A1 tenants in fact—quiet, clean, minded their own business, took good care of the property and paid the rent in advance. The couple are very well known, well-liked and respected in the city and should certainly not have been subjected to such treatment.

They tried to find a house as many of the real estate agents can testify and yet the landlady was granted an order to evict in November simply because there is a law that says a landlord can claim his house at any time, and if he wants to go ahead and get an eviction he can do so, and nothing or no one can stop him.

One would think that the court should be allowed to consider the facts and act accordingly.

However it is to be hoped that landlords of that type are few and far between.

The house remained vacant for several months and is now renting for thirty-five dollars, probably through the intervention of the Rent Control Board at Ottawa, to whom it had since been reported that the rent had been raised to forty dollars.

ALSO A RENT PAYER.

DOING THEIR PART

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—In view of the fact, that the different War Services which, at this time are conducting a drive for the necessary funds to carry on the great work of providing comforts for the armed forces, allow me to add a word of praise to these organizations on behalf of the boys who are down here with me.

There are no people who can really appreciate the good these organizations are doing, as we, the ones who benefit from them. In our present state of life in the armed forces it is the only place that we can turn and find the home comforts that we all left behind. These hostels have done and will continue to do a great deal to take some of the loneliness out of us, which occurs to every person who is away from his family, his friends and his home.

A large number of fellows like myself are at the present time living in private homes, pending the construction of new barracks. But we have all spent some time in the barracks and although the living conditions are excellent, naturally no home life exists in such a place. Consequently we look to the hostels to provide it and we are never disappointed.

We are all very frequent visitors to not one, but all of these hostels. They supply many kinds of entertainment as you probably know. All of these are absolutely free and cost money to operate. This expense can be only overcome by the co-operation of all our good friends, who are on the home front. They who contribute to this appeal can be sure that their dollars and cents are not abused in any way, but are put to work to give and get the greatest possible good out of them.

In reply to your letter addressed to me in regards to the conduct of wife. May I inform you that I am treating it with the contempt it deserves. The most of us who volunteered to come over here are here to make our Canadian homes safe for our wives and children to live in, and your filthy insinuations concerning a matter which is none of your business, are no encouragement to us over here. I can only form my opinion of the type of person you are by the vicious slime you wrote in your letter and I assure you that I have nothing but pity in my heart for you, and hope you will find some other use for your misguided mentality.

SHE REGRETS IT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Please allow me a small space in your paper to answer a lady friend of mine, or any single lady who is interested. I loved a man who was unemployed and wouldn't call or see me because he felt it was unfair because he couldn't get steady employment. So I married another for spite but did not love him although he had a good position and treated me good. Alas, now I have regretted that marriage and will regret it all the days of my life and I am always thinking of the one I love and any woman who does the same as I have will regret it too. So my advice to my friend is to marry the one you love, for a full pocketbook won't feed a starved soul.

I remain, yours

ETHIOPIA FIRST

MUSSOLINI no longer addresses "enormous crowds" in the Piazza Venezia, but cowers in the safer privacy of the microphone. It is Italy which is now reportedly under occupation by foreign troops, while Haile Selassie is Emperor again in Ethiopia—the first of the many heads of government to be driven into exile, and now the first to tread his own soil once more.

Is it prophetic? After Ethiopia, one remembers, there was Spain. The reputations made in the massacres of the Ethiopians have crumpled and their possessors have been tossed out; they are being succeeded by the reputations made in the slaughters in Spain.

How long will they stand? History, now running strangely in reverse across the face of Ethiopia, is revoking the "irrevocable" with a thoroughness which even the bluster of dictators cannot stay. — New York Herald Tribune.

Exports To Japs Kept As Secret By Government

OTTAWA, April 1—(CP).—Information on the make-up of exports to Japan would not be in the public interest, Trade Minister MacKinnon told a questioner in the House of Commons yesterday.

G. H. Stokes (Con., Hastings South) asked what commodities were represented by the figure of $622,000 covering exports to Japan, during January and February, 1941.

"At the present time it is regarded as not in the public interest to give this information," Mr. MacKinnon said.

Opposition Leader Hanson immediately arose with an objection. "I protest against that statement, Mr. Speaker," he said. "We shall have to have a little more reason for the refusal."

Mr. MacKinnon said it had been the policy of his Department since the war started not to give information to anybody "in connection with these shipments," lest the information reach people not entitled to it.

"What about the Canadian people?" Mr. Hanson asked.

"If it could be given to the Canadian people without being known elsewhere, we would be happy to do so," said Mr. MacKinnon.

Over 100 Million In Gas Tax Past Five Years

TORONTO, April 1.- Slightly over $100,000,000 was collected by the Province in gasoline taxes for the five fiscal years ending March 31, 1940, according to a reply handed down in the Legislature yesterday to a question by Hon. Leopold Macaulay (Con., York South). Starting with an income of $16,001,013 for the year ending March 31, 1936, the amount steadily grew until last year it was $27,428,149. Total for the five years was $100,009,046.

Hon. George S. Henry (Con., York East) was informed that the 74.15 miles of the Queen Elizabeth Way, from the west limits of Toronto to the north limits of Niagara Falls, has cost $13,247,054.86 to date. Slightly over two million dollars was used to purchase property, $2,461,547.15 for bridges and other large structures, while small structures, grading, drainage, lighting and paving cost $8,662 105.33.

In reply to W. D. Black (Con., Addington) it was stated that F. A. O'Connor, former director of purchasing in the Department of Health, was requested to resign because his services were no longer required. His salary was $5,000 per year, but he received no superannuation or leave of absence. No successor has been appointed and J. G. Morrison is now doing the work formerly done by Mr. O'Connor.

According to an answer given Hon. T. L. Kennedy (Con., Peel) there are approximately 54,778 acres of mining land in the Province under lease, and another $883,120 acres are staked but not patented. During the last fiscal year some 815,956 acres were patented, while 8,397 claims were cancelled during the year for failure to perform work, non-renewal of licenses, or because of no applications for patents.

Burns And Pals In Windsor Hotel Day After Robbery Witness Says

Louis Gallow, Lawrence Burns and Thomas Nicholls all were registered in a Windsor Hotel on the night following the burglarly in the C.D.S. store here on February 2, Charles Ray, Windsor hotel clerk, swore at yesterday afternoon's session of the trial before His Honor Judge S. L. Smoke of Lawrence Burns, 28, of Windsor and Toronto, charged with cracking the C.D.S. safe here.

Ryan, a new witness, also testified that the three men left the hotel together at 2:30 o'clock the following morning.

It was stated in evidence by a provincial officer that the small safe taken from the large one in the C.D.S. store had been found on the outskirts of Windsor.

Other new evidence was furnished by Francis Asta, local taxi driver who told of seeing a maroon car stop near the C.D.S. early on the morning of February 2 and of seeing a man in a dark overcoat and carrying a black bag run across the road and get into the machine. The car was a maroon one and an up-to-date model Asta swore.

Earlier Everett Osborne, C.P.R. foreman, had testified to seeing a maroon car near the C.P.R. tool house at Bowmanville the afternoon before the burglary here and had identified Burns as very similar to one of the four men he had seen in that car. Osborne said that that night the tool house had been broken into and a number of tools stolen and he identified tools produced and found on the scene of the C.D.S. robbery as having been taken from the tool house.

Identifies Tools

Osborne was the first crown witness at the afternoon session. His evidence followed closely that given by him at the preliminary hearing as to the tool house at Bowmanville being broken into on the night of Saturday, February 1 and a quantity of tools stolen. He identified photograhs produced as showing the C.P.R. tool house and the area around it.

Osborne identified a track bar, jimmy, hammer, an axe and other tools produced as having been stolen from the tool house.

The witness told of seeing a maroon car containing four men in the vicinity of the tool house on the Saturday afternoon of the robber. The car had passed him at the rate of eight miles an hour, travelled about 60 feet and then turned around and came back. He had taken a particular interest in the automobile because the occupants seemed familiar to him.

"Do you think you could recognize any of the four occupants of that car?"

"I think I could."

"Look around the court room and see if you think you can recognize any one."

"That face over there looks familiar," said Osborne, pointing at Burns in the dock.

At Boys' School

In cross-examination Mr. Frankel, defence counsel, pressed the witness very closely as to his statement that the men in the car "looked familiar to him."

"I think I had seen a picture of one of them in a Toronto paper," said Osborne.

"You don't mean Burns?"

"No, he looked like a boy who use to be at the Bowmanville boys' school."

"If I tell you Burns was never at the Bowmanville school will you admit that you were mistaken?"

"Well, he looked like a boy that had been there six or seven years ago."

Osborne admitted that before giving evidence at the preliminary hearing he had been shown six or seven photographs by police.

Heard A Bang

Francis Asta, taxi driver for the Capitol Taxi, immediately south of the C.D.S. store, said that early Sunday morning he was in the taxi office.

"I heard a bang like two cars hitting together," said the witness. "I went out an saw a car parked in the parking lot, its lights pointing toward me."

Afterward he had heard the car pull out of the parking lot and go south. A few moments after he saw a car come north and stop opposite the Capitol Grill. It was a maroon colored car with one person in it. When it stopped "I saw a man run across the road with a small black valise in his hand. He wore a black hat and coat," Asta swore.

The automobile he had seen was a new model, he said.

Mr. Frankel did not cross-examine this witness.

Booked Burns In, He Says

Charles Ryan, night clerk in the Munro Hotel, Windsor, said that he knew Lawrence Burns "to see him."

On the Sunday night, following the burglary here, Ryan said that he went on duty at 12:15 o'clock and that at 12:30 or a little later he had booked Burns into the hotel.

"He had a woman with him, supposed to be his wife," witness said.

"Louis Gallow and Thomas Nicholls were in another room," Ryan swore. "They had all left calls for 2:30 o'clock and they got up at that time and left together in a car. I heard Burns say he would go and get the car and pick them up there."

In cross-examination Ryan said that the figures 1 over 2 on the hotel register card produced should have read 2 over 2. They referred to the date of the registration and he was positive that it was on Sunday night, February 2, that Gallow, Nicholls and Burns were there.

Constable Raymond Truax of the Ontario provincial police, Windsor, told of the small safe from the C.D.S. store being found on the outskirts of Windsor and being turned over to the Peterborough police.

Detective Meagher's Evidence

Detective Sergeant W. E. Meagher of the Peterborough police department identified tools produced as those he had seen in the C.D.S. store after the burglary. The witness told of going to Toronto and receiving from Detective Sergeant Nimmo several sums of money and a number of club bags which he identified.

He also told of going to Windsor to bring Burns back and of receiving from the Windsor police $95.10 in money, a wrist watch and three keys. The latter articles were produced and witness was asked to open the wrist watch.

"What do you find there?"—"The name John Fairchild."

Detective Meagher was asked to try the keys on the overnight bag entered as an exhibit and described by J. H. Jamison as "very similar" to one taken from the C.D.S. store.

"They fit the bag," said the witness.

Mr. Common started to examine the witness as to something alleged to have been said by Burns after he had been brought back to Peterborough but although Judge Smoke ruled the evidence admissible the crown prosecutor did not press the point after Detective Meagher stated that he had asked the prisoner how he expected to get around the fact that the club bag had been found in his possession.

"Did you know that the club bag had been found in his possession."—"No."

"Why did you ask him then?"—"Just to see what he would say."

Drops One Point

At that point Mr. Common intimated that he would drop that angle of the testimony.

In cross-examination Detective Meagher said he could not recall Burns asking for his shaving outfit on the morning of the preliminary hearing and not being able to open his club bag because the police had his keys.

Constable Archie Menzies told of the keys and money received from the Windsor police being turned over to Chief Constable Newhall.

In answer to Mr. Frankel, the witness said that he remembered Burns asking for his shaving outfit and of his asking for the keys for his club bag which would not be given him because they were locked up. Burns had forced the club bag open with a screw driver or something of that nature when the keys were not produced.

J. J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and issuer of motor vehicle licenses here was called and produce an application for a license for a maroon car for Jean Fairchild and signed by John Fairchild.

Toronto Detective Called

Detective Edmund Tong of the Toronto police department told of investigations made at the house of Louis Gallow, 171 Mutual Street, Toronto, in the week following the burglary here.

Tong testified that Bradd, Burns and Nicholls were all staying at that address.

He testified to taking a couple of bags from a room occupied by Burns on the ground floor and a black overnight bag found in a room upstairs.

One of the bags found downstairs was opened by the witness and its contents revealed. Among the articles in the bag was a pair of new shoes with a receipted bill for $16.50.

Detective Tong was asked about taking a pair of shoes from the room of Louis Gallow.

Mr. Frankel objected vigorously to the introduction of that evidence but it was admitted by Judge Smoke.

The witness said that the shoes had been turned over to Oliver Borland, the finger print expert of the Toronto police department.

The overnight bag, he said, included among other things a writing pad with the name of Bradd on it.

Detective Tong said in answer to a question that one visit to Gallow's house John Fairchild was there. Fairchild, he said, was a half brother of Gallow's.

The court adjourned at this stage of the proceedings.

OUTBOARD MARINES TIE WITH Y.M.C.A. FOR LEAGUE LEADERSHIP

Westclox Girls Win 3 Points From Kawarthas

Gerry Payne's Outboard Marine girls bowled into a first-place tie with the Y.M.C.A. in the Ladies' City League when they defeated Lucky Strikes 3 to 1 last night at Duffus Alleys. Francis Margueratt's 288 single in a 690 score was the deciding factor in a close victory. Three of the Lucky Strike ladies hit them off at a 600 or better rate and only lost the decision by a matter of 21 pins.

The Commercial checked the Y girls string of victories when they took two of the four points rolled for. The Kawarthas threw a scare into the starry Westclox camp when they won the first game. However the Kawarthas faltered in the final stages and lost 3 of the points. Examiner took 4 points when they bowled a bye.

Fisher Is Lost To Red Wings

DETROIT, April 1 (AP) — Bad news and good was delivered by their club physician to Detroit Red Wings today as they rested in anticipation of the Stanley Cup hockey finals after their semi-final playoff victory over the Black Hawks in Chicago last night.

The bad news: Joe Fisher, rugged right-winger, will be lost for the finals. X-rays revealed he suffered a fractured left ankle in a collision in the second period of Sunday night's game. Previously Fisher had insisted the ankle was only twisted.

The good news: Eddie Wares, also a right-winger, who has been out of action three weeks with a shoulder injury, was pronounced by Dr. C. L. Tomsu fit to play in the finals, which will be with the winner of the current Toronto-Boston series.

Challenge Match

Arrangements are completed for the meeting of the Automobile and Westclox leagues in a challenge match which will start at 8:30 sharp on Duffus Alleys Wednesday night. The challenge will be a high pinnage test between the two six-team groups and will be run off on two nights, Wednesday of this week and the Wednesday following.

Reports from both camps claim their superior strength and there will be some wild slugging before a decision is reached.

Hockey First

Toronto, April 1 (CP)

BEFORE the Ontario Legislature adjourned Monday, Premier Hepburn announced the party whips had got together and decided to inaugurate night sessions Wednesday. Earlier the premier had indicated a night session would be held tonight which caused G. S. Henry (Con. York East) to ask: "In competition with the hockey game?"

"Unfortunately I do not follow hockey and didn't know of the game," replied the premier.

"Many members of the house are deeply interested in a game being played tomorrow," Mr. Henry said.

(Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs meet here today in the sixth game of their best-of-seven series in the Stanley Cup semi-finals.)

Regina Rangers Eliminate Port Arthur

WINNIPEG, April 1—(CP).—Two Rangers hockey teams—Regina and Winnipeg—which the grapevine says have a working agreement with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, today waited the naming of their opponents in the Western Canada Senior and Junior finals.

Regina Rangers, coached by Freddie Metcalfe, former American Association professional, eliminated the Port Arthur Bearcats, 1939 Allen Cup holders, in a best-of-five series, 3-1, last night by virtue of a 3-2 triumph in the Saskatchewan capital. Winnipeg Rangers won the Manitoba - Thunder Bay Junior crown earlier.

Johnny Kennedy of Red Deer, Alta., who came to Regina with Metcalfe from Lethbridge Maple Leafs last Fall, scored the victory goal early in the third period of the clean but hard-fought game. That goal sent Rangers into the final against either Lethbridge Maple Leafs or Trail Smoke Eaters. Opening game of the next series will be Saskatoon Saturday.

Irony of the playoffs last night was that a former Regina flash of last season—Alex Kaleta—led Lethbridge to a 6-3 win over Trail, forcing a sixth game in the far West semi-finals. Maple Leafs won the fourth game 3-2 after Trail took two encounters 3-1 and 2-1 and the opener was a scoreless draw.

Winnipeg Rangers will meet either Edmonton Athletic Club or Saskatoon Quakers in the Junior final. Edmonton and Saskatoon will settle their best-of-five series at Saskatoon tonight, each having won two games.

Bonusing Grains

that we have too much wheat. Some land must be taken out of wheat and put into something else. We expect in 1941 a surplus of wheat of between eight and nine million bushels, although the world surplus of wheat is expected to be 1,500 million bushels. Someone said wheat is a war casualty, but I do not agree with that; we had too much wheat before the war started, and if in the years from 1935 on we had had big crops, we would have had ten times more wheat than we can sell.

As I said, labor to-day has a guarantee of the scale of wages of 1926-29 plus an increase for the rise in the cost of living. I am not complaining about that, but surely what is good for one is good for another. The cost of production of the farmer has risen considerably; that is one of the reasons why I have taken this attitude. Take our farm implements; the price of a six-foot binder to-day is $240; when I started farming I bought a six-foot binder complete for $120. About three companies control the price of farm implements. It does not seem to make any difference how much the duty is reduced, the price continues to rise. The duty was 25 per cent; it was reduced to 7½ per cent, and the price went up.

Then there is the scarcity of help, especially as far as the dairy farmer is concerned. Some argue that taking men from the farms does not make any difference to the farmer, that the farming industry will remain intact. But anyone who is in the dairy business to-day depends absolutely on hired help, and if his man goes to the city and gets a job at anywhere from $100 to $125 for two weeks' work, as they have done, the industry is bound to suffer.

Over a period of years Canadian manufacturing industry has been protected by all government, perhaps beyond what it should be. I am not a free trader; I believe in a certain amount of protection, but I believe that by protecting industry with a high tariff we are doing a great injustice to the farmers. I have noticed, since coming to the house, several hon. members of the opposition have made many pleas for the farmer, but every time protection for industry comes up they are right on the job. We must be consistent; we must be reasonable.

Word to Federation

We have to-day in Canada what is known as the Federation of Agriculture. We have in organizations of one kind and another 350,000 farmers, or practically half the farmers of this dominion. We have 340 farm organizations selling to the farmer, and over 320 farm organizations that buy from the farmer. I am all in sympathy with farm organizations; farmers have a right to make their requests known to any government. Farmers have not enough representation in this House of Commons. I took the trouble the other day to go over the book and I have found that there are about thirty-five farmers in the house. We have some others who are classed as farmers, gentleman farmers; we are glad to have them; they are an asset to our industry, but of real honest-to-goodness farmers who know what it means to do a real day's work on a farm, we have about thirty-five.

Farm organizations and federations of agriculture can do a great job for the farmers if they are reasonable in their requests. But if they are going to demand the impossible, the organizations will not be of much help. It is all very well to be critical, but we must offer something constructive if we are going to get anywhere. Representations have been made to this government by farm organizations, and as the Minister of Agriculture said their ideas in many instances have been accepted and put into effect by the government. If they continue to do this in a businesslike way, I believe the farmers of this country will eventually get a better deal."

Reds Well Off In Pitchers; Weak At Plate

NEW YORK, April 1.—(AP).—A returning rover boy submits a few impressions gathered at the southern camps of major league baseball clubs:

Cincinnati Reds—A sound, rather colorless team. Could use more power at the plate. Is neck-deep in good pitchers. If Lombardi's ankle fails to improve, may prove serious handicap.

Brooklyn Dodgers —One of best-looking teams this spring. Oodles of power, with Reese, Waner Reiser, Medwick, Camilli batting in that order. Pitching still question. Rather week at second base. A fighting, colorful club.

St. Louis Cardinals—Best young pitching crop in either league. Plenty of power with men like Mize, Slaughter Koy and Moore. Infield still uncertain quantity. Can be dangerous.

New York Gants — A problem child. Loss of Jurges severe blow. Hartnett should help certain pitchers and boost spirit, as well as add to fair punch that includes Ott, Young and Orengo. Pitching could be good. Infield replacements scanty. Could use new blood.

Philadelphia Phillies — Perennial stepchild. Lost two best pitchers in Higbe and Mulcahy, also Outfielder Marty. Rookie pitchers promising. Need power, pitching, fielding and everything else a ball club needs including attendance.

Cleveland Indians—Haven't been able to hit ball out of infield yet. Could use more plate power. Has classy infield. Fine pitching staff with Bob Feller the backbone. Better spirit under new manager should be boon.

New York Yankees — Another puzzle. At times have looked like slugging Yankees of better days. Have potential power, a fine young second - base combination which should click. Relying largely on young pitchers. Dickey again may be key to success or failure. Gordon handling first base nicely.

Detroit Tigers —Tough if Greenberg remains. McCosky, York, Greenberg, Gehringer, Tebbetts provide plenty of punch. Pitching topped by Newsom, satisfactory. Spirit excellent.

Boston Red Sox—Old age creeping up in several spots. Defense leaky. Pitching staff woefully weak, catching uncertain. Good plate punch provided by Foxx, Williams, Cronin, Finney and Dom DiMaggio. Biggest need one pitcher who can step in and check a slump.

Washington Senators — Rather feeble as a team. Three first-line pitchers in Hudson Chase and Leonard. Little real power at bat. Speedy outfield, weak on first and second. Lewis and Travis may be lost to army.

Those impressions are strictly of the moment and were received with the full knowledge that to judge a team's strength by its showing in the spring is like looking at a tree and trying to tell whether it will wind up as toothpicks or grand pianos.

The Yankees in their hey-hey days, for instance, usually looked like a losing day at the races, and often the Phils and Athletics are pretty hot stuff in the spring.

However, certain factors which stand out in the spring usually stand out all season and it does not take higher mathematics to figure that the Phils and Senators, for instance, are going nowhere in particular. They simply haven't got what it takes.

SPORTS - DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The question of the hour in sport circles if course whether the Toronto Leafs will take it all tonight or whether the Bruins will develop enough power and fight to grab off their second win of the series on Toronto ice and tie everything up at three games each. Leafs are pronounced favorites to turn the trick but outside the absence of Bill Cowley there is no reason why they should be made so. Boston, a well-seasoned club, has the reputation of playing each game as it comes up. That is the Bruins never lose two games in one night, as one writer puts it. They forget the one they have just played and go into the next battle as if they were just starting in the series. That means that the Leafs will have to play their finest hockey and keep on playing it tonight or they will find themselves travelling back to Boston for a seventh game.

* * * * * *

In spite of all the ballyhoo that has been getting into the Boston and Toronto newspapers about this player and that, and the accusations of dirty work at the crossroads that are being flung around it has been a good series between two fine teams who have been tops all season. Probably the hardest obstacle that the Bruins have to overcome is the feeling of let down that hits all sporting organizations when a long winning streak such as the Boston club staged from Christmas on is finally definitely terminated. Under such circumstances most clubs bog down and it is a tough job to get rolling again. And that possibly more than anything else explains why the Maple Leafs who failed to beat the Bruins in the last six scheduled games could turn round and wallop them three times in five starts in the Stanley Cup series.

* * * * * *

His many friends in Peterborough and Hastings will hesitate to believe the reports from Boston papers to the effect that before last Saturday night's game Dit Clapper had threatened to belt Dave Schriner right out of the rink. The story was to the effect that the Bruins accused Schriner of deliberately "getting" Bill Cowley and to avenge that loss the Boston captain was supposed to go out Saturday night and drive the Leafs left winger into the second balcony. Both ends of that report are screwy. If Schriner really injured Cowley intentionally it was an act utterly foreign to the reputation of the left winger who has never been known as a mean hockey player. Similarly while Dit Clapper is recognized as a hard-hitting defence man he has never been regarded as a dirty puck-artist, as a player who would set out to injure deliberately an opposing player.

Calls Combines To Win

In the opinion of Honey Tompkins who played for the Kingston Combines in the two games in Owen Sound Friday and Saturday night the Kingston team will ultimately triumph over the Wreckers and take the series and the championship from the northern outfit. Owen Sound, according to the Petes' right-winger are stronger than the club the Petes eliminated last season. They are fast and play well together but Honey states they are very light and that if the big Kingston team really laid on the bodychecking barrage they would knock the Wreckers right out of the picture. The two clubs are now tied with two games each in their best four-of-seven series and the Combines hope to take the next two games played in Kingston later this week and wind the whole thing up then.

The fact that not a National Hockey League regular player has enlisted for overseas service since war began is in sharp contrast to the record set up by the pro loop in the first Great War. Connie Smythe was overseas as an artilleryman and then a flyer, Dick Irvin, Canadiens' coach was a despatch rider, Red Dutton was a sergeant with the Princess Pats, Art Duncan, defence star was in the Air Force. Scotty Davidson, Kingston boy and one of the greatest players ever to wear a Toronto pro uniform was killed in France. So was Frank McGee, former Ottawa star. Minnie McGiffen of the Toronto club lost his life in a flying accident in Texas while training for overseas, Ottawa's Punch Broadbent was wounded in France. Other famous hockey players who were overseas were the stick-handling wizard Duke Keats, the late Goldy Prodgers, Joe Malone of Quebec, holder of high-scoring records, poke-checking Frank Nighbor and Oddie Cleghorn and Don Smith of the Canadiens.

Oshawa Even Junior Series

Toronto Marlboros and Oshawa Generals are all even up in their long drawn-out battle for the Junior A championship. The Oshawa gang won by 6 goals to 3 on their own ice last night and now each club has scored three victories. The decision is now all up to the seventh and final game which will be played in Toronto tomorrow night. Although the Generals have always had the faculty of arising to the occasion and producing their best game when they needed it the most the odds are against them on this occasion for they have had little luck battling the Marlboros in Toronto. It should be quite a tussle though and this column would not want to wager more than a second-hand doughnut on the result. A number of Peterborough fans have been taking in the junior battles at Oshawa and getting more kick out of them than out of the Stanley Cup series.

* * * * * *

While the Marlboro juniors were absorbing a beating at Oshawa last night the senior Dukes were being kicked around by Montreal Royals at Maple Leafs Gardens. The Marlboros were beaten 6 to 1 last night, the absence of Bobby Copp from the defence hurting a lot and are now out of the Allan Cup series. Plenty of fans, in and out of Toronto will be sorry for those Dukes have impressed a lot of folk by the way they have battled against odds all season and especially for their refusal to take advantage of the military replacement rule and bolster up their team for the playdowns. They stuck to the bunch that had opened the season for them, battled all and sundry to win the O.H.A. title and have made a good showing against the power-packed Royals.

Bowie To Have 8 Races A Day

BOWIE, Md., April 1 (AP) — To the followers of the bangtails, tomorrow marks the turn of a season, the opening of Bowie's eleven-day spring race meeting and the return of the horses to big-time racing in the Eastern United States.

For the first time, Bowie will offer eight races a day, instead of seven, and Joseph A. Farrell, general manager of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association's "course in the pines," predicted that this, together with improved economic conditions, would boost the mutuel handle.

The average daily handle at last year's spring meeting was $276,000, and the association is hoping that the average at this meeting will reach $325,000.

With about 2,000 runners on hand, there was a gratifying response to the call for entries for the initial eight-race card. Altogether, 112 horses were entered overnight for tomorrow's race.

Post time for the first race will be 3 p.m., E.D.T., with the forecast for clear weather and a fast track.

The $1,200 Bel Air, a 5½-furlong allowance dash for 3-year-olds, is listed as tomorrow's feature. Early favorite is Air Brigade, a winner in Florida.

The minimum purse at Bowie's meeting, which signals the beginning of Maryland's 36-day spring season, is $1,200.

SENIOR ROYALS ELIMINATE TORONTO MARLBOROS IN 6-1 TANGLE

Montreal Next Engages Millionaires

TORONTO, April 1.—(CP)—Only club in Eastern Canada with two teams still in the running for amateur hockey honors, Montreal Royals levelled a double-barrelled threat today at both senior and junior titles.

The senior Royals, fleet of foot and aggressive, rode into the Eastern final for the third straight time last night by trimming Ontario's Toronto Marlboros, 6-1. The Quebec champions next meet Sydney Millionaires, Maritime titleholders, for the right to represent the East in the Dominion final.

Idle since winning the Quebec crown two weeks ago, the Junior Royals meanwhile got back into action with an impressive 6-1 triumph over Ottawa Canadiens. Champions of Ottawa and district the Canadiens had eliminated the Maritime titleholders, Charlottetown Royals, to reach the Eastern semi-final.

Big and fast, the well-balanced juniors became favored to sweep the best-of-three series Wednesday on the Canadiens' home ice in Ottawa. Their real test, however, is expected from Ontario, where Oshawa Generals forced a deciding game in their final with Toronto Marlboros by winning, 6-3, last night.

Johnny Acheson, polished winger man, scored two goals to pace the Senior Royals to their victory over the Marlboros at Toronto. Upset 6-2 in Montreal Saturday night, the Royals returned to the form that gave them 3-1 and 3-2 victories in the first two games to sweep the series in four matches.

Opener On Thursday.

The opening match of the final with Sydney has been tentatively set for Thursday in Ottawa, where the Millionaires will have home ice for the best-of-five series. The second game will be in Montreal Saturday.

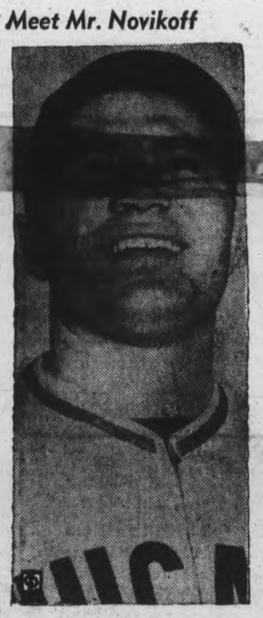
The Millionaires, who eliminated Hull Volants, Ottawa and district champions, in a semi-final, have been working out daily in Montreal. Dick Kowcinak, starry centre injured five weeks ago, is rounding into form but Coach Bill Gill received another worry yesterday when Remi Van Dale crashed into a goalpost during practice.

The defenceman was discharged from hospital after X-rays were taken, but it is still not known whether he will be ready for the opening game. His absence would create a serious problem for Gill, as Defenceman Mel Snowdon, injured some time ago, is not expected to be ready for the first game with Royals.

Two-time Memorial Cup champions, Oshawa bounced back from a 4-1 defeat Saturday to tie their best-of-seven series with Marlboros at 3-3 in games by their victory in Oshawa. Ron Wilson and Norm McAtee paced the Generals with two goals apiece to force the deciding game in the series at Toronto Wednesday.

The forward wall of Bud Farmer, Bobby Carruagher and Grant Morrison figured in all goals but one in the Royals' victory over Canadiens at Montreal. Carraugher picked up two goals and three assists, Farmer got two and Morrison scored one tally.

Meet Mr. Novikoff



LOU NOVIKOFF

A big batting average in the Pacific Coast league, plenty of color and natural ability—that's the makeup of the most famous rookie in many a year, Lou Novikoff, of the Chicago Cubs.

Novikoff, a Glendale, Ariz., native, blasted .363 for Los Angeles last year to lead the league. He clouted 41 home runs besides.

Off the field, Novikoff has more color than Daffy Dean had at his height. Lou sings, yodels, plays the harmonica, and is known as the "Mad Russian."

Novikoff began his career with Ponca City, Okla., in 1937, and moved up to Moline and then to the Texas league. He hit for amazing totals in all leagues.

The Sports Round-Up

By EDDIE BRIETZ, AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 1—(AP). — Some of the Cubs are a bit piqued because the midnight curfew doesn't apply to Dizzy Dean...Note to Van Mungo: One of the more reliable Broadway gossip columns says you'll be back with the Brooks if you don't hoist another Stein during the rest of the training season ...Billy Conn turned down a $10,000 flicker offer from M.-G.-M. because it would interfere with his tune-ups for Joe Louis.

Looks as if the fight writers muffed one when they said Joe Louis was the first man to put Abe Simon on the deck. Big Jim Thompson did it in Pittsburg...Mike Jacobs has issued his annual blast on betting in the Garden...Just skip it. — It's April Fool Day.

Headline: Dykes' riding making "Mad Russian" even madder.

As Novikoff can hear and see,
For Jimmy Dykes is quite as tough
As any on the Zuyder Zee.

Generals Whip Dukes 6-3 To Tie Series

OSHAWA, April 1.—(CP)—Oshawa Generals today were even with Toronto Marlboros at three wins each in the best-of-seven series for the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" championship and entry into the Eastern junior final.

Generals often have been down to Marlboros in this series, but last night came through with a 6-3 victory in the sixth game of the series, when defeat would have meant elimination and advancement of Marlboros along the Canadian junior championship route completed successfully by Oshawa teams for the last two seasons.

They were better than the starry Toronto club for the whole distance last night, scoring without an opposition reply early in the first period. From then on, they never were headed.

Ron Wilson and Norm McAtee each scored twice for Oshawa, with Wally Wilson and Roy Sawyer getting the other goals. Gaye Stewart, Bob Percival and Bobby Dew scored for Marlboros.

Metz, Kampman Given Place In Leaf Lineup

TORONTO, April 1 — (CP). — The old adage that nothing succeeds like success apparently means little to Coach Hap Day and Manager Conny Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs. Either that, or the Leafian brain trust pulled its April Fool's gag one day in advance.

Smythe and Day didn't explain the psychological angles of their decision, but last night announced possibility of a change in the Toronto lineup for to-night's game with Boston Bruins—sixth of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final.

The word that Don Metz may be injected into the lineup in place of Bob Davidson and that Bingo Kampman may be ready to take Jack Church's place on defence came as quite a surprise to those of the Leaf faithful who spent a weekend of dutiful reflection that the lineup which beat Boston Saturday night should be kept intact. It was generally accepted that Leafs' effort to take a 3-2 series lead Saturday was one of their best showings this season.

The April Fool's angle, of course, is quite possible. At this stage in a hockey season the old morale counts for plenty and nothing is quite so potent in the art of keeping a player at his keenest as stilmulation of his desire to remain a player, not a bench-warmer.

Meanwhile, Bruins growl defiance, as the sportswriters have it. They must win tonight, or go home for the season. Apart from the absence of Bill Cowley, they are in good shape, although Boston without Cowley is not a world-beating combination—or so it has seemed since the clever centre was injured and sidelined for the season.

Coach Cooney Weiland, holding forth last night, didn't consider Toronto's two victories on Boston ice had dampened the Bruin morale, and said he believed Boston would win tonight, forcing the series to seven games.

Rockne Legends Ride Coaches At Notre Dame

By EARL HILLIGAN
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 1 — (AP).—Heartley (Hunk) Anderson stepped into the toughest spot the football coaching game ever has known when he agreed to succeed Knute Rockne at Notre Dame.

The announcement of his engagement by Notre Dame was made April 10, 1931, just ten days after Rockne's death in an air-liner crash. The Notre Dame President, Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, declared: "There is no head coach at Notre Dame. Knute Rockne is always head coach. Hunk Anderson is the senior coach and Jack Chevigny the junior coach.'"

Anderson had two big jobs on his hands. One was the job of trying to fill Rockne's shoes; the other was the senior-junior coaching experiment, which didn't work out, principally because of friction which developed on the coaching staff.

Notre Dame didn't fare badly in 1931, losing twice and tying one game in nine starts, but by February of 1932 Chevigny had turned in his resignation.

In December of 1933, Anderson and the Irish athletic director, Jesse C. Harper, turned in their resignations, and two months later Notre Dame's famous "thin man," Elmer Layden, was installed in the head coach's and athletic director's office.

Wherever Notre Dame men gather, they'll argue about the comparative records of Rockne teams with those turned out by Anderson and Layden. Rockne's teams won 105 games, lost 12 and tied five. Anderson's three-year record was 16 won, nine lost and two tied. Layden's seven-year mark was 47 games won, 13 lost and three tied. The combined Anderson-Layden record, therefore, was 63 victories, 22 defeats and five ties.

Though Layden kept turning out good teams, he was under the "finger" of the Rockne legend. When his teams won, fans would refer to them as "teams that looked like those Rock used to turn out." When his teams lost, they were "Layden teams."

Donovan Quits As Referee In Galento Bout

WASHINGTON, April 1—(AP).—Arthur Donovan withdrew yesterday as referee for the Tony Galento-Buddy Baer heavyweight bout here April 8, and the District of Columbia Boxing Commission set out to find an official suitable to all parties in the so-called "battle of has-beens."

Donovan, who has publicly expressed his low opinion for Galento's fistic ability, was booked ten days ago as the third man in the ring, but Tony vowed last week that he wouldn't fight unless another referee was retained.

Two-Ton Tony said he hadn't forgiven Donovan for calling him a "bum."

New Gold Field

OTTAWA, April 1.—(CP)—The Department of Mines and Resources reported today that discoveries of gold "which showed promise of commercial importance" have been made in the vicinity of Snare and Emile rivers and Wray Lake in the Northwest Territories.

"Already a total of 500 claims has been staked in the new field which lies about 150 miles north of Yellowknife settlement, and preparations have been made for the carrying out of extensive exploratory and development work during the coming summer," the Department's weekly bulletin said.

In Air Corps

Only 20 weeks of flying lie between Bill Southworth and a commission in the air corps of the U.S. army, but nevertheless, when the aroma of spring is in the air, Bill remembers the days when he was a baseball star and he can't resist working out. Bill hails from Columbus, Ohio, but played outfield with the Canadian-American league. He got the award of the most valuable player in 1939, and that is the year he hit .346. He is probably the only man in history who ever worked out with a baseball bat, parachute and helmet.

War Victim, 14, Writes Her Thanks

HAVELOCK, April 1—(ENS). — Mrs. James Diaper, received the following letter from a 14-year-old British girl, Sylvia Mitchell:

"I expect you will be surprised to hear from me; I am one of London's war victims. Sylvia Mitchell is my name, and my age is 14 years. Our London home was bombed on September 7, 1940, but luckily my family and myself were safe, although our home and clothes were lost.

My daddy, who is serving in the R.A.F., evacuated us to this pretty village of Elsenham, where we are living in a small cottage. You will wonder how I have your address, but when I received the two pairs of lovely warm stockings, from the kind W.V.S. lady, your name and address was attached, so I took the pleasure of writing and thanking you and the Canadian folks for your kindness to us in Britain.

I have two other sisters and a brother besides myself, and we are always discussing the different places in Canada, and I should like to correspond with the people overseas. Where I came from in London the place was called Poplar; we had blocks of flats named after different places in Canada: Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, and many others, so you can tell how eager I am to hear from someone in Canada."

Red Cross Activity

The Havelock Belmont Red Cross Society met on Monday afternoon in the Council Chamber at 2.30 o'clock, with an attendance of 30. During the afternoon two large quilts were quilted and several bound ready for shipping. The surgical department packed ready for shipping, 600 compresses, 440 wipes and 160 pads. The cutting committee spent the afternoon cutting out pyjamas ready for willing hands to make.

The following donations were received: quilt material from Mrs. Wannamaker, a quilt top from Miss Eliza Wright, and a donation of $1 from Mrs. John Wright to buy material for quilting. On motion of Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Spencer, a vote of thanks was extended to all for their kind donations.

Convener Mrs. Robert Jones reminded all of the Amateur Night being sponsored on Friday night, and urged all members to sell their tickets and also asked them to make candy.

Some correspondence was read by the secretary, Mrs. Charles Couch, who announced that further instructions as to how to make them had been sent. Instructions for knitting have also been received with the request that these be given to members who knit.

A bolt of grey flannel was received to make boys' knickers. On motion of Mrs. H. W. Roche and Miss ...ously ill.

Mrs. Harry Pollock is spending a few days in Oshawa, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. Drinkle.

Eric Anderson of Toronto spent Sunday with his wife and daughter Louise.

Miss Reta Southward entertained at a shower in the honor of Miss Dorothy Toms of Peterborough, formerly of Havelock, on Thursday evening, whose wedding takes place in the early part of April. A very pleasant evening was spent by all, after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

in the short local train which left Montreal yesterday afternoon for Perth, but none were injured.

The freight was an extra, eastbound for Smiths Falls to Montreal. Part of its load was war materials. Like most fast freights it was not scheduled to stop at Inkerman, and was speeding past the station at about 7.30 p.m. E.D.T.

From the other direction came the passenger train, slowing down for its brief Inkerman halt

The passenger train was almost stopped, its engine level with the station; half the 66-car freight already had roared past.

Then something went wrong with an oncoming freight car. The back half of the freight swayed and twisted. A car buckled across the rails, ramming against the passenger locomotive and throwing it into the station, on its side.

The remaining freight cars thundered on, telescoping themselves into splinters, rearing on end as they plowed over cars ahead, tearing up more than 300 feet of ties and rails.

Railway officials in Montreal and Ottawa, said cause of the accident had not been determined definitely, but railwaymen and others at Inkerman saiad they were convinced a defective axle on one of the freight cars was to blame.

Hears Terrible Crash.

Donald Burleigh, working on a farm near the station, said his first intimation of the accident was "a terrible crash."

"I rushed over to the station," he said. "All I could see for a minute was dense clouds of steam and dust.

"As I got closer I saw that the engine of the passenger train had fallen on its side into the station.

"Ed Pennett, the station agent, and Bill Maxwell, section boss (who later died), were climbing from the back window of the wrecked station. They were pretty badly burned from the steam which filled the station but got out without any help.

"Wood from the smashed cars was all over the place. It sure was a mess."

Other eye-witnesses said they saw Engineer Plato grabbing at the sill of his cab in an effort to get out after the crash, but he slumped back. It was minutes before rescuers could get into the steam-filled cab. Plato and Fireman Plunkett then were dead.

Macdonald, 50, was riding on the tender of the passenger train, just behind the engine. He said after the accident he boarded the train at Chesterville, about 10 miles east of Inkerman, trying to get to Smiths Falls to look for work.

"I was sitting on the tender when it suddenly slammed up beside the freight train," the Montrealer said. "It began to fall toward the station and I heard the roar of steam from the boilers a few feet ahead.

"I was afraid of being scalded. I pulled myself up to the top part of the tender as it lay on its side.

"I certainly feel lucky to be alive."

this time that the less control there is of business by the government, the better it is for business and the better it is for government."

Drew In Agreement

Approving the withdrawal, Conservative Leader George Drew said there was too great a tendency to set up supervisory bodies for every type of business activity. Another objection, he said, was that the bill didn't define a business broker.

"However, it is time the individual got back to the old principle of being careful before buying," continued Col. Drew. "We have softened up the public into thinking they'll be protected no matter what they buy."

Mr. Elgie said he regretted the withdrawal because during his experience in the criminal courts, he had learned of "thousands of cases where people have been victimized by these unscrupulous individuals."

A bill to amend the Magistrates' Act was referred back to the Legal Bills Committee, when objections were raised over clauses pertaining to the retiring age of magistrates and their pensions.

Leopold Macaulay (Con. York South) criticized the clause that would require a city to pay the magistrate upon his retirement.

Enough Pay to Pension Self.

"I belong to the school of hard thought which believes that a person should receive sufficient remuneration while employed to provide for his own pension," declared Mr. Macaulay.

The retiring age for magistrates at present in office is fixed at 75 and for those appointed in future at 70. Col. Drew contended it should be either one or the other.

Mr. Conant said to make the age 70 would result in the removal immediately of at least 12 magistrates, all of whom are particularly efficient men.

A bill to amend the Devolution of Estates Act, which had precipitated several exchanges on its previous appearance, passed through committee without difficulty. The Bill gives the widow of a man dying intestate priority rights on the first $5,000 of the estate and two-thirds of the residue. Under the old law the widow received only the first $1,000 and one-half of the remainder.

War Equipment

Last Summer the main War Appropriations Bill for the fiscal year starting today was passed recently, authorizing expenditure of $1,300,000. Finance Minister Ilsley said the supplementary bill was based on the closest possible estimate of sums required to meet outlays up to last night. He gave a breakdown of the expenditure of $835,000,000 by departments, which showed the army the largest spending agency with $404,714,000. The Air Force required $185,000,000, the Department of Munitions and Supply $95,000,000 and the navy $85,193,000.

Mr. Ilsley was pressed on the one hand to relax foreign exchange control restrictions, and on the other to extend them by prohibiting imports of fresh fruits and vegetables, but gave no assurance on either point.

No Pleasure Trips to U.S.

He said with Canada spending hundreds of millions of dollars on war purchases in the United States expenditures on pleasure travel in that country could not be permitted.

"It would not be fair to say we were in a desperate position, but we are in a serious position as far as our stock of United States exchange is concerned," said Mr. Ilsley. "It should also be remembered that our pleasure travel restrictions conserve for us somewhere between $60,000,000 and $70,000,000 in United States funds a year."

Replying to a suggestion from Howard Green (Con., Vancouver South) that travel restrictions might be eased, the minister said he did not think keeping Canadians at home affected United States tourist travel in Canada. He wished all restrictions could be done away with, but did not think the government could permit some people to travel outside the country when low income groups were being asked to save and make sacrifices.

Conservative House Leader Hanson charged Canadian fiscal policy was being "dictated from Washington," when Mr. Ilsley said United States made strong representations against an embargo on the import of fruits and vegetables.

The minister said he did not think the United States had been unfair. Canada had a trade agreement with that country under which large quantities of goods were exported there. The United States had agreed to import restrictions under the war escape clauses of the treaty, but not to restrictions on fruit and vegetables.

The Government decided it would not be justified in endangering the whole agreement by broad fruit and vegetable restrictions. The loss of Canada's market for cattle in the United States would have been serious.

"That was not in danger," said a member.

"It was," said Mr. Ilsley, "there comes a point where the agricultural clauses of the agreement would have gone just like that (snapping his fingers) if we went too far and we did not want to go that far."

The Fruit Situation

Gordon Graydon (Con. Peel) and Norman Lockhart (Con. Lincoln) said fruit and vegetable import restrictions offered a chance to conserve foreign exchange and also help the producers in Canada.

Mr. Ilsley agreed some fruit and vegetables could be shut out but did not think the entire importation, amounting to about $22,000,000 a year could have been done away with.

Col. Ralston's summary of the military equipment situation, in brief, was as follows:—

Field guns, anti-tank guns; anti-aircraft guns; no deliveries yet; some anti-aircraft gun barrels delivered; anti-tank guns expected soon, of which a small number will be kept in Canada for training and the bulk sent overseas;

Three-inch mortars: Manufacture under way but deliveries not expected for some time;

Lee-Enfield rifles: Enough on hand for operational purposes in Canada; United States rifles being used for training the reserve army;

Bren guns: Now being issued to troops in training on an adequate scale; all units proceeding overseas to be fully equipped with Brens before they leave, production to date three times that called for in contracts; Canada shipping one-third of guns ordered for this country overseas in addition to guns ordered for Great Britain.

Heavy machine guns: Enough on hand for all present needs.

Universal carriers: Deliveries coming at a good rate.

Signal equipment: Production setbacks overcome and prospects good.

Much Ammu..ition.

Small arms ammunition: Producing enormous quantities for Great Britain but keeping in Canada only enough for current needs.

Gas masks: Getting deliveries in large quantities and now filling big order for South Africa.

Col. Ralston said that when production of 25-pounder field guns starts the bulk will be sent overseas, following the cardinal policy of sending equipment where it was most needed.

He told the House Canada obtained an increased supply of field guns last summer and most had now been "high speeded" (equipped with rubber-tire wheels), as had practically all the 1-pounder guns. There were enough of these guns to equip the 3rd and 4th Divisions.

The House passed a bill appointing auditors for the Canadian National Railways on second reading and made progress with bills amending the Trans-Canada Air Lines Act and the Precious Metals Marking Act.

A long and sharp debate developed at the night sitting on two bills sponsored by Resources Minister Crerar. The first, to reduce the size of Prince Albert National Park, got through committee stage only after a standing vote in which all Opposition members opposed it.

Mr. Crerar was also peppered with questions on a bill to restrict shipment of game from one part of the country to another and little progress was made.

Edmonton Soldiers In England Would Reward Dummer Youth

Last September five year old Lloyd Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thompson, Dummer township, saved his two small sisters and younger brother from death when the four were trapped in a blazing haymow on their farm near Warsaw, and the story and pictures were carried in papers all across Canada.

Today a story comes from the Edmonton Journal that should bring a thrill to this little boy hero, and with the story comes a tattered letter from six husky soldiers in England voicing admiration for the action of the youngster. The letter has been across the Atlantic twice and finally arrived at the office of the Edmonton Journal with a plea that the editor attempt to make delivery of the letter.

In brief the bravery of the five year old boy in pushing and pulling his two younger sisters and brother from the flaming loft so stirred the admiration of six husky Canadian soldiers overseas that they wrote to "real little man" expressing admiration and six troopers signed it.

Appeared in Journal

Picture of the children appeared in the Edmonton Journal last October and one of the soldiers somewhere in England received a copy of that paper. The letter was sent addressed to Lloyd Thompson, care of Mrs. Jack Thompson, Peterboro. Failure to deliver the letter brought it back to Trooper S. D. Stubbert, the writer, whose home is in Edmonton. He sent the letter back across the war torn Atlantic again, this time to the Edmonton Journal asking that it be forwarded. It arrived at the office of the Edmonton paper this month and with an explanatory note and the newspaper clipping showing the children's picture the letter arrived at the Examiner office this morning.

The letter reads as follows:—Trooper M-16400 Stubbert, S.D. No. 3 Troop, 2nd Canadian Recc Squadron, 1st Division Base P.O. England.

Dear Lloyd:—No doubt you will be surprised to hear from us fellows but we saw your picture in the Edmonton Journal telling how bravely you saved Betty, Shirley and your brother Johnnie from a burning barn.

Lloyd, we think you are a real little man and wish to send our compliments. It's boys like you that make the best soldiers in the world when they grow into manhood.

We all hope that the city of Peterborough gives you a medal for your deed as we know you deserve one.

There isn't much more that we can say just now only we are with the First Division in England since January 1st, 1940. Our work is all done on Motorcycles.

So sonny when it comes our turn to face the German soldiers we'll try and be brave like you when you saved Betty and Johnny and Shirle.

Will close now hoping Santa Claus will be good to Soldier Lloyd Thompson and that your burns are all better we remain your pals,

Troopers, Sid Stubbert, Jack Hankley, Allen Loutit, Kenneth Freeman, Frank R. Young and C. W. M. Hepburn."

That is the letter and the original is being forwarded to the postmaster at Warsaw for delivery to Mrs. Jack Thompson in Dummer.

Unfortunately the Royal Humane Society does not give medals to anyone who saves a member of their family, but the medal idea is still one that some group or individual might give consideration.

To Be or Not To Be

A Message from
The Newspaper Publishers Committee
HON. W. A. BUCHANAN, CHAIRMAN

TO put it baldly at the start, we Canadians are caught square in a dilemma...

Every thinking man here would seem to have good right to be complacent in the enjoyment of his free thought, his free movement, his free choice, his free speech.

But if he thinks still harder, he should see that very complacency as the gravest danger which he faces!

We have good cause to be smug . . . and we're lost if we are!

Even in the midst of our bitter fight, while we work and save and sacrifice, we still are free to think as we wish, to criticize where criticism is due. Military secrets aside, we know the government's plans because actually it is our government. We know which citizens, which leaders are rising to the occasion. We know who is shirking too . . . Our newspapers still give us the FACTS!

And these facts are the one thing most essential to keep us free. Facts from which we can make up our own minds on how to vote, how to save, where to buy, whom to trust.

To know which law to approve, or which store to shop at, or which leader to follow, we must go on getting the facts from our newspaper . . . even while the Editor retains his right to interpret them differently than you do!

But we cannot be complacent! Rather we must be glad, proud, and ALERT!

For recent history shows us all too clearly that, besides a ruthless military enemy, we face internal dangers also . . . Shows us how easy it is for free democracies to sleep smugly and wake up to find the strength to keep their freedom gone.

Tiny voluntary surrenders, each insignificant in itself . . . restrictions on this detail and that, each so plausibly needed at the time . . . these can so suddenly fit together into total surrender.

In sober truth, France fell before ever Poland was invaded!

Enchain the press, bemuse the mind, enslave the body! That is the deadly cycle to avoid. And the newspaper is the first defense.

It asks no favours, no special consideration." It realizes its own shortcomings, its own obligations.

But your newspaper does ask your understanding of the vital part it plays in protecting your freedom.

It does ask you to read your paper thoughtfully, to talk with others about what you learn from reading it, to think twice before you let silence give consent to seemingly innocent restrictions on your right to have the facts!

When you see that right threatened, when you yourself know of news that doesn't get printed, do something about it. Talk to your neighbour, write the editor . . . It's your own hide you'll be helping to save.

Above all, let's not be too sure our blessings are safe from our own complacency! Remember, it's your children's future that's at stake!

NOTE: The Newspaper Publishers Committee, speaking through its chairman, will bring you one of these institutional advertisements in this space each week. Clubs, patriotic societies, business firms or individuals who would like reprints may have them by writing to the Business Office of this newspaper.

A good representation of the members of the 4th Field Battery volunteered for active service Monday night, when they were asked to declare their intentions in the direction of service. Satisfaction is felt with the showing, and many who were not in a position to say "yes" immediately have indicated their willingness to think it over and give their answer at a later date. Many other residents of Peterborough have expressed interest in the Anti-Aircraft Battery being formed, and some will be medically boarded Tuesday afternoon it is expected.

THE RUSH IS ON

Clerks at the Post Office had a busy day yesterday as local citizens flocked to the Post Office to purchase radio licenses. At one time during the day there were two lines of purchasers standing in the lobby, with at least ten people in each line. The deadline for old licenses is April 1st.

Parents Heard In Broadcast

LAKEFIELD, April 1.—As ten-year-old John Church sat huddled in front of a radio in Grove School, Lakefield, on Monday night, he heard the voices of his mother and father who are three thousand miles away, in England. "There they are," gasped John, who had not heard those beloved sounds since June, when he became a war guest to Canada at the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. J. Errington of Toronto.

John is one of twelve English boys now at Grove School, and when his father said, "Remember, my son, you must work hard and play hard," he sobbed, but smiled as he turned. Each emotion as it registered showed a spirit typical, the one which is the essence of such thoughts as the song "There'll Always be an England."

The story told by the boy and his eight-year-old chum, John Tresting, is one that might be heard in any one of a hundred Canadian centres since the war began, but it is one filled with the heart throb apparently shunned by those who wish to seem hardened. The first John is a native of Bedfordshire, he proudly tells, "Millhouse, Bromham, Bedfordshire," and the Tresting home is in Harrold, Bedfordshire.

A few years ago, John Tresting's father met the Erringtons while on an ocean cruise, and because the family appreciated the difficulty experienced by English parents the boy and John Church were invited to Canada when England came to be considered dangerous. Two girls came too, a sister of each of the boys, and are now studying at Branksome Hall in Toronto.

Weekly Broadcast

The broadcast on Monday night was one of those arranged for youthful Englishmen whose parents are still in peril of Hitler's bombers in the old land, and though John Tresting's turn has not yet come, he was beside his buddy when the parents spoke. As the announcer told the names of the Church couple, John motioned with is hands, and a sob escaped him. When he turned, a tear coursed down his face but it was quickly brushed aside by a shaking hand.

In a very few minutes it was all over, but home among the flowing streams and fields of England had been brought ever so close for one little boy with a stout, though sometimes aching heart. An Examiner reporter was privileged in being at the side of the lad when he heard his parents, and he feels proud of the part he had to play in it. The boys and their masters at the school had been listening before he arrived, but had given it up, believing they had missed the broadcast. The boys obliged the reporter by posing for a photograph, and the radio was on. Just before the picture was taken, the program began, and the second voice to be heard was that of John's father. There was drama, just as the lad had begun to stiffen that British lip in his disappointment, the broadcast came through.

Told of Trip

While chatting later, both boys were anxious to tell of their trip to Canada. A German submarine was sunk by a destroyer in their convoy. "It attacked us at night," said John Tresting, "like the German always do, but they know what they'll get now."

"We came over on the Empress of Bermuda, if you want to know the name of the ship," John Church volunteered.

When asked how he liked Canada and the Canadian winters, John Church said "Fine, only I broke a tooth, and that wouldn't have happened had I been in England. I like Canada, but I would rather be in England. I broke the tooth while on a toboggan.."

The assistant matron at the school, herself a war guest, is Mrs. Jack Mactaggart, daughter-in-law of Sir John A. Mactaggart. In response to the query, "Do the English boys take to Canadian sports?" She proudly admitted that her son, Neil, had won the junior interscholastic championship. J. W. Crawford, one of the masters told of the interest shown on the part of the boys in Canadian winter customs, and said that in many cases the Canadian boys were even forced to take a back seat by their visiting rivals.

Most of the boys who are visiting from England have been at the school since September, and splendid progress has been reported on the part of all of them. "They're a grand lot of boys," said Mr. Crawford, "there isn't a prune among them."

Crown Closes Its Case Against Burns

With the evidence of Prof. Joslyn Rogers of the University of Toronto that money found on Lawrence Burns was scorched and the scorching could have been done by the flame from a blow torch, the crown this morning practically finished its case against Lawrence Burns, charged with breaking and entering the C.D.S. store here on the morning of Sunday, February 3.

The case, heard before Judge S. L. Smoke in the county judge's criminal court, has seen nearly a score of crown witnesses called and 35 exhibits entered.

The evidence this morning followed closely the pattern of the preliminary hearing and there were few new details.

A feature however was the continuous objection by Mannis Frankel, defence counsel, to evidence being admitted referring to other suspects in the case, particularly Louis Gallow.

"I think Your Honor should make a definite ruling on this," he said at one stage in the proceedings. "We have been hearing Gallow, Gallow all the way through. Let us drop Gallow for a while and get on with Burns."

"The ruling was made yesterday," replied Judge Smoke. "It was that the evidence would be admitted and your objection noted."

Detective Edmund Tong was recalled for one question by Mr. Frankel concerning the bag that Burns had when he was taken back to Toronto after being re-arrested here on his release on bail. Tong said he could not remember exactly but it was not a small bag.

Lorn Henderson, manager of the investigation department of the T. Eaton Company recalled receiving a ledger card from J. H. Jamison of the C.D.S. store on February 5. It had been handed over to Detective Tong, he said.

Tells of Arrest

Christopher Pagett, Windsor police constable testified to arresting Burns in Windsor on February 12 in company with William Bradd. When first seen the two men wanted had been on the roof of a two-storey building.

Pagett told of searching Burns and finding keys, a watch, and $95.10; $85 had been in an inner watch pocket.

"Did you observe any burn marks on the bills?" asked Mr. Frankel.

"I didn't look for any," replied the witness.

Constable Pagett said he had not noticed what kind of a bag Burns had.

Police Evidence

Other witnesses in addition to Professor Rogers heard were Detective Sergt. John Nimmo and Detective Oliver E. Borland of the Toronto Police Department.

Detective Sergt. Nimmo told of various visits to the home of Louis Gallow, 171 Mutual street in Toronto, and of obtaining a pair of shoes, he said belonging to Gallow there. With Mr. Frankel objecting, the witness tsetified to obtaining a sum of money, and also to getting $237 from Leonia Lexia, whom he described as "Gallow's girl friend."

Detective Borland, finger print expert of the Toronto Police Department, said the heel mark found on a ledger card on the floor near the safe in the C.D.S. store after the burglary was identical with an impression he had made of the right heel of a pair of shoes found in Gallow's house and said to belong to him.

Professor Joslyn Rogers swore that some of the bills turned over to him as having been found on Lawrence Burns, Louis Gallow, Thomas Nicholls and William Bradd were all scorched in a similar manner.

The small safe from the C.D.S. store he said had been opened by means of a blow torch.

Asked by W. B. Common, K.C., if bills placed in cloth bags and put in that safe could have been scorched by the flame from a blow torch, Professor Rogers replied that "that type of scorching could have been done by the heat caused from a blow torch." The witness said that in the case of bills found on Bradd and Nicholls metal particles identical with the metallic composition of the safe had been found. Inside the safe he had found particles of charred cloth and burned iron.

"Will you on oath say that the marks on any of those bills were made by the flame from a torch?" asked Mr. Frankel.

"I am merely stating, and it is not necessary to remind me that I am on oath, that this money has been burned and it could have been burned by the flame from a torch," said Professor Rogers.

"It could have been burned by a flaming match?"

"Yes, or by any other kind of a flame."

Professor Rogers was positive that the safe had been cut through with a blow torch and not by the use of an electric arc," he said in reply to a question from defence counsel.

His testimony wound up the morning session and in all probability the crown's case.

P.C.V.S. Students Make Donation To Aid War Victims

Peterborough City and District War Victims' Fund with headquarters at the Examiner office was richer today by $150, a contribution from the students at the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School. Presentation of the cheque was made at Assembly today by Warren Gamble president of the Students' Council, to F. G. Mann, director of the fund, and he is shown (TOP RIGHT) handing over the cheque to Mr. Mann. Louis Yeotes, second from the LEFT, received a cheque for $50 for the Greek War Relief Fund from the student body. Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate, is shown Second from the RIGHT. Dr. Kenner has been a booster of the fund since its inception in December, and his kindly interest in all forms of war work has acted as a stimulant on the pupils who have set a Dominion record in the sale of War Savings Stamps.

P.C.I. Students Donate $150 To War Victims

A splendid gesture of Canadian student patriotism featured the assembly exercises at the Collegiate this morning when Warren Gamble, president of the Students' Council, made the presentations. The pupils made a real success of their play which was shown recently and then held a round table conference to determine what disposition would be made of the money.

The decision reached was to donate the sum of $150.00 to the Peterborough British War Victims' Fund, $50.00 for Greek War Relief, and $50.00 to the girls of the school to help carry on their war work. Mr. Gamble made the presentations to F. G. Mann and Louis Yeotes in front of the student body this morning, and both men received generous applause on their appearance on the stage.

In accepting the money, Mr. Mann voiced the pleasure he had at seeing young Canadians come through so nobly to the assistance of the distressed blood brothers in England.

"Your contribution this morning puts the Fund over the mark that permits the sending of the fifth £500 to England, and also means that we have a small sum with which to start on the next £500. This city of Peterborough has shown the way to all cities across Canada in the matter of raising money for war work, and not to be outdone, the students of this school have won the commendation of all not only in Ontario but in the Dominion for their magnificent work in organizing and carrying out the sale of war savings stamps and certificates."

"You have a wonderful city to live in you belong to the best nation in the world, and your generous act to-day indicates beyond all doubt you desire to cherish and protect the noble heritage that is yours. It warms my heart to see this substantial donation coming from the pupils and on behalf of those gallant, courageous people who are holding back the Huns on the other side of the Atlantic, I thank you."

Louis Yeotes, who has conducted what amounts to a one man campaign in the city to raise funds for Greek war relief apparently enjoys a full measure of popularity with the student body. When Warren Gamble handded Mr. Yeotes the cheque for $50.00 there was a burst of applause, and when Mr. Yeotes voiced his thanks they applauded him again.

$2 500 Raised

"On behalf of the Greeks in Canada and my gallant countrymen who are helping Britain defeat Mussolini and Hitler, I want to thank you sincerely for this splenidd contribution. There are not many Greeks in Peterborough but the people showed they were with us by giving generously and I can report now that counting the tag day returns we have raised close to $2,500. I want you to remember that the very best ideals which we are all fighting to retain had their origin in my native land, Greece, centuries ago and it is my belief that England and Greece will go on together to victory in the near future."

This morning the contributions to the fund had reached a total of 512,261.43, and permission has been sought to-day from the Foreign Exchange Control Board to transfer this £500 to England. This money should be on its way before the week-end.

Last Friday night the Young People's Club of Trinity United church staged a play, "Here Comes Patricia" in the Reid street hall and many people were unable to obtain entrance. In order to accommodate all, the show is being repeated on Friday night next at 8 o'clock in the same hall, but this time the money goes to the British War Victims' Fund and a capacity audience should be assured. Admission is only 25 cents.

The following is the list to-day:

Previously acknowledged	$11,107.63
Box at McLeod's Drug Store	2.13
Box at McMahon's Store, Crawford's Grove	1.67
Peterborough Collegiate Institute	150.00
Total to date	$12,261.43

Don't Mail Matches Public Is Warned

Don't include matches in your parcel mail to Canadian fighting men overseas, Postmaster-General W. P. Mulock warned as a result of a recent mail sack blaze at Ottawa's base postoffice. The fire was due to a parcel containing "safety" matches, along with other articles addressed to a Canadian unit in England.

This was not the first time that matches and cigarette lighter fluid had been found in mail bundles. Such a practice is contrary to postal regulations, and the Postmaster-General is asking the co-operation of the public in keeping such things out of the mails. Had the mail sack burst into flame aboard ship, the fire might have destroyed the vessel, it was pointed out.

Military Drums Ordered For Cadet Corps

Supervision committee of the Board of Education approved the purchase of eight military side drums for the Peterborough Collegiate cadet corps at a meeting held on Monday evening. The drums are to be purchased from Boddington and Company at Toronto at a cost of $19.26 each. This represents a saving of aproximately six dollars on each drum based on the lowest price received prior to this week.

This saving keeps the Board well within the appropriation of $1937.00 which was originally set aside for Collegiate cadets. The Board also purchased forty swagger sticks for the cadet officers at a cost of $16.00.

The sympathy of the Board was extended to F. E. Johnson, director of the Vocational School on the death of his father-in-law at Ridgetown, Ont., last Sunday.

After some discussion it was decided to approve of the secretary's suggestion that complete employment records be kept of all employees, and that they be compiled at once and filed as confidential records.

Insurance Discussed

Considerable discussion followed the reopening of the insurance question and the final decision of the Finance Committee was to seek the aid of the agents in the city who have acted before in an advisory capacity to the Board.

The question of paying school teachers by the bank deposit method is nearing fruition and with D. T. Diplock, chairman of the Finance Committee presiding the members approved of the plan as outlined at an earlier meeting. It was decided also that one cheque would be issued to one bank in the city and this bank would be responsible for the distribution of moneys to the other banks in the city. A service charge of three cents a name per month will be made by this central bank, and this also met with the approval of the members.

A letter from Thomas Ephgrave, regarding the cost of valuating school property was laid over for another meeting.

Mayor's Message to Landlords

Hon. W. M. Martin, K.C., Rentals Administrator of the Canadian Wartime Prices and Trade Board, recently wrote a letter to the City Council in which he discussed some features of the housing problem as it pertains to Peterborough.

Hon. Mr. Martin stated in part in his letter, "This situation in my opinion warrants serious consideration and I shall be glad if you will ask the Mayor and Council to give consideration to the matter of whether or not rent control should be applied in this city."

The City Council believes that landlords deserve a fair return on their investment, and that rents in general during the depression did not provide this return. An adjustment in rents in fairness to landlords was to be expected as conditions improved in the city.

Peterborough's landlords represent a fine group of citizens that are the backbone of the city's municipal life. As a group they are honorable, fair and reasonable men. However, it appears that some have been inclined to take advantage of the existing housing shortage and some rents have been increased unreasonably. Such cases cause tenants to suffer and give some cause to the suggestion of Hon. Mr. Martin that rent control should be applied here.

Peterborough is a progressive city, and the Council has the opinion that rent control may interfere with that progress, particularly in the erection of the new houses that are so urgently needed.

The Council is therefore appealing to all landlords to lend their full co-operation in this emergency, particularly since it has arisen from the effort being made by Peterborough factories to supply the Empire with needed war equipment. If rents are increased unreasonably this will interfere directly in employment and production in our factories and retard the future expansion of Peterborough.

With this in mind, I trust the confidence of the Council of Peterborough, in the city's landlords, has not been misplaced, and that rents will be kept on a fair, reasonable basis to the benefit of all citizens.

Yours sincerely,

Jas. Hamilton

MAYOR.

Honoring Mr. W. F. Skitch, recently retired express agent, twenty-five local employees and ex-employees of the Canadian National Railways gathered at the C.N.R. freight offices for a social evening. There were games of cards and crokinole, and the gathering was entertained with songs and toasts by Mr. Robert Hendry.

Mr. Alpine McNabb, addressing Mr. Skitch as one ex-employee to another, gave useful tips on how to pass the time, stating that he had been on the retired list for five years and had enjoyed every minute of it.

In his reply to the address, Mr. Skitch expressed his appreciation for the loyalty and excellence of his staff, to whom a great deal of credit was due the success of the local office. An enjoyable evening was terminated with the serving of refreshments.

Salvation Army Presents Sacred Pageant

Concluding one of the most successful week-ends the Salvation Army has ever had in Peterborough was the presentation Monday evening of the sacred pageant, "Crusaders of the Cross," before an audience that overflowed the Temple. The young people who took charge of the week-end services, and who presented last night's pageant, are cadets from the Salvation Army Training School at Toronto, and will all receive offices and go out to their work on April 28.

They invaded the city eighty strong during the week-end, and their happy, smiling faces and voices raised in heart-lifting song were an inspiration to hundreds of Peterborough citizens. On Sunday the large audience who came to hear Captain Robert Hoggard, principal of the Salvation Army Training School, speak at morning services, and his wife and several cadets bring messages in the evening, could not all be accommodated. Mass singing was a feature of these services, and to many the glory of song that comes straight from the heart has taken on a deeper and more significant meaning than ever bfeore.

Impressive to a marked degree was the presentation of "Crusaders for Jesus" not only because it was given by a cast who are especially trained in this form of religious art, and because they wore robes typical of the days of Christ's life on earth, but mainly because of the quality and timbre of youthful voices thrilling with the fervor of their faith.

Hymns illustrating the tradition of the crucifixion, including such immortal numbers as "Holy Spirit, Truth Divine," during the choosing of Matthias to take the place of Judas who "by transgression fell," "Holy, Holy, Holy," and "Gracious Spirit," which portrayed "the Day of Pentecost," were heard. The musical tableau carried on through the arrest of the disciples, the death of Stephen, the march of Paul, a triumphant prisoner, to Jerusalem, and other episodes, finishing with the final song, "Crusaders for Jesus."

The pageant was presented under the guidance of Adjutant Stanley Genney, in charge of dramatics, and Captain Winnifred Lesher, who conducted the singing and playing, and is to be presented in Montreal on the evening of Easter Day. The audience joined in the opening song "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and prayer was led afterward by Ralph Braund.

Mrs. Long will be at home to her friends this afternoon, and with her will be her sons and daughters, Mrs. J. Gerard, Aylmer Street; Mr. Frank Kitney, Crescent Street; Mr. Alex. Long, Gladstone Avenue, and Mr. Bert Long of Otonabee.

Peter Robinson Chapter Sponsors Fashion Show

Varied as the changing moods of Spring was the showing of Spring Fashions Monday night in the Y.W.C.A., a radiant preview under the auspices of Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., with proceeds to go toward the organization's war work. The show ran the gamut of utility coats, sportswear, charming little "dress up" outfits, formal attire, and hat that were a story in themselves. Piano music added to the charm of the presentation, and as models made their appearance before a throng of interested spectators in the Recreation and Green Rooms, it seemed as though the Easter Parade had taken a long and graceful step forward.

Narrow silhouettes, soft sloping shoulders, capes that emphasize style, hats that are the essence of smart flattery, colors that catch the eye, prints that go everywhere are items that seemed to stand out. Three-piece suits, redingotes and jackets made the best of the military effect, and hats and bags matched their colors.

Coming to specific costumes, there was a clever beige coat lined with the polka dot material which fashioned the slim midriff of the brown frock beneath. With it was worn a beige straw sailor looped with brown taffet. The redingote, so much in the front line this season, was seen in many lovely pastel ensembles. One outstanding model, a printed silk dress, used print for its matching coat lapels, and there was a flower hat of hyacinth blue, with a red fox jacket as the final touch of elegance.

Navy and white was seen in many combinations. One effective outfit was a plain tailored navy with white blouse and jabot and a navy hat with white pique trimming. Included in the coat group was a varicolored wool material with straight stripes on the skirt and forming an interesting pattern across the back. There was a scarlet scarf at the neck, and the swagger felt hat and capacious bag were of navy. A black and white check frock had a scarlet jacket and matching check skull-cap with dashing scarlet feather.

Many matrons' ensembles were shown that any woman would wear with pride, including a grey dress with separate matching coat. Simply tailored, it depended on clever tucking and elegance of cut for the touch of the superb. A wide-brimmed purple straw hat was a happy choice of hats for this costume.

Furs accompanied many of the outfits. There were jackets of silver fox, natural wolf and natural lynx, and luxurious neckpieces of stone martin, silver fox and kolinsky. Bags were large, in shiny patent, or soft leathers that picked up the pastel tones of costumes, and jewelry, lovely things to blend or accent the frock they accompanied, seemed an essential part of ensembles.

That a gown of traditional old ivory satin had been chosen for the bride seemed happily appropriate. The yoke was of Alencon lace and net the skirt flowing into a short train designed for the not-too-formal wedding at which the bridegroom wears military dress. A graceful net veil was worn, and the model carried a sheaf of pale pink roses. Her attendance was in lovely blue organza, the frock made with lace-edged pinafore front gathered into a bow at the back. A quaint nosegay of sweet peas added to the old-fashioned air of the costume.

Models included Mrs. W. A. Hinds, Miss Muriel Stinson, Miss Mary Pierce, Mrs. A. B. Burrows, Mrs. Charles E. Renaud, Mrs. J. Vaughn Elliott, Miss Betty Cook, Mrs. J. Richardson, Miss Anne Heideman, Miss Mary Flynn, Miss Claire Doris, Miss Jean Walters, Miss Bernice Weart, Miss Mabel Nixon, Miss Jean Cowling, Miss Jean Belleghem, Miss Violet Davidson.

At the pianos were Mrs. W. Gordon, Mrs. L. R. Mitchell, Mrs. Adam Sands, Mrs. H. V. Dobson, Mrs. Fred Hooper and Mrs. I. H. Keefer were commentators, and Mrs. D. V. Canning and Mrs. Gordon Ham were in charge of fashions.

The regent, Mrs. E. V. Morphet, welcomed the guests. Tea was served in both the Recreation and Green Room from lace-covered tables attractive with tall tapers and centres of Spring flowers and pussy-willows. Mrs. F. L. Buckland, councillor, was convener of the committee in charge of refreshments.

Styles were shown from Lyda Telford's Read-to-Wear; Barries, Limited; the Robert Fair Company; Warne's Jewelry Store; Olga Haskill, Millinery, and the William Hamilton Fur Store. Draw prizes were donated by Lyda Telford, Olga Haskill, Barries, and the Robert Fair Company.

Temporary Separation Is Often Cure For Waning Love. Man Soon Finds He Misses All the Comforts of Settled Home Life If He Is Suddenly Deprived of Them.

Dear Miss Dix—My husband and I have been married for four years. Now he tells me that his heart doesn't seem to say: "Yes, I love you." I don't reproach him, for who can control their affections, but it is like a knife cutting into my heart. He tells me that he has the greatest respect for me and that I have been a true and devoted wife, but he has just grown tired of married life and wants to be free. There is no woman in the case. We have a nice little home and a car, of both of which we are very proud. We have discussed the problem of breaking up our home, but we feel that we couldn't face our friends and fellow employees if we did, as we are considered a very happy, congenial couple. How can this problem be solved? I am willing to do anything that will be for my husband's happiness. We have no children. R. B.

ANSWER—I think you will find the solution of your problem in a temporary separation. Your husband is going through an experience that is very common among married men, especially in families where there is no children. The glamor has worn off romantic love. The honeymoon has set and the husband and wife have settled down to the prosaic routine of everyday life. They no longer thrill at each other's touch. The novelty has worn off of having their own home and they have ceased marveling at their new furniture. They haven't even much to talk about now that they no longer ask each other: "Do you love me?"

It is then that the husband feels that he is fed up on marriage and begins to long for freedom and to doubt whether he loves his wife. It is this dangerous period that children bridge over, because the young parents are so absorbed in the baby that they forget to analyze their own emotions and count their own heart beats. They have something more important, more interesting than themselves to think about and talk about.

Children Act as Bridge

If your husband thinks he is tired of being married, the one and only cure for him is to let him try being a bachelor again. It will not take him long to find out that even if marriage did not come up to all his great expectations, it is still better than being single.

He will find that he misses the routine of domesticity, and that going home at night after his day's work was over was peaceful and restful, even if it wasn't exciting. He will find that he misses home comforts, home cooking, the good meals of the things he likes, prepared the way he likes them.

He will miss being catered to and having all of his little whims regarded. And he will miss the love that comforted him without his knowing it, and the freedom that he craved will be dust and ashes in his teeth when he has nothing else but freedom.

Believe me, blessings brighten as they fade, and home never looks so good to any one as the homeless, nor love so precious as to those who have thrown it away.

Food Best Bait To Snare a Man

Dear Dorothy Dix—You often tell us about the old-fashioned way of getting a husband. Believe me, that's all out with us modern girls. Now, here is my way of getting my man:

I have been going with the one I want for about four years. He is much older than I am and I think he ought to get married. He has not asked me as yet, but he will before I am through with him. I am buying odd pieces of furniture and sending them as gifts to him and that will certainly make him know that I expect to marry him and get them back again. Don't you think that if he does not intend to marry me he should refuse these gifts? At times he is very cold toward me, but I pretend not to notice it and act as though I am in love with him.

A WISE GIRL.

ANSWER — "The proof of the pudding is in chewing the string," says an old proverb, and we will have to wait until we see how your tactics in husband hunting turn out before we will know whether they are superior to the old ones or not.

So far you do not seem to have had much luck, though your technique is novel and ingenious and should appeal to any man with domestic instincts. But, alas, there are men who are indifferent to furniture and to whom chairs and tables make no real heart appeal. They would as soon eat off of a kitchen table as a mahogany one and sit on a deal chair as an authentic antique.

Every married woman knows that the hardest money she ever gets out of her husband is that she spends for furniture, and that the man who will be lavish about buying cars and clothes and groceries gets a lock on his pocketbook when she even mentions that they need a divan, or that she yearns for a new bedroom set.

So my guess is that if you want to win your man by means of gifts you had better invest your money in presents of food instead of furniture. The road to a man's heart is through his stomach, you know.

Anyhow, I am strong for anything that promotes matrimony, and if chairs will do it, push 'em along, and here's hoping that your plan will work out and that you will get your furniture back, even if you have to marry for it.

Girls Should Shun Lazy Boy Friends

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl of 20, considered nice-looking and have a good job. I am going with a boy of the same age who is not working, nor trying to get work. He insists on my marrying him now and keeping it a secret until we are in a position to announce it. Heaven knows when that will be because he makes no attempt to get a job, but swears he will if I marry him. He says if I don't marry him in two weeks it will be the end of our engagement, for if I loved him, I would marry him now. I think that if he loved me he would go out and get something to do before asking me to marry him. Do you think I am wrong in wanting to wait until we are in a position to marry?

SUE.

ANSWER—No. You are absolutely right. A marriage, like every other enterprise, has to be properly financed to keep it a going concern. A boy who would ask you to marry him when he has no way of supporting him shows that he has not the right sort of love for you, nor any sense of the responsibility of marriage. And a boy who asks you to marry him secretly proves he has no regard for your good name. Tell him to make something of himself first, then come back and ask you to be his wife.

Chocolate Cake Is Favorite

(Mary Claire Thompson.)

A famous Canadian musician in a recent broadcast stated that, of all foods, she liked chocolate cake the best. Probably she didn't realize that she was voicing the sentiments of many other Canadians, for chocolate cake seems to hold an allure and appetite appeal that few other foods share.

Indeed all chocolate flavored foods are tops for popularity, especially when they are made with a smoothly blended chocolate cocoa—a cocoa that combines high quality, flavor and economy. To fully appreciate its flavor, cocoa should be chosen with discrimination. Cocoa is rich and full-bodied so less of it is needed than ordinary cocoa and the resulting dishes made from it are delicious and nourishing. No wonder that homemakers throughout Canada find this chocolate cocoa a "must have" on their pantry shelves.

Rich and satisfying, cocoa is never more attractive than when used to flavor devils food cake. And this cake becomes supreme when topped with a cooked cocoa frosting. It's easy to make and the combined cooking and beating gives it added smoothness.

You can use this chocolate cocoa to make a creamy pie filling, too. This same filling can be a dessert by itself. Add grated cocoanut, chopped nuts or leave it plain and you have a real chocolate pudding. Chill it well before serving and add a garnish of whipped cream.

Here's a little cookery tip about cocoa you may be glad to have some time in an emergency. When a recipe calls for baking chocolate and you wish to use cocoa instead, add 2 tablespoons of cocoa for each ounce of baking chocolate required.

When possible, however, use recipes like the following that have been especially designed for cocoa:

Chocolate Cake.

½ cup water, 1½ teaspoons baking soda, 7 tablespoons cocoa, 2-3 cup butter, 1¾ cups sugar, 2 eggs beaten, 2½ cups sifted cake flour,

Wheezing in the Chest Points to Bronchitis

The principal symptom of bronchitis is a dry, harsh, hacking cough accompanied by a rapid wheezing and tightness across the chest.

There is a raising of phlegm, especially in the morning. This phlegm is at first of a light colour, but as the trouble progresses becomes yellowish or greenish.

You may find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup a remedy to help stimulate the weakened bronchial organs, relieve the inflammation, soothe the irritated parts, loosen the phlegm and mucous, and aid nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulation.

Big War Supply Shipment Sent Red Cross

CAMPBELLFORD, April 1 (ENS) —Seven large cartons containing quilts, blankets, sox, gloves and many other items made up one of the largest shipments yet made by the local branch of the Red Cross Society.

The consignment contained 102 pairs of sox, all of which were turned in by the regular knitters during the past week and according to the Vice President, Mrs. R. A. Linton, this was the largest number ever sent at any one time and was particularly outstanding in view of the fact that a large shipment of sox had already been made during the middle of March. Included also in the shipment were 48 pairs of gloves, 12 pairs of pyjamas and 5 dressing gowns which formed part of the branch's quota; 16 quilts (9 donated by the Seymour West Women's Institute); 3 blankets, 6 pairs of boys' pants, 3 boys' shirts, as well as countless other articles such as girls' dresses, sweaters, helmets, scarfs and miscellaneous clothing for refugees.

$76 for I.O.D.E.

A donation of $76.90 was acknowledged by the I.O.D.E. Bemersyde Chapter at their regular meeting on Friday, when members were given a financial report of the recent Fashion Show, and outlined several activities which they plan to sponsor in the near future.

It was the regent, Mrs. G. A. Ironside, who told of the donation of $76.90 from pupils of the Public School and she expressed on behalf of the Chapter sincere thanks for their splendid endeavor. From the Fashion Show it was announced proceeds would be in the neighborhood of $50.00 and in this connection the Regent expressed thanks to all those who had contributed to its success.

The secretary was instructed to write special letters of appreciation to Mrs. C. W. Palliser who donated the flowers which decorated the platform and to Mr. James Massie, school caretaker, who donated his services for the evening.

A draw was made on the knitted hand bag donated by Miss Lillian Hay and this was won by Mrs. R. A. Connor. Acknowledged also were afghans donated by Mrs. A. E. Wragg and Mrs. John Douglas.

It was decided to hold their paper collection on April 17 and the following were appointed to assist—Mrs. John Storrie, Miss Jean Wallace, Mrs. C. Johnson, Mrs. Jack Cowell, Mrs. W. A. Hogle, Miss Dorothy Kingston, Mrs. H. T. Scott, Miss Dorothy Henson, Miss Gladys Stephen, Mrs. W. A. Brady, Mrs. R. E. Fox, Mrs. W. Ward, Mrs F. G DeCarrol, Mrs. H. Beatty, Mrs. Jack Clark.

A draw on three quilts, two afghans, a rug and a sandwich plate, will be held in connection with a Tea and Home Cooking Sale to be held in the I.O.D.E. rooms on May 17.

The Chapter decided to continue its collection of tin foil and a report indicated they had received $3.00 for fifty pounds already sent in. Delegates will be sent to the annual Provincial meeting in Hamilton on April 24-25-26.

A short talk on the common house fly featured the regular meeting of the Seymour West Girls' Club on Saturday evening. Mrs. Charles Fraser, leader of the group, was the speaker and in her remarks she referred particularly to the growth of the fly and its disease spreading qualities.

Roll call of the meeting was "One Traffic Law I have learned." For their next meeting members were asked to compile a selection of six books of fiction and be prepared to give a short talk on each of them.

Miss Freda Nicholas and Miss Olive Varcoe were selected to give a paper on First Aid in Fainting and Drowning cases next week when the roll call will be an important man who has made contribu? tions in disease prevention.

Y.P.U. Holds Rally

FRASERVILLE, April 1 (ENS). —The Young Peoples' Union held their weekly meeting at the parsonage on Thursday night. The president opened the meeting. It was decided that the Union would attend an Easter service in Bailieboro church during Passion Week, instead of holding a meeting. Rev. Rowland, culture convener, was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. H. Ouelette read the scripture, followed by prayer by Frank Klassin. Rev. Rowland gave a very interesting topic on Bible Customs, and the meeting was brought to a close. A contest was enjoyed. Next week's meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ouelette.

Mass Production Comes To Aircraft Industry

With the clockwork regularity of a streamlined automobile factory assembly line, new bombers are passed through the plant of the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation's factory at San Diego, Calif. Those shown here are navy planes—the PBY-5 model patrol bomber accepted by the U.S. navy after exacting tests. The same swift system is also turning out huge long-range bombers for Britain, whose production will be accelerated now that the $7,000,000,000 lease-lend appropriation has been passed.

Dollars To Doughnuts

By EDITH ELLINGTON

YESTERDAY: Reassured by her new-found friend, Beatrice makes it safely to the station. She finds herself admiring the courage of these working people she has never known. As they walk along the street, the girl asks where Beatrice works. She admits she is jobless. The girl works at Huntington's—Beatrice's own store—suggests they might hire Beatrice there!

INTRODUCING BEE DAVIS

CHAPTER VI

For a moment, Beatrice Huntington Davenport could only stare at this slim, strange girl with the dark chestnut hair and the eagerly helpful eyes. She felt an insane impulse to giggle. "Imagine her leading me into the personnel office at the store! Asking them to give me a job. They'd recognize me immediately!"

But then, dizzily, she thought, "Recognize me? Would they? Who has ever seen me at that store? Only the French vendeuse in the Import Salon. And one or two models who have tried on numbers for me . . . "

It seemed incredible, but as she searched her mind, she realized that it was true. Outside of Mlle. Mathilde, with her thin sallow face and her animated hands, there was no one in the entire eight floor of Huntington's who, meeting her on the street, could say positively, "There's Miss Davenport." Even the general superintendent, at whose pictured face she had looked this morning, had never seen her.

She went back to the last time she'd been in the store. She remembered walking from the car through the street floor, getting into the elevator. She'd worn her silver fox greatcoat, but there'd been another customer in the elevator in silver fox, too.

On the fifth floor, in the salon, there'd been a discreet flutter because Mlle. Mathilde had whispered, "Miss Davenport is here." But Blle. Mathilde knew Beatrice liked to select in privacy and had tactfully blocked off a cream-satin nook with a screen. There, tall, slinking mannequins had wandered in and out, displaying the latest in black with silver, which was what Beatrice fancied for the Thurmans' party.

Mlle. Mathilde had murmured in her ear, "Tres chic. You will enjoy this!" and "Exquisite. It will be ravishing on you!"

The girl she had met in the subway was asking curiously, "What's the matter? Don't you like the idea of Huntington's?"

"I've never sold anything," Beatrice said warily. "I—I'm a—a stenographer, really."

"Don't fret," said the girl. "We have a lovely training department. Whether you've ever sold anything or not, Huntington's makes you take the training course. They make you come in at 8 o'clock—and you don't get paid extra, either—so you can have 45 minutes before the store opens, listening to the Huntington notions on store service."

"I see."

"If you've never worked in another store, then you have nothing to unlearn. Because, let me tell you right now, Huntington's has their own way of doing things."

They were on Fulton street now. Neon lights glittered—red, blue and green. Beatrice saw the signs of Chinese restaurants, dance halls, radio stores; the glittering canopy of a movie palace; lighted display windows. Overhead, an elevated train rumbled by. Fulton street was crowded. Cars and taxis made a tangle of traffic. Horns blared.

She had never been here before. They went into a noisy cafeteria. A machine at the door yelped twice as the girl pulled a check for herself and one for Beatrice. She made her way knowingly, to a stack of trays; selected knife and fork and spoon from an open rack beside the trays. Beatrice watched and did the same.

The long serving section was a revelation to Beatrice. You took your tray and slid it on the chromium bars past mounds of salads. At the coffee urns, you took one of the filled cups that slopped over a little as the attendant pushed it toward you. There were piles of Danish pastry, doughnuts, cupcakes. So much food confused Beatrice. Meekly, she took two sugared doughnuts because the girl took them.

They left the serving section then. Balancing their trays, they found a table on which the remnants of someone else's meal was still scattered.

"Boy!" called this amazing girl who worked in Huntington's. A shuffling man in a white coat approached, gathered up the soiled dishes, gave the table a half-hearted wipe, and departed.

"What do you say?" the girl asked, as she put sugar in her coffee. "Want to try at Huntington's?" She stirred her coffee, sipped it, made a face. "But you don't even know my name! I'm Toby Masters."

Beatrice balanced a spoonful of sugar over the bowl, carefully. "I—I'm Bee Davis," she answered steadily.

Glad to know you, Bee!"

They drank their coffee, dunked their doughnuts, and Beatrice felt a dizzy little recklessness seeping through her. "I wanted to live like they do," she thought. "Now I'm burning my bridges behind me."

But it was still so easy to go back, if she grew uncertain. Even now she could get up, leave this cafeteria, leave Toby Master. She could hail a cab at the curb, tell the driver, "Park Avenue."

The tingling recklessness increased, became a fever.

"Don't go back," she told herself. "Burn more bridges. Cut the last retreat."

She looked across the table at Toby Masters, and said quietly, "It's nice of you to help me get a job Toby. The only thing is—I don't know where I'll stay between now and tomorrow morning. You see, I—I was turned out of my room."

Toby Masters gasped. Her brown eyes regarded the other girl with a swift, warm sympathy. "You have no place to go? Oh, I never dreamed, on the subway . . . I was watching you, you know. You seemed so sure of yourself. Almost"—she smiled apologetically—"almost snobbish.

"I can see now that you were worried. I know how it is. When I'm worried, I walk along with my nose in the air, trying hard to look as if I owned the earth. So no one will guess I am worried."

She leaned forward confidentially. "Sometimes, when I'm awfully blue, I go into a store and try on fur coats!" Then she became very businesslike. "But you've got to have somewhere to go! Haven't you any money?"

With a pang, Beatrice remembered the roll of bills in her brown suede handbag. She said slowly, "I have some money. I—I've been afraid to spend it. I can't explain, exactly, but it was as if that money was all I had between myself and —and whatever might happen. Do you see? So I didn't pay my room rent."

Toby Masters nodded. "I can understand that, too. When I was out of a job, I held out $20 and told myself no matter what happened I wouldn't touch it. That $20 was the last ditch fund. Not for a rainy day, but for a hurricane."

"That's the way I felt," Beatrice said.

"And of course you won't want to spend it until you actually get a job. I'm sure they'll take you at Huntington's. But just the same, we don't really know. No, you mustn't spend your last ditch fund. Look, I've got a little apartment in Flatbush. I share it with another girl. But we have a studio couch in the living room. Come and spend the night with us!"

"Oh, I couldn't impose! I had expected to p-pay for a r-room tonight, really I had."

"Well, now you don't have to!" Toby Master got up, her eyes shining. She pushed her hat down more firmly on her glossy chestnut hair, grabbed the two punched checks and said, "Come on. We'll take the trolley to Flatbush. Wait till Vera sees what I picked up in a subway accident!"

New Egg Grading Regulations Are Not To Liking Of Retail Trade

How do the new egg grading regulations affect the Saturday farm produce market?

An Examiner reporter asked himself that question, pored through a federal Department of Agriculture pamphlet in quest of the answer, and came out of the seance with the impression that no one cares about Max Swanston's market any way, that egg aces with the Department are after bigger game, a place for the Canadian hen in foreign markets especially while the opposition of the Danish, and other hens has been been rubbed out by Hitler's mob.

This matter of flipping over the pages of the new rules found frequent mention of the word "export," indicating the way the wind was blowing, but there is not a word about these small town farm markets.

But seeming slight of the farmers who have been unloading hundreds of dozens of eggs in the market hall of recent Saturdays does not mean that they are outside the law. Presumably there will be a way of attending to them, but the little red handbook does not set forth the details.

As for local grocers, especially the remnant rugged individualists, what they think of the new law would make a separate story of intense indignation apparently because it interferes with an established custom and more or less cuts into whatever profits there may have been from the retail sale of eggs.

Must Be Graded

About a year ago the Examiner advocated identification of all farm produce sold on the market. It seemed a sensible kind of information for consumers to demand and for producers who take pride in their business to provide voluntarily. But, the consumer demanded nothing, and rarely does being little brothers of the doormat, and the producers ignored the notion, with one exception, a woman living a short distance west of Jackson Park.

Well, the Government is demanding that eggs shall be identified, and it isn't fooling, and if some producers are not interested in the government's efforts to obtain a broad place in the British and other markets for Canadian eggs they can count themselves out of the reckoning.

The retail produce dealers and others declare gravely that the regulations are intended to direct the egg business into the channels of the "big fellows."

Two Local Graders

So, you ask the trade: how many registered grading stations will there be in Peterborough.

The law went into effect today, and there are two licensed grading stations—the one at Canada Packers and the other newly set up in the Co-op building at George and Dalhousie streets.

Where do the local grocers get their eggs?

Answer: "From the registered grading stations."

Are grocers permitted to set up their own grading stations?

Answer: "Yes; provided they conform to the regulations which demand certain temperature and other circumstances described in the booklet."

It was learned unofficially today that S. D. Vaughan is opening a station at Omemee, and there will probably be two in Millbrook. But, so far, nothing has developed at Lakefield, and other small communties in West Peterborugh, such as Ennismore.

Reason For The Change

Egg grading regulations have been in effect throughout the country since 1923, but they were not so effectual as the government egg authorities desired.

During that time, anyone was permitted to grade eggs. "While most of the grading has been properly done, there were many instances where eggs were graded by inexperienced persons, and in places without proper equipment for grading. This resulted in producers sometimes not getting proper grading returns, and in improperly graded eggs getting on the market."

Years ago, all eggs were deemed to have been born equal. An egg was an egg, irrespective of differences in size. The little one was just as much an egg as a big double-yoker. Gradually, the goofiness of that prehistoric idea was recognized, and gradually changes have been brought about. One of the main purposes of these changes has been to ensure to the purchaser and consumer of Canadian eggs a standard product, whether it is sold at home or abroad.

Standards have been clearly defined. For instance in the "A" category there are three grades. These are top quality eggs. Grade A, large, are a dozen eggs that weigh 24 onces and up; Grade A medium comprehend a dozen of eggs weighing from 22 to 24 ounces; and Grade A pullets weigh from 20 to 22 ounces the dozen.

Standards of quality and weight and cleanliness have been set; likewise qualifications of graders; places of grading, including cooling accommodation.

Part of the Selling

The grocer who has for years established an egg trade with reliable producers and developed customers for this business seems to have as much cause for complaint as anybody. He has perhaps been carrying on a system of grading of his own that was just about exactly what the present law requires. Now, he has to do more than that. He has to provide definite grading quarters, in others words his place has to become a registered grading station. On the other hand while some grocers provided an exceptional service of this kind, others did not. To them, eggs were eggs; take them as they come, big and little.

If a farmer brings seventy dozen eggs to a local grocer, who becomes a first receiver. Those eggs must be identified with the name of the producer marked on the crate. The grocer will probably pay the farmer a part of the expected price, say —twelve cents a dozen. The eggs are sent to a registered grading station and are graded. Their value is then determined by the official grader. In fact the eggs are sold by the receiver to the grading station. An invoice will be sent back to the grocer indicating how the seventy dozen graded, and showing their total value at the current market price. From that information the grocer then determines how much more he has to pay the producer, and that settlement is probably made the next time the producer brings in another supply of eggs.

That is the general plan, and apparently there is some latitude or margin left to the grocers for his ordinary and legitimate operations and profit.

A general merchant at Centreville of Ennismore become under these regulations just a "first receiver" unless accommodation is provided to obtain official rating as a registered grading station. Meanwhile the consumer is assured of eggs of standard grades, and their sources are traceable.

Buy From Station

It is understood that the grocer who received the seventy dozen eggs from a producer and sold them to the registered grading station, since he has not such a place on his own premises, is still without a supply of eggs for sale. He has to buy eggs for his trade from the registered grading station. And the trade bitterly resents that roundabout, hampering, and, to them, unnecessary detail of the new system.

For Wednesday, April 2
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A FAIRLY fortunate and interesting day is presaged by the ruling astral influences. There may not be any startling developments but neither will there be cause for any untoward dangers or disasters. It might be well to be cautious in the handling of all writing, documents and publishings and also to exercise ordinary precaution in traveling. There might be some show of frigidity with elders met in social contact but superiors and higher-ups should be friendly.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly favorable and fortunate year, with matters moving in customary grooves, but with some promise of recognition or tokens of preferment from superiors or those in high places. They may be disposed to reward merit or offer friendly as well as financial aid. Use precaution in handling all manner of writings, agreements and be careful in traveling. There may be a social or sentimental way. Although generally things are warming and pleasant.

A child born on this day should gain the confidence and support of its superiors and may make fair progress in life. It may be subject to anxiety with papers and its travels may hold slight dangers. Early training as to integrity and truth might not be amiss.

2 Freighters Push To Cleveland Harbor

CLEVELAND, April 1 — (AP). — Overhead was the warm spring sunshine, but under the prows were crunching ice floes Sunday as two freighters bucked their way into Cleveland Harbor to open Lake Erie Navigation for 1941.

Bringing 700 automobiles from Detroit were the South Park and the Crescent City, the former a whaleback vessel. They left the Detroit River about dawn, and it was late afternoon before they reached the tip of the breakwater here. Under normal conditions, the trip takes about nine hours.

The first arrivals were four days ahead of the opening date of last year, but they set no record, as navigation has opened here as early as March 1.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

THEY MAY FOOL YOU

IF YOU see enough bridge by other people, you will cease being positive about what can and cannot be done on a certain deal. They will get defeated on contracts you considered sure things, and will make contracts you thought were impossible. The thing that changes the situation may not be either spectacularly fine bridge or sensationally bad. It may merely be some very ordinary act which simply did not occur to you.

After West led the club K against this precariously doubled contract, it seemed to the kibitzer that South had no chance to keep from being set, especially since he could see East's hand. Two losers in the trump suit and one each in hearts and clubs appeared a certainty. But co-operation by East and West enabled South to make it.

Dummy's club A won the opening trick, then the spade 3 was sent to the J and A. East had played his 3 on the club lead, so West now led his heart J to South's A. The spade 10 was then led, East ducking, and the spade 5 to the K. This left East the high trump, and a chance for immediate tricks in hearts and clubs.

Next the declarer ran his diamonds. East followed on the first two and discarded clubs on the next two, hating to use up his high trump unless to capture a hostile trump. When the fifth diamond, dummy's 7, was led, East decided to ruff with his Q. South, however, discarded his club 9 on that, so that the only other trick East could get was his heart Q. He had waited too long to use that high trump for ruffing.

English Boy Offers To Raffle Colt

CAMPBELLFORD, March 31.—(CNS)—A. B. "Jack" Billen came to this country as a boy a few years ago and now owns his own farm but he hasn't forgotten the folks back home in England for both his parents live in a town that has been getting its share of Nazi bombs. Feeling that he would like to make a personal effort on behalf of the people in England he announced on Saturday that he planned to sell tickets on a bay 2-year-old colt he has on his farm. Millbrook Group Holds Final Patching Party

MILLBROOK, April 1—(ENS). — Mrs. T. A. Campbell, president of the Red Cross, was hostess for the weekly patching party in connection with Red Cross work, on Friday afternoon, approximately 25 guests being present and a large number of quilt blocks completed.

Assisted by her mother, Mrs. Martin, the hostess served afternoon tea, this interruption proving a pleasant interlude in the steady work of the afternoon.

Friday's gathering was the last patching party of the season, as next Friday, April 4, the Continuation School Junior Red Cross is holding its annual tea and display of work at the school, and by the following week it is expected the weather will be warm enough to have the large upstairs room in the Town Hall heated for the regular Tuesday work meetings.

The event of the near future from which the local Red Cross branch is hoping to have good financial returns is the motion picture in the Town Hall on Tuesday, April 1, put on by the Heing Company at 3 p.m., the branch receiving 10 cents for each person in attendance. The money received from the tea served at the patching parties, and from the offering taken up at each regular work meeting goes toward providing linings and interlinings for quilts, etc.

The shipment this week included five quilts from Fallis Line, three from Carmel, two from Ida, and one from Millbrook. Five tops for quilts were brought in for Tuesday's work meeting, and Miss Thornton donated another at the patching party on Friday afternoon. Other articles shipped, under Mrs. W. Barringer's direction, this week were: 21 jackets, 4 skirts, 1 boy's shirt, 6 dresses and bloomers for children one year of age, 4 helmets, two infants' gowns, 2 pairs child's pyjamas, and 2 pairs bootees.

A request for old leather such as may be found in belts, gloves, etc., has come in, of which more particulars will be given later.

Many residents watched the display of Northern Lights on Sunday evening, some as they came from church and later as this illumination flamed again inot brilliancy in the north-eastern sky.

Colored bars with horizontal lines and with vertical flames shooting through and around them made up this amazingly-beautiful showing. Fading away and then growing into gradually increasing brilliance, the sight was unusual, and the most marvellous seen in some years.

Parents' Night at St. Andrew's.

A splendid turnout of parents attended the cub and troop meeting on Thursday evening in St. Andrew's Sunday School to witness a demonstration of cub and scout activities and stunts. Pack drill was the first item on the program; the evening being alternated with stunts, songs and drills of various nature.

Six fathers were called into one display of skill, each being given a bottle of milk to consume through a nipple. Six mothers volunteered to show the dads and lads how to hammer nails into the 4-inch lumber, the winner doing so in first-rate style. One cub gave a violin solo, another a cornet solo.

Each patrol put on a stunt, which in most cases were the product of the members. At the close of the evening, David Johnston and Robin Waite said their farewells to the pack and were escorted to the troop by Akela and accepted by Scouter into troop activities; presenting to the parents that phase of scout life, "The Going-up Ceremony."

Many of the boys displayed some of the articles they have prepared for the coming scout craft show. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the evening.

Banting Leaves $72,300 Estate

TORONTO, April 1 — (CP). — Sir Frederick Banting, co-discoverer of Insulin who was killed in an airplane crash in Newfoundland Feb. 21, disposed of an estate valued at $72,300 by a will made in October, 1939, it was disclosed today.

After providing for Lady Banting for life and his 11-year-old son, William, the will decrees that the residue of the estate pass in later years to the Department of Medical Research of the Univiersity of Toronto. The will does not stipulate the nature of the research work to which it is to be devoted and the decision will be left to University authorities.

The estate included $46,000 in Life Insurance taken out prior to the war. The balance is made up his Rosedale Heights home, a fishing lodge on Georgian Bay, stocks, bonds and personal effects.

His Medals were bequeathed to the University of Toronto. The Art Gallery of Toronto, of which he was a director, will be permitted to select six of Sir Frederick's paintings.

Thumb Badly Cut

CAMPBELLFORD, April 1. — (ENS)—Norman Stephens was rushed to Belleville hospital as the result of an unfortunate accident while cutting wood on his farm six miles east of here Friday evening. Stephens in company with his brother, Walter, who was operating a circular saw when he apparently misjudged his position and the thumb of his left hand was almost completely severed. Following an emergency treatment he was taken to Belleville by Dr. C. A. Bright. Though the bone was cut through he is regarded as having a slight chance of saving the member.

War Services Appeal Is Launched

CAMPBELLFORD, April 1. — (ENS)—Speaking on behalf of the National War Services appeal Rabbi David Munson of Toronto delivered a stirring address before a Hollywood Theatre audience here. Rabbi Monson was tendered a splendid ovation by the gathering following his introduction by Mayor F. F. Long who declared the objective for this district has been placed at $3,500.00 "and judging by the former record of this town we should have little trouble in attaining it." He paid tribute to theatre manager A. Rappaport who he described as "one of our leading citizens who is always anxious and willing to do his part in assisting war activities." The mayor pointed to the various contributions Mr. Rappaport has already made in raising funds for war work and declared it was his executive ability and power of persuasion which had resulted in the speaker visiting Campbellford.

Opposes Religion

In his opening remarks the speaker began in a clear forceful manner to recall the beginnings of the Nazi and Communist movements in Europe and Asia. It was only eight or nine years ago that we first began to read much of the new movement in Russia which developed a type of state known as Communism and this was followed by the formation of the Nazi system in Germany. Both of these scrapped their churches and though the Nazis were supposed to be opposed to the Communists it finally became realized that it possessed the very same ideas and ways of accomplishing their objectives. They soon became notorious for their attitude towards religion—for arresting and throwing nuns and priests into concentration camps—for oppressing minorities and causing endless suffering.

In concluding the speaker told a legend from the Talmud in which Adam was pictured as watching the sun set and began to fear the world was coming to an end but as he waited and once again it began to slowly rise in the sky he praised God believing the world would carry on. "At the present time the sun has set on the British Empire, but it will rise again and praise God that it will be soon."

Rev. G. N. Maxwell was next called upon by the mayor and he spoke of his personal experience with the work done by the Y.M.C.A. and Salvation Army during the last war. He referred particularly to the comforts supplied by the S.A. Huts which were stationed as close to the front line trenches as they were allowed to go. The present organization should render even more effective service than was possible during the last war he felt.

Adjutant Kenneth Graham, who is in charge of the drive locally, also spoke briefly thanking the speaker and Mr. Rappaport.

Communist En Route To Prison

As Earl Browder, America's No. 1 Communist, was led through Atlanta's railroad station en route to serve a four-year term in Alanta Federal Penitentiary, he presented this unusual sight. Browder fashioned a handkerchief-mask for himself in which he had cut holes for eyes. He is shown handcuffed to a Negro prisoner.

Brazilian Envoy Canada-Bound

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 1. — (CP).—Hope that "complete balance" between Canada and Brazil will be achieved with the creation of a Brazilian Ministry at Ottawa was expressed today by Alberto Lins De Barros as he left by plane for Miami, Fla., on the first leg of his journey to the Dominion capital.

Frist Brazilian diplomat accredited to Ottawa, Lins De Barros said the opening of diplomatic relations between the two countries was a "clear demonstration" of the importance South America is assuming in Canada. He expressed the conviction that Canada soon would fill the only empty seat in the Pan-American Union, reserved for the Dominion by the 21 American republic comprising the Union's membership.

With the new minister were his wife, Lia; a 16-year-old son, Claudio; and a brother, Nelson, 19. From Miami they will go to Washington for a two-day visit, then to New York and thence to Ottawa. A daughter is in school at Washington. The son and brother will complete their education in Canada, the former specializing in cellulose production, and the brother in aluminum manufacture.

Appointment of Line De Barros followed a nannouncement in Ottawa last Fall by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, that an exchange of Ministers between Brazil and Argentina was planned. Estimates providing funds for the posts were passed by the House of Commons last month, but the Canadian appointees have not yet been announced.

2 Cunninghams Great Rivals

LONDON, April 1. — The Cunningham boys—Andy and Alan—are in the midst of a keen rivalry to see who can win bigger victories against the Italians.

Andy—Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, 58—is commander of the British Mediterranean Fleet that crippled the Italian Fleet at Taranto last November and riddled Fascist warships again in a major sea engagement over the week-end.

Alan—Lieut.-Gen. Alan Cunningham, 54—is commander of the East African forces sweeping through Ethiopia to cut the Addis-Ababa-Djibouti Railroad. His column has conquered hundreds of miles of treacherous territory, and last week added Harar, Ethiopia's second city, to its conquests.

The Cunningham boys always have been strong but friendly rivals, whether in war, fishing or growing roses—a hobby in which both excel in their Hampshire homes.

Neither of the brothers appears to be the "Dashing Dave" type of warrior. When home on simultaneous leaves they renew their fishing rivalry, and things are never quiet, because one or the other "takes a stand" with claims of the biggest victory, longest fish or most perfect flower.

Seymour East Couple Are Honored

CAMPBELLFORD, April 1. — (ENS). — Long considered leading citizens of this community are Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Locke, Seymour East, and on Friday, the eve of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, tangible evidence of the esteem in which they have been held was given. For Mr. and Mrs. Locke were honored at a surprise party held in their own home and arranged by friends of the district who came not bearing gifts alone, but also the refreshments and lovely wedding cake, all of which went to make one of those jolly parties for which the Locke home is famous.

"I knew they were coming," Mr. Locke told the Examiner, "but I did not have any idea how many there would be."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Locke are natives of Seymour Township, and her maiden name was Eva Chaplin while Mr. Locke was a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Locke. They were married in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Campbellford by Rev. G. A. Brown, following which they went to live in the Locke homestead built of limestone from the bed of the Trent River 60 years ago. The huge stone house constructed by Jesse Locke's grandfather is one of the landmarks of this district, and as a result of the many community enterprises in which both Mr. and Mrs. Locke and their two daughters Josephine and Doris take part, it is familiar to most citizens of Campbellford and Seymour. One of the annual affairs which take place on its spacious lawns is the [illegible] sponsored by the Seymour [illegible] of which Mrs. Locke has been president for the past seven years, while the choir of St. Andrew's Church, of which Mrs. Locke is also president, has spent several social evenings there. Mr. Locke is equally well known in Campbellford and Seymour by virtue of the fact he is president of the Prince of Wales Cheese Company and secretary for S.S. No. 1, Seymour.

At the affair on Friday, which marked their silver anniversary, District Dairy Instructor John Murray presented the couple with a lovely silver flower basket on behalf of their friends in the community, and in addition to this they received numerous other useful gifts. Both Mr. and Mrs. Locke responded appropriately.

Among the guests of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Pollock, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. [illegible], Mr. and Mrs. James Shillington, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hay, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ingram, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Ingram, Mrs. John Locke, Douglas Locke, Mrs. Edith Denike, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Campbell, Miss Jean Campbell, Mrs. Ed. Chaplin, Gerald Mitchell, Miss Doreen Pollock, Miss Jean Murray, Fred Thompson.

CREDITON MERCHANT PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO SYNTONA

Suffered Constantly with Acid, Upset Stomach; Gas, Nausea and Heartburn. Had Pains in Shoulders and Arms, Nerves were Tense, Couldn't Sleep.

MR. FREEMAN MORLOCK

The sponsors wish to acknowledge the many encouraging reports recently received and are happy to know that this great herbal compound is bringing better health and happiness to so many local men and women whom readers of this page know personally. To-day, we take pleasure in quoting the experience of Mr. Freeman W. Morlock, well-known shoe merchant of Crediton, Ontario. Read his sincere statement:

"In the past year or so, I suffered greatly with acid indigestion, gas and heartburn. I was subject to sharp cramps, and there was almost constantly a full, uncomfortable feeling in my stomach and chest. After eating, there seemed to be a lump in my throat and sour liquids would rise from my stomach and make me feel nauseated. More recently pains set into my shoulders and arms and my nerves began to trouble me, so I couldn't sleep well.

"I was advised to take a good tonic and having heard about how Syntona helped friends of mine, I began taking it a few weeks ago. In that short time Syntona has done for me everything that was claimed for it. I can eat heartily now and my food digests without any of the former trouble. I got relief from the rheumatism in my shoulders and arms, my nerves are more relaxed and I sleep better. I think Syntona is a grand medicine and I have already recommended it to many of my friends."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.—(Advt.)

U.S. Prepares to Oust All Axis Diplomats in Sabotage Plot

WASHINGTON OFFICIALS HINT FINGER POINTS STRONGLY TO CONSULAR HEADS IN SHIP WRECKING IN AMERICAN PORTS AS INQUIRY IS PRESSED

WASHINGTON, April 2—(CP).—United States intelligence services, it was learned authoritatively today, have concentrated their efforts on determining whether any German or Italian officials in the United States instigated the wholesale sabotage which crippled most of the 30 Axis vessels seized in American ports during the week-end.

If the complicity of any diplomatic or consular officials should be established, informed sources said, the State Department is ready to take immediate action. The guilty officials will be handed their passports, or their prompt recall will be demanded.

Officials said that preliminary evidence made it seem "very evident" that there was co-ordinated direction of the widespread sabotage, but a formal pronouncement was withheld pending complete reports of inquiries by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Navy's intelligence service.

Elsewhere in the Western Hemisphere, the story yesterday was one of seized, fired or scuttled Axis shipping; of crews in custody; of Government investigations being pushed—with the threat of criminal prosecution in the background.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 2—(AP)—Newspaper dispatches from the Yugoslav border today reported that two Rumanian trains carrying wheat and oil to Italy were confiscated by the Yugoslav government.

BERLIN, April 2—(AP)—Viktor Von Heeren, German minister to Yugoslavia, delivered a report today to the Nazi government on the Yugoslav situation.

His report, according to the commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland "is being studied and analyzed. The final German reaction, therefore, is not yet available."

SKOPLJE, Yugoslavia, April 2—(AP)—An eight-minute air raid alarm was sounded shortly before noon at this city of southern Serbia in the Vardar Valley, when three foreign planes reconnoitred at great height over the city.

During the night the city was blacked out for an hour and during early morning all air raid sirens were set off in test. These were practice measures.

But the alarm which came at 11:30 a.m. was the real thing. The population took cover calmly and waited until the planes disappeared.

Thousands of Croat soldiers are constantly passing through the town, singing war songs. There is a steady stream of women and children from all parts of Yugoslavia, even from distant Adriatic Croatia, en route to hidden villages in the mountains.

Soldier husbands of the women say: "We can fight more calmly if we know our families are safely tucked away beyond reach of the enemy."

Italian Proposals Fizzle.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, April 2—(AP).—An Italian Legation spokesman announced to-day that "certain conversations" between Italy and Yugoslavia, which had led to reports of possible mediation by Mussolini in the Yugoslav-German crisis, "have attained no result and no negotiations are now in progress."

The Fascist spokesman said the talks, between the Italian minister in Belgrade and the Yugoslav Foreign Minister, had been held "to see if any possibilities existed for establishing contact between Belgrade and Rome."

In mid-afternoon there had been no further conferences between the Fascist envoy and the Yugoslav minister.

Rumors that the Italians had taken the role of intermediaries between Yugoslav Premier Dusan Simovic and Hitler were based only on a brief conversation yesterday, an Italian source said.

The Yugoslav Government maintained a restrained attitude toward Nazi press and radio attacks as intense diplomatic activity over its relations with the Axis was indicated.

The Yugoslav minister to Berlin, Ivo Andric, after two days in Belgrade to report to his superiors, started back to Berlin last night, the Yugoslav news agency announced. The German minister to Belgrade, Viktor von Heeren, is in Berlin.

60 Nazis Stay Behind.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, April 2. (AP).—With ill-disguised nervousness, 60 of Hitler's diplomatic representatives remained in Belgrade to-day.

Most German legation aids have fled the city; Nazi air and military attaches have been denied the use of their private planes, and all but 10 official German authorities have been shipped from the country.

Sentence Lawrence Burns To Four Years In Prison

Lawrence Burns, 28, was convicted by Judge S. L. Smoke today of having broken and entered the C.D.S. Store here on Sunday, February 2, and stolen $4,000 in cheques and cash and was sentenced to four years in Kingston Penitentiary. His counsel, Mannis Frankel, announced that he would appeal.

This afternoon the trial of Thomas Nicholls, Toronto, on a similar charge commenced before His Honor Judge McGibbon of Lindsay, in the county judge's criminal court, Judge Smoke having decided in view of the point raised by Mr. Frankel in the Burns case that he would not try the remaining cases.

In his judgment, Judge Smoke rejected the alibi evidence adduced by the defence.

"The cross-examination sufficed to indicate to me," said His Honor, "that their evidence is unreliable."

"The accused naturally denied," continued Judge Smoke, "that he was in Bowmanville on February 1 or in Petesborough that night or had any part in the crime. His story does not hold together."

Reviewing Burns' testimony Judge Smoke pointed out that he had admitted avoiding the police and that he was evading them because of a Windsor warrant, yet he had said he had gone back to Windsor on several occasions.

"He would have the court believe," said His Honor, "that the two keys found on him when arrested were keys belonging to a bag he had taken to Windsor with him. An inspection of the keys does not indicate that they have been used for three or four years as was stated and since they fit Exhibit 3 (the overnight bag said to have been stolen from the C.D.S. store), I conclude that the keys belong to that exhibit."

Rejects Burns' Evidence

"It would be unsafe for me to accept his evidence, and I refuse to do so," said Judge Smoke.

His Honor then reviewed the crown evidence in detail. He saw no reason, he said, for refusing to accept the statement of Everett Osborne, C.P.R. section foreman, that Burns was one of the men he had seen in a maroon car near the tool-house in that village. His Honor called attention to the fact that a maroon car had been seen near the C.D.S. store on the morning of February 2, and that John Fairchild, a half brother of Louis Gallow, at whose house in Toronto Burns had been staying, was the virtual owner of a maroon car.

Pointing out that Burns, Gallow and Nicholls had been shown to have been in Windsor on the Sunday night after burglary and that the safe from the C.D.S. store had been found on the outskirts of Windsor the next morning, Judge Smoke referred to the fact that money found on all four men had been found to be scorched. Professor Rogers' evidence that the safe had been opened with the use of heat applied by an acetylene torch and that the money in the safe

40,000 Face The Sea 60,000 Others Retreat

CAIRO, Egypt, April 2 — (AP).—Victorious British Imperial forces were said to-day to have cornered nearly 100,000 Italian troops still fighting in East Africa and to be driving in for knockout blows.

Capture of Asmara, capital of Eritrea, put the survivors of some 40,000 Fascists who engaged in the recent bloody battle of Cheren with their back to the sea—where the British Navy blocks retreat.

In Ethiopia, British columns struck inland from captured Diredawa toward Addis baba, the capital, on the heels of the Duke of Aosta's retreating army.

The Duke's original forces at Addis Ababa have been estimated at 50,000, and British reports said [illegible] garrisons withdrawing toward the capital from other parts of Ethiopia would increase the total fighting strength to 60,000 men.

The fall of Diredawa put British forces in command of the strategic Awash River valley and the Addis Ababa-Jibuti railroad leading to the Gulf of Aden.

There remained formidable obstacles, however, to the advance on Addis Ababa from Diredawa. The capital lies 250 miles from Diredawa along a winding valley flanked by lofty ridges from which Italians could harass the advance.

The natural obstacles in Eritrea were not considered as formidable. Asmara stands near the brink of a 6,500-foot escarpment which de-

Charge 'Self-Seekers' Also Behind Plot

WASHINGTON, April 2 — (AP).—Charges were laid before Congress to-day that "a conspiracy by the Germans" and a "bunch of self-seeking men" had in the past kept down the production of aluminum which the United States needs for airplanes, and was keeping it down to-day.

Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney-General in charge of the Justice Department's Anti-Trust Division, made that assertion to a House of Represenetatives Appropriations Sub-Committee hearing in testimony made public to-day.

Because of this conspiracy, Arnold testified, the German "production went up, but they kept it down in France, England, and America, and they are doing it to-day."

Arnold was asked whether the situation was restricting plane production here.

"That is the reason they (the Germans) are able to produce more planes because they have the aluminum," he replied.

He credited Germany with an aluminum production 33 to 50 per cent greater than that of the United States.

Without elaborating at length on "the conspiracy," Arnold said the situation dated from 1931 when the Aluminum Company "to avoid our anti-trust laws" formed a Canadian corporation, Aluminum, Ltd."

This concern, he stated, began to

Imperial War Council Vetoed

LONDON, April 2 — (CP Cable)—Viscount Cranborne, Dominions Secretary, to-day turned down a proposal made to the House of Lords by Viscount Elibank that the Government consider the desirability of establishing an Imperial War Council.

Lord Elibank asserted there is no counterpart for the Imperial War Cabinet of the last war "although the necessity for it is even greater."

He recommended that President Roosevelt be invited to nominate a representative on such a body.

Lord Elibank emphasized the extent of Canada's war effort and paid tribute to the fighting qualities of the Australians, New Zealanders, and Sohth Africans as shown in the battlefields of Africa.

Governor Despatches State Police To C.I.O. Walkout

DETROIT, April 2 (AP)—Strike disorders in which a score or more persons were injured near the Ford Motor Company today led to an order from Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner for state police to maintain order there.

The governor, maintaining close contact with the strike situation from headquarters in a Detroit hotel where he conferred with state police officials and state labor mediators, announced he was ordering the full available strength of the state police to attempt to end clashes between strikers and non-strikers.

Intermittent fighting was reported from several points near Ford's big Rouge plant, the world's largest industrial unit which employs more than 85,000 workers.

State police were reported to have about 250 officers ready for service in the strike emergency.

Officials of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) who called the strike shortly after midnight charging "deliberate provocation" by the Ford management, claimed this morning that the strike was "completely effective."

Bennett Blames Reds

Harry H. Bennett, Ford personnel director, said the strike "shows an extremely unpatriotic attitude on the part of the Communistic element to ruin our national defence effort."

Mayor John L. Carey of Dearborn announced this morning that he sent the following telegram to Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner and Oscar G. Olander, commissioner of public safety:—

"Last evening I requested that the state police be sent into Dearborn to aid us in law enforcement. This morning, Dearborn is the

Nazis Gun Airdromes One Is Shot Into Sea Under Low Clouds

LONDON, April 2 (CP)—A German plane was shot into the sea off the east Devon coast, southwestern England, in today's first daylight air activity.

Bad weather during the night forced Royal Air Force bombers to remain at home and restricted German operations against Britain to light bombing of southwest England. London had its 12th successive bombless night.

The air ministry reported German attacks on British airdromes yesterday, stating that the raiders swept in under cover of low clouds, damaging buildings and causing several fatalities at one station.

"The serviceability of the airdrome was not affected," the communique added.

The air ministry announced that British planes had torpedoed a merchant ship and machine-gunned small Germany naval vessels off the continental coast yesterday.

Real Nerve-Rocker

London, April 2 (CP)

THE ministry of aircraft production announced today that the new type high explosive bombs dropped on Emden Monday night had "five times the blasting effect of any previously dropped by the Royal Air Force."

R.A.F. bomber pilots returning from the Emden raid said the new bomb was capable of hurling an entire building into the air.

The ministry said it was of "very large size" and that the "constant endeavor will be to make them still bigger, better and more catastrophic in their effect."

Ottawa Citizen Acquitted

Judge Comments Case 'Might Well Have Gone Before Jury'

OTTAWA, April 2 (CP) — The Citizen Publishing Company, Ltd., was acquitted today by Magistrate Glenn E. Strike of two charges laid under Defence of Canada Regulations in connection with an editorial published last January 11.

The magistrate based his dismissal of the charges on section 39B (2) of the Regulations which rules that "it shall be a defence to any prosecution...to prove that the person intended in good faith merely to criticize, or to point out errors or defects in, the government of Canada or any province thereof, or in either House of Parliament of Canada or in any legislature, or in the administration of justice."

He said, however, that he had found some difficulty in interpreting the section and that the case "might very well be the subject of consideration by a higher court."

The January 11 editorial was published in the Citizen and the Evening Citizen and was termed "Subversive by Justice Minister Lapointe in the House of Commons.

A paragraph in the editorial "particulary objected to," said crown prosecutor Raoul Mercier, read:

"When the lads come home from overseas after some years of service at the real business end of a Bren gun they will know better where to shoot than Canadian veterans did in the years of debt and privation after the last war."

It was the defence contention that the editorial had been "couched in metaphorical language," said Magistrate Strike. He referred to another editorial published last March 1 in the Citizen which explained that the paragraph in question meant "to shoot with ballots"

It was unfortunate in that case, he said, that there was no indication in the January 11 editorial that metaphorical language was being employed.

A contention that no harm was

Some Costly Errors Righted

Editor Bares Loss Badly—Armed Hampdens Took At Heligoland

LONDON, April 2 — (CP). — Britain's air strength was assessed today as "highly satisfactory" in the editorial preface to the 1940 edition of Jane's "All The World's Aircraft," the authoritative aerial counterpart to "Jane's Fighting Ships."

In this preface, however, co-Editor C. G. Grey cited some costly errors of the past. He concluded:

"Considering our sins of omission during the past 20 years, since 1918—the war strength of the Royal Air Force was reduced to one-tenth in 1920 by Mr. Winston Churchill, then Secretary of State for War and Air—and our sins of commission since the war began, we are in a highly satisfactory position. The outlook for the next year is excellent."

Listing some misfortunes in the early days of the Second Great War he said that Blenheim bombers flew so low in the first raid, on Brunsbuttelm, Germany, September 4, 1939, that at least one was blown up by the bombs of the machine in front of it.

Wellington bombers, without four-gun Frazer-Nash turrets, raided Heligoland Bight and suffered heavy losses when attacked by many Messerschmitt fighters and anti-aircraft guns, the aeronautical expert said. A small force of Hampden bombers went into the Bigh inadequately armed and none returned, and that type was grounded until more guns were fitted and the system of mounting improved.

"Luckily," he wrote, "we had the time not only to correct errors in equipment, but to develop new ideas in tactics so that by the time the war really broke out, just before the middle of May, we had developed the most powerfully-equipped bomber force in the war."

Planes Fly U.K. To Lisbon Unarmed—No Attacks

LONDON, April 2 (CP)—Roaring over the grey Atlantic, civil airplanes fly almost daily between Britain and Lisbon to maintain this country's aerial communications with the outside world.

The Axis powers' control of most of Europe has made this 1,000-mile route the only link connecting Britain with the chain of air services to Africa, India and the Antipodes. Except when summer weather permits direct trans-Atlantic flights it provides the only all-air connection with North America.

Because Portugal is a neutral country, military planes of warring powers cannot land there. Only civil craft can operate the service.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, April 2 —(AP)—The Yugoslav government maintained a restrained attitude toward German press and radio attacks today amid indications of intense diplomatic activity bearing upon its relations with the Axis.

Milan Gavrilovic, minister without portfolio, returned from conferences in Ankara and Moscow, lending strength to reports Yugoslavia was trying to arrange a three-cornered "neutrality pact" with Soviet Russia and Turkey.

Observers agreed such a pact would strengthen Yugoslavia's hand in trying to resist Axis pressure, but there was no immediate indication whether Gavrilovic—former Yugoslav minister to Russia—had accomplished anything concrete.

Reports also persisted that British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who conferred with King George of Greece in Athens yesterday, would come here with General Sir John G. Dill, chief of the British imperial general staff, for talks with Yugoslav leaders.

Mr. Acres, member for Carleton, declared Prime Minister King should dismiss Mr. Gardiner and Mr. Lapointe, the latter, he claimed, being the real Prime Minister of Canada.

"I say to Mackenzie King to get rid of Gardiner and Lapointe," he continued. "They are separating the provinces, Gardiner by his bonuses to the Western farmer and Lapointe because he is not fairly representing the great French-Canadian race. We cannot have unity wi these two officials in power."

He said the Dominion Government "had no business interfering with our oldest agricultural college," as he referred to the transfer of the Ontario Agricultural College building at Guelph to the Defence Department for the training of air wireless operators.

meant by an accused person was no defence and it was the court's duty to consider what interpretation might be placed on the editorial by the ordinary citizen.

He said he thought the case might well have been taken before a jury.

Magistrate Strike said he believed the editorial was "capable of the interpretation placed upon it by the crown," but that section 39B(2) also must be taken into acount.

The magistrate recalled defence counsel J. D. Watt's argument, when the case was heard March 19, on behalf of freedom of the press. The press in common with all individuals in Canada had freedom, Magistrate Strike said, but it was a fundamental principle in Canadian law that with every right went a corresponding responsibility.

Lack of precedence "on this particular subject," however, added to the difficulties of judging the case and it was not easy to discover the exact meanings of some of the sections of law involved.

Mr. Mercier, he said, had "very fairly" stated when the case was heard that The Citizen was a reputable newspaper.

The matter of the January 11 editorial was first raised in the Commons by M. J. Coldwell, acting C.C.F. House leader.

The company was charged under Section 39 of the regulations, on the grounds the editorial had been "prejudicial to the safety of the state or the efficient prosecution of the war" and also "likely to prejudice the recruiting, training, discipline or administration of His Majesty's forces."

Plea of not guilty was entered on each charge.

That's were British Overseas Airways Corporation comes in. This government-sponsored commercial air system, whose network links the commonwealth, is the only one which can operate through Lisbon.

Importance of that connection was stressed in parliament when the 1941 air estimates were introduced. Sir Archibald Sinclair, Air Minister, told the House: "Our sea and air communications with Africa are the arteries of our armed forces in the Middle East."

The same building in Lisbon houses local offices of B.O.A.C. and Lufthansa, the German commercial air line. Lufthansa also operates services to and from Lisbon.

Both flying boats and landplanes are used on the Britain-Lisbon service.

When weather conditions permit up to 400 passengers a month are carried, as well as a quantity of mail and a certain amount of essential freight. All passengers are in the "priority" class—that's to say official sanction for being flown must come from some government department. There's always a long waiting list.

Capt. Gillis Purcell of Toronto, public relations officer for corps, and Lieut. Eric Gibbs of Edmonton, assistant P.R.O. at Canadian military headquarters, London, two newspapermen now in the army, steered the quintet around. Safari-fashion, we moved of, with drivers, sleeping bags, haversacks, and camouflaged cars.

All in uniforms labelled "Canada War Correspondent" we hooked up with a reconnaissance battalion and the writers rode pillion on motor bikes throughout the cold afternoon in the vanguard of the advance.

Halton, who saw real war in Finland, borrowed a woollen balaclava helmet and Gibbs' greatcoat to beat the cold. Dingman, formerly with the Toronto Globe and Mail, donned an airman's helmet and googles and Cranfield, veteran London correspondent, bundled up in layers of scarves till he looked like a Dickens Christmas character.

Bill stuck to his field service cap, and wouldn't admit it was colder than Winnipeg's Portage Avenue in February.

Over unfamiliar highways, Pte. Tommy Hunter of Kelliher, Sask., led the speedy convoy and set the other drivers—Pte. Frank Norton, Ottawa, Pte. Jack Thompson, Regina, and Pte. Wally Gamache, Ottawa—whistling "If I Only Had Wings."

At night we had a rendezvous in a village and bunked in a 300-year hotel. Porters gasped at the expedition's baggage, piled in the lobby.

Before dawn we sloshed around in the heaviest rain in months, watching battalion after battalion move into position.

At conferences of commanders we were told how the "battle" was faring. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, corps commander, talked to us for half an hour outside a tavern headquarters and later bedraggled reporters interviewed Maj.-Gen. That response delighted Hitler, Arnold said. Germany's aluminum production boomed, giving the output needed for plane construction.

ISTANBUL, Turkey April 2 (AP) —President Ismet Inonu has sent a message of congratulation to King Peter II of Yugoslavia, who took the throne in last Thursday's overthrow of the Axis-minded Cvetkovic government, it was anounced oficially today. The announcement had been withheld until the 17-year King replied.

The texts of the messages were not disclosed.

Turkish papers under government control continued to assert that Germany is being pushed to a dangerous situation in the Balkans while Italian defeats place Britain in strong position to send forces into the Balkans to expand the expeditionary force already in Greece.

Tasviri Efkar said that "Germany's policy is to try to occupy the Balkans and the Middle East without fighting.

TORONTO, April 2 — (CP). — J. W. Freeborn (Lib., Middlesex North) was advised in a return tabled in the Ontario Legislature yesterday that the Liquor Control Board, since its inception, has had eight chairmen. D. B. Hanna and Sir Henry Drayton received $20,000 as chairmen; Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, S. McClenaghan, Judge J. M. McNamara, and E. G. Odette, $10,000; A. N. Smith, $7,000, and the present chaiman, Hon. A. In another return it was said that at the end of 1940 there were 6,069 permanent employees and 1,673 temporary employees in civil service, excluding those employed by outside boards and commissions as well as by the Liquor Control Board.

Profits of $10,564,176 were made by the board in the 12 months ending March 31, 1940, compared with profits of $9,576,021 in the previous year, the report of the board tabled in the Legislature showed Tuesday.

The U. A. W.-C. I. O. organizing committee offered to-day in a telegram to directors of the office of production management at Washington to send back to work in the Ford plant all its members needed for work on national defence.

The telegram informed William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman: "If you can obtain the company's co-operation, we are ready to have a representative of O.P.R. or the U.S. Department of Labor indicate which Rouge employees are needed for national defence work and to facilitate their entarnce into the plant."

Street Battles.

Principle violence this morning centred at Gate 4. Two serious clashes occurred between U.A.W.-C.I.O. pickets and non-strikers who came from the plant gate and battled the unionists in the street.

Before Gov. Von Wagoner ordered State police on duty, Bennett charged in a statement that "the Governor had chosen to let these mobs of men, some of whom are drunk, take complete control of the city streets in Dearborn, even insulting women who are not in any way to blame for the trouble."

Many of hte non-strikers involved in to-day's fighting were negroes. Union officials charged that several pickets were slashed by razors and knives.

Shortly after 8 a.m., (EDT) when day shifts normally are reporting for work, about 150 pickets with bricks and clubs battled groups of employees climbing over a fence to reach the plant grounds east of Gate 4.

A few minutes later about 200 men, mostly negroes, armed with steel rods, bolts and bits of metal, emerged from Gate 4 on Miller road and began pelting the C.I.O. pickets who picked up missiles and threw them back.

Police were virtually helpless for a time but when the fighters broke up into small groups, officers intervened and separated them, escorting the non-strikers back into the plant.

Hanson Urges Flour Gift

Shipbuilding Debate Enlivens Commons

OTTAWA, April 2 —(CP)—With the double-barrelled objective of aiding Great Britain and educating British householders in the merits of Canadian flour, Conservative House Leader Hanson would have Canada make a free gift of flour to Great Britain.

Varying his previous suggestion that Canada contribute 100,000,000 bushels of wheat from vast surplus stores in this country Mr. Hanson yesterday suggested the same quantity of the wheat be milled in Canada and the flour shipper overseas.

He suggested the flour be sent directly into the home of the British consumers and identified as Canada. He thought the cost might be $100,000,000 but asserted this was not too large a gesture for Canada to make to the United Kingdom.

Debate on the supplementary war appropriations bill for $135,000,000 carried the House over a wide range of other topics, from shipbuilding to relations between Canadian overseas troops and the British home forces.

Wants Scotia Ships

At the evening sitting, Mr. Hanson urged the re-establishment of a great commerical shipbuilding industry to restore to Nova Scotia yards the glory they knew in the last century.

"The people of Nova Scotia demonstrated in the last war that they could build steel ships of very large capacity," he said.

"It can be done again, and I ask the minister (Navy Minister Macdonald) to review the whole position in the interests of Nova Scotia and the maritime provinces.

"Let us get back to something of the position we once occupied in this country in relation to the sea."

Mr. Hanson charged the government lacked a long-range policy on shipbuilding and said that while the

"Unfortunately I have to find you guilty to the best of my judgment," said Judge Smoke. Mr. Frankel said that he had no representations to make in regard to sentence.

"Your record is not a very impressive one," said His Honor, addressing the accused. "Your mode of life has not been changed very much by previous sentences. I consider it my duty to consider your record as well as the seriousness of the offence with which you are charged."

Judge Smoke then sentenced Burns to four years in the Penitentiary.

Baby's Face Is Badly Battered

The small baby son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dorrington, 16 Victoria avenue, which was badly injured on Monday afternoon when struck by a small boy will not suffer any permanent injury it was believed to-day. Mrs. Dorrington and her mother were to go down town and when calling for at mother's home on Dublin street she left the baby who was asleep in the carriage at the foot of the steps leading up to the verandah. While in getting her mother it is alleged that the baby was attacked by the four and a half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Grose, leaving it with a badly battered and cut face. How the child did not lose its eyesight is a wonder to all who have seen it as one cut is directly under the eye and the other lower down.

What the boy used has not exactly been determined, however the view is generally held that a stick was used but some believe that possibly a good chunk of ice was the weapon.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 2 — (CP). — A sharp break in flax prices shortly after opening featured early operations on Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Flax values broke more than eight cents soon after the start, but healthy buying developed and quotations recovered all but about two cents of their losses.

Wheat futures operations lagged during the first half hour and at noon prices were ⅛ cent higher. May 76⅝, July 78¼ cents a bushel. Lack of selling pressure rather than buying orders appeared responsible for the firm tone.

Chicago and Buenos Aires values held unchanged in the early stages.

Plan Concert To Aid Fund

A meeting was held Tuesday night at the call of His Worship Mayor Hamilton in the Council Chamber, for the purpose of organizing a musical event proposed to be held in the near future, the proceeds of which would go towards the local and district effort being made on behalf of the British War Victims.

The general consensus of opinion was that such an event would be well received and supported by the community at large, and tentative plans to hold such an event on St. George's Day, April 23rd were discussed, together with the possibility of securing some outstanding personality to come here to assist in making it a real success.

The meeting adjourned, to meet again on Friday of this week at 5 p.m. in the Council Chamber, to hear reports of progress made from enquiries to be instituted in the interim.

An invitation is extended to all interested parties to be in attendance at this meeting.

COBOURG KINSMEN HONOR EASTERN JUNIOR HOCKEY CHAMPIONS

Team Sponsored By Kinsmen Given Banquet

COBOURG, April 2 — (ENS). — Cobourg's junior hockey team, the famous Kin Kids, were guests last night at a banquet given in their honor by their sponsors, the Kinsmen Club. The feast was tendered the team at the British Hotel and a number of guest speakers were on hand, including His Honor Judge L. V. O'Conor and His Worship Mayor J. D. Burnett. Dr. A. R. Richards as president of the hockey team and member of the Kinsmen Club, was chairman of the banquet, and his introductions were in the famous maner of this well-known toastmaster.

Over forty guests were assembled at the long tables and of their number ten were members of the hockey squad, while three absent members of the team were Lyle Markle, Peter May, and Bus Catin. Those present were Captain Douglas Moher, Ross Zealand, Paul Johns, Billy Hill, Jack Cullen, Eddie Haynes, Art Parkinson, Paul Leonard, Gibson Bradbury, and Douglas Johnston, the team mascot. Coach Ward Parsons and Manager Alexander Pratt were also on hand, with Trainer Roy Black.

Congratulates Team.

Following a sing-song the chairman called on Mayor Burnett, who congratulated the team and said he felt sport was as essential as education, and when normal times were restored sport undoubtedly would be raised to the same level. His Worship related some of his earlier day sport experiences when the equipment so needed was unheard of. He further said that sport should be supported by the government of the day or the municipality, as it contributed so much to the future of the country's youth. He reminded the players they should some day be the elected heads of the people and the should see that this policy was carried out. Dr. Richards thanked the Mayor and hoped that some day his vision would be carried out. The chairman also thanked the Mayor and members of the Council for their recent gift to the team which had made certain things possible, and the local citizens for their cars during the season just past.

Judge O'Conor thanked the Kinsmen Club for the privilege of being at the banquet. He was always happy to be among the young men of sport—it revived and injected new life into him. The Kinsmen Club was fostering a worthy object in its support of hockey, he felt, and as a citizen he thanked the members for so doing. Their achievement in winning the Eastern championship for the past two years had shown the worthiness of their venture, he stated. He spoke of his early days in Lindsay when hockey was only shinny and played with crude sticks and blocks of wood or tin for a puck. Lindsay had been one of the first places to sponsor hockey in those days, he told the banquet asembly. Modern hockey has gripped the country as evidenced by the recent adjournment of the Legislature in order to attend the pro hockey game. It was a sign that all of us were boys at heart and that was a sign of good citizenship.

Secret of Success.

Co-operation, he told the boys, was the secret of not only hockey, but of life itself, as he urged them not to forget this paramount rule in future days. Boys' sport was a testing school for youth and it built character. "Character is the base of the whole future," he said. "Character built up in sport redounds to not only your own credit but that of the town and country," he told the boys. In closing His Honor paid tribute to friendship earned in his own sport, curling. These friendships, he said, were regarded by himself as the finest he had.

Dr. Richards thanked His Honor for his fine speech and called upon Ward Parsons who spoke of the fine co-operation given him as coach by the players and executive. Doug. Moher, captain of the team, spoke with deep feeling of his fellow-players and the parent club. He also thanked the press for its fine co-operation. Dr. Richards presented the players with crests and letters of authorization for leather windbreakers which are now in the manufacturer's hands. They will be deep maroon in color, with white piping, and the crests will bear the legend: "Cobourg Kin, Eastern Junior C Champions, 1940-1941."

The chairman called upon F. C. Richardson whom he designated as the critic of the evening. The latter said that in view of the fine efforts of those who had preceded him he could find no criticism, and he could only find it possible to congratulate the team and the club for their fine year's work.

The players then gave three cheers for the Kinsmen Club, following which the singing of "O Canada" brought the happy affair to a close.

Winter Returns In April To Port Hope

Port Hope was clothed in a fairyland mantle of snow on Tuesday following the heaviest snowfall of the year during the night. Perhaps it was an April Fools' Day prank but motorists driving home during the storm all say they do not want to be out in another one like it again. The view shows the municipal building from the Rotary Park.

COBOURG

Troop Train Carries Regiment To Ottawa

COBOURG, April 2. — (ENS). — Many Cobourg boys had happy leave memories to content themselves late Monday night as the 1st Midland Regiment furlough ended and departure became the order of the day. Many of the local boys left early Monday, but a large number waited for the Midland troop train which steamed through here sometime after midnight Monday. The Midland train had been gathering up the soldiers all the way down the line and when it arrived here several cars were already filled with members of the regiment now stationed in Ottawa. The local contingent boarded the train with full pack and their appearance was very smart even for such a late hour. The regiment is under command of Major Gamey, already a veteran of overseas service in this war.

PORT HOPE

Dr. N. S. McKechnie, and the Rev. T. Crosthwaite, Port Hope. Dr. McKechnie is the recently appointed minister at the Port Hope Baptist Church, and the Rev. Crosthwaite conducted his first services at St. Mark's Anglican Church one week ago Sunday.

The annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society will be held in April, K. J. Hodgert, superintendent, announced.

Birthday Party Held

PORT HOPE, April 2.—(ENS).—Miss Nathalie Jordon, a member of Port Hope's younger set, entertained eighteen of her friends at her birthday party Tuesday evening. Nathalie is ten years old.

The table was attractively decorated in mauve and yellow. Easter games were played and a lovely lunch served.

Colored Cheese May Disappear From The Stores

Canada's new contract to supply Great Britain with 112,000,000 pounds of cheese went into effect Tuesday, and from several sources it was learned that dairy authorities are beginning to feel apprehensive about the determination of cheese-making farmers to fill the bill.

It has been frequently stated during the winter that Great Britain will take as much cheese as the Canadian industry produces this year, and from all accounts the Dominion Government is determined at least the contract shall be cried out.

Britain is paying 14.4 cents a pound and the federal government is adding .6 cents a pound, bringing the price at Montreal to 15 cents. On top of that there is a two-cent federal bonus for 94-grade cheese and the Ontario government, to stimulate production, is contributing another two cents a pound.

No Colored Cheese

One of the effects of government policy is altogether likely that colored cheese may soon disappear from the domestic counters, depending on the country's output this season. None of the Peterborough factories will make colored cheese this year, and it is understood that the Campbellford board this season will offer nothing but white cheese.

The British market prefers the white product, and Canadian factories are deferring to the English consumer's taste. Most of the Peterborough county factories made colored cheese last year, but because of the overseas demand, and the contract that has to be filled, there will be no coloring material used in local vats this summer.

Took Local Cheese

An idea of the close watching of current cheese supplies in this country is indicated by a little story heard a few days ago that somebody in authority decided that Canada Packers had on hand 400 cheese more than they actually needed for their trade. It is said they were "taken" at the market price for export to the Old Country. Storage cost to Packers is said to have represented a loss of a cent and a half a pound on those 400 cheese.

Even the Silverwood 94-point colored cheese made in Peterborough is included in the switch to white, and it is understood that while in Ottawa this week attending a meeting of the Canadian Dairy Council G. A. Gillespie is going to ask whether the local factory might still be permitted to make colored cheese for the home market. It will be more of an enquiry than a request, because after all it is everywhere recognized that cheese in particularly needed in the Old Country for its high food content.

Rumor Unfounded

A rumor has been circulated this week that milk from the Peterborough milkshed going to Toronto is to be diverted to the local cheese factories. So far it is learned definitely that there is no fact behind this story, but it would be no surprise to the industry if the government decides to force more local milk into the manufacture of cheese.

Frank Paterson told the Examiner that he feels confident Peterborough cheese factory patrons are going to get that extra "500 pounds of milk per cow" that is being urged to ensure the performance of the British contract. Local farmers in the factory sections have indicated that they are going to do a thorough milk-producing job as part of their contribution to helping the people in the Old Country.

On the other hand William Newman, on his way home from eastern Ontario Saturday, expressed some doubt as to whether factories beyond Kingston are going to be able to maintain their output levels of last year. His opinion is likely to be passed on to the provincial department of agriculture.

Knew His Names

OMAHA, Neb., April 2 — (AP). — For Pep, a bulldog, the name was familiar even if the faces were not. He strayed from the David H. Jones home. A week later he was found—at the David R. Jones home. The Joneses are not related.

Wheat In Parks

Geneva, Switzerland, April 2.

WHEAT is growing where diplomats once walked — in the miles of spacious parks surrounding the League of Nations palace. The grounds were requisitioned by the state.

Surprise Party Held

PORT HOPE, April 2—(ENS).—Greenwood Towers was the scene of a delightful surprise party last night for Mrs. Sproale. Nearly thirty friends gathered for the event. Mrs. E. Brown presented Mrs. Sproale with a lovely corsage of roses, sweet peas and forget-me-nots. Mrs. Alf. George presented the lady with a beautiful housecoat.

During the evening the guests enjoyed games and cards and at the conclusion refreshments were served.

Price Of Milk Advances In Port Hope

PORT HOPE, April 2—(ENS). — Though it was announced on April 1, Port Hope housewives are unlikely to consider the advance in the price of milk as an April Fool joke. The advance of one cent on quarts and pints was announced Tuesday on the order of the Milk Control Board, local distributors pointed out.

A meeting of Port Hope and Cobourg producers and distributors with the Milk Control Board was held last week to discuss local problems. Following the meeting a price increase was forecast.

Local distributors state the benefit of the price increase will accrue to the producer, and will not aid the distributor.

Farm wages were said to be an important factor in ordering the increase in price, as it was shown costs were increased.

Business Men Review Year's Doings

In a summary of its enterprise and progress, W. Chris Hughes, president, reviewed a year of consistent endeavor and accomplishment at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Business Men's Association in the Empress Hotel last night.

The dinner meeting was largely attended, the company including several guests from Havelock, E. J. Leeson and F. L. McKenzie. The financial report by J. J. Dorris showed a credit balance, and the nominating committeee's list of directors was accepted.

The musical program consisted of piano numbers by Harry Northrop, a smart series of sleight of hand or "magic" tricks by Robert Hardie, and two songs by Adam Hawley, "What the Red Haired Bosun Said" and "The Old Road." Mr. Hawley is a young man with a voice of bass and baritone range, and of fine texture and surprising power. He makes exceedingly fine use of it, and his singing delighted the large audience.

Youth was dominant throughout the Business Men's dinner, in the composition of its assembly membership, and in the years of those who contributed to its success. The guest speaker was William Fox, one of the youngest lawyers in the city, who is associated with John R. Corkery. One of his striking statements in an appeal for loyalty to democratic ideals and institutions was that most men were prepared to give their lives today for the ways and duties of living which they know as democracy, but for the last twenty years too many men were indifferent to the contrasting demands of democracy in the easier circumstances of peace.

Directors For 1941

The report of the nominating committee by J. W. Geraghty proposed the following directors: Don Loucks, Verne Selkirk, Charles Saunders, C. E. LaBranche, Chris Hughes, Charles Kingan, J. W. Geraghty, Harold Freeman, D. J. Fitzgerald, James Clarke and E. C. Braund. The report was adopted.

In looking back over the Association's work during 1940 Mr. Hughes, chairman of the dinner, referred to the loss the Business Men had suffered in the untimely death of Al Sharpe, "a man who gave whole hearted support to the building up of our organization, and whose prime ambition was community effort." Theatre night provided funds for the distribution of $1,100 in War Savings Stamps and Certificates, instead of the Santa Claus parade. The extension of the Wednesday half holiday to ten months of the year from January to the end of October was accomplished "and is now being employed by both merchants and employees alike."

Mr. Hughes referred to the largely signed petition to the city council for the appointment of an industrial commissioner, "but it did not meet with the approval of the city council as a whole and the matter has been dropped for the time being." An appeal to the federal government for a mail service between Peterborough and Bancroft was also mentioned by Mr. Hughes, and although no change has been made yet "we intend to follow it up again this year." He also recalled the executive's visit to Havelock to assist in the formation of a Business Men's Association in the neighboring village.

Hour Of Decision

At the beginning of his address Mr. Fox quoted from a recent magazine article by Stuart Cloethe: "Today man stands before his God, stripped of his illusions, his hope; stripped of all things but those impulses of his heart and mind that force him to choose between God and mammon, between good and evil, between fighting, perhaps dying, as a slave. He is stripped of all things—of everything but his decision."

Mrs. W. Hopper Wins $25 In War Stamps

PORT HOPE, April 2 — (ENS).— Mrs. W. Hopper was awarded the first prize of $25 in War Savings Certificates in the seventh weekly "Dimes for Victory" draw at the Capitol Theatre on Monday night. In second place is E. L. Thickson, who won the $10 award. There were also a large number of $5.00 prizes drawn by Hugh Bird and Ed. Brandwood, who had charge of the draw this week.

Originating in Port Hope the novel method of contributing dimes toward the purchase of War Savings Stamps has rapidly gained popular approval. Each week the contributions by citizens and outsiders alike permits upwards of thirty prizes to be distributed to the names drawn from the box at the theatre. Charles Stephenson, chairman of the local War Savings Committee sponsored the idea.

Popularity of Mr. Stephenson's idea is seen in the number of inquiries received from outside centres where it is proposed to conduct a similar campaign.

Winners of the $5.00 awards were: Nancy Hutchings, Hazel Burnham, Lindley Taylor, Jack Rowden, Mrs. W. H. Hill, Mrs. Harold Fox, W. Hibbard, H. Trew, Mrs. I. Holdaway, Mrs. Peter Bulkowski, K. Gifford, Henry Cook, Mrs. Mary Oswald, Roy Dayman, Jr., Mrs. J. H. Stephens, W. J. Oliver, W. J. Austin, Helen Stephenson, T. R. Price, J. T. Freestone, and G. Corbett.

COBOURG

Maple Leaf Lodge To Hold Dance, Euchre

COBOURG, April 2 — (ENS). — The Maple Leaf Lodge No. 351 of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association will hold a dance and euchre in Memorial Hall, King Street, Cobourg, on Tuesday evening, April 8. Good prizes for euchre and the music for dancing will be furnished by Douglas Olliffe's Orchestra, Oshawa.

This association is very active with war work providing comforts and treats for the boys in uniform. At Christmas they sent boxes to the sons and relatives of members of the Lodge. They sent smokes, sox, sweaters and cake to the boys serving overseas, and in many ways are helping to bring comfort and cheer to the Canadian boys in the Army.

PORT HOPE

Mrs. A. Jamieson Is Laid To Rest

PORT HOPE, April 2 — (ENS).— A lifelong resident of Hope Township was laid to rest this afternoon (Wednesday), when the funeral of the late Mrs. Andrew Jamieson was conducted from her late residence on the Dale-Welcome Highway by the Rev. J. W. Gordon. Interment was at St. John's Cemetery, Port Hope.

The late Mrs. Jamieson was born in Hope Township, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Morton. She was admitted to Port Hope Hospital suffering from a lingering illness from which she passed away on Monday.

Her passing is mourned by her sons Richard who lives at home and Willard of Hope Township and three grandchildren. Her husband predeceased her three years ago. Mrs. Harry Ferguson, Cobourg Road, is a sister, and John Morton and Willard Morton, also residing on the Cobourg Road, are brothers.

PORT HOPE

Students Play Big Part In War Activity

PORT HOPE, April 2 (ENS).— A very important part of the High School curriculum at the present time is the War Work the students are doing.

Every Wednesday is set aside as donation day, when the pupils put their coins into boxes which are placed on the desk for the purpose. This money is used to buy wool, and material. The girls and teachers of the school have knitted numerous sweaters for different ages and have made many dresses, jumpers and trousers.

Thirty dollars was donated to the school fund by three girls who made and sold gollywogs to the students. The girls—Barbara Tickell, Pauline Bennett and Ethel Moncrelf.

A short time ago an operetta was held, the proceeds of which went to the British War Victims' Fund of the Toronto Telegram. A dance was held for this fund, also.

It is hoped that it will be possible for the work to be continued during the summer months.

COBOURG

Woman's Condition Remains Unchanged

COBOURG, April 2 — (ENS). — The condition of Mrs. Vera Jewel is still unchanged. The sole survivor of the tragic Sunday midnight crash is still under close observation in the hospital here. Her condition is described as critical.

... and I'm building a home of my Own!

YESSIR! Thousands of us are getting back to work. And we're planning for the future. This time, we're going to put our money where it means after-war security.

There was never a better opportunity for the worker to own his own home. A modern home, built to Government specifications. Easy to heat, economical to maintain. A home you can pay for by the month . . . just like you now pay rent.

That's what your Government offers you under the National Housing Act—the opportunity to enjoy the comfort and financial security of a home of your own. And because the materials and workmanship in these homes must be approved by the Government, you're sure of getting the utmost value for every dollar.

When you build, be sure that your home is insulated with Ten/Test lifetime insulation. Ten/Test means a home that's economical to heat. For Ten/Test cuts fuel costs up to 30%. Does it every year for the entire life of the house.

When you buy Ten/Test, you have the same sturdy insulation which used to be available only in the more expensive homes.

Ten/Test does THREE jobs at one low cost.

1. Ten/Test insulates.
2. Ten/Test stops cold-air seepage.
3. Ten/Test adds structural strength.

Only RIGID fibre board insulation does all three of these essential jobs.

Find out today how easy it is to have a home of your own. Stop paying rent, and put your savings into an investment which means lifelong security. Ask any Ten/Test dealer how you can do it. Or send this coupon now.

Who Gave The Order?

After reading all the reports about the smashing victory of the British Mediterranean fleet, and noticing all the published charts showing the positions and manoeuvres of the ships in combat, one is still looking for an answer to the question: "Why did the Italian fleet venture out to the attack?"

Even when we read of one lone British vessel being sent out as bait for the trap, the answer is not given. That is admittedly nothing new in the book of tactics, and the Italians would surely know where there was one British cruiser there would be a supporting fleet within calling distance.

There are rather well-informed writers who claim there is something more to it than appears on the surface. They see in it evidence of the same sort of desperation which Mussolini displayed when he visited the Albanian front and gave his generals until March 15 "to do something."

In a sound way that seems sensible as explanations go. Whether Hitler was some way connected with it is entering the field of speculation rather deeply, but it is plain that Hitler has been trying to take the pressure off Italy for weeks. We refuse to believe that Hitler cares a button what happens to Mussolini, but he finds that his own ability to strengthen or assist his wobbling partner in the Axis affair is causing him (Hitler) to lose a lot of prestige. And that is one thing which Hitler cannot afford to lose. His whole fifth column idea is based on it and rooted in it. Nations must be brought to regard Germany as all powerful; they must be stewed in the fear of what Germany may do to them. Is it, therefore, going too far to suggest that Hitler may have had a hand in forcing the Italian navy to "do something" to the British, who have been having far too much their own way in the Mediterranean?

Yugoslavia has actually forced Hitler's hand. We do not believe Hitler desired to have war in the Balkans. His plan was crafty, and for a while it was working nicely. He desired to line up the Balkan nations, to place in there great concentrations of German armed force, to close in gradually on Greece. In that way Britain would be forced to place more of her armed strength at the disposal of the Greeks. It would draw the British out of Africa and also take men from the serious business of guarding the British Isles against invasion. And it would also lessen British sea strength while the Battle of the Atlantic was progressing. And it was undoubtedly planned that all this could be carried on without having war in the Balkans, in which case there would be nothing to interfere with the even flow of oil from the Balkans, and Germany would not be having war on two fronts.

The move in Yugoslavia is of immense importance. Hitler himself will have to "do something" which was not on the books. He cannot stand back while the Yugoslavian nation thumbs its nose at Berlin. His Italian partner is weaker than ever, and it should not be overlooked that Italy has a frontage which faces Yugoslavia, or that Yugoslavia also borders on Albania as well as the Adriatic, which Italy planned to rope off as her own inland sea.

Who it was that ordered the Italian fleet out to battle we do not know, but we do know he did a poor day's work for Italy. The result was that even the nuisance value of the Italian fleet has been taken from it.

One Man's Decision

Sir Frederick Banting of insulin fame, whose tragic death occurred on February 21, left an estate valued at $72,300, of which $46,000 was in life insurance. The remaining $26,000 is made up of his home in Toronto, a fishing lodge and some stocks, bonds and personal effects. As estates go for men of his prominence it is not large.

And yet Sir Frederick could have been a man of great wealth. He is always referred to as the co-discoverer of insulin, but the idea was his at the inception, and the solution of the problem was pretty much in his hands.

There was the time when Dr. Banting was approached by financial interests from United States, and the suggestion was that he should name his price for the right to insulin. He could have been a millionaire several times over right there, but he declined.

The manufacture and sale of insulin the world over is pretty much controlled and regulated from the laboratories in Toronto. The price is set and printed on the boxes and it cannot be changed. It is one article which has several times been reduced in price. As the process of manufacture became more perfect the price came down, and no matter where it is purchased the price is the same. When Banting was reasonably sure of what he had his idea was to give it as wide a distribution as possible at the lowest possible price. That is why his estate is not in the class of the million or millions variety.

Can Find It Here

Mrs. Mary Lindsay, referred to as a prominent worker among women's organizations and school children, has been sent from Ottawa to study the method used in Toronto for the sale of War Savings stamps and securities in schools, the idea being to extend Toronto's system to other schools across the Dominion.

We have not the details of the Toronto plan, but we do know a fair amount about the system used in the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational Institute, and we are moved to doubt if Toronto has developed anything superior to it.

Total sales at this school have reached $17,000 and each succeeding week sees that total increase by $600 or $700. The entire method has been so simplified that it interferes not at all with the work at the school. If Mrs. Lindsay does not find that for which she is looking in Toronto, then she can come into possession of it in Peterborough.

Beating The Speculator

It was not necessary to wait until the budget was brought down to learn there was to be an added impost on sugar. At one cent per pound the revenue has yielded $11,000,000 per year. At two cents a pound it should bring in $21,000,000 allowing for the restriction in buying which follows each increase in commodity prices.

Finance Minister Ilsley beat his own gun by announcing the increase before the day of the budget. He did it to head off the speculators as his information was that heavy buying was starting on the part of confectioners and canners. That meant if there was going to be money made then the Government was going to get the money.

The debate brought out a few bits of information which the public has not had before. Last May when the price of raw sugar was going to advance over night the Sugar Controller bought up all the stocks in the hands of the refiners, and then sold them back next day at a profit—to the Government.

We are not so certain that the consumer is so well protected. When sugar makes its way into processed goods it is difficult for any one to know definitely that the tax of two cents per pound remains just that all the way through until it reaches the consumer. The consumer would have no knowledge of how much sugar was in the article which had an increased price due to its sugar content. Even with the increased tax the retail price of sugar will be relatively low compared with the heights attained by this article during the days of the last war.

Should Be Frank

In committee of the whole at Ottawa there has been protracted discussion regarding changing the boundaries and extent of the Prince Albert National Park in northern Saskatchewan. The proposal is that 376 square miles of the park shall revert to the province, and Opposition members have been asking questions, and to some of them they have not been receiving complete answers.

It is not often that a situation is encountered where a Government of any sort is willing to hand over anything much to any other government, provincial or federal.

During the debate it was revealed that there would be no restrictions attached to the transfer, and the provincial authorities of Saskatchewan can attach their own future policy to the land. If there is timber there then they can sell leases.

It would have been more satisfactory had all the answers to any questions which were asked been given fully and with no reservations. At the moment the Opposition members appear to have raised something which looks like a question mark regarding the deal.

Frost Deep Down

The distance to which frost entered the ground during the winter seems to depend entirely upon location. There are reports of frost being found at a depth of between five and six feet. In other places in spite of a severe and a long winter there appears to be little frost in the ground.

There are gardens which have been covered with snow for months, and at no time have they been exposed. Now that the snow has been gone all the early growth is there showing evidence of being ready for business. There is no frost in the upper soil, and that constant covering is the reason.

As far as can be judged the fields of fall wheat have come through the winter well, although April can be a month of strange moods and rather violent changes. The protecting snow has gone and the wheat has to make its own way.

But frost having a penetration of more than five feet in unprotected spots is something to think about.

It All Depends

Figures which can be accepted as reliable indicate that France has paid to Germany since the armistice of last July more than Germany paid in reparations to France from 1919 to 1931, and that covered a period of twelve years.

And during that time Germany was borrowing money from the rest of the world.

France is making her payments for the support of the army of occupation, and is paying doubly as French food is required to feed that army.

Adolf Hitler made full use of the reparation payments to make the German people believe they had been robbed, and he openly denounced the "principle involved." And yet he does not hesitate to pile on the load while he has the short-lived authority which permits him to do it.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Rather a change to see the Nazis scampering to get out of Yugoslavia.

Mussolini again makes the statement that he stands square behind his army. But unless he is fleet of foot it must be a great way behind.

Those who are going overseas to take a crack at Hitler should understand they are not at all likely to find him near the front line.

United States is planning to build a road 1,800 miles long through British Columbia to connect U.S. with Alaska. Wouldn't it be a simpler operation to move Alaska?

George Meimar and Louis Pantaleo were arrested in Toronto on the charge of operating a still. Those names do not suggest any family connection with the pioneers who first settled this country.

The Examiner has received a letter regarding rents and it bears the signature "G.M." That gives the paper no indication of the identity of the writer, and for that reason it is being withheld.

Ten bogus cheques were passed by one man in Toronto during the month. Can't help wondering if the people who cashed them would be as keen to extend a little credit to some worthy person, short of funds, whom they knew.

German bombs have again dropped on the Strand and Fleet Street. Perhaps the Germans are like a good many others, rather confused when it came to knowing where the Strand stopped and Fleet Street had its beginning.

The town of Maulins in France was fined 50,000 francs because there were anti-Nazi writings on walls of buildings. But the fine will not rub out the main idea, which is that the writings were there because they expressed what the people are thinking.

ALAS!

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Now Johnny was a farmer's son, a splendid lad, a goodly one, at chores he'd never kick; he whistled much around his work, and never would this Johnny shirk, and he was rather quick.

¶ He said he'd never leave the farm, he loved the chores around the barn, and he was full of health; he said when he grew up a man, he had a good and hopeful plan, he'd own a farm himself.

¶ His father boasted of him too, spoke of the things the lad could do, he plowed a furrow straight; he came straight home right after four, and tackled any waiting chore, and he was never late.

¶ A calf was born out in the barn, about the best one on the farm, and father had a plan; 'twas Johnny's calf, he said that night, the boy was filled with strange delight, he was a farming man.

¶ And Johnny brought that calf along, it grew and it was fine and strong, it thrived on country air; and Johnny's pride was deeply stirred, when one day he received the word, took first prize at the fair.

¶ One day the drover came around, the calf was rated mighty sound, 'twas far removed from trash; the sale went through that very day, and Johnny's calf was led away—but father kept the cash.

This Debate Travels Wide To Prove What?

From Parliamentary Hansard

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): My hon. friends have been talking about bonuses. I will tell the committee about one bonus which to my knowledge has been paid for forty years, a bonus which has been paid to the people in Ontario from whom we have been forced to purchase the products we buy.

An hon. MEMBER: Quite right.

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): I am a farmer. Last fall my truck, which I had purchased nine years ago, secondhand, needed replacing, and I decided to buy a new one. The new truck cost me $500 more than it would have cost my competing neighbor across the boundary in the state of Montana. Was that a bonus to somebody? I'll say it was! It was a bonus of at least $500 to the province of Ontario, where that truck was made.

Mr. DOUGLAS (Weyburn): Surely not, under a free trade Liberal government!

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): Under any government — and my hon. friend knows it.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): That still does not make it right.

Mr. ROSS (Moose River): I agree, absolutely — and I started to talk about that long before you did.

Mr. DOUGLAS (Weyburn): You did not get many results, though.

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): Oh, some.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): You should change parties.

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): That bonus has been paid for many years, and I suppose it will continue to be paid. But surely, after telling us, the western farmers, for so many years, that we must buy in this market, these gentlemen are not going to come to us and say, "Oh, now, you must not go into the live stock business; you must not go into the dairy business, and must not sell feed, because that is our business." Surely they will not say that.

Mr. FURNISS: Does not the hon. member think that the Ontario farmer pays just as much through tariff protection as does the western farmer, per farmer?

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): No, not nearly.

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): Proportionately, yes. And I am in favor of getting all the Ontario farmers to agree with me in what I am saying. Instead of farmers of Ontario fighting the farmers of the west, I would have them all get together and have something done about it.

Mr. READ: That would not apply to British Columbia, because we pay more for our machinery there.

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): Last night I listened to some humorous observations from one of my colleagues, the hon. member for Wellington North. He is a farmer, a doctor and a politician.

Mr. DOUGLAS (Weyburn): "And the greatest of these is—"

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): He may be a very good farmer, but he is much more agile than most of us. He can get out from under when the going is tough. He told us so last night. As a politician I would say that the local view obscured the national, with him. As a doctor, I believe he is one of the better general practitioners in Ontario. He is a good humorist, because I know he was speaking humorously last night.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): A lot of truth in it, though.

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): Had he been speaking seriously, and had he been a brilliant psychiatrist instead of a general practitioner, I would have said to him, "Physician, heal thyself."

Mr. MacNICOL: Pretty good on the Bible today, Gordon.

An hon. MEMBER: "Go thou and do likewise."

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): The value of this policy cannot be guaged at this time because no one can tell just what the position of the farmer is going to be until we know what this year's crop is. His net returns under this policy may be greater than if he grew wheat on all his land, even at an increased price. Hon. gentlemen opposite talk about the cost of production of wheat, but in thirty years of farming I have never been able to figure it out. I can figure the cost per acre.

Mr. NICHOLSON: Is a price of 70 cents enough?

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): I would not think so. In speaking of costs hon. gentlemen opposite say that a small farmer cannot make money with wheat at 70 cents, and many of them say he cannot make any money at 85 cents. If that is so—I do not say it is—then the farmer will be better off if he turns to doing something else which will bring him a net return.

Mr. QUELCH: His overhead is the same.

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): His overhead may be the same, but that is only a small part of it.

Mr. QUELCH: A big part of it.

IN LONG HAIR ERA

The lads are still poking fun at the Oklahoma farmer, age 33, who reported for U.S. Army draft duty, wearing long curls reaching to his shoulders. But look back in your history books to the period of Charles I and his son, the Merrie Monarch, and you will see that all the men had beautiful long tresses, or failing that, wore luxuriant wigs to imitate them. Times change, it seems, and circumstances alter cases.—Brantford Expositor.

IDENTITY

"When did they send you the evacuee?"
—London Daily Herald.

• All He Asks Is a Chance

SIR,—Recently in your paper there have appeared letters from Veterans of the last war and a few from the present one, concerning employment in munitions work. Being a young man (married) with a child and also a disabled ex-serviceman of the present war, having spent about six months in hospital and two months convalescing at home, I decided I felt fit enough to go out and look for employment in these munition plants, having had a 3-year course on technical work and experience amounting to about 5 years as well as qualifying in the army as a tradesman.

But to my great dismay and heartbreak all the so-called "preference" I got was "We'll call you," and "Not enough experience," and half a dozen more evasive answers. Now I don't want to start boasting about myself, but generally speaking and after serving in the armed forces and suffering for his country and the people who stay at home, a man should receive better treatment than he is getting at present.

Where it hurts most is to see young men, physically fit, who shirked their duty to voluntarily enlist in the "Active Service," taking these 100-hour or so trade courses in these so-called schools which have sprung up like mushrooms all over the city getting positions and going around boasting how they are getting away with it all.

Also men who never held a hammer in their lives before boast how they bluffed their way. Yes, dear editor, that is the situation as I find it, although my sympathies are with the mothers and wives of these men, who are letting other men who are married with children sacrifice their everything for them. The only feeling I have for these cowards is contempt, and I hope someday they realize what their buddies over there on active service think of them and the men holding positions which are responsible for this injustice.

• The Stunted Christians

IMAGINE the keen disappointment of parents who have a child who does not grow. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kerr of Toledo, Ohio, have a child like that. He has just celebrated his sixteenth birthday, but still wears the same size shoes and clothing that he did when he was three years old.

We take it that medical science has either been unable to put its finger on the cause of the boy's stunted growth or to prescribe a remedy.

Of course, a case like that of Clarence Kerr, Jr., is odd enough to get into the news. But when a person shows practically no growth in spiritual life during thirteen years, little notice is taken of it. There are perhaps so many stunted-growth Christians that the condition hardly seems to be abnormal.

Yet lack of spiritual growth is decidedly abnormal. And it is always to be accounted for by failure to take advantage of the provision made for growth and development.

The Bible admonishes not only sinners to become converted, but exhorts Christians to grow. Listen:

"That we...,speaking the truth in love, may grow up into Him in all things, which is the Head, even Christ. (Eph. 4:5). "As newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby." (1 Peter 2:2) "And besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue, knowledge; and to knowledge, temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience, godliness; and godliness, brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." (2 Peter 1:5-8.) "But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." (2 Peter 3:18.)

The true prosperity of a church consists in the growth of spiritual graces among the members. We make much of numbers, as though prosperity were a matter of arithmetic. But the statistics of the churches will never serve as a divining rod with which to discover the precious metal of piety. Christians should aim at nothing less than the ideal given by St. Paul: "Till we all come to the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ." Eph. (4:13.)—A PARSON in Chatham News.

TOO GOOD A COPY

SO faithfully do the Japanese copy goods, they sometimes make an error in judgment. Take the case of a playing card company. The firm makes ordinary playing cards and also puts a card in each pack advertising a better grade of cards.

The Japs bought some of the ordinary cards to use as models. They copied the cards to the most minute detail and flooded the United States with the cheap decks. But, here is where the playing card company had a laugh. Each pack of Japanese cards contained a card advertising the better product of the American company.—Windsor Star.

A Bit of Nonsense

Rather Standoffish?

"I would like to meet you again," he murmured, as they glided through the waltz. "What about letting me have your telephone number?"

"It's in the book," she told him.

"Good! What's your name?"

"You'll find that in the book also," she said.

A Distant Relation

"I hear you're related to our wealthy parishioner?"

"Distantly."

"How distant?"

"As far distanct as he can keep me."

Help!

Three Italian bombers encountered a British aircraft and were shot down into the sea.

The crews, numbering 12 in all, were picked up by a British battleship and put to bed in the spare top bunks.

Next morning, when the captain inspected them, he found they were bruised black and blue.

"Hey, what's happened to these prisoners?" he inquired.

"Well, sir," explained a sailor, "one of them kept saying 'Spitfire, Spitfire' in his sleep. And every time he said 'Spitfire' the other 11 baled out!"

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And when the day of Pentecost was fully come they were all with one accord in one place.

And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting.

And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them.

And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance.

And there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, devout men, out of every nation under heaven.

Now when this was noised abroad the multitude came together, and were confounded, because that every man heard them speak in his own language.—Acts 2: 1-6.

Teamed Rations To Camp On Apsley Road

Motoring up to Apsley in an hour this morning, to poke about in a sugar bush, Samuel Stuart, 16 Inverlea street, who was eighty Monday, was thinking of the years more than half a century ago when it was a long day's slow and toilsome journey with a team from 5.30 o'clock in the morning until around seven in the evening or perhaps later.

The novelty of the car ride has long since worn off, but the contrast which the years between, and their inventions have brought about, remains with him every time he makes the trip.

"If anybody had told me fifty-six years ago when I first drove up the Apsley road that some day I would be doing it comfortably in about an hour, I suppose I would have thought that he was crazy," Mr. Stuart remarked to the Examiner yesterday afternoon.

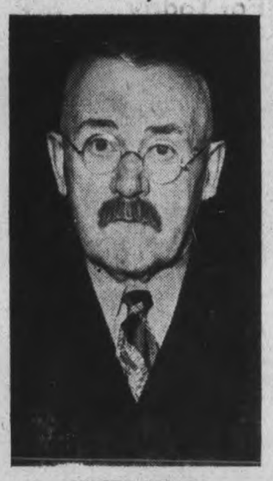
In those days he was working for the Dickson Lumber Company, whose timber limits were in Cavendish township, "and you went in by sleigh either by Apsley or up the Buckhorn road. I was lumbering twenty years, and during the last four years it was my job to team supplies into the camp. Three times a week I used to make the trip, and I have seen me pulling out from the platform at Donald McLean's grist mill in Lakefield at 5.30 of winter mornings, and I would be all day on the road. If I got to Apsley by seven o'clock in the evening I used to think I had made a pretty good trip."

Young's Point Mill

"I first went lumbering in 1885 George Chalmers of Young's Point," Mr. Stuart recalled. "He had timber limits in Burleigh. That was where we cut the trees, and the men dumped the logs into Cedar Lake. It is just west of Haultain, off the Apsley Road. Then they floated down Eel's Creek to Stoney Lake, and down to Chalmer's mill at Young's Point. It was quite a busy place in the summers with the sawmill and shinglemill going at full capacity. I worked in the woods in the winter and farmed in the summer. I was two years with Chalmers, and then I went to the Dickson Company."

Mr. Stuart was born on the first concession of Cavan township, about two and a half miles west of Bailieboro. His father was John Stuart and his mother Elizabeth Gayner. His father was born a mile west of Centreville, and his grandfather, also names John, came out from the north of Ireland as a pioneer settler in Cavan township. There were two other brothers who came to Canada at that time, James going to York county on the farm

80 On Monday



SAMUEL STUART

Retired farmer and lumberman, Mr. Stuart went back to Apsley Monday to putter about in a sugar bush while the sap runs. Motoring along that road he recalls the days when he used to team rations to the Dickson Lumber Company's camp in Cavendish township man years ago. The trip from Lakefield to Apsley over winter roads usually deep in snow took from 5:30 a.m. until around 7 o'clock in the evening.

now owned by the Hon. George S. Henry, and Samuel to Nottawasaga.

In Millbrook as Boy

Mr. Stuart said he spent his younger days around Millbrook, where he went to school, and finally in 1885 he got a job lumbering with George Chalmers. Two years later he switched to the Dickson Company, and after about twenty years altogether he decided to take up farming in Harvey township. He moved down to the sixteenth concession of Smith, and later to the 9th line of that township. Mr. Stuart gave up farming for a comparatively short time while he tried his hand in the real estate business in Peterborough, and then decided to go back to farming. His final location was on the sixth line of Otonsbee, a mile north of Keene, just at the "goose-neck" turn below the C.N.R. crossing. It was the old McNeil farm.

"That was the best place of all," he said. "It was a beautiful location, and it was surprising what that land produced. Of course you had to keep working. I retired from farm in 1933 when I was 72."

In appearance and vigor, Mr. Stuart has fared well at the hands of time. He certainly does not look his eighty years, and he spoke of getting back into the maple bush near Apsley with the enthusiasm of going on a holiday. Relatives own the sugar bush, and his job is something in the line of supervising, or probably just looking on while the sap is boiling.

Recalls Lumber Camps

"The men in the lumber camps where I worked were the best hearted lot you'd ever want to meet," he said. "There might be the odd one who couldn't get along even with himself, but there is always the exception in every crowd. You worked from dark to dark. I remember that I started at $14 a month, and I considered I was getting good wages. But later the average was $18 to $26 a month for the general run of men. You had breakfast in time to be on the way out to work just as day was coming on, and it was dark when you got back for supper about six o'clock.

No Card Games

What did we do after supper? Well, there were axes to be ground and cant-hooks to be sharpened, getting ready for the next day. Was there cards or anything like that? No. That was ruled out. I knew a foreman named Jerry Ford, with the Dickson Company. He said he sacked the best bunch of men he ever had because of a rule he laid down that there was to be no cards. He was sorry he had to do it, but orders were orders. When they got to playing cards, the things that should be done had to be neglected, just as I mentioned, keeping the axes and the cant-hooks sharp, and other things like that. Those were things that had to be ready for the next day, and lights were blown out at nine o'clock."

A foreman whom Mr. Stuart recalled with affection was James Eakins.

"The last four years I was with the Dickson Company I teamed for Mr. Eakins. He was a very fair man, but you had to do what was expected of you. If you didn't, well, Mr. Eakins just didn't want you around his camp."

Hauling the Rations

Teaming to the camp was hauling up the supplies, flour and sugar, tea and beans, currants, pork raisins, and all the rest of the victuals, and as mentioned at the outset the day's trip from McLean's mill, just across the river on the east side of Lakefield, started in the dark of winter mornings about 5.30 and ended in the evening dark at Apsley around seven.

Lumbering and farming were not the easiest ways of life, but Mr. Stuart said that probably that work gave him the strength to keep on enjoying the ordinary round of life on his eightieth birthday. And although the Examiner did not see him take off this morning, nor accompany him up the Apsley Road, you knew from his reference to the continuing sharpness of contract of the swift and smooth motoring of today with the plodding of his team away back in the eighties that his memories would be still fresh along that hour's trip.

"I have come down that road in those winters when the snow was so deep you couldn't see a fence," Mr. Stuart said. "Those were the old fashioned winters, and do you know that there was a lot of old fashioned resemblance with this winter that has just gone by. It was more like the old winters than many I have seen since I quit teaming for the lumber camps. And this Spring is old fashioned enough to suit me. Don't you think it is?"

After Nazi Blitz On Glasgow

That long line of men and women in the top photo is composed of persons who were bombed out of their homes in the "all-out" air attack on Glasgow earlier this month. They were photographed as they awaited assignment to temporary shelters. BELOW, part of the blitzed Scottish city. The entire shipbuilding city of the Clydeside was the German target. Some 500 persons were killed and hundreds injured. People shown here had visited the ruins of what once were their homes in an attempt to salvage some of their belongings.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul, Millbrook, Are Honored By New Lodge

MILLBROOK, April 2—(ENS).—A pleasant surprise was prepared for Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Paul on Monday evening, when a large number of members from the Royal Black Preceptory, No. 945, and from the newly-organized Ladies' Orange Lodge, the "Daughters of Cavan," motored to their home to celebrate with them the fifty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day.

Mr. Paul happened to be alone when the unexpected guests arrived, Mrs. Paul, who was visiting with a neighbor, being soon summoned, however, and card games were enjoyed for the earlier part of the evening. Later, Mr. Percy Stinson took the chair, and after an appreciative address had been read by Mrs. J. R. Thompson, J. L. Byam, on behalf of the two lodges present, presented the guests of honor with two hand-painted cups and saucers. A special gift for Mrs. Paul, a handsome lace tablecloth, sent by Sister Anna Greer, recording secretary of the Grand Lodge of British North America, in recognition of the fact that Sister Paul is the oldest member to join the local L.O.B.A., was presented by Sister Amelia Lunn, Worthy Mistress of "The Daughters of Cavan."

The recipients of the gifts were so overcome with surprise and emotion it was with difficulty that their gratitude and appreciation were finally expressed, after which all joined in singing, "Blest be the tie that binds." The service of a delicious lunch by the committee in charge was followed by selections on the harmonica by Miss Margaret Paul; selections on the flute by William Blair; and, as a fitting conclusion, "Auld Lang Syne." "They are jolly good fellows," and the National Anthem.

Mr. Paul's connection with Orangeism extends over a long period of years, and he is still an active member of both L.O.L. 79, and the Royal Black Preceptory, as well as a Past County Master in the East Durham organization. Within recent weeks the Ladies' Orange Lodge has been organized at Millbrook, and though advanced in years, Mrs. Paul became affiliated with it in membership.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

BEES ELIMINATE DOMINIONS IN THE CHESTER-KEMP TROPHY PLAY

Bitter Struggle Is Put Up By Both Teams

Bees won the right to enter the final series for the Chester Kemp Memorial trophy and city basketball supremacy by eliminating Dominions in a sudden death final at the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday night 37-22. Dominions who finished the regular standing in a second place deadlock with the winners, managed to stay with them through three quarters of the game but bogged down in the closing stages to lose out. Bees came out of the bitter first half melee on the long end of a 14-11 score but Dominions battled back to pull up on even terms midway through the final period before they lost one of the five men they had in uniform with four fouls and Bees, quick to take advantage of the one man advantage, pulled away. It was a nip and tuck struggle most of the way with Bees holding a slight advantage consistently through the game to earn their win. There was never a margin of more than a basket or two either way until the dying minutes when Bees ran away. The battling defensive display put on by the losers is shown in the fact that they managed to hold league leading scorer Jimmy Thorburn completely off the score sheet until the final ten minutes when he broke loose for ten points. Both teams stressed a close, hard checking defense and any attempts at organized attack were quickly smothered with both missing numerous chances in close to hold the score down until the last quarter. Fouls were plentiful, in the thick going, with the winners making five free throws for ten tries and Dominions countering with six in a dozen efforts. Bees will now meet Quaffers for the city title and the Kemp Memorial trophy now in its second year of competition and won last year by Zephyrs.

McArthur and Rogow led the winners last night and Ferguson and Grose were best for the Dominions. The teams:

Bees (37)—Thorburn 10, McArthur 8, Rogow 9, Paterson 4, Kingdon 6.

Dominions (22) — Ferguson 7, Grose 3, Wolstenholme 4, McPherson 2, Kemp 6.

Referee—J. Craig.

NOW LEGALLY DEAD

BELFAST—(CP). — Court order made here "presumes death" of William Wilson of Derrynieve, who emigrated to Canada in 1928 and was last heard of at Trail, B.C., in 1929. Mary Wilson is a sister.

Some Ball Camp Training Notes

(By the Associated Press.)

FORT BENNING, Ga. — Paul Derringer expects to rejoin the Cincinnati Reds next week at Birmingham after a batted ball injured his groin.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Reports that Second Baseman Benny McCoy might be traded to the White Sox were only a gag to Connie Mack of Philadelphia Athletics. 'It's pure bunk," he said. "It would take a handsome offer to make me even consider a trade for McCoy."

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Manager Frankie Frisch of Pittsburg Pirates said after Saturday's lacing by the Chicago Cubs "Millions have been invested in baseball, and players draw fat salaries. If they can't show appreciation by at least trying all the time, out they are going to go."

FORT WORTH, Tex. — Joe Medwick, who never showed much interest in spring training as a St. Louis Cardinal, is set for Brooklyn to start the National League season. In top form, he hit safely in the last 16 exhibitions, topping his streak with a homer, two doubles against Shreveport yesterday.

Quakers To Meet Winnipeg Team

SASKATOON, April 2 (CP) — Saskatoon Quakers, proving themselves opportunists when their opposition was shorthanded, rode into the We stern Canada Junior Hockey final against Winnipeg Rangers today after eliminating Edmonton Athletic Club, Alberta - British-Columbia titlists.

A husky defenceman, Keith Allen, counted both Quaker goals for a 2-1 victory over Edmonton here last night in the fifth of a best-of-five series. In previous games Quakers won two by 3-1 and 6-5 scores and Edmonton twice by one-sided counts, 5-2 and 7-2.

Opening game of the best-of-seven finals will be Friday night in Winnipeg with the second and third games Monday and Wednesday in the Manitoba capital. Remainder of the series will be in Saskatoon.

The Saskatoon club drew the same number of penalties as the losers but the E.A.C.'s were unable to take advantage of them mainly through Russ Dertell's work in the Saskatoon goal. Dertell, who hasn't lost a game on home ice this season, replaced Jack McGill, who played three of the four games at Edmonton.

Picks Rookies Good For Jobs In Major Ball

By DILLON GRAHAM
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

LAKELAND, Fla., April 2— (AP) —It's a bit early to venture a guess as to which rookie pitchers will make the major league grade, but you can put your finger on a dozen and a half recruit infielders, outfielders, and catchers who are fairly certain to spend this summer in the big show.

I've seen these 18 at the camps of the 10 teams training in Florida and Cuba. Another eight or 10 newcomers will stick with the Cubs, Pirates, Athletics, and White Sox in California and the Bees and the Browns in Texas.

Let's look at them by clubs:

BROOKLYN— Hal Reiser from Elmira, who played a third of last year with the Dodgers, is a good outfield bet.

CINCINNATI — Dick West, up from Indianapolis, will do part of the Reds' backstopping.

PHILADELPHIA — Hard-hitting Nick Etten is set at first base, with Dan Litwhiler and Stan Benjamin likely to be among the flychasers.

ST. LOUIS — One-third of the Cards' regular nine will be new. Walker Cooper will do a major share of the catching, with Steve Mesner at third base and Harry Walker in left field.

CLEVELAND — The Indians are holding Murray Howell, International League batting champion, for pinch-hitting purposes, and Jim Hegan likely will be kept as catching insurance.

DETROIT. — The Tigers plan to use Ed Parsons as No. 3 catcher, and Robert N. Harris, who hit .312 for Beaumont, may hang on as an outfielder.

WASHINGTON — George Archie, the best fielding first baseman in the Pacific Coast League, apparently has cinched the post with the Senators.

NEW YORK— It's sort of strange to find a flock of rookies listed as possible regulars with the high-flying Yankees. But Joe McCarthy is doing an overhauling job this spring. Phil Rizzuto, shortstop (unless he's drafted), and Gerald Priddy, second base, are slated to be infield starters. Tommy Holmes, who hit .317 for Newark, will be one of the outfielders, and may be the regular left fielder. Infielder Lou Blair from Newark and first baseman John Sturm from Kansas City are likely to be carried as utility performers, since McCarthy does not know whether Red Rolfe will regain his old form at third base or whether Gordon will be a success at first.

Cleveland Wins In Overtime 4-3

CLEVELAND, April 2 (AP)—Big Bill Mackenzie, their tireless captain, today was the toast of Cleveland Barons who believe they can't be beaten in the final playoffs for the American League Hockey championship.

Mackenzie split the Hershey defence in the closing minutes of an overtime period last night and then slipped the puck to Oscar Aubuchon for the deciding goal in a 4-3 triumph.

It was the opener in a three-of-five series, with the second game scheduled here tomorrow night. The teams move to Hershey Saturday.

The hard-fought contest was marked by 14 penalties, including three five-minute major sentences.

Gordon Bruce and Red Hamill got the quick goals for Hershey and Gordon Pettinger tied the score six minutes before the end of the regulation time.

Jake Milford, Ossie Asmundson and Les Cunningham potted the winner's regulation-time goals, Les scoring on a solo dash.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Coming back with a fighting display worthy of a club that has won the championship of the National Hockey League three years in succession the Boston Bruins defeated the Leafs in Toronto last night 2 goals to 1 to even up the Stanley Cup series at three wins each and put everything up to the result of the seventh game which will be played in Boston Thursday night. Thus the pressure which has rested alternately on each club is once more on the Leafs who have to win right in Boston to take the silverware. Ordinarily that would be the toughest kind of a job but a strange feature of the present series is that home ice has meant little or nothing to either team. In fact each of them has scored two of its three victories on the other fellow's ice which helps to make the present round one of the most unusual in Stanly Cup history. Thursday's game will undoubtedly be another of those tight, tense contests, like the last three between the two clubs all of which have been won by the same narrow margin of 2 goals to 1. In other words in the last three battles Boston has scored only five goals and the Leafs but four.

* * * * * *

Even such an ardent Leaf admirer as Foster Hewitt admitted that the Bruins had outplayed the Leafs last night. They outshot the losers 31 to 28, had an edge in the territorial play and had enough fight in reserve to battle back after the Toronto team had taken the lead in the third period with the first goal of the game and register twice within the next couple of minutes to go in front themselves. They tied it up before the cheers that greeted the Toronto goal had stopped echoing and came right back with a second one to put them in front. And they stood off a desperate Toronto team for the balance of the period and skated off winners. It was a comeback worthy of a great club who refused to blow because they were fighting with their backs to the wall. When Pete Langelle fired the winning goal past Brimsek Saturday night to give the Leafs a 3 to 2 lead in games the Bruins' chances had apparently vanished into thin air but they have fought themselves back into the running and now it is anybody's round. Stamina as well as other qualities will count more and more in this long-drawn-out affair and certainly the Bruins have demonstrated that they have plenty of that.

* * * * * *

Among the folk who are chortling over the win of the Bruins last night undoubtedly are Mister Jack Adams and his hired men of the Detroit Red Wings. Not that the Wings have any particular desire to see Boston trim the Leafs. It is not that that explains the satisfaction in Detroit. It is found rather in the fact that stretching the round out to seven games means that the winners will be softened just that much more for the Detroiters in the final series for the Stanley Cup. Undoubtedly the two clubs have been bashing each other around in lively fashion and it is bound to take a lot out of the gamest of players. Meanwhile the Wings are resting comfortably, all eased up and fit and ready for the final test. The team that Jack re-built may not be the greatest hockey organization in the world but it has its points and there is no doubt that the rest the Wings are getting while the Bruins and Leafs are lambasting each other may prove a decided factor in the final series.

Another League Gone

The intimation that the Lakeshore League has to all intents and purposes folded up for the coming season is a matter of regret to baseball fans in Eastern Ontario. It has been one of the few remaining baseball strongholds in this part of the province and if it passes out of the picture now it will be a dead loss to sport east of Toronto. One by one the baseball fortresses in Eastern Ontario have succumbed to lack of patronage, scarcity of players or other causes and the result is that organized baseball will soon be a thing of the past in a district in which for years the game flourished. The Central Ontario League for two decades one of the best senior loops in the country has passed off the stage. The East Peterborough League, long a strong intermediate organization is no more. Here at home the City League failed to last out last season and apparently there is little hope of a revival this summer and now the Lakeshore Loop which has provided a lot of colorful baseball proposes to call it a day.

* * * * * *

There was a suggestion a few days ago that the Lakeshore League and the Central Ontario Loop might be combined with Oshawa, Peterborough and Belleville entering senior teams and other clubs intermediate outfits. Apparently that plan met with little favor at the Lakeshore League meeting but it would be a mistake to abandon the proposal without a real attempt to salvage baseball in Eastern Ontario by some such plan. Ken Colling of Belleville who is again nominated for the O.B.A. executive, Max Swanston and other ball leaders in this part of the country might be able to get something moving if an earnest effort is made now. It is clear that unless something is done in a hurry the fine old game of baseball is going to be extinct in this neck of the woods. And that means a lot of dull moments during the summer for the real fans who are interested in the American national game.

* * * * * *

The City Basketball League at the Y.M.C.A. is now all set for the final series to decide the title for the current season. Last night the tie between the Bees and Dominions was broken by a 37 to 22 win for the Bees, putting them in second place and giving them the right to meet the Quaffers in the final round for the league championship. The loop has had a spotty season, interrupted from time to time by O.A.B.A. games and other causes but the final should be an exciting contest between two well-balanced squads. The Quaffers, built up from the remnants of last year's Zephyr and Quaker teams have plenty of speed and power while the Bees sparked by Pete McArthur and Jimmy Thorburn have oodles of scoring punch.

There will be considerable local interest in the campaign that is to be launched in Welland for a new artificial ice hockey arena. The Welland promoters hope to secure $25,000 in subscriptions from industrial workers, another $25,000 from plant owners, merchants, clerks, etc., and to obtain the final $25,000 from the Welland city council. It is estimated that with $75,000 a modern plant with large ice surface and ample accommodation for big crowds can be provided. The progress of the drive will be watched closely by other communities like Peterborough who are still without artificial ice facilities and are thus badly handicapped in developing hockey players and in staging important games. What Welland can do, Peterborough with a similar effort can duplicate.

Says the Globe and Mail: Captain Jim Sutherland, popular patriarch of the C.A.H.A., comes in on the Kingston wave-length with a plug for the Kingston Combines, now engaged in the Ontario Senior "B" final with Owen Sound....Cap'n Jim points out that the Combines are the only team on the playoff scene that carries university tutors on its road trips....The team has seven or eight Queen's students...."The goaler." Captain Sutherland writes, "is a lecturer in the university. He hails from Listowel, famous as the home of Fred (Cyclone) Taylor. Down this way, we feel that he bears a striking resemblance to the late beloved Charlie Gardiner. I speak of a physical resemblance as well as a playing resemblance. Burrows is the name."

* * * * * *

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Sam LoPresti, Black Hawks' goalkeeper has joined the ranks of the benedicts. He will have to stop at home now ....It's curtains for Oshawa or Marlboro juniors tonight with the seventh game coming up in Toronto....Hill's performance at centre on the Conacher-Wiseman line is given credit for the Bruins improved work in last night's game at Toronto. Hill used to play the pivot position as a youngster....One of the All-Stars who has refused to perform like one in the playoffs is Wally Stanowski. The Toronto sheets have begun to ride him for his lack of spark....At that a lot of folk have wondered why he was picked as an All-Star defence man. Defensively Bucko McDonald has been worth half a dozen Stanowskis in the Boston series....Detroit Red Wings don't care how hard the Bruins and Leafs hit each other Thursday night. The more they get hit the softer they'll be, the Wings chortle.

No Boom Looms At Notre Dame Says Coach Leahy

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 2 — Is Notre Dame on the threshold of another football boom?

Two men on the Notre Dame campus have quick answers to that question—"No."

One is 32-year-old Frank Leahy, new head coach on Notre Dame's football squad. The other is Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, vice-president of the university and chairman of the faculty board in control of athletics.

"A lot of fine-sounding things were written about the return of another Rockne era when I signed to coach at Notre Dame," Leahy said.

"I want none of them. To me, coming back to Notre Dame is a great honor, but I prefer to think of it as just a trip. No one could emulate Rockne."

Father Cavanaugh says:

"I'd like to see Leahy make a great success of things here. He has everything to do it. But I don't like to see him built up into another Rockne. Too many other Notre Dame coaches have been handicapped by that comparison. And anyways, we like to think of Rockne here as a product of Notre Dame football—not Notre Dame football as a product of Rockne."

BOSTON APRIL FOOL, TWO GOALS IN 81 SECONDS WINS 6th GAME

Cain Plays Hero Firing Goal That Beats Leafs

By WILLIAM H. DUMSDAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, April 2 — (CP). — The last long mile leading to glory or oblivion faced two National Hockey League teams today as the Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs rolled along on the same train toward Boston. Ahead of them was the seventh and final contest of the series to determine which team will continue in the hunt for the game's highest award—the Stanley Cup.

On the brink of elimination Bruins fought uphill to a 2-1 victory over Leafs here last night to even the semi-final round at three wins each. The final tilt is scheduled for tomorrow night and the winner will meet Detroit Red Wings in a best-of-seven game series for the trophy.

An April Fool's Trick

Both teams played cautiously last night, and when the Leafs ended the drought of goals midway through the third period, a crowd of 14,980 fans went wild as they visioned their favorites as world-title finalist. But the vision was blasted when Bruins pulled their late April Fool's Day trick—two goals in one minute and 21 seconds.

Home ice for the deciding fixture established Bruins as favorites.

Herbie Cain, shipped down to the minors for a spell this season, again played the hero's role for Bruins. As he did in their last start here, the 28-year-old left winger fired the winning goal. It came with only 12 minutes play remaining.

Dit Clapper started the play for the payoff goal as he passed ahead to Terry Reardon. The youngster was off balance but straightened up enough to slide a pass to Cain uncovered on the right side of the Toronto net. Cain waited until Broda made a move, and then counted.

Some Quick Scoring

Cain's goal was the third in two minutes and 13 seconds, the flurry starting when Gord Drillon circled the Boston net to beat Frankie Brimsek. After taking a pass from Nick Metz, Drillon raced down the left side, carried the puck around the net and shot for the near corner. Brimsek seemed to have the puck blocked, but it trickled around his leg.

Both teams were shorthanded due to penalties when Drillon scored and the bench warmers—Milt Schmidt of Bruins, and Reg Hamilton—were still cooling their heels for fighting when Bobby Bauer evened the count. He stopped Flash Hollett's shot, swung around fast and beat Turk Broda with a hard drive.

After the game Cain admitted that he has played most of the series with a sore right hand. But the injury didn't come in action—after the first game in Boston a well-wisher shook Herbie's hand so vigorously that he's had trouble ever since keeping a tight hold on his stick.

Quieter Courts

LOS ANGELES, April 2—(AP).—Judges are abandoning their gavels—their courts are unusually quiet these days. Recordings of evidence gathered in cases now are being played into headphones used by the judge, jury, lawyers and defendants. Spectators sit quietly by—not having the slightest idea what's going on—and fall into a comfortable snooze. It's up to the bailiff to tiptoe around and keep them awake.

Hendrie Horses At Long Branch

TORONTO, April 2.—Numbering fifteen head, the stable of George M. Hendrie, vice-president of the Ontario Jockey Club, checked into Long Branch track recently from winter quarters at their owner's farm near Hamilton, Ont. Trainer Red Hamilton unloaded his charges in good condition.

Heading the string is Dark Comet, who as favored to win the last running of the King's plate until forced out through the development of a low bow almost on the eve of the running of the race.

Another essaying a comeback this spring is the 6-year-old mare, Poona, full sister to the famous Pompoon, and a mare that did not see action last season. Other older members of the string are Passa Grille, Storm Light, Lady Wales, Joss Stick, Starford Wise Maiden, Storm Sail, Belle Glade and Storm Flare.

All but the last two are familiar to Canadian racing patrons, but Belle Glade and Storm Flare did not race at two last season. The former is a bay filly by North Wales II.—Rock Flower, and the latter a dark bay filly by North Wales II.—Storm Signal.

Rounding out the string are four 2-year-olds, North Swept, Clearwater, Bugle March and Punta Passa.

The Sports Round-Up

By EDDIE BRIETZ, AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 2 — (AP). — Business notes: The fistic firm of Eddie Mead and Henry Armstrong cleaned up $300,000 in 67 fights; Jack Dempsey's refereeing tours net him three grand a week, and Lefty O'Doul's share of the San Francisco pub which bears his name was $18,000 last year.

Hitler and yon:

Most important changes in the second call on Kentucky Derby future book odds are Bold Irishman Shortening from 10 to 8-1 and Curious Coin dropping back from 8 to 10-1...Rejected by the U. S. Navy and the Royal Canadian Air Force, Norm Standlee, Stanford football star, joined up temporarily with a Canadian army rugby team to help launch a recruiting campaign at Vancouver...N. Y. Boxing Commissioner D. Walker Wear told them in St. Louis he doesn't consider Billy Conn a fit opponent for Joe Louis—but that Tony Musto should give Joe a whale of a fight.

In 40 years of managing big league ball clubs, Connie Mack has won and lost percentage of .500-2,991 won, ditto lost.

Pace Settings By Old-Timers

NEW YORK, April 2 — (CP). — Competitive sport has little room for athletes past middle-age. Most of the pace-setters are in their 20's. But every now and then an extraordinary star comes along who is able to keep step with the leaders at an age when he should be just talking. There's Willie Hoppe, who just won the world three-cushion billiards crown at 53. Walter Hagen, one of golf's all-time aces, soon will be 50, but he can still shoot a great game.

Bill Tilden is another bordering on 50. And as another baseball season starts, Charles Root of the Cubs is ready for his 16th season.

Midland Takes O.H.A. Honors From St. Kitts

ST. CATHARINES, April 2—Midland Shipbuilders won the O.H.A. Intermediate "A" championship from St. Kitts Hayes Redmen here last night when they took the third game of their best in five series, 5 to 2, after having squared the round at home Saturday night.

A lightning thrust at the start of the third period netted them three goals in one minute and 35 seconds. Prior to that, Redmen had carried a 2 to 0 lead from the second period, following a scoreless opener.

In the final semester, the Midlanders dominated the play, and scored five times. Hayes closed with a terrific pace, but White rose to spectacular heights in the third and staved off all attempts to pierce his rigging.

It was apparent that Midland was vexed at Referee Holmshaw's action in the last minutes of the second for meting out a match miseonduct to McConkey of Sailors, for bad language and a threatened attack on the official. They sailed into action to open the third and never relinquished their dazzling pace.

In contrast to former games of the finals, this fourth conflict contained thirteen penalties.

Midland—Goal, White; defence Scott, Sager; centre, O'Hearn; wings, Deschamps, Wilcox; subs., Stewart. St. Amand, Toole, McConkey, Arbour, Grant, Kelly.

Billy Conn Gets Odds Of 6 to 1

CHICAGO, April 2—(AP).—Gunnar Barlund, durable Finnish heavyweight, will be eligible f · membership in the "Bum-of-the-Month Club" if he can upset Pittsburg Billy Conn Friday night in Chicago Stadium.

Such a triumph would qualify him to follow Gus Dorazio, Abe Simon, Tony Musto, et al, to the Joe Louis chopping block.

The 195-pound Finn, an in-and-outer for several years, is giv · almost no chance get by the fancy-punching Conn despite a 15-pound weight advantage. The betting fraternity has set the miniature heavyweight up as a 6-1 choice over Barlund.

The fight is slated as Conn's last before his June bout with the heavyweight champion.

Seaman Honored

GUELPH, Ont., April 2—(CP). — Memorial services for John G. Drew, one of the 19 men who were lost when the Canadian naval patrol vessel Otter went down off Halifax last Wednesday were held in St. George's Anglican Church here yesterday.

Drew was a brother of Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, Conservative leader in the Ontario Legislature. Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, represented the provincial government at the service.

$200 Set Price To Pull Race Court Learns

LOS ANGELES, April 2 — (AP). —Two hundred dollars a race was the rate to pay for four jockeys to "pull" their horses at the 1939 Hollywood Park season, Irving Sangbusch told a Superior Court jury trying five men yesterday on horse race fixing charges.

Sangbusch, who said he was known to horse race men for twenty years as James J. Murphy, testified he himself received another $200 as go-between. Fixing charges against him were dropped when he became a State witness.

He said Bernard Einstoss alias Barney Mooney, arranged with him to bribe riders and gave him the money to pay them on 25 days of the 1939 Hollywood Park season.

On five other days, Sangbusch said, he received the money from Einstoss' brother William and from I. W. Kivel, and on one occasion, "when the jockeys were clamoring for $2,500 or $3,000 that was owed to them," Benjamin Chapman produced the sum.

The Einstoss brothers, Kivel and Chapman are defendants in the trial, along with Sol Greenberg, a former jockey and trainer. The State charges the first four hired Greenberg to fix races after Sangbusch quit and told the State Racing Board about the alleged arrangement.

Havelock Group Enjoys Talk On Cree Indians

HAVELOCK, April 2—(ENS). — The Home and School Association met in the school for the April meeting on Tuesday evening, with an attendance of 25 adults and 40 children. The president, Mrs. Charles Taylor, presiding.

A letter from head office gave information in regard to the convention, to be held Easter Week in Toronto. Letter also specified that $1 must be sent from each branch in order to send a delegate.

Moved by Mrs. Woodbeck-Roberts that the branch send $1, as we have already chosen a delegate. Carried.

Letter in regard to shipping of layettes to Britain, will be sent through the Red Shield. Layettes sent by the Home and School will be on display at the convention; all to have the name of branch sending same. Havelock branch will have on display five complete layettes and five baby quilts, thanks to the help of the Patriotic Association.

The president announced having purchased pictures of the King and Queen, which are being framed, to be hung in the school room.

The guest speaker for the evening was Miss Dorothy Allen of Peterborough, who gave a talk on Moose Factory Mission, where she spent a year teaching school. Lantern slides showed this Indian village and natives, with all their different customs, their homes, the Winter and Summer, the beautiful new school, hospital, and church. Moose Factory Mission is 12 miles from James Bay, on the west bank of the Moose River.

This mission is looked after by the Anglican Church, receiving clothing, etc., from the Women's Auxiliary and she said the A.Y.P.A. had furnished cots for the domitory. She spoke of the clothing the Indians wear, using moose hide to make moccasins, slippers and gloves, which are all beautifully beaded by the women. Miss Allen had on display some of the things worn by the Indians.

Two church services are held each Sunday; one in the afternoon for the Cree tribe ,and one in the evening for the English speaking people. Miss Allen recited The Lord's Prayer in Cree language.

The president tendered a vote of thanks to Miss Allen for her splendid and interesting talk. The attendance shield went to Mr. Gay's room.

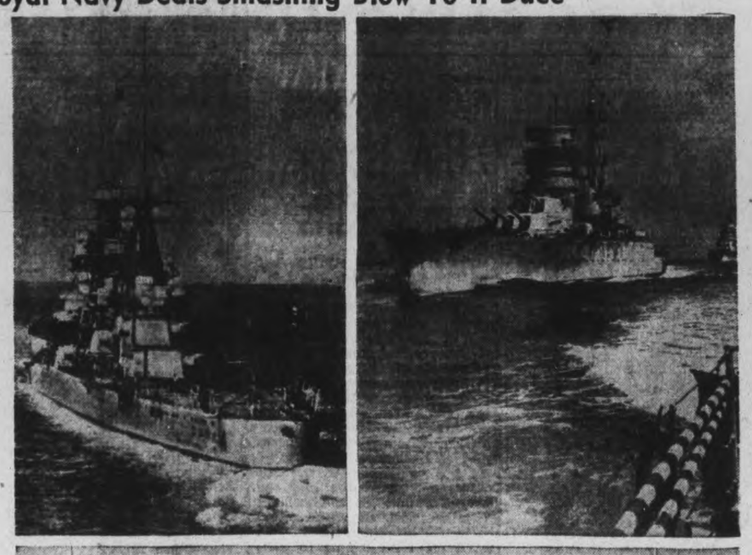
Royal Navy Deals Smashing Blow To Il Duce



Scoring the greatest naval victory of the war, British warships caught the Italian fleet in the Ionian Sea, sinking seven of Il Duce's warships and inflicting serious damage on a 35,000-ton battleship. Three Italian cruisers, the Pola, Fiume and Zara, LEFT ABOVE, were sunk in the action that saw two destroyers and probably the cruiser Giovanni sent to the bottom. This was the first major battle between the Royal Navy and the Italian Navy and not a single Italian shell found its mark. An Italian cruiser, Conte di Cavour, is pictured, UPPER RIGHT, while the Italian Navy is pictured, BOTTOM, making a big noise for Hitler's visit to Italy in 1938.

asserted.

Touching on the Government's plan to bonus hogs, Mr. Acres declared that while he believed in rail grading, if this was enforced in the payment of the bonus the small packer would suffer. He asked that agricultural representatives in the various districts be permitted to go into these plants and rail grade the hogs for bonus purposes.

Some Fireworks.

Mr. Acres precipitated some spirited cross-fire when he denounced Mackenzie King for "ignoring" his opponent in the last Federal election, Hon. R. J. Manion, in the country's war effort. President Roosevelt, he said, had called upon Wendell Willkie, but Mr. King had not seen fit to ask the assistance of Dr. Manion.

"He has asked him," interjected Ross A. McEwing (Lib. Wellington North).

"He has not," replied Mr. Acres. "It was Mr. Ralston who asked him."

(It was announced at Ottawa on Saturday that Mr. Manion had been authorized by the Defence Department to proceed to England to consult with Canadian Military Headquarters in London and with Lieut.-General A. G. L. McNaughton on the question of the work of auxiliary services in the field.)

"His own party threw him overboard," declared John Glass (Lib. Toronto St. Andrew).

"His own party hasn't thrown him overboard," replied Mr. Acres. "But if you don't keep quiet, your party will throw you overboard."

Mr. Acres, at the outset of his address, declared that Hon. Farquhar Oliver, Minister of Public Works, and a former United Farmers of Ontario member prior to his elevation to the Cabinet, had "played politics until he got there."

He twitted Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon for his resignation last year over differences with Premier Hepburn.

"He tenders his resignation to Mr Hepburn and they cry and he goes back in again," declared Mr. Acres.

He said he didn't believe the members of the Cabinet knew what was going on in the Government, and declared that Premier Hepburn hadn't called a caucus in two years.

"It makes one wonder what we are fighting Hitlerism for," he said

Attacks Laurier

He wondered why Premier Hepburn had gone "outside his party" in selecting Hon Robert Laurier as Minister of Mines. Such men as W. L. Miller Algoma-Manitoulin; W. G. Nixon. Temiskaming, and J. M. Cooper, Sudbury, should have been cinsidered for the position.

"Every man in your department knows more about the job, than you do," he declared as he directed his remarks to Mr. Laurier. "There are other positions for gentlemen."

Turning to Hon. P. M. Dewan and his Department of Agriculture, Mr. Acres declared there were "too many white-collar inspectors telling the farmers what to do. That is what is wrong with agriculture."

Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, he continued, didn't know what he was doing and if he spoke his "honest Irish mind," he would admit it. This portfolio, "the third greatest heritage of the province," was controlled by a man who knew only how to drive a locomotive.

"Personally I would do anything for Mr. Heenan, but I have no use for him as a minister," declared the member for Carleton.

The Ontario Government was urged by W. J. Gardhouse (Lib., York West) to follow the practice in effect in Western Canada of diverting the charge against horned cattle from the packers to the livestock breeding associations.

Horned Cattle Issue.

In this province $1 per head is deducted from the price of horned cattle reaching the stockyards and this money goes to the packers to recompense him for damage to the meat and hide by the horns. Mr. Gardhouse estimated the packers receive between $80,000 and $100,000 annually from this assessment. In addition to this, he continued, the horns are ground into meal which is shipped to Great Britain for mixing with plaster in the repair of buildings and as a result the packer got additional revenue.

Mr. Gardhouse said that Bang's disease was taking a tremendous toll among cattle an he believed the only method of combatting it was by calf vaccination.

In reply to Mr. Gardhouse's suggestion, Agriculture Minister P. M Dewan told the Legislature that the cattlemen in the province was not unanimous that a change should be made in diverting the money received from horned cattle to the Breeders' Associations.

With regard to Bang's disease money has been provided in the estimates for the control of this disease.

C. O. Fairbanks (Lib. Lambton East) recommended decentralization of industry and urged assistance in the form of free taxation for Western Ontario's natural gas industry which has been in difficulty this past winter, due to shortages of gas.

All evidence pointed to the prospect that the latter would defer a statement concerning their intentions toward the Axis, pending the outcome of the diplomatic scene shifting.

(In Berlin, the commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland declared last night "all signs point toward an increasing aggravation" of relations between Germany and Yugoslavia.)

Bolster United Front

Premier Dusan Simovic, meanwhile, appeared to be making continued progress in efforts to reconcile differences between the big Serb and Croat minorities and achieve a united front.

It was still uncertain whether Vladimir Macek, Croat leader, would consent to remain in the new cabinet as vice-premier, but some sources said either Ivo Subasic, Governor of Croatia, or August Kosutic, vice-president of the Croat peasant party, might take the post with his blessing.

Subasic and several of Macek's lieutenants were en route to Belgrade today to meet Simovic after lengthy conferences of Croat leaders in Zagreb yesterday.

The government contented itself with a denial of German press assertions that German Nationals had been made the object of a reign of terror in Yugoslavia, but public indignation at Nazi press attacks ran high.

Thousands of Serbs, Croats, Bosnians and Montenegrans poured in urban centres to volunteer for army service in a sudden surge of patriotism.

Steady flow of troop trains toward the northern and eastern frontiers coincided with reports of heavy new German troop movements across Bulgaria in the direction of the Yugoslav border.

A general exodus of foreigners of all nationalities continued, and railway stations throughout the country were jammed with crowds awaiting transportation to the south.

Troops with fixed bayonets stood guard, however, to enforce a government order against panicky flight of Yugoslav civilians.

Hanson Urges

construction of small warships like Corvettes was important, the building of cargo ships to meet the present shortage and to provide a revived shipbuilding industry in Nova Scotia after the war should be pushed.

Percy Black (Con., Cumberland), who initiated the shipbuilding debate, said shipyards capable of building steel ships should be started in Nova Scotia without delay and that the steel for the ships should be rolled in Nova Scotia.

Mr. Black said the people of Nova Scotia were not satisfied with the government's explanation why Nova Scotia yards were not being used to a greater degree. During the last war steel ships up to 10,000 tons had been built in New Glasgow. If the federal and provincial governments acted they could get Nova Scotia yards operating to capacity.

Trouble in The Yards

Navy Minister MacDonald said there were no shipyards in Nova Scotia at present capable of building steel ships, except the Halifax shipyards, which were doing other essential war work. Wooden ships large enough for use in convoys could not be built there, either.

But there had been opportunity for Nova Scotia yards to build small naval craft, he said. The yards had either refused to bid or their prices were too high.

The minister said government financing of new yards in Nova Scotia could not be justified at a time when yards on the St. Lawrence River, Great Lakes and British Columbia were capable of handling all the orders at the moment.

"So far as ships of war are concerned," he said, "there is no shortage of building facilities. Our problem in the next year is going to be to get the trained personnel.

"The shipyards of Canada are on the job and ahead of the job."

In the cargo boat and other steel shipbuilding industry, so far as he was aware, no yards were turning away business and there was no sign of yards being overburdened with work.

Mr. Hanson said that might be true as far as a "limited program" was concerned. But there was a large question involved. The ministry should explore all methods of building up a commercial shipbuilding industry.

"What I visualize," he said, "is a commercial enterprise that may be assisted in its initial establishment by the Government."

Answering earlier questions from Hon. Grote Sterling (Con., Yale), Defence Minister Ralston said Canadian forces overseas were governed by the Visiting Forces (British Commonwealth) Act and that relations with the British authorities were cordial and intimate.

The Canadian Corps, commanded by Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, had been detailed to serve with the British forces, and so came under the British Commander-in-Chief, Sir Alan Brooke. If Sir Alan wished to employ the corps in operations he would consult with Gen. McNaughton as a matter of military practise.

If the Corps were to be moved outside the United Kingdom the approval of the Government of Canada would be sought. Gen. McNaughton was responsible to the government of Canada for the administration of the Corps.

"Since the change in the situation resulting from the German invasion of France and the Low Countries," said the minister, "no suggestion of any kind has been made to Canadian military authorities or to the Canadian Government that its forces should serve beyond the United Kingdom, except in one instance where the British Government requested and the Canadian Government approved of small detachments of Canadian troops to carry out special work at Gibraltar."

(Canadian Engineers were sent to Gibraltar for work on strengthening the fortifications and tunnelling.)

Sale of Game or Furs.

Earlier in the day lawyers in the House opposed sections of a bill sponsored by Resources Minister Crerar which was designed to assist in the enforcement of provincial game laws by preventing the sale in one province of game or furs illegally taken in another.

Members on both sides of the House objected to one provision which would give game wardens the powers of Justices of the Peace anywhere in Canada. The lawyers argued it amounted to giving a police officer the powers of Judge, jury and prosecutor as well.

Bowing to the Opposition, Mr. Crerar agreed to let several sections stand over for further consideration.

Mr. Crerar said during the afternoon that several hundred civilian enemy aliens arrested in Great Britain and sent to Canada for custody had been returned at request of the British Government, presumably for release on the ground their sympathies were anti-nazi.

Mr. Crerar was commenting on suggestions from A. M. Nicholson (C.C.F.-Mackenzie) and Angus MacInnis (C.C.F.-Vancouver East) that some such aliens be permitted to remain in Canada on their release since they were skilled technicians.

Mr. Crerar said the admission of immigrants required careful supervision, but a few such people who had close relatives in Canada had been permitted to remain under a form of probation.

scends abruptly to the coastal plain sloping to the Red Sea. The chief Eritrean port of Massaua, 75 miles by rail from Asmara, was the next British goal.

British authorities had indicated that Cheren and Asmara were keys to the defence of Massaua, and that once the Italians were forced out into the flat coastal plain the capture of the port, and the end of fighting in Eritrea, would follow quickly.

The British command placed little importance on renewed activity in Libya, where fighting with "enemy"—presumably Italian and German—infantry and mechanized units was reported yesterday near Mersa Brega, on the Gulf of Sidra.

Mersa Brega is about 30 miles northeast of El Aghella, which marked the limit of the British advance westward. British forces later yielded El Aghella to German patrols, but described their withdrawal as a matter of adjusting the front.

MRS. JOSEPH MILBURN

Smith Township Native Marks Her Ninety-Ninth Birthday

Ninety-nine years ago today in a humble cabin, nestling on the edge of a new farm in Smith township, Mary Ann Edmison was born, and today she is celebrating in quiet fashion the beginning of her hundredth year of life. She reads the Examiner daily, using a reading glass, and her memory except for names is as keen as that of a school child.

The history of Smith township is the history of the Edmisons and the Milburns, and there is a wealth of memories wrapped up in the mind of this fine Canadian pioneer, whose father cleared the farm more than a century ago on which she still lives.

Mary Ann Edmison married Joseph Milbur : and there were five children from the union, all of whom a. living. George Milburn, now 73 years of age, lives at 660 George Street, Peterborough, and is retired. Dr. J. A. Milburn lives at 131 Prince Edward Street, Vancouver, and Dr. H. H. Milburn lives at 1325 13th Street, also in Vancouver. There are two girls, Margaret and Eunice, both living at home with the mother. There are six grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Crown Land Grant.

In 1913, less than a year after the battle of Waterloo, John Edmison sailed from England to look over a land grant in Smith township that he had been given by the Crown. In time he arrived at Port Hope, and in company with Adam Scott and a man named Fothergill started northward to Peterborough. They travelled by bush trail to the south shore of Rice Lake, thence by canoe up the Otonabee, and ate their lunch on the spot where the city of Peterborough now stands. History does not record any other event, but that these three were the first white men to actually walk along the west bank of the Otonabee and eat lunch beneath the trees on the river bank at the foot of the rapids, where the Quaker Oats plant is now. They followed the Indian trail from the foot of Dalhousie Street out toward Lake Chemong and looked over the land grant, then returned to Port Hope.

This same Adam Scott is the man who built and operated the first mill in the city of Peterborough, and his mill was located on the west bank of the Otonabee.

Sea Voyage In Sailboat.

Mr. Edmison returned to England to get married, and after the first child was born, they decided to come to Canada. The journey by sailboat was a distressing one, and Mrs. Edmison whose maiden name was Margaret Hall, used to tell her children that the boat was at sea for three months, and she doubted if a single day passed that she wasn't violently ill.

By this time the settlement at Peterborough was taking shape and Mr. Edmison left his bride with friends in the settlement while he built a cabin on the farm in Smith about half a mile from the Milburn's School on the Chemong Road. This farm is occupied today by Alex. I. Edmison, clerk of the township of Smith.

Edmison cleared the land and ten children were born on the little farm. Mrs. Joseph Milburn is the last of the ten. The family consisted of five boys and five girls, and they attended a school on the same site as Milburn's School now occupies. Mrs. Milburn said today that the first teacher she remembers was Christopher Burton, who was also clerk of the townshi. She remembers hearing her mother tell that their first home in the wilderness was little better than a shanty with a lean-to roof, but their hard-working father soon fashioned a roomy, comfortable cabin from the logs on the property.

Maple Sugar Staple Food.

"Maple sugar and maple syrup were used extensively and my parents always made enough to last from one year to another; when I was a girl there were times when we didn't have much else to eat except the maple sugar," said Mrs. Milburn.

Mrs. Milburn was keeping house for her brother, the Rev. Henry Edmison, at Waterdown, Ontario, when Joseph Milburn, her fiance on the next farm, went to Waterdown for her, and they were married in Hamilton. It was a happy romance and they prospered. The husband died sixteen years ago at the age of 89.

Her earliest memories of the Smith township section are that the road now known as the Chemong Road was a one-way muddy and rutty trail, and across what is now known as the long swamp was a narrow corduroy road. The timber was heavy, particularly close to Lake Chemong. Later on a man named Dean started a grocery store at Bridgenorth, when there were four or five houses there, and a ferry was operated taking people and cattle to and fro across the lake.

In recent years Mrs. Milburn has been living in a little frame house set well back from the road on the west side of the highway. This house is more than one hundred years old, and is built on the Crown land grant obtained by Thomas Milburn's father. Thomas Milburn built the house, then it passed on to his son Joseph, who married Mary Ann Edmison. Their son George worked the farm, and now George's son has two boys and occupies a piece of land adjoining.

Founded St. Andrew's.

Mrs. Milburn's father, John Edmison, came from Northumberland in England, and was a Presbyterian. To him goes the honor of being one of the first members of St. Andrew's Church in this city, and from the earliest days the name Edmison has been tied in with the church activities. He was the anchor that held a portion of the congregation together, when the minister and most of the congregation broke away and established St. Paul's congregation and church. George Edmison, the lawyer, who was junior judge and county magistrate for many years in this city, was his son, and a brother of Mrs. Joseph Milburn who is observing the birthday today.

This grand old lady lost the sight of one eye a few years ago from a cataract. She has been a reader of the Examiner for as long as the paper has been printed, and every day she finds time to read a few passages from the Bible. The Northern Messenger also takes her attention. Her two daughters, Margaret and Eunice, try to keep war news away from her because it worries her, and they sort of interpret the news so she will not become unduly alarmed. Her hearing is poor, but her memory is clear and she came through the winter in good health.

the evidence yesterday afternoon had reserved judgment until this morning.

"I am not prepared to give judgment now" he said after a brief argument from Mr. Frankel and an announcement from Mr. Common that he did not propose to submit an argument.

"There is one point that is worrying me" Honor added "There is a considerable length of time in the chain between Bowmanville and Windsor—nothing to show that the accused was in Peterborough."

"I am willing to admit" said Mr. Common "that there is no direct evidence of Burns being in Peterborough, but there is a chain of circumstances."

"You are asking me to convict him as an accessory after the fact?"

"No, Your Honor, I am asking you to convict him as a principal" replied the special crown prosecutor.

"I'll take tonight to think it over" replied Judge Smoke and court was adjourned until this morning.

Asks For Dismissal

When court resumed for the afternoon session Mr. Common announced that the crown's case was finished and Mr. Frankel immediately moved for dismissal.

"If that is all the evidence my learned friend adduces on the part of the prosecution I am making a motion for the dismissal of the accused" said defense counsel. "There is absolutely no evidence implicating the accused in breaking and entering the C.D.S. store."

Mr. Frankel said that the crown had endeavored to prove another person not on trial guilty of the offence and then to imply that because Burns had associated himself with that person, he too, must be implicated.

"I myself have been in Gallow's house at 171 Mutual St." said Mr. Frankel "I may have money that has been scorched. I may have been in Fairchild's car, but surely that does not suggest that I am guilty of breaking and entering."

"It may be that Gallow was the man who did take that safe. I don't know, but there is nothing to implicate Burns."

"The crown has discharged its responsibility when it has produced a prima facie case" said Mr. Common. "It has done so in this case, a prima facie case, based on a chain of circumstantial evidence."

"I am calling for the defence" announced Judge Smoke.

Alibi Evidence

Mary Rogers, 561 Lansdowne St., Toronto, swore that she saw Lawrence Burns whom she had known for a month or so, at Louis Gallows' house, 171 Mutual Street, Toronto, between 2.30 and 3 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, February 1. She and Thomas Nicholls had later that same afternoon gone to the Avonmore Hotel, she said, and soon after Burns and William Bradd came in and they were all together there until around 6 o'clock that evening.

"It has been sworn" said Mr. Frankel "that Burns was seen in a maroon car near the C.P.R. tool house at 5 o'clock that afternoon. What do you say about that?"

"He could not have been" replied the witness.

Miss Rogers said that her friend Dorothy Melville some time later had loaned Burns a ladies' black overnight bag with two keys, and that when Burns was afterwards re-arrested in Peterborough and taken back to Toronto she had recovered the bag at police headquarters. The lock had been broken off and it was useless so her father had destroyed the bag, witness said.

Dorothy Melville, Osler St., Toronto, also swore to seeing Burns at Gallows' house on Saturday afternoon, February 1. She confirmed the previous witness's evidence about lending Burns an overnight bag with two keys.

Mr. Frankel showed the witness three keys found on Burns and previously entered as an exhibit.

"Two of these are the keys of my bag" Miss Melville said. Asked by Mr. Common as to the present whereabouts of the bag witness said she had recovered it from the Toronto police and still had it.

Accused Testifies

Lawrence Burns was the last defence witness. He gave his address as 558 Glengarry St., Windsor, and said that he had taken a room in Gallow's house, 171 Mutual St., Toronto, in the first week of the new year and had remained there until the day, Gallow and Burns were arrested, February 4.

"When did you move out?"

"I didn't move out. I was out, heard the detectives were looking for me and so I didn't go back."

"It has been sworn by a C.P.R. section foreman Osborne that he saw you near the G.P.R. tool house in Bowmanville on Saturday afternoon, February 1?"

"He never saw me there that Saturday or any other Saturday."

"It is charged that on February 2 you did break and enter the C.D.S. store and steal a safe. Did you come to Peterborough, break and enter the C.D.S. store and steal a safe?"

"I did not."

Burns declared that he spent the afternoon of February 1 at Gallow's house and at the Avonmore Hotel, then visited a liquor store and bought two quarts of liquor, returned to Gallow's and spent all night there in a crap game with Gallow, Nicholls, Bradd and a number of others.

"I am a speculator or a gambler" Burns replied in answer to a question as to how he made his living.

"You are a card sharp, is that right?"....Yes.

"Do you do fairly well at it?" "Well I make a living." Witness said that he usually had from $100 to $300 on his person.

Money Not Scorched

"I don't believe that money was scorched when it was found on me Burns said when asked about the scorch marks on the bills that had been produced in court.

Burns said that he had gone to Windsor with Gallow and Nicholls on Sunday, February 2, because he wanted to give some money to his brother who had got into trouble. He said the reason they had left Windsor at 2.30 the next morning was because Gallow had to be back in the court of appeal, Toronto, at 10 o'clock that morning. He said he had never seen the small safe until he saw it in the police car when he was being brought back to Peterborough.

Witness complained that he had been kept in a small cell at the police station here for two days without getting a chance to wash or shave. Police, he said, refused to give him the keys to his bag and he broke it up to get his shaving kit. It was the bag loaned him by Dorothy Melville.

To Mr. Common Burns admitted that he had been evading the police after Gallow and Nicholls had been arrested.

"Were you afraid of the police"?

"No, but any experience I have had with them has not been very fair, especially with the Toronto police."

"You didn't want to see Detective Sergt. Nimmo?"

"Not him above all people."

Witness also added that he had been evading the police for some time before because of a Windsor warrant. On the day of his arrest he had bought another car because he knew that "Nimmo would be looking for the other one."

Burns said that he made his living principally by crap-shooting and admitted a number of other convictions, including two penitentiary terms for theft. He had learned the printing trade in the penitentiary, he said.

That concluded the case for the defence and Mr. Frankel said that he did not propose to repeat his argument made when he asked for dismissal. "There has been nothing in the defence evidence to help the crown" he said, "Simply because this man had associated himself with others who are under suspicion does not impute the fact that he is guilty."

IRISH SOLDIER.

Dr. Thomas Johnston, inspector of the Humane Society, reported to The Examiner to-day that he had a red setter which has apparently had become lost. The dog spent the night at a home on Bonaccord street and is an exceedingly well kept and well trained dog. Dr. Johnston is making a strenuous effort to find the owner as he says the dog is too valuable to destroy.

Dads Eat Cotton Batting Tarts Sons Grin Approval At Banquet

The breaking of the flag by the newly formed Cub Pack, and their taking of the Oath of Allegiance, opened the festivities at the Father and Son Banquet in George Street United church Sunday School on Tuesday night. Under the supervision of Leo Copp, a program was arranged to the delight of both fathers and sons who attended in large numbers.

Many stunts were performed, and the April 1st spirit prevailed; fathers took it on the chin in a race between fathers and sons. Tarts were given to a number of parents, and to a like number of the sons, the object being, of course, to dispose of the tarts. The fathers were confident of easy victory until the first bite, and then it was discovered that the tarts given them were of cotton batting content and not the delicately filled ones the boys had.

Coffin Carried In

Other pranks were played on the party as a whole, one notable being a farce in which a solemn party of boys carried a box resembling a coffin into the hall, and invited those gathered to "view the remains." When the astonished merry-makers peered in the "coffin" they were astounded to see their own faces looking back at them, and then it was realized that a mirror had been placed in the bottom of the box. The boys in Cooke Munro's class were responsible for the hoax which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Roy Parnell conducted a chair contest, in which each person in the room was obliged to look at the bottom of his chair. The one occupying the chair upon which was carved the proper marking won a prize.

The guest speaker, Rev. H. W. Piercy of Niagara Falls, added new flowers to his crown when he delighted both young and old with his renditions. In his part on "Keeping up with Lizzie" he rocked his youthful listeners to a high pitch, and then would inject some more sober lights. How the battle of Waterloo was won was described by the speaker, and then he switched back to comedy with a showing of the difficulty experienced by the average boy in learning of the life of George Washington. He was perhaps at his peak in "Wheels of time," by Florence Barkley.

Four Veterans Attend

C. S. Thompson introduced the guests at the head table, and mentioned particularly four who have completed 25 years of service to the Church School, they are: Rev. A. H. McConnachie, Rev. Fred Horton, Alex Stewart and R. C. Heard.

Rev. H. L. Roberts was chairman at the meeting, and Mr. Piercy sat with him at the head table. Others at the table included Walter Burns, J. A. Spencer and H. Snelgrove, who have been appointed by the Session to the Sunday School Board of Management, and Quirt McKinney, the song leader.

Thomas McFadden, 91-year-old member was introduced, as was W. J. Copp. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, rector of Murray Street Baptist church, was at the dinner, and attention to his affinity to the affairs of George Street, and the close spirit of co-operation was remarked on.

He was taken to the hospital for treatment.

'It All Depends On Where You Sit' Reporter Discovers On Attending Commission Meeting

Isn't there some sort of vernacular expression that goes like "it all depends on where you sit." Something like that was suggested to a reporter listening to a bit of discussion at the meeting of the Utilities Commission Monday afternoon.

A few years ago when he was a member of the city council George A. Macdonald would have been interested in passing on to the Utilities Commission anything involving expense that could be moved in that direction. Now that he is sitting as a Utilities Commissioner—well things look different from that viewpoint.

Gordon Matthews, chairman, asked his associates, E. R. Shirley and Mr. Macdonald, what they thought about Mayor Hamilton's suggestion to the effect that it might be well if the city, that is the community, had a public loud speaking system.

"I think it would be all right to have one," Mr. Macdonald said, "but I think the council ought to pay for it." It might give us a headache before we had it very long, and we might as well leave that to the council."

Mr. Matthews said he mentioned the subject simply to get the opinion of the two other members, and that was the end of it, although R. L. Dobbin, manager, said it could possibly be handled by one of the employees of the Commission. He added that perhaps it would be better if the C.G.E. or Bell Telephone had a public address system which could be obtained by any persons desiring it for meetings and similar purposes.

Mayor Hamilton's comment, from the position formerly occupied by Mr. Macdonald was: "If they don't buy it, they don't have to."

E. S. Clarry Recalls Harold Littledale

E. S. Clarry of Ottawa recalled in a visit to the Examiner that he was city editor when Harold Littledale of the New York Times, former Pulitzer journalistic prize winner, was engaged. Mr. Littledale and his wife were injured in the crash of a night-liner airplane on the trip from New York to Miami nearly two months ago.

"We needed a reporter and advertised in Toronto papers for a man," Mr. Clarry said. "Littledale replied. He was working on a farm near Guelph, and I imagine that was the low point of his career. His father was a Professor in the University of Cardiff, Wales, and Littledale had come out to Canada as a mere youth to try to get a start in this country, and as I say he was bogged down on some farm near Guelph.

He stayed with us a year or so, and then got an offer to go to the old Winnipeg Telegram. I advised him to go, because I had noticed something in his work that convinced me he had the makings of a good newspaper man. At that, I never dreamed he would rise so high. Naturally, I have followed his career with a great deal of interest because I felt I had some little part in shaping it."

Rambling Reporter

AMBITION.

On Tuesday things were quiet in the orderly room of the Prince of Wales Rangers, until the phone rang and was answered by R. S. M. Thomas Griffin. The voice of a little boy was heard to say,

"I want to be a soldier."

"You're a little young," returned the R. S. M., and the youngster retaliated, very positively:

"Well, I'm going to be a soldier and you won't stop me."

The receiver on the lad's end of the line was then slammed down, and the officers at the Armoury have been since expecting the appearance of a six-year-old recruit.—J. W. H.

'Teen Age Girls Add $10 To Fund

The Teen Age group at St. John's Church went into the Golliwog business some time ago, and the Peterborough City and District Air Raid Victims' Fund is now richer by ten dollars. The girls made up the golliwogs from yarn and sold them to their friends and neighbors, doing a land-office business.

Mr. and Mrs. William Shannon chose a unique way of extending many happy returns to their son, G. Melville Shannon who has been overseas for the past eight months. They subscribed two dollars to the fund on Tuesday afternoon.

Application has been made to the Foreign Exchange Control Board to send £500 and this will be on the way this week to lighten the load being borne by the English people.

Credit Union Has Insurance

The Peterborough Credit Union decided last night to take out insurance with Credit Union National Association of Madison, Wis. (briefly known as "Cuna"). This action insures all outstanding loans, preventing any possible loss to the Credit Union through the death or permanent and total disability of any member.

The Peterborough Credit Union, one of more than 60 new Credit Unions formed in Ontario within the last twelve months, hopes to play a valuable part in post-war economic reconstruction period. The union is now in communication with the Toronto and District Credit Union Chapter regarding the formation of a provincial league. A meeting to forward this proposal is expected to be held in Toronto or Hamilton in May.

Some idea of the remarkable growth of Credit Unions is gathered from the record of the Hamilton Civil Servants' Credit Union.

In January, 1940, loans made by the union amounted to the small sum of $331.00, but share capital amounted to $3,592.00, among its 134 members.

During 1940 over $7,000 was on loan to members and at the end of that year $3,500 of these loans was repaid. It is to be noted also that 10% of the interest was paid back to members. The Calgary Civil Servants' Credit Union began in May, 1939, with 35 members and share capital of $76.00. Six months later the membership had increased to 76 with share capital of $886.00, and its growth is still proportionate since that time.

The Peterborough Credit Union, which has just received its charter from the Ontario government, now has a membership of 35, and is under the Ontario Credit Unions Act of 1940. It meets regularly on the first Tuesday of each month. Particulars of these meetings may be had from A. B. Burrows, president, or A. E. Borland, secretary-treasurer.

Vacant Lots Are Not Plentiful Assessor Says

"Shacktown" is a new word on mayoral and aldermanic lips and they say it with apprehension and a note of scorn as something beneath the ancient dignity and conservation of Peterborough. It is associated with and inspired by another new one—prefabricated houses and between them they are beginning to give Mayor Hamilton and h' council incipient headaches that are likely to get worse.

Mayor Hamilton was probably speaking the thoughts of the entire council the other day in his hope that the recourse to prefabricated houses might be avoided in supplying homes for incoming workers within the next few months.

And the more they try to think of some way out, the more clearly looms the prospect and vision of prefabrication which is deprecated as possessing the seed of a shacktown.

Industrial Site.

According to Max Sloan of the assessment department the city has exceedingly few available lots left for houses of any kind. And the proposed use of the big lot on Park Street, opposite Lake Street, means the surrender of hopes that any day it might be acquired by some manufacturer desiring to locate a factory in this city. It has frontage on the C.P.R., ample acreage and well situated.

Another suggestion was to use Burnham's Point for the prefabricated houses, anywhere from one hundred to three hundred. It is only ten minutes from the C.G.E.

Cost Of Housing.

Rumors that the cost of building houses has soared 25 to 35 per cent. are denied by members of the council, whose information is that the increase, largely caused by higher wages to labor, is around 10 per cent.

There has been some mention of the council's responsibility in undertaking a building program on behalf of citizens, but conversation with members of the council indicates that such a plan as that is definitely beyond consideration, and that they have no intention of involving the taxpayers in a building and housing scheme, with the possibility of coming out of it with nothing but losses such as those incurred by other adventuring cities of Ontario in more or less recent years.

From one informant it was learned that prefabricated houses are made in one piece of panels or strips of walls, delivered to the place of erection, and there these parts are simply bolted together. You can toss up a row of them in no time.

"And once you get them up, just try to get rid of them," one man said. "They are no longer houses. They are then homes, with people living in them, and although they are only makeshift and designed for an emergency the probability is that the government after the war would sell them for a song."

Mayor Hamilton is hoping for signs of the normal building program of the last few years—early, in fact immediate assurance of another hundred houses planned and soon to be erected, thereby restricting the shacktown potential to only one hundred of the prefabricated type. It sounds like wishful thinking, and it might not be surprising to find demand increasing to the point where wishes and hopes and the fear of shacktown will be brushed aside by insistent reality.

Indian Mission Work Described At Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD, April 2 (ENS) —An interesting address by the president, Mrs. R. Weston, featured this week's meeting of the Baptist Women's Mission Circle held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Osborne. There was a large attendance. The vice president, Mrs. Lloyd, opened the meeting with a scripture reading and hymn, and Miss Annie Dunk followed by reading "The Miracle of the Risen Christ." Mrs. Weston's address was entitled "Baptist work among our Oldest Canadians" and this dealt with the origin, spirit worship and Christian Evangelization of the Indian race in more recent times.

Following prayer Mrs. Osborne served refreshments and enjoyable social hour was spent.

Spring 1941 Issues In New Fashions

Spring, 1941, ushers in a note of slenderness . . . of femininity that is not primped up, but yet is centred in a lovely soft, easy, gracious field of fashion.

The woman of the new spring is bewitchingly beautiful and well-groomed from the top of her pompadour curls to the square or open toes of her trim shoes.

This is a day of Canadian workmanship in the realm of fashion. Speaking with enthusiasm, a leader in style remarked the other day. "Canadian women can now become the ambassadors in the fashion world that French women have been in the past.

"When a French woman travelled outside her own country she saw to it that her clothes were perfect—for she knew that women would expect it of her. She knew, too, that they would inspect her clothes carefully and plan to copy them.

"Canadian merchandise is wonderful," she continued. "It is more wonderful than one could imagine, and it is up to Canadian women to wear the products of their own country proudly."

(They could be proud, too, she said, of the wonderful tweeds and other collections which had come from the Old Country. From the land where people are fighting for their very souls have come clothes which were never more beautiful and which could never before be offered to Canadians at such attractive prices.)

In Line With Trend

An eye has been kept on what New York is doing, and the new spring outfits made in Canada are right in line with the fashion trend.

The silhouette is slim and easy. Skirts have pleats which give a slenderizing effect. Shoulders are softer and more natural-looking, but by no means droopy. The waistline is well defined, but certainly not waspish.

Jackets are longer. Skirt-lengths vary according to individual taste. Dolman sleeves make their appearance, but they are far more beautiful than those of past years. There is a distinct easiness to the new styles.

The lovely low throat line has come to bring a flattering graciousness to women. Jabots and frilly collars and cuffs are giving the "bewitched and bewhitened" look suggested by Vogue. Blouses appear in the loveliest assortment of pastel colors, as well as the frostly white and the dramatic stripes. Man-tailored blouses—you'd almost call them shirts—are destined to be exceedingly popular.

A dramatic highlight of the season is the appearance of capes. Three-piece cape suits are exceedingly smart. Man-tailored suits, with longer jackets, softer shoulder treatment and graceful skirts, are showing in hundreds of British cloths, in worsteds, herringbones, chalk strpies, hairlines, tricotines, and so on.

Suits with top coats are showing with great success. Dressmaker suits come in lovely styles that have softness, as well as distinction, in every line.

Jacket Dress Popular

The jacket dress is a leader in popularity and the coat-and-dress ensemble is shown with fine treatment. Dresses take in all the new style features.

Coats come in fine wools and in tweeds that are breath-takingly beautiful. Fur collars carying out the color theme give a luxurious air. Pastel shades have been combined skilfully in tweeds made in Canada, and there are many collarless models that can be carried right through into summer and worn over light dresses.

Wool coats come in a range of colors, from ice-cream tones to the brilliant shades. Reds or gorgeous tones of green are advised in a coat over a print dress. Beige, grey and navy are extremely smart and lend themselves beautifully to color accents. You are advised to make up your own color combinations this spring.

Stockings take on the rosy beige hue, and shoes have become smarter and more comfortable than ever. Square toes, as dainty as you please, give a very flattering effect. Open toes have new treatment which makes them popular with every one.

Big Season For Furs

A big fur season is predicted. Jackets, capes and scarves have been skilfully designed. The longer type jacket is shown, though all lengths still prevail. Some capes have a military touch.

Hats this spring have but one idea— and that is to make you look beautiful. Flowers abound, while veils and ribbon treatments are used to give a charming effect.

Hair will be worn pompadour fashion, with curls or fluffy bangs, and an adaptation for every one. It goes up on the side and down in the back. The Grecian touch is felt in the sculptured coiffure for formal evening appearances.

For Town or Country Wear

A suit for town, country or travelling in smart tweed. The full-length topcoat is gray tweed with gray and red plaid reveres to match the fitted jacket. The skirt, with two wide box pleats, is also in the gray tweed. Similar suits can be purchased here.

Dollars To Doughnuts

By EDITH ELLINGTON

YESTERDAY: The girl, Toby Masters, is certain Beatrice can find a job at Huntington's. Beatrice introducers herself as Bee Davis, unemployed stenographer. She tells Toby that she has been locked out of her room, that her cash reserve is the "last ditch" fund. Toby insists that she come to the apartment Toby shares with another working girl, Vera.

* * *

"WHO ARE YOU?"

CHAPTER VII

The apartment was on the fourth floor of a walk-up in Flatbush. As Toby Masters turned the key in the lock, she told Beatrice gaily, "We have to be careful not to get up from a chair too suddenly, or we knock each other down."

But when the door opened, Beatrice saw that the apartment had been lovingly decorated. There was a studio couch doing duty as a sofa. It was covered in gay, flowered linen.

"I made that myself. Remnants from Huntington's, at employe discount," Toby explained.

There were two club chairs, "Reduced," said Toby. There was a long table with a radio, magazines, a cigaret box and a really handsome lamp.

"Here's the kitchenet." It had been managed out of a closet. Shelves held dishes, pots, a canister of coffee, a tiny bread box. Underneath was a tiny sink, a two-burner gas stove, and a little cabinet hung above the stove. "That's our grocery cupboard. Spaghetti, canned soup, other stuff we keep for the end of the week when we're broke. . . . "

"I think it's lovely," Beatrice said. "Wait till you see our bedroom!"

Their bedroom was smaller, if possible, than the living room. Two narrow, headless beds and a tall chest of drawers crowded it so that you could barely navigate from door to closet. "The beds are simply twin mattresses on twin springs with legs. Clever, huh? The chest belong to Vera, so I contributed the full-length mirror on the closet door instead of a bureau."

Toby took Beatrice's hat and jacket. Just before she stowed them in the closet, she turned the little mink topknot of her finger and said, "Nice!" She stroked the fur. "Very nice. Mind if I try it on?"

"Go ahead." Beatrice avoided her eyes. "It was reduced, at a little shop in Fifty-seventh street. . . . "

Toby admired herself in the hat. "I almost hope you don't get a job at the store, so I can help you out by buying the hat."

* * *

Vera, it developed, had already arrived. "But it's her night to get dinner. I suppose she ran down to the corner for something."

"I hate to inconvenience you," Beatrice murmured. "Perhaps your friend isn't going to like my being here. . . . "

"Vera? You don't know her! Why, last winter, a reporter friend of hers —a male, mind you!— spent weeks on that studio couch, while I locked our door every night with a key from the five-and-ten, and put on my winter coat every morning to navigate to the bathroom!"

Beatrice couldn't help laughing. She was still laughing when the door opened, and a tall, amazingly beautiful girl with coal black hair walked in.

Toby cried, "Vera, where have you been? Not even a package? Do you mean to say you didn't start dinner?"

"Of course, I didn't start dinner. I have seven cents, exactly. I forgot to mention it this morning."

"Well, where have you been?"

"Walking around the block with Terry."

Toby turned to Beatrice. "Terry is one of Vera's insanities. He's a photographer, without a grain of common sense. He spends his money for films, flash bulbs, chemicals and $100 cameras, on the instalment plan. And right now, he's downstairs waiting for Vera to get me talked around to inviting him up

Pumps Carry A New Personality

What part do shoes play in this spring trend toward slimness, gentleness and easiness? A very definite part. They're right on their toes —often square toes, at that, which have a very, very smart look, and which give all the comfort in the world.

But, to start at the beginning, the pumps—always a favorite— being shown this spring come in such a variety of styles that no one can be disappointed. You'll see open toes if you've a wish to. By the way, have you held back from open toes in the past? Just keep this point in mind.

Since open toes were first introduced (everything's done as an experiment), tremendous strides have been made. The result is that the open-toe shoe can now be worn by any one and every one. It has reached perfection in smartness and comfort, and no one need have any hesitancy about it. Open toes now appear in many intriguing designs, too.

The same point applies to the elasticized shoes. They make possible the snuggest, neatest fit in the world, and can defy the world with their smartness.

The pump appears this spring with new personality—a personality that has many angles to it in the way of new tricks in trim and design. You'll see the V-throated pump, and also a modified version of this styling—gently rounded. You'll see it slender and exquisitely cut, with graceful high heels, or with heels that just can't be called cuban (as we've known them in the past) because they've got all the shape and character you'd want.

Stunning Little Bows

The square toe which we've already mentioned appears often, and we can't stress too much how extremely smart looking it is how comfortable, and how flattering it can be for the longish foot. The walled last, which has given us so much comfort in the past, is, fortunately, still with us in many cases—though it, also, has felt the touch of the hand of spring which devises so many new tricks for the beauty and ease of milady's feet.

Stunning little bows appear to give the finishing touch to all types of shoes, and patent trim is used effectively. Shoes of elasticized gabardine have a trimness about them that is right in keeping with the spring trend. Pretty toe work is an important part of their fashion appeal. Perforations and some cutaways are used with attractive results.

Spring Hats Filled With Guile

Some one wrote recently that, come Spring, there was nothing on earth that did so much for a woman as a new frame from which she could look out on the world. In other words, a new Spring hat can do wonders for any woman's outlook on life.

That statement may hand men a laugh. Nevertheless, there's a lot of truth to it. Viewing the new Spring hats is like passing from a dull, dreary outside world into a garden where flowers blossom in a riot of color . . . where everything is gay . . . where there is no hint of trouble.

Hats are beautiful this Spring. They are lovelier than ever. They glow with color. They are blithe. they are full of guile. You'll wear them straight on your head to show your fluffy bangs or your pompadour. You'll wear a demure bonnet 'way back.

Oh, it's all a matter of angle, and entirely up to you, for, if you wish, you can also perch a quaint, pretty little hat over the eye in provocative manner. And you've still got a marvellous selection — bonnets, sailors, casuals, turban-types and all sorts of small hats. You can still have a wide, languid brim or a narrow thick one. But let it sing with a straight new line. Let the world know your hat is new.

Looks Good

GOOD LOOKS in all weather is assured by the Cravenette processing of this topcoat of worsted gabardine of naphthalated wool, with military collar.

Color To Run Rampant This Easter

Color will run rampant for spring! Light, neutral shades, dark and bright shades are all in the picture—and you will find many to contrast with your spring costume. The darker shades predominate in formalized town fashions, while the light, neutral and bright shades will find their way in town and country traveling wardrobes.

Navy is in for greater popularity than ever this year. Always an American favorite, it will lead the spring fashion parade. It will be shown in suits and coats and sheer dresses, dressed up with crisp, lingeries touches. While red is a natural complement with navy in trims, edging, lining and in bright red blouses. Navy sportswear is a new "dark horse" and with white braid and brass buttons on a slacks outfit or suit, navy has a real nautical flavor. Another blue that is in the spring fashion picture is Airforce blue, seen particularly in coats and suits, and reflects the military influence and a keen interest in aviation. Newest color group to leap into prominence this spring is green, definitely a color with a future. Highlighted in a wide variety of shades, greens were predominant in the Fashion Futures show held in New York. Greens from lime green, yellowed greens to dark forest greens . . . all have a natural spring flavor. Clear, lettuce "Vitamin" green is used for day and evening dresses, while bright Emerald green is the latest news for casual coats and sportswear.

Whenever you mention Greens, you always think of that other bright color range Reds—this spring still a favorite in coats, suits, print dresses and accessories! Clear, true reds that brighten up your navy or black costume. The "little boy" coat in red can be worn for dress or sports wear or with your navy suit wear a bright patent bag of red hat and with white gloves, you'll really be patriotic!

A real "natural" for spring are Beiges, clear, natural beiges with no trace of gray or pink in them. Beibes are good in casual sports clothes and in coat and suit or in print dresses combined with black or bright reds and greens. Cocoa browns are high fashion for spring in coats and suits and are "dressed up" with white accessories in the form of hat or gloves. Deeper shades of brown, Saddle and Turftan, are shown in bags and shoes, dyed to match and go well with natural beige and plain fashions.

Sharp contrast is the keynote of your accessory colors for spring, bright, gypsy-like colors, with a South American way, vibrant yellows, spicy reds and sharp greens.

Color Plays Big Part Men's Styles

Men's fashions for 1941 are predicted to provide a happy contrast to the gloomy international outlook, for the emphasis will be on color and the styles will lean toward sports and semi-sports wear.

Word comes from London that whenever the soldiers get a chance to climb into mufti, they make sure to get a touch of gayety, not only in their accessories, but in their suitings as well, and it is a safe bet that this trend to color will become increasingly popular here.

The shades of suitings which promise to find most favor during the spring and summer months are browns, tans and blues. Among the most popular of these should be a new color called peat brown, featuring a ruddiness that is ideal in worsted with simple chalk stripes. A slightly different version is a rust color, excellent for sporty tweeds and also for more conservative business suits of softer fabrics. Indications are that this rust color will find favor with men of almost every preference, for it blends well with practically every shade of accessories, especially greens and blues.

"Air Blue"

Thus far there seems to be little indication that this war is going to have as marked an effect upon men's styles as the World War did, when the influence of military dress was obvious in the tight-fitting narrow-waisted civilian clothes of 1917 and '18. There are, of course, exceptions to this, although as yet the effect on men's suits is apparently limited to color instead of design.

Deep interest in Britain's Royal Air Force has given rise to a new shade of fabric called "Air Blue," which bids to rise to a peak of popularity during the spring and early summer months. One of the reasons why stylists predict such a happy future for "Air Blue" is that it can be worn with accessories of red and white, to fit in with the current surge of patriotism. Worsted suits in "Air Blue" with a three-button notched lapel jacket have already made their appearances and have met with such universal approval that spring will undoubtedly find them extremely popular among better-dressed circles everywhere.

This does not mean, however, that the double-breasted jacket is falling out of favor. In rough materials like cheviots and tweeds and in softer fabrics like flannel, the double-breasted jacket seems even more popular than ever, with the lapel rolled down to the bottom of the two sets of buttons. In flannel suits the chalk stripe remains predominant, while tweeds again feature plaids.

This latter design is again a predominant favorite among the college men of 1941, who find the color combinations—sometimes subtle and sometimes not—ideal for an almost never-ending variety of accessories, and when the campuses select a favorite it is certain that their preference will be reflected in town and country.

Early predictions indicate that even in metropolitan centers, suits cut along semi-sports lines will meet with favor in business circles, with the single-breasted three-button style predominant. For the more conservative business man, hard worsteds in the deep rolled lapels, double-breasted style will remain a favorite, although the colors will be limited largely to browns and blues.

Three-Button Style

43 OUNCES is all this tropical worsted suit of naphthalated wool weighs; yet it's shape and press retaining. Three button, single breasted styles are in high favor.

Todd—Happonem

A very pretty early spring wedding took place at the Church of All Nations, Toronto, on Saturday, March 29, at 7 p.m., when Julia, daughter of Mrs. Happonem, and the late Mr. R. Happonem, became the bride of Gerald, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Todd, of Millbrook, Rev. G. F. MacKay, assisted by Rev. D. Lappala, performing the ceremony.

Large baskets of spring flowers decorated the church for the occasion, and the bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Carl Peter, looked charming in a floor-length dress of pink marquisette. Her finger-tip veil of embroidered tulle was caught with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and carnations.

Miss Anne Happonem was her sister's attendant, her dress, also of floor-length, being of heavenly blue brocade, and her bouquet of dark red roses. The groomsman was supported by his brother, Mr. Aubrey Todd, of Toronto.

Following the church ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, 115 Barton avenue, Mrs. Happonem receiving in a dress of powder blue crepe, with corsage of sweet peas. The groom's mother wore a black ensemble, with corsage of sweet peas and carnations.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Todd left by motor for a brief wedding trip, the bride having chosen for travelling a dress of dusty blue crepe, with matching hat; top coat of grey Donegal tweed with fox collar, and grey accessories. Upon their return they will reside in an apartment of the Waverly building, Millbrook.

TOO MUCH SYMPATHY NOT GOOD FOR YOUNG OR OLD

When Lavished, Lowers Recipient's Powers to Meet the Battles Of Life and Becomes Vice Instead Of Virtue.

From time immemorial sympathy has been touted as the bright and shining virtue that most adorned womenkind, yet I doubt if any vice has ever done half the harm that it has. For the inevitable result of pity is to weaken its victims, to destroy their morale and to pull them still further down into the slough of despair. Of course, we all like to be sympathized with. When we are sick we like to have our sympathetic friends come to see us and draw a long face and make us believe that no one has ever suffered before as we are suffering and that we are trembling on the verge of the grave, but when they go away we have to send in a hurry call for the doctor. When we have a hard job to do we like for somebody to shed tears of pity over us and "poor dear" us, but the result is that it makes us so sorry for ourselves that we just give up the struggle of fighting with a hard and cruel world. When we lose those we love it is balm to our hurt hearts to have some one mingle their tears with ours, but every time they do so it tears the wound open again and keeps it fresh and bleeding. For sympathy is like dope—soothing and pleasant, but once you get the habit of taking it you are a goner. There is no pep left in you, no ambition, no courage, no fight. You spend the balance of your life wallowing in self-pity, aided and abetted by the dear, kind women who plume themselves on being so sympathetic.

Did you ever stop to think of the harm that the angelic women do with their sympathy? To begin with, they undermine their children's characters in their very cradles and teach them to be weaklings who will never be able to take life on the chin. When little Johnny stumbles and bumps his nose Mama picks him up and pities him and kisses the place to make it well, and says: "Did the nasty old floor hurt Mother's precious darling?" And that does the trick and turns Johnny into a whiner and complainer for the balance of his days.

Rugged Role for Children

Johnny doesn't get much education because Mother is always so sorry for him because the lessons at school are so hard, or the teacher picks on him, or the boys won't always play his way, so she shifts him about from school to school, or lets him stay at home if he doesn't feel like going.

When Johnny is grown and gets a job Mother pities him so much for having to work instead of playing golf, and she is so sorry for him because he has to punch the time clock at the office instead of lying abed, that pretty soon Johnny feels that he is a poor, persecuted martyr, and he lays down and quits. The relief rolls are filled with the sons of tender, sympathetic mothers.

Certainly no one can deny that the sympathetic mother is first aid to divorce. A boy and girl get married and find that marriage is full of work and worry and responsibility and sacrifices and the clash of tempers and temperaments.

Mary weeps on Mother's breast and tells her of all Tom's faults and peculiarities, and of how he was actually brutal to her about the new hat she bought; how he fusses when the coffee is bad and the toast is burned at breakfast; how he is breaking her heart with his cruelty. And Mother "poor darlings" her and says: "Come home to Mother and let me take care of you."

And Mary packs her trunks for Reno, but she wouldn't do it if Mother read the Riot Act to her instead of sympathizing with her, and she told her to go to work and make a success of her marriage instead of throwing it into the discard because it didn't come up to her childish dreams.

Makes Permanent "Invalids"

Sympathy is responsible for that vast army of feminine invalids who enjoy poor health and who enslave their families. As long as they can make a cult of their poor nerves, or their bad hearts, or what have you, and everybody waits on them hand and foot, they lie for years on their couches in pretty negligees and talk about their symptoms. But let something happen that cuts off their supply of sympathy and they rise up and walk, take their beds with them and are as well as anybody.

Believe me, sympathy is one of the virtues that leans to vice's side. It does more harm than good. What people in trouble need is not pity. They need a brace. They need something to put hope in their hearts and strength in their backbones that will make them get up and fight, instead of lying down and taking it.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, April 3
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THIS DAY may be notable for the introduction of some sort of new factors or intriguing situations to tax and perplex, judging by certain conflicting planetary configurations. Sudden opportunities for change, innovations or other breaking away from routine may be looked for. Elders and work seem to be concerned, and while benefits and growth may be counted upon yet there may be signs of treachery, subtlety and chaotic thinking and ill advised action.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which sudden opportunities for gainful change, new work, innovations and reforms may materialize and assure growth, enhanced possessions and financial success. But there are signs of pitfalls, snares, intrigue.

A child born on this day should be clever, ingenious, original and hard working, probably along lines of research, invention or other professional vocations. It may be a subtle mind but be easily imposed upon.

TESTED . . . RECIPES . .

By MARY MOORE

We have found a way to prepare either hamburgers or filet mignons —the flavor is the same—the appearance similar—the cost being the only thing that is very different.

Hamburgs or Filet Mignons on Onion Slices

Place six ½-inch slices of Bermuda or Spanish onion on glass pie plate, sprinkle with salt and pepper, pour over 2 tablespoons butter, cover and bake ½ hour or until nearly soft at 350 deg. Fahr.

If broiling hamburgers on them mix together lightly 1 pound lean beef ground, 2 tablespoons ground suet (the butcher will run the suet through the grinder with the meat if you ask him), ½ cup soft bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, and 2 teaspoons Worcestershire Sauce. Shape into 6 cakes. Shape into 6 cakes, wrap the outside with 6 strips side bacon and fasten with toothpicks. Place cakes on onion slices, and broil under very hot broiler, tuning once.

If broiling filet mignons have the butcher slice them at least 1-inch thick—preferably 1¼ inches—and wrap each filet with a strip of side bacon and fasten with toothpick. Sprinkle one side with salt and pepper, and place one filet on each onion slice and place under very hot broiler, turning about 4 times until desired degree of doneness is reached—about 20 minutes for medium done if filet is 1¼ inches thick. Serve on plate on which it is baked.

London's Hats Brightly Gay War's Easter

LONDON, April 2—(CP). — No woman in Great Britain any longer pretends that she dresses to please other women or to gratify her own sense of form and color.

Now she has two kinds of clothes. There are the everyday clothes in which she goes about her war work, and these she has designed for practical purposes—clean tailored lines and for gaiety of color. Secondly there are the clothes she buys for that all important person, the Man on Leave. And in nothing is she more conscious of male thought on dress than in buying the hat she will wear when her man comes home on leave.

The London hatmakers, curiously enough, have never done better work than since the war. Or is it so curious? Have not the two best known British statesmen, so well known in the London streets—Winston Churchill and Anthony Eden—made the British nation hat-conscious?

Both Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden have left their mark on the shape of hats. For there are many miniature copies of men's hats, of the dented "Anthony Eden" hat which once we called a Homburg. It is not, however, made in felt as you might suppose, but in all sorts of very English fabrics. You find that shirting cottons make these enchanting tiny hats, boat shaped, with cleft crowns and gently upturned brims.

Linen and Checks

There are such tiny hats in linens, plain or striped, and for the colder days, in the finest, lightest weight of tropical suitings, in shepherd's plaids (minute checks, that is) or glenurquhart checks.

London is making hats of the palest felts. You might think that with the dust that inevitably rises in a city liable to air raids women would eschew pale tints, but that is not at all the case. They are buying delicate fine felts in pale pinks and pale blues. You even find the finest white felts in wide brimmed shapes, sometimes felt and straw faced together.

Bonnets are worn by the young girls and miniature bonnets by married women accompany the fitted town coats. You will get a closely fitted black cloth coat worn with a tiny black silk or satin bonnet, showing the hair worn in big curls high over the forehead.

Hats, Day and Night

Young girls' bonnets have far bigger off-the-face brims, and have less trimming, more line to them, you may say. The turned back brims may be scalloped. They may be made in rough straws for hot days, in the fine pale felts for cooler days, or in fabric to match the facing on a coat, or actually matching a blouse or dress. Pulled-forward berets in cottons or silks are also for a young girl's choice. Feather toques, on the other hand, are the married woman's choice.

Night-time turbans are worn in restaurants in London. Girls wear chiffon turbans in pale tones, the ends falling to the shoulders. Married women wear lame or satin turbans, closely bound and held by jewels on either side of the twist or knot at the front.

Spring Ensemble

LONG COAT ensemble, in spring's favored beige. The coat slide fastens over a simple dress, in Crown Tested rayon sheer crepe.

Hats Bloom With Flowers

Hats are a-bloom with corsages. Flowers of all types are putting on a riotous show of color. In some cases, fruits and leaves are used as accent. Veiling is used profusely to soft advantage. Clusters of tiny wings nestle against lovely straws. We saw an exquisite hat the other day—pyramided with blue delphiniums, romantic roses and little black satin bows. Another straw had veils and ribbons that contrasted in color. We saw pill boxes swamped with gay blossoms. Then there were black or navy blue hats with delicate pink floral effect, and the result was stunning. Especially was this so with a smart black felt with lovely pink roses.

We saw also an attractive bright red straw, beautiful with flower trim. Nosegays of flowers were perched a-top other hats. And there was a reverse Breton felt with squared-off brim in black, brown or navy. It was touched off with ribbon and an enchanting veil.

Removable shoulder straps on slips and foundation garments make for easy replacements and help the cause of personal daintiness. Many fastidious women whisk them through soapsuds along with their stockings every night.

Women Have New Styles

This spring and summer, well-dressed Canadian women will be wearing the mannish mode. The mannish trend for women of 1941 may be summed up conclusively in three words: Color, comfort and charm.

The color of tweeds this year, in contrast to the conservative, practical tweeds of other seasons, is a pleasant surprise. There is a radiance to the new tweeds that is unprecedented. And in all materials—tweeds, plaids, worsteds, herringbones, chalk stripes, etc.—the outstanding shade is a new bluish gray Canadian women will be seeing soon.

Very fashionabe, in the dressier mannish mode, are chalk stripes. In more conservative styles, worsteds and pin stripes are most attractive.

Comfort Consciousness

Canadian women, continually "on the go," in their new wartime activity, will appreciate the "comfort consciousness" revealed in a women's clothes this year. Jackets are looser and longer, and if you prefer a drape-jacket, there is a fulness in chest and sleeve-heads. In an interview with the designers it was suggested that "To live and breathe in clothes" should be the new motto for women of 1941 "Women, this year," they said, "will be comfortable as well as chic"

The stamp of smartness this season is the longer jacket Women are warned, however, not to go to extremes regarding the new length of jackets. Jacket lengths should be adapted to individual figures For the tall, slender figure, "knuckle length" is correct. And the "right kind of shoulders" this year are those with rounded tips. Much of the bulk has been removed from paddings. Shoulders, this season, in differing degrees of protrusion, must be smoothly rounded. Skirts of 1941 are subdued. They are straighter, with pleats, flares and gores controlled for easy walking. Peaked lapels are smart this year. So are flap and jetted pockets. The padded raglan, lose-fitting coats are something new. For dressier occasions, the dressmaker suits is very chic.

A romantic thought is the new "Twin Trend." This idea of similarity of dress for men and women is called the "Tandem" suit. It has been displayed at fashion shows presented recently in Toronto. On the Canadian avenues this spring, ladies and their escorts will be seen in tailored costumes of the same material.

The Naval Theme

The naval and military mood, so popular this season, can be had simply by the addition of buttons. This blouse, in tailored style, is designed in silk jersey. The anchor buttons and pins can be purchased in Peterborough. Another fashion note is shown in the anchor-trimmed, off-the-face hat. This, too, may be purchased in Peterborough.

Colored 'Weskits' Brighten Spring Suits For Women

Mere men are doomed to fashion obscurity in the matter of vests this season, for women will have a vast assortment of them, and they will be twice as spectacular as any the men have possessed since they emerged from the satin and lace era. Yes, the "weskit," as the ladies call it, is headed for a prominent place in the fashion picture of 1941.

And what could be smarter in a suited season than the weskit! It adds that dapper dash of color that is the very making of a tailored outfit. To be really clever, have more than one of these gay, rakish creations in your wardrobe. Several, in different colors and styles, will be a real asset, if you can match them up to accessories and have complete changes even though you decide on just one suit.

For the first days of spring, when there is still a winter chill in the air, flannel weskits are recommended, for you can wear them under your suit jacket and benefit by their warmth as well as their chic. You'll find a vast assortment of them, some with the longer line, some briefly cut, but all of them strictly man-tailored and with the pull-in belt just like the he-man vests you've seen for many a year. Each house has a different idea as to the kind of buttons weskits should sport. Some show plain gold or pearl buttons, but for the most part novelty buttons are the order, particularly those of patriotic design. Vibrant colors are most popular in the flannel weskits—fervent reds, soft glowing yellows, warm greens, and bright blues. But if you prefer—grays, navies, creams, and slate blues are plentiful.

Linen weskits are good, too, and will be ideal to wear well into the summer season. They are so easy to tub and keep in spic and span order. You'll find many of them in the vibrant colors, but pastels are a natural favorite in vests of this type.

You are, however, by no means obliged to stick to plain colors when you select your weskits. Plenty of them have gay designs—prints on silks and woollens, and embroidery on rough linen grounds. Outstanding in this group are the hand-embroidered weskits imported from Guatemala. Colorful little figures and signs that look as though they had been copied from ancient temple walls file across the front of these models.

Dollars To Doughnuts

By EDITH ELLINGTON

here for dinner. Isn't that it, Vera? You have seven cents and Terry's probably got one."

Vera sank down into a chair and stretched out her long, lovely legs. "As a matter of fact, Toby, that's it. I thought maybe he had some money, so I phoned him, but—"

"You thought maybe he had some money!" Toby's sarcasm was devastating. "Well, go on down and haul him up here. No, wait. Here's a dollar. Send him around to the delicatessen, first."

Beatrice opened her handbag. "Toby, let me. After all, I'm the one who—"

"Yes, I forgot to tell you," Toby put in, carelessly, to Vera. "This is Bee Davis, she's spending the night with us. I'm taking her down to the store in the morning to see about a job."

Beatrice handed $2 to Vera. Vera stared down at the money. "Lady, are you cracked? Do you think we're feeding a regiment? There's just four of us, you know, and potato salad at 20 cents a pound, and bologna at—"

Toby dived for the money. "Don't take it. It's her last ditch fund!"

"But I've crossed the ditch. I've practically got a job!" Beatrice insisted.

Vera said, "All right. We'll celebrate. Spiced beef and pickled herring. What kind of cake do you like?"

"Cheese cake," said Toby. "That's expensive."

After Vera was gone, Beatrice felt a bit dazed. "You two certainly understand each other," she said. "And she's one of the most beautiful girls I've ever seen."

"Yeah, she's beautiful. But she doesn't use it. Of course, she makes her living that way. What I mean is, she picks up the saddest specimens to fall in love with! With that face, she could fascinate a banker, couldn't she, and have dismonds.

"But no. Boozing reporters, and this nut of a photographer, and a crazy actor who'd like to be Hamlet, if he could only act. And a saxophone player who only plays hot. He's so hot, in fact, he spends his nights jamming with a bunch of other swing-happy saps and hardly ever even plays a club date. . . . "

Beatrice didn't understand all of it, but she got the drift. Toby tossed her a clean towel, indicated the bathroom, and when Beatrice emerged, Vera and Terry were back, loaded down with brown paper bags.

Terry was shorter than Vera. He had burly, broad shoulders and tumbled tawny hair. He had a pair of fuzzy eyebrows that quirked together as Toby introduced Beatrice.

"I'd like to take some shots of you. That patrician look. Say, you'd make a swell model."

"Oh, no thanks!" Beatrice cried in quick panic. "I—my pictures always come out dreadfully. I'm not photogenic at all." She couldn't let this boy take pictures of her and perhaps have some newspaper or magazine get hold of one!

"Never mind, Terry," said Vera comfortably. "You still have me. Or am I palling on you?"

It was a gay, completely informal meal. They ate off a wobbly card table set up in the living room. Vera made the coffee, and everybody helped to unwrap the delicatessen packages and slap them down on plates. Beatrice had never in her life eaten spiced beef, pickled herring, hard rolls, potato salad and sour green tomatoes. But she found them delicious.

Terry ate enormously, confiding between mouthfuls, "Had no lunch." After his second cup of coffee, he tilted back the spindly bridge chair and remarked, "What a harem! Three beautiful girls and all for me! I wish I had the price of a movie, kids."

"But instead," said Vera, "you have some films to develop. I feel it coming on. Eat and run, that's you."

"Well, yes. As a matter of fact. . . . "

Vera got up and threw his hat at him. "Get out of here! Pig!"

Toby leaped to her feet. "Wait a minute. There's the little matter of dishes, my boy."

Terry hunched his broad shoulders and shivered. "Dishes!" Then his eye lighted on Beatrice. "Hey, I'm not the only guest around here. Make her help me!"

The dishtowel in her fingers, watching him expertly dunking a cup into hot soapy water, Beatrice realized that this was the first time in her life she had ever actually helped with this task that inevitably followed every meal she had ever eaten. She was clumsy, and he sneered at her. "Don't dab! Wipe!"

He took the towel out of her hand, at last. "A fine wife you'll make some miserable man. Go on in there and decorate the sofa. At least, you're good at that."

His eyes narrowed. "You know, I keep having the feeling that I've seen you before. Somewhere. That little tilt to your chin—the way you wear your hair— You remind me of something. It's vaguely swimming around in the back of my head. Some kind of an opulent scene goes with it—I can't think."

"You must be mistaken," she heard herself saying coolly. "I've never seen you before in my life."

"Yes, yes, I know. But I've seen you. I used to be a publicity cameraman, you know. Montauk—swell resort hotels—"

"That must account for the opulent scenes," said Beatrice. "You've got me mixed up with someone else."

Terry's eyes were still narrowed and speculative. "Maybe. But who's the gal I've got you mixed up with?"

(To Be Continued)

Business Men

One of the illusions of which men had been divested was the hope of a new order of things, of a new instrument for peace, born of the Versailles Treaty and the League of Nations. "It was the first attempt made in history to regulate the relations between belligerents at the end of a war and to lay foundations of a new and better world."

United States rejected the League, and Germany, Italy and Japan withdrew from it, and became aggressor nations. Germany overran Austria, Italy invaded Ethiopia, and Japan made inroads on China. And so it died of one of the deadliest of modern diseases, popular approval without private faith. The good in it was the principle of concerted effort to make a new and better world.

"Our failure to contemplate the possibility of certain members of the League withdrawing from it and to provide adequate penalties for such apostates was the evil that must be avoided in the future."

Economic Nationalism

Passing from the international catastrophe of the failure of the League, Mr. Fox discussed in adequate detail the development of economic nationalism in the post war years and particularly during the decade of depression. It struck Canada forcibly. Her exportation of wheat for years had been the highest in the world. Eventually it dwindled until the Federal Government had to go into the wheat business itself by taking over the huge supplies which we could not export because our tariff barriers were raised high against the products of other countries. Trade between nations was greatly reduced because the policy of economic nationalism became prevalent throughout the world, and one direct result was the paralysis that settled on industry with consequent universal unemployment.

Mr. Fox said the Empire Trade agreements brought Canada and other members of the Commonwealth certain preferences which for the time gave a new impetus to industry in this country. Subsequent agreements with the United States gave us a further new market for some of our products, "and before the outbreak of the war we could at least be said to be coming out of the depression.

I shall not deal with the expansion of industry and increased employment since the war because I do not think it provides a good business index. But, we in Canada are still somewhat in the throes of economic nationalism. The preferences which we received by the Empire trade agreements and the treaty with United States provided a good palliative for an abnormal condition at that time."

Mr. Fox said he could see no permanent restorative properties in the system of economic nationalism. His final topic turned from the international and national causes of disillusion during the years between the two wars to personal apathy toward the democratic way of life.

"Democracy was something we took for granted. To put ourselves out to do something to preserve democracy was an imposition or an invasion of our rights as individuals."

Based On Christianity

For all practical purposes democracy was the political concept of Christianity, Mr. Fox said, and two evils against it were plutocracy and bigotry, which he described as the antithesis of democracy.

The democratic principle assures to every man freedom to worship God as he will, but men have been ostracized socially and discriminated against politically and in the sphere of business because they worshipped God in the manner which they believed to be best. Men and women who spend their time and energies making war on other religions "are the rankest kind of fifth columnists because they openly oppose one of democracy's first principles, freedom of religious belief."

Plutocracy, the rule of the wealthy classes, was inconsistent with democracy because it was unchristian. And involved in that evil was the great problem of capital and labor.

"It is the essence of Christian ethics and democratic principles that labor is just as important an element in industry as is capital. As between the two, the one more deserving of consideration is labor because it involves the human personality."

A common personal fault of the people of democratic countries, Mr. Fox concluded was their lack of interest in public affairs and their administration. "Some of us in our indifference have even refused to cast our vote; others have used them to support men whom we knew were not fit trustees of public authority, but who gave some assurance of getting us something out of the government. Do you call that democracy? If so then democrats will have a lot more to answer for than those who live under totalitarian influence, because they have no choice at all."

All authority, Mr. Fox said, came from God, and man delegated his authority as a citizen to elected representatives. Neglect and abuse of that duty was a betrayal of a trust that came from God. Recalling the decision mentioned in his introductory quotation, Mr. Fox said that was a personal responsibility, a decision to be true to the basic principles of democracy now and in the future, and in the right performance of those duties every citizen was helping his country and the Empire in its present difficulties and in the future to a saner and more Christian way of living.

"May that decision be worthy of the great trust that is ours so that we may soon emerge from the darkness of the present into a brighter and happier world."

A vote of appreciation to Mr. Fox was moved by F. J. Overend and expressed by Mr. Hughes.

Many cellars are inclined to be damp. To remedy this, dissolve the contents of a small tin of waterglass in a quart of boiling water and paint it over the walls, also the floor.

SALMON LOAF CAN BE MADE WITH CHEAPER GRADES if you add a rich sauce

TAKE a tall tin of pink or cohoe salmon. Mash it and add a little browned onion. Blend in well, a tablespoonful of H. P. Sauce. Add 1½ cups mashed potatoes, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 2 teaspoons butter, ½ cup milk. Mix thoroughly and press into a baking dish. Cover with buttered crumbs; bake for 20 minutes in moderate oven. Serves 4 persons.

Cheaper grades of salmon are just as nutritious as best sockeye and the addition of H. P. Sauce rounds out the flavour so deliciously that everyone will remark on the fine taste of your loaf. You can use H. P. Sauce for many other foods. It greatly improves soup, stew, beans, macaroni, fried meats and fish, also salads and sandwiches.

Death tries to break, but all in vain.

When we were all together.

OBITUARY

HARRY COYLE.

ROSENEATH, April 2.—(ENS).—Funeral services for the late Harry Coyle, whose death occurred on Monday, will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock standard time at St. James' Anglican church, Roseneath. The pastor, Rev. A. C. McCullums conducting with interment in the family plot in the adjoining cemetery. The body is resting at McMillan's Funeral Parlours, Roseneath, until the service.

FRANCIS EDWARD TRENNUM

LAKEFIELD, April 2.—(ENS)—The funeral of the late Francis Edward Trennum was held from the residence of his niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Edwards on Monday afternoon with C. E. Tatham officiating.

Mr. Trennum was in his seventy-seventh year and had only been seriously ill a short time.

He had resided in Lakefield for a number of years and was a faithful member of Grace Gospel Hall. He was predeceased by his wife, the former Fay Lavina Jarvis on February 9 of this year.

Surviving is one sister, Mrs. John Coons of Peterborough, one son, John James Trennum of Havelock and one daughter, Mrs. Wesley Johnston of Lakefield.

Pallbearers were Morgan Abrams, John Hampton, Thompson Braden, Arthur Ebbs, Irwin Pruner and Earl Edwards.

Interment was in Lakefield cemetery.

MRS. JACOB BROOKS.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Jacob Brooks was held on Tuesday afternoon, from her late residence, 199 Dalhousie street. Canon W. Robertson, of St. John's Anglican church officiated, and interment was in little Lake cemetery.

The large number of floral offerings at the house declared silently that there was a woman who had been held in high esteem in her large circle of friends and neighbours. The pall-bearers were William Noftall, E. Lord, Thomas Hooper, Chris Graham, Victor Hamilton and John Allen.

JOHN EARLE JEWELL.

The funeral of John Earle Jewell of 121 Stewart street, who met a tragic death on Sunday night in Cobourg, was held from the family residence on Wednesday.

Known to his many friends in the city as "Joe," he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Jewell and was born in Peterborough 25 years ago. He was employed at the Shell service station operated on Charlotte street by D. W. Way, and his friendly disposition was known well in a large circle of friends. As he was a member of the last contingent to serve the thirty day training period at the Exhibition camp, the news of his death has brought sadness to his new found friends with whom he trained.

Surviving are his wife, the former Vera Barrett, his parents, and two sisters, Mrs. S. Mitchell and Mrs. W. Gilmour both of Peterborough.

Rev. E. W. Rowland officiated, and the remains were placed at their last resting resting place in Lakefield cemetery by D. W. Way, J. McIntyre, H. Ward, W. Mantell, A. Sanderson and K. Bleakley who were pallbearers. A great number of floral offerings at the home bore witness of the esteem in which he had been held during his short but active life.

Employment in tin mines of Malaya is 50 per cent greater than a year ago.

Singing Together Is Fun With a Cowboy Songbook

Cowboy songs everyone loves—what sheer pleasure to sit back and sing away!

You don't have to rack your brain for the words when you have a songbook. "The Texas Song"? You sing every line:

"I'm going to leave old Texas now,
For they've no use for the long-horn cow . . ."

And you'll be sure to turn to "Git Along, Little Dogies," for that's everyone's favorite:

Whoopee ti yi yo! Git along, little dogies;
It's your misfortune and none of my own.
Whoopee ti yi yo! Git along, little dogies,
You know that Wyoming will be your new home."

As for "Red River Valley," there's the song to melt your tender heart!

"Come and sit by my side if you love me,
Do not hasten to bid me adieu;
But remember the Red River Valley,
And the girl that has loved you so true!"

The other verses of these songs? You'll find them in our songbook of favorite cowboy ditties, old and new. Words and music of 19 favorites, including "Home On the Range."

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T GO IT ALONE

BRIDGE IS a team game. Why forget you have a partner and that he is trying to win just as much as you are? Let him make some of the decisions which you are unable to make yourself. Many a time he knows, from having seen his own cards, what is best for the side. You, not having seen his cards, should pass on occasion to see if he wishes to double the opponents. Maybe they are offering your side a big gift, about which he knows and you do not.

South led the diamond K to the A, and declarer sent the spade K to the A. North put South in with the club 2 to the A, for a lead of the diamond Q and the 3, which North ruffed. The heart K won then, setting the contract.

East was one of those positive fellows who likes to take definite action at nearly all stages. He just can't pass and see what somebody else wants to do, especially his own partner. If he had listened to the bidding, he would have heard South deny a good heart fit with his first diamond bid, and his second bid of diamonds, after North's second heart call, showed that he didn't have even enough of them to support a rebid major. Hence he couldn't possibly have more than two, and West therefore must have had at least four or five.

If East had reasoned thus, he would have passed North's 3-Hearts, and West would have doubled it. Perfect defense would have enabled East and West then to score 800 points for a three-trick set, instead of being beaten at their own contract.

Drink Plant Robbed

BRANTFORD, Ont., April 1 — (CP).— The Brantford plant of the Coca-Cola Company of Canada Ltd. Morrell Street, was broken into some time on Sunday night or early on Monday morning and approximately $500 in cash was stolen, police stated yesterday. The money was obtained by breaking through the brick wall of a vault and prying off the door of an inner safe.

Police found a long crowbar, a heavy sledge hammer, several hatchets, and a small screw driver near the vault. Detective Kerr said a hole large enough for a person to crawl through had been made in the thick brick wall.

John G. Perry Is Not Man Named In Will

TORONTO, April 2 (CP) — Appellate Court, in a judgment delivered at Osgoode Hall today, decided that John G. Perry was not the man Robert Frank Perry, Peterborough, meant in his will when he left a third of the residue of his estate to Charles W. Perry, another brother.

The testator died at the age of 87. He named a sister, and George A. Perry and Charles W. Perry, as the beneficiaries of the residue.

John G. took action to obtain the $5,000 share of Charles W. on the ground that the latter had died three years before the testator and this fact was made known to Robert Frank Perry within three months after his brother's death. Therefore, John G. contended, the aged man must have meant him when he named the brother who was dead.

Chief Justice Rose found in his favor. The Appellate Court now reverses this finding, and allows the appeal of the executor against the judgment. In a judgment written by Mr. Justice Gillanders, it is held that cases quoted by the applicant's counsel do not apply to that at bar.

"In the case at bar," says Mr. Justice Gillanders, plaintiff "has failed to show that he is the person intended to benefit."

Yugoslavia Deals Hard Blow To Vaunted Prestige Of Hitler And Nazi Germany

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.)

WASHINGTON, April 2—(AP).—Cumulative British blows, ashore and afloat, at Germany's shaken Italian Axis mate are tending to force Hitler's hand in the Balkans. He cannot conceivably wait long to find effective means to prop his faltering partner, whatever the risks of a two-front war, without risking an early internal Italian collapse.

That lends color to Belgrade reports, ascribed to German sources, of an impending Nazi ultimatum to Yugoslavia to demobilize her army or take the consequences. Berlin spokesmen do not go that far.

They do say, however, that Berlin's patience with Yugoslavia is wearing thin, and that for "prestige" reasons alone the situation there cannot be much longer tolerated.

German prestige in Italy seems to be included. It is up to Hitler to find a way to meet the effect of the British naval victory in the East-Central Mediterranean for strictly military and naval reasons as well as prestige.

Italian Power Shattered

That fight was more than the greatest sea battle of this war. It might prove among the decisive actions of the British-Axis struggle and powerfully influence developments in the Battle of the Atlantic as well as in the Mediterranean.

Britain virtually shattered Italian sea power without loss or injury to her own ships or men except two missing aircraft.

Yet that single and prolonged action greatly impaired the Italian fleet's ability to act even as a passive ally of Germany in the crucial Battle of the Atlantic. Destruction among Italian cruisers are destroyers, whatever the full toll, will serve to release British warcraft in the Mediterranean to reinforce those guarding Atlantic sea lanes.

Without an adequate protective screen of such fast lighter craft, remaining Italian battleships are no serious threat to Britain. They would be apt to meet the same fate against the now doubly overwhelming British naval odds against them. The British command can almost write them as well as the sunken cruisers and destroyers off the books.

Not Good Strategy

Why the Italian fleet put out at all is not indicated. It may have hoped to strike a Greece-bound British troop convoy heading up the Aegean. Or it may have been an operation dictated by Italian naval or public morale necessity.

The great Battle of Jutland in the first Great War grew out of such a German necessity. It was not a strategic move, and Rome may have ordered out the fleet for similar reasons. If that should be true it would testify to the serious concern in Rome over the effect on the Italian home front of succeeding blows by Britain and Greece and the Yugoslav revolt against the Axis on the Italian home front.

Hitler's main purpose in moving into Bulgaria and putting pressure on Yugoslavia to join the Axis was to prop Italy and also to compel Britain to come heavily to Greek aid. There seems no doubt of that. It would pin British naval and merchant shipping in the Middle East at the time it was most vitally needed in the Atlantic.

Yet it is now crystal clear that a Nazi attack on Yugoslavia is likely to touch off a major war in the Balkans and might not even then succeed in bracing Italy, particularly if Yugosla belligerency led, as it might, to a new Italian military disaster in Albania.

Thirty years ago a Presbyterian minister lived in the manse at Warsaw, and held services in the Presbyterian church morning and evening. These were well attended. He also preached to a well-attended congregation at Cottesloe in the afternoon. The Anglicans had a well-attended church service in the afternoon, with a clergyman coming from Lakefield. The Methodist church evening service was so well attended one had to be there on time to get a seat. The Baptists had a full church on Sunday morning. Now all that attend church could easily attend one service, and still there would be room.

Toronto Traffic Toll Reaches 24

TORONTO, April 2 — (CP). — George Bethune, 63, of Seaforth, Ont., was fatally injured early today when struck by a car on Avenue road near Cottingham street.

His death, which raises Toronto's 1941 traffic toll to 24 occurred approximately three and a half hours after Private J. H. Baldwin, a member of the Veteran Home Guard, was killed by a police motorcycle in front of Fort York armouries.

Mr. Bethune, police reported, was apparently walking from the west to the east side of Avenue road, when knocked down by a car proceeding south, in charge of Gordon A. McInnes, 28. The victim was removed to the Toronto General Hospital in a city ambulance, where he died shortly after being admitted. Following an investigation, Coroner Dr. W. Easson Brown had the body removed to the coroner's building.

Police of Belmont street station, who are continuing their investigations said that Mr. Bethune, who has a brother residing in Midland, and a sister at Seaforth, came to Toronto on visits frequently, and while here stayed on Cottingham street.

Lloyd George Warns Britain Against Neglecting Agriculture

FOOD PROBLEM ALTHOUGH SERIOUS IN THE LAST WAR, WAS NOT AS SERIOUS AS IT IS NOW FORMER PRIME MINISTER TELLS HOUSE OF COMMONS

LONDON, April 3—(CP). —David Lloyd George warned the House of Commons today that the food problem "although serious in the last war, was not as serious as it is now."

The Prime Minister of 1916-18 spoke after Robert Hudson, Minister of Agriculture, had stated he expected to have 3,750,000 acres plowed up this spring.

Addressing his remarks to the Treasury bench and remarking that other Ministers besides Mr. Hudson should have attended the debate, Mr. Lloyd George remarked that "you do not eat acres."

Never before, he declared, in such a short period of time had Britain experienced "such a galaxy of triumphs."

"They dazzle the eye," he said, "but take care they do not blind us."

Germany had great victories between 1914 and 1918, he said, but she neglected her agriculture and so was beaten.

Mr. Lloyd George criticized people owning vast estates with deer parks.

"People should not be allowed to keep deer and have as much meat as they want, while other people are rationed," he said.

"I say to my Tory friends who want, as I do, to maintain private ownership after the war that we had

WASHINGTON, April 3 — (AP). — The United States to-day demanded the immediate recall of the Italian naval attache in Washington, Admiral Alberto Lais, on the grounds he was connected with the sabotaging of Italian merchant ships in this country.

State Secretary Cordell Hull sent a note to this effect to the Italian Ambassador, Prince Colonna, on orders of President Roosevelt.

The note, made public by the State Department, declared that Admiral Lais was "persona non grata to this Government as naval attache of the Royal Italian Embassy at Washington," and requested "that Your Excellency's government withdraw him immediately from the United States."

The note said the action was taken because of "various facts and circumstances" which had come to the attention of this Government "connecting" Admiral Lais "with the commission by certain persons of acts in violation of the laws of the United States."

President Roosevelt, the note said, had decided that the continued presence of Admiral Lais "would no longer be agreeable to this Government."

Hull, in releasing the note at his press conference, said he could not take up at this time the question of whether similar action might be taken against any German officials in the United States.

Captain Admits Orders

It was recalled that the captain of an Italian ship seized last weekend in Texas was quoted by officials as saying that he had orders from the Italian naval attache in Washington to destroy his engines.

Two German and 28 Italian merchant vessels have been taken into custody in American harbors and only yesterday the State Department said it had received new and vigorous protests from the Axis powers.

Today Morgenthau said he and Attorney General Jackson were "studying" possible action to forfeit these ships to the United States.

Although each embassy has sent two notes demanding the release of the ships and crews, the United States has not yet made a formal reply.

Officials, however, have indicated the replies will be outright rejection.

The Government's action in asking the recall of the Italian naval attache followed precedents set prior to the United States' entrance into the First Great War when it forced Germany to recall its naval attache here and also a member of the embassy staff, Franz Von Papen, who is now German Ambassador to Turkey.

Morgenthau, in his first press conference since the ships were taken into custody, declined to discuss the problems of forfeiture, and referred reporters to the Attorney-General.

The 1917 law under which the axis ships were seized because of sabotage by the crews, also provides that the government may ask forfeiture of the ships as a penalty for such sabotage.

The Facts Speak

Asked whether he had any information that sabotage of the ships was ordered by any diplomatic representatives of the axis in the United States, the secretary said, "the facts speak for themselves."

New and more vigorous protests against the seizures came yesterday from the axis powers.

Asked whether the ships of any other nation might be taken into custody, Morgenthau replied that no advance notice of such action

House Vetoes Scheme To Pass On Qualities

TORONTO, April 3 — (CP). — An attempt by the Department of Municipal affairs to obtain the authority to pass upon the qualifications of municipal clerks and treasurers before their appointment was defeated at a meeting of the Municipal Law Committee of the Ontario Legislature today.

Eric Cross, former Minister of Municipal Affairs, was one of the principal opponents of the measure which was part of a bill to amend the Municipal Act. Mr. Cross said the measure, if passed, would create a lot of difficulty for small municipalities and if one of the appointees "went wrong" after being approved by the department, the onus would be on the department.

Leslie M. Frost (Con., Victoria) declared that if the department was given this power it would be besieged with political partisans for jobs, while William Summerville (Con., Toronto Riverdale) contended that promotions would be effected if, the board had the power to reject appointments by the municipality. Mr. Summerville also contended the elected representatives should have the say.

Ross McEwing (Lib., Wellington North) declared that few of the clerks in the small municipalities could obtain the necessary certificate and despite the fact they were competent men, they would not be eligible to hold the position.

"We have some treasurers who

See Green Road To Victory With U.S. On It In 90 Days

MACON, Ga., April 3—(AP).—Congressman Martin Dies (Dem., Texas) predicts that the United States will be at war with Axis powers within 90 days.

The chairman of the House of Representatives Committee on Unamerican Activities made his prediction last night in an interview, in which he also dsclosed threats of sabotage against the naval fuse plant under construction here.

"England and the United States will win the war after a hard, bitter struggle," Dies said. "It will be won by a joint invasion of Germany and Italy through Greece and the Balkans."

The Texan said he believed it was the United States' duty to fight, and to send an army to Europe.

Investigators for the Dies committee have been in Macon for several weeks, he said, checking on movements of men believed in the pay of foreign governments.

Dies said the Government's seizure of Italian and German ships in United States harbors had prevented the blocking of ports vital to the national defence. He said it was the Axis plan to sink the ships in harbor channels to block them.

Troopers Fail To Halt Ford Fights

DETROIT, April 3.—(AP)—Violent but isolated outbreaks of fighting occurred near the strike-closed Ford Motor Company plant this morning and Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner announced that resumption of mediation conferences with C.I.O. and company officials had been postponed.

Four negroes in an automobile were beaten severely by union pickets who chased them nearly a mile from the main plant gate. Three of the pickets were struck down as a car following the negroes' machine plowed through the fighting group at a speed which witnesses estimated at 40 miles an hour.

The clash occurred in heavy traffic on Dix Road, a block east of Miller Road along which the world's largest industrial plant stretches for a mile. Three of the negroes, whose car was overturned, fled; the other was picked up by unionists and taken to hospital. The car that struck the group of fighters sped away without slackening speed.

Uniformed state police with orders to prevent renewal of fighting that caused scores of injuries yesterday, guarded the strike-closed Rouge plant.

Soldier Killed In Taxi Crash

Two Others Injured As Cab Rolls Over

HAMILTON, April 3 (CP)—One soldier is dead and two others are suffering from injuries as a result of an accident one mile west of Clappison's Corners early today. The three soldiers were reported to have been going to Windsor and were riding in a car driven by a taxi-driver when the machine is reported to have missed a turn in the road and to have gone into the ditch, hurling the three passengers out.

Pte. Charles Mabbett, member of the Essex Scottish Regiment at Camp Borden, suffered injuries from which he died shortly before noon today. He had been rushed to the Hamilton hospital in an ambulance suffering from lacerations to the face and head. His companions, Ptes. Hector Stroud and David Snyder, of the same regiment, were less seriously injured. Pte. Snyder is still a patient at the Hamilton General Hospital and his condition was given as fairly good at noon today. There was no report on the extent of his injuries.

Pte. Stroud was discharged after first aid treatment.

Provincial Constable F. L. Barker of St. George, conducted the investigation into the accident, and said that he had not been given the driver's name. He said that there had been six soldiers in the car at the time of the accident, and that three of them had escaped injury.

LONDON, April 3—(CP).—A second Italian destroyer has been sunk and a third left in a sinking condition by British naval airplanes after the craft attempted to escape from Massaua, Eritrean port on the Red Sea, the Admiralty announced today. Sinking of the first destroyer was announced yesterday.

CAIRO, April 3—(AP).—British advance troops in Ethiopia have captured Miesso, on the Addis Ababa-Jibuti railway about 180 miles east of the Ethiopia capital, the Middle East command announced today.

In North Africa, the British command announced that its troops in Libya had withdrawn to positions north of Agedabia and that this movement was followed up by Axis mechanized forces. Agedabia is about 80 miles northeast of Achelia and a short distance inland.

The capture of Miesso carried the British forces almost a third of the way to Addis Ababa from Diredawa, where they first cut the rail line leading to Jibuti on the Gulf of Aden in French Somaliland.

In neighboring Eritrea, where the British forces have occupied the colonial capital of Asmara, Imperial troops were reported continuing their thrust southward. This indicated that the Fascists were retreating along the coastal road toward the Ethiopian border instead of toward Massaua. Eritrea's chief seaport some 72 miles northeast of Asmara.

British planes flew just above the level of the city roofs as the General Commanding an Indian Division drove slowly through streets lined with white flags and thousands of fluttering handkerchiefs. Hundreds of Italian women refugees were among those who watched.

A few miles to the south other British planes repeatedly bombed Italian guns and motor transport streaming toward Adigrat and Makale, in Ethiopia, for what may prove to be the last Italian stand in Africa.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, April 3 —(AP).—Vladimir Macek, Croatian Peasant party leader, announced today he is entering the new government, thereby making Yugoslavia a united nation in face of threatened war with Germany. Macek had withheld formal acceptance of appointment as vice premier.

Macek said he hoped that "despite all difficulties piling upon us we can, with collaboration and a common effort, preserve peace and overcome the difficulties which dark time recently have brought upon us."

Germany ordered all her legation staff save two men home to Berlin, leading diplomatic circles to express the belief that Hitler has decided that war with Yugoslavia is inevitable.

As news that the German diplomats were leaving spread, envoys of other nations hastened to their offices to keep in close touch with the rapidly developing situation.

Officials of the Italian legation said preparations for evacuation of the staff already had been made, but declared no orders to leave the country had been received from Rome.

A Fascist spokesman expressed belief that despite the gravity of the situation "war is not inevitable," and said the Italians still were "seeking some basis on which to establish contact between the Italian and Yugoslav governments."

Just Sitting Tight.

Replying to the German "atrocity" charges, the Yugoslav newspaper Politika declared today:

"The only answer we can make to these charges is to remain calm and strong in our unity, and prepare ourselves to defend our independence, integrity and freedom."

Teleki Takes Poison; Cabinet Quits

Hungary's Pro-British Premier Found Dead In His Room

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 3—(AP).—Count Paul Teleki, 62-year-old Premier of Hungary, died unexpectedly in the night and hours later the mystery of his death was partly clarified by an official Hungarian news agency dispatch which said he committed suicide.

The agency said the manner of death was determined by physicians who examined his body. No explanation was immediately forthcoming. Friends said the Premier took poison.

The Hungarian Government was said to have resigned as a result of Teleki's death.

Ferenc Keresztes-Fischer, Minister of the Interior and head of the Police and Gendarmerie, became acting Premier.

Count Teleki visited his wife's sick-room late last night, then returned home, where he was found dead in bed by his servants this morning, the Foreign Office statement asserted.

Two Hun Ships Blaze at Sea

Hint Crew May Be Captives Of Canadian Warship—Off Peru

WASHINGTON, April 3—(AP).—Unmoved by new and more vigorous Axis protests, the United States held to its intention to-day of investigating the sabotage of seized German and Italian ships and prosecuting anyone responsible.

The new protests — the second since the "protective" seizure of 30 Axis merchantmen last week-end—may cause some delay in the formal reply being prepared by the State Department, it was said, but will not alter this Government's position that its action was fully justified.

Western Hemisphere waters, meanwhile, became the grave of two more German vessels, raising the total of Axis shipping losses to 13 for the last four days.

The two Nazi vessels which fled Callao, Peru, on Monday without sailing papers were located in flames 200 miles at sea. There were no lifeboats left on the sinking hulks and no trace of their crews. It was uncertain whether the ships had been fired and abandoned, or whether they had fallen prey to an armed Canadian auxiliary known to be operating in the vicinity.

Farther south on the western coast of South American another German freighter put to sea from Talcahuano, Chile. Three other Nazi ships in Chilean ports also made ready to leave.

Venezuela Angry.

As an even larger number of Axis merchantmen were affected by the new "protective" seizure policy, not all the diplomatic notes were originating in Rome or Berlin. The Government of Venezuela lodged strong protests with Axis envoys at Caracas last night because of the burning and scuttling of four German and Italian ships in Venezuelan waters.

Venezuela termed the sabotage "deliberate," a "scandalous" violation of hospitality, and "a premeditated crime which is punishable by our laws."

Hint U.S. Convoys to Iceland

Republicans Vote Against Long Easter Recess Fearing Action

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, a well-informed legislator said today, has told Congressional leaders that suggestions for using the United States navy to convoy supplies abroad were "too absurd to talk about" at this time.

On Capitol Hill, however, opponents of the convoy idea showed reluctance to accept this as the final word, and one of them said he had information that the question of convoying ships as far as Iceland was under consideration.

Several Republicans said they had voted against the Senate's taking a 10-day Easter recess with the House because they were afraid that some action involving convoys might develop during their absence.

Chairman Walter George (Dem.-Georgia) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said he had heard nothing to indicate that the administration was thinking of inaugurating convoys, and he predicted that the President would not act without consulting Congress.

In George's opinion, the President would have the legal authority to order naval escorts for merchantmen to any port where the ships may go legally. The neutrality law, he pointed out, prohibits American shipping from entering the combat zones defined by presidential proclamation.

As to Iceland, George noted that the island was not now within the confines of the combat zone. However, he said, there might be a question of international law involved on sea traffic to Iceland, because the little kingdom, which British forces have occupied, was recently included in Germany's extended counter blockade area.

There was speculation as to the nature of the "purely naval matter" which Mr. Roosevelt discussed late yesterday with Navy Secretary Frank Knox and Admiral Harold R. Stark. The assumption that the subject matter included consideration of new measures in the domestic defence and British aid programs.

Peterboro' Is Extolled By Alex Elliott

No Road Debentures, Lauds Department Fine House Address

TORONTO, April 3.—(CP)—Paying tribute to the supervisory work of the Department of Municipal Affairs, Alex Elliott (Lib. Peterborough) in the Ontario Legislature yesterday declared it was "surprising" the results accomplished in a few years by municipalities when control was exercised over their spending.

In the five-year period between 1934 and 1939 the total indebtedness of the defaulting municipalities was reduced from $105,000,000 to $90,000,000, declared Mr. Elliott while participating in the budget debate.

The judicial committee of the Privy Council in a case respecting the City of Windsor had ruled that it is not only the right of the province to intervene but a duty when the municipality was in financial difficulties or when its inhabitants was not receiving the services they should enjoy.

Affect Province's Credit

"Aside from that phase of the matter," he continued, "there is also the question that widespread municipal default might adversely affect the province's credit.

He said the need of the Department of municipal affairs was as "great in good times as in bad times" and municipal officials every day were learning the value of consulting officials from this department.

"It is the melting pot into which all the municipal problems seem to pour. It has voided many costly experiments."

No More Defaults

A recurrence of the defaults experienced in the early 30's can never again occur and he said, the municipalities for the first time in history are under the proper control.

The War Today

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Germany today called home her entire legation staff in Yugoslavia except two men and the move was interpreted in some quarters as an indication the German high command is about ready to launch an attack on the kingdom should Hitler give the word.

Additional German troops were massed on the Rumanian frontier, less than 50 miles from Belgrade, and others were posted in Hungary along the Yugoslav border.

Such acts by the Germans and such words by a German official might be another move in the war of nerves—a final effort to frighten Yugoslavia into submission to Germany's demand—but Yugoslav authorities said they saw little chance that war could be averted.

The sudden death in Budapest of Count Teleki of Hungary further beclouded the Balkan situation as it left Hungary temporarily without a government at a critical time when Germany may seek to use Hungarian soldiers in an assault against Yugoslavia.

It was announced in Budapest that Interior Minister Ferenc Keresztes-Fischer who commands the police and gendarmerie will be acting premier until Teleki's successor is named.

Despite German bombast regarding its intentions toward Yugoslavia, there was obvious nervousness in Italy last Yugoslav troops should eventually regard themselves at war with both European Axis partners and sweep south into Albania to join Greek and British forces there. Such an eventuality would almost certainly sweep the Italians quickly into the Adriatic.

Elsewnere—in East Africa—the leg-weary remnants of Italy's fleeing forces were headed for the shores of the Red Sea where their escape appeared cut off by the Royal Navy which announced yesterday the sinking of an Italian destroyer and capture of a German merchantman, seeking to escape from the port city of Massaua.

Other Italians, enfolded by converging British forces, fled toward the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa where they were expected to join further isolated comrades-in-arms for a possible last stand.

The Eritrean campaign was regarded a virtually ended.

could be given, if it were contemplated, He added that the coast guard, which is a treasury unit, had received letters of commendation from many officials of the government for the way in which it conducted the ship seizures.

There was some speculation on reprisal moves by the axis powers. A study of government records made in this connection showed that the ships' value was far outweighed by American property in Italy and Germany.

feet below.

Perspiring British Tommies counted over fresh hundreds of Italian prisoners and huge stores of materials as advance units thrust through the Eritrean capital to seize control of the road to Massaua, the colony chief seaport.

It is not clear yet whether the Italians intend resistance in front of Massaua, where they would have to fight with their backs to the Red Sea—and possibly the British navy—or whether they are trying to escape by the coast road through Zula.

Zula is 30 miles below Massaua and Adigrat is 70 miles farther south, just across the border in Ethiopia.

Fear Revenge

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, April 3 (CP)—As the collapse of Italian resistence in Ethiopia appeared near, the British East Africa command reiterated today its previous warnings that precautions be taken to protect the Italian civil population from possible Ethiopian vengenace.

When British forces entered Diredawa last week it was found that Ethiopian natives already had started injuring Italian civilians who had remained in the town. The British troops arrived just in time to prevent the situation getting out of hand.

Today's warning read: "Following recent reports, grave concern is felt that the Italians may delay their request for protection until it is too late for our forces to prevent anti-Italian natives from seeking vengeance and causing casualties among both soldiers and civilians."

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, April 3 (CP)—The capture of Soroppa, in the Yavello sector of Southern Ethiopia, after a four-hour battle and the seizure of 700 camels by troops mopping up in Eastern Italian Somaliland were announced today in a British communique.

Two Hun Ships

Meanwhile, Mexican authorities reported that they had thwarted a plot last night to add nine more vessels to the toll of Axis shipping destroyed in Western hemisphere waters since Sunday. The vessels were taken over by authorities Tuesday, but their German and Italian crews were permitted to remain aboard.

The plan, officials said, was to destroy the ships some time during the night. The officers were lured ashore by a ruse and immediately arrested. Then the crews were removed and placed in custody. German seamen on one ship resisted but were overpowered by armed marines. A T.N.T. bomb was reported found in the exhaust pipe of one tanker.

The new Axis protests to the United States, delivered yesterday, took special exception to the action of authorities in imprisoning crew members from the seized vessels.

House Hears Call For More Cargo Vessels

OTTAWA, April 3.—(CP).—Britain's wartime demand for cargo ships drew a response in both Houses of Parliament yesterday as senators and members of the commons urged "all-out" efforts to build such vessels in Canada.

The debate in the House drew from Munitions Minister Howe the statement that expansion of the Dominion's shipbuilding industry has been and will be rapid but that it must be orderly, wth expansion of supervision along with incraases in the number of workmen employed.

The discussion in the Commons took place on the $135,000,000 supplementary war appropriation bill for the last fiscal year which will be considered further to-day. Finance Minister Isley expressed hope the bill, as well as other supplementary estimates for 1940-41, could be passed before the Easter recess.

The debate grew sharp at times as Opposition members charged there were discrepancies between a statement on shipbuilding made the night before by Navy Minister Macdonald and Mr. Howe's remarks yesterday.

No New Yards.

Mr. Howe said ships would be built as rapidly as possible consistent with sound judgment but there was no immediate intention of opening new yards.

"It is the intention to use existing yards to the fullest capacity, to build additional berths where additional berths can be built and can be manned after that, and only after that, to explore the situation as regards new shipyards," said Mr. Howe.

Mr. Howe said up to the present 20 contracts had been placed for 10,000-ton merchant ships. The merchant ship construction program was being placed in "separate and capable hands" and he hoped soon to be able to announce a set-up which would meet with the approval of the House.

"The British government has spoken for the output of certain yards," he said, "and the Canadian government is going to have the output of the balance of the yards, and it is our intention to organize that output to the maximum extent which is reasonably possible."

Opening of the steel plate mill at Sydney, N.S., was not practicable at the moment because no ingots were available there as raw material, all the output of the Sydney steel plants going to the United Kingdom.

Plans now were being drawn, however, for another open hearth furnace at Sydney which would increase the ingots available and make opening of the plate mill possible. The minister said an open hearth furnace would cost $1,500,000 and take eight months to instal. It would take 18 months to get the plate mill in operation.

No Delay in Jobs

Navy Minister Macdonald said the failure of Nova Scotia builders to obtain contracts for Fairmile boats had in no way held up the war effort, because other yards were able to do the work. He repudiated an accusation by Clarence Gillis (C.C.F., Cape Breton South) that in his speech Monday night he had implied the builders were saboteurs or were trying to make more profits than other yards.

Senator C. C. Ballantyne, (Con., Quebec) during debate in the upper house, said Canada's "great need of the hour" is cargo ships.

"Large cargo boats can be built in eight or nine months," he said. "We can also build three or four cargo ships for what it would cost to build a destroyer.

"We should give up the idea of building destroyers and concentrate on building cargo boats."

The Senator defended the shipbuilding program in the First Great War under Sir Robert Borden's Union government. He said a recent charge by Munitions Minister Howe that the program had been "helter-skelter" was "not only unfounded and unfair, but totally inaccurate."

He suggested Mr. Howe should call in shipbuilding heads for a conference, instead of sending the Director of Shipping travelling across the country to investigate facilities.

Nazis Recall Officials, Move Up Blitz Regiments

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, April 3 — (AP). — Germany ordered all of her legation staff save two men home to Berlin to-day in a flurry of ominous military activity and diplomatic circles expressed belief that Hitler had decided that war with Yugoslavia was inevitable.

Only the German charge d'affaires and military attache were exempted from the recall order, which a legation secretary said would be fulfilled by nightfall.

Motorized German troops were reported massing in Rumania opposite the Yugoslav frontier town of Bela Crkva, only 50 miles from Belgrade, and at Szeged in Southern Hungary.

The German radio, in early morning broadcasts reminiscent of those which preceded the Nazi entry into Czecho-Slovakia, accused the Yugoslavs anew of committing atrocities against the German minority in the country.

Indications that the recall order was unexpected were seen in the fact that last night the staff members had been making extensive preparations to barricade themselves in the legation if war came.

Large supplies of food had been stored in the building and firearms and ammunition were concealed there.

"Till the Capital Falls."

"We worked out a scheme to defend ourselves," one legation member boasted, "during the brief period while our troops weer crossing the frontier and capturing Belgrade."

The Yugoslav army of 1,200,000 men, meanwhile, was being held ready for any emergency and it appeared that the nation would stand solid behind the Government should war come.

Observers agreed the outlook was more serious than at any time since last Thursday, when young King Peter II and his military advisers deposed the Regency government which had joined the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo alliance.

The order recalling the German legation staff was received by Dr. Gert Feine, the young charge d'affaires, in a coded telegram from Berlin at 7.30 a.m. (2.30 a.m. E.D.T.).

Dr. Feine, who has been in charge of the legation since Minister Viktor Von Heeren went to Berlin earlier this week to report, immediately routed 50 clerks and attaches from their beds and ordered them to pack facturer, maintained picket lines at plant gates—without the barricading of roads which the company said stopped all employees from entering the factory yesterday.

'At Gate 4—scene of most of yesterday's riots and of a serious riot in 1937—there were 24 state police lined up across the gate. Behind them were Ford service men. Outside the gate a picket line stretching a block in each direction marched.

One man who tried to enter the gate, only to be turned back by the service men, was severely beaten by assailants who left the picket line to intercept him as he was leaving. The injured man, who was then taken through the gate to the plant hospital, was said to be a timekeeper.

Some 5,000 persons, most of them negroes, left the plant during the night and only about 200 were in evidence this morning.

Captain Laurence Lyon of state police instructed the pickets to stop their practice of halting approaching automobiles and demanding identification of occupants.

No Shot Fired By Fiume

British Give Italians No Time To Man Guns

ATHENS, April 3. — The 10,000-ton Italian heavy cruiser Fiume and 1,729-ton destroyer Vittorio Alfieri went down in flames amid the screams of its dying and wounded men without being able to fire a single shot in last Friday night's historic battle of the Ionian Sea, one of the Fiume's 118 survivors said yesterday.

(The story of the survivors represented the first concrete information that the Vittorio Alfieri, sister ship of the destroyer Vincenzo Gioverti, which is known to have been sunk, went down in the British attack.)

"It wasn't really a naval battle; it was an Italian disaster," said the rescued Italian sailor.

"Our ship sank without firing a single shot and the first we knew of the attack was when a torpedo hit our port side aft with a deafening explosion. I was in the bow as one of the crew in the fire control.

"Flames shot up and then fumes blinded and suffocated us as we seized gas masks and fought through the tangled mass of wreckage and blackness, amid the frightful screams of the wounded and dying."

Another of the 118 survivors of the Fiume, a 25-year-old ardent Fascist from Rome, said the attack lasted only 10 minutes and the Fiume sank in 40 minutes.

"Trying to escape to the deck, I was cut off and found myself in a blazing companionway," the youth said. "I ran through flames and reached an emergency gun turret, stained raincoat. A lock of black hair dropped over his forehead when he removed his hat.

The visitors' book showed that the visitor had been introduced by the aristocratic Franz Von Papen. He sat down at the table with Thyssen.

That was, perhaps, the first meeting between tall, heavy-lidded Fritz Thyssen and Adolf Hitler—two men who were to have a role in changing the course of Germany . . of Europe . . of the world.

But it wasn't the last. They met again and again, and soon Fritz Thyssen was convinced that here was the strong man to lead Germany back to a position of power.

And so two years after the first meeting, a group of wealthy industrialists gathered secretly with Thyssen in an hotel room in Duesseldorff. Again the visitor was Hitler and before he left the room he had convinced his audience that he was the man who should be Germany's leader.

It was an important day in Hitler's career—for that that meeting there was always money to finance the cause of national socialism. Thyssen himself raised 3,000,000 marks (nominally $1,200,000) for the 1933 elections.

Hitler swept into power.

Now another chapter is being written in the story of Fritz Thyssen. He has become the "mystery man" of Europe.

Some say he is in a Nazi concentration camp at Dachau, a prisoner.

But German authorities declare Thyssen is in South America.

The story is that he broke with Hitler over the course of the Nazi regime, that he was opposed to the persecution of the Jews, to war with Britain, and to a pact of friendship with Soviet Russia.

But if he was seized by the Gestapo, why should he have been permitted to slip out of Germany or France—unless it was by deliberate design of his captors?

The 67-year-old industrialist gambled for big stakes in Germany and there are big stakes in South America for a man with his organizing genius.

"We won't be tyrannical with small or large municipalities," he promised.

Mr. McQuesten's plea that the sections under fire be submitted to the Legislature for further discussion was rejected and motions that they be struck from the bill were carried by substantial majorities.

Trail Rangers Officially Open Quarters

PORT HOPE, April 3—(ENS). — A long anticipated event occurred Wednesday night with the official openin gof the Trail Ranger room at the United Church.

Lloyd Corbett, who was the leader of the group and who was the real power behind the building of the room, is now in the Midland Regiment station in Ottawa, was not present to receive the gratitude and thanks of those who attended the ceremony.

The meeting opened with "O Canada," after which Mr. Brown, the chairman, made a few remarks concerning the room.

Two members of the Trail Ranger group then gave recitations; Alec Kellough reciting, "The Bowman" and Tommy Hall, "Mary's Son."

Mr. F. Brooks then entertained with moving pictures on Safety in Driving.

Bill Hodgson was called upon to introduce Mr. Confort, teacher at the High School, who conducted a quiz. The jack-pot was won by Jack Garnett.

A sing-song was conducted by Bill Hodgson, with Keith Staples at the piano.

Another reel was shown by Mr. Brooks on How to Swim.

George Watson thanked Mr. Brooks for coming to the meeting and showing the pictures.

Cecil Spicer, who is now taking over the leadership of the group, thanked the visitors for their interest and presence in the boys' work, and at the opening of the room. Cecil thanked the boys' work board and the people who gave of their time and money to help in the erection of the room.

The mothers of the Trail Rangers then served a lunch and were thanked on behalf of the group by Ted Trumper. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Makes Berlin Rant

BERLIN, April 3 — (AP). —Seizure of German and Italian ships by the United States Government was branded as gangsterism to-day by the Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz.

Lauding German and Italian crews for incapacitating the vessels, the Wilhelmstrasse mouthpiece said, "That the North American gangster coup didn't succeed fully is the merit of those German and Italian seamen who did what they could to rob the law breakers of the fruits of their efforts."

Four Pearse Brothers Serve In Cobourg Unit Erskine Family Has Three Boys In Khaki

COBOURG, April 3 — (ENS). — Cobourg has at least two families with proud army records insofar as service in the C.A.S.F. is concerned.

The family of W. Pearse, Hibernia street, is represented by four sons in the colors of the Canadian army. The four boys are all in the 4th Light A.A. Battery, formerly the 3rd 47th. They are: Jim, the oldest boy of the family; Frank, the second eldest; Harold ("Hod"), and Lyle Pearse.

All four boys joined when the 3rd 47th began recruiting here last Summer. The unit recently converted into an A.A. battery is one of the finest in the C.A.S.F. and is under command of Major Van Steenburgh.

Another family with a service record of high quality is the Erskine family. Three sons of Jack Erskine are serving in the 4th Light A.A. unit. Jack, who is a bombadier; Lyle, and Grant. Their uncle, Harry Erskine, is in the Home Guard detail at present stationed in Lindsay; a fourth brother is Don, a popular young officer of the local police force.

These families are but a few of the large number whose boys have donned the colors of the ranks of those who are fighting for the ideals we all believe in.

Veteran Cobourg Fishermen All Set For Bumper Season

COBOURG, April 3 — (ENS). — Cobourg's waterfront is a busy scene these days as the local fishermen who daily fish the blue waters of Lake Ontario make preparations for the coming season. John Lavis and C. B. Elliott are working over their cabined fish boats, which are soon to start chugging out of the harbor entrance shortly after 6 a.m. Both fishermen have been connected with many lake incidents in the past. They have known their share of lake tragedy and rescues during their years along the waterfront. Mr. Lavis has been fishing for 42 years, following in the footsteps of his father the late John Lavis, Sr., who was an early fisherman of note. Mr. Lavis recalls the early days of his fishing years when they went to their daily round in sailing sloops. The sloop had to be powered with oars when the wind fell and muscle and brawn were at a premium then. The present boat used by Mr. Lavis, Billy Boy, is driven by a 35 horse-power motor and carries a crew of three, the other members being Gerald Brinning and Robert Earle.

Mr. Elliott's boat is driven by a 40 horse-power motor and is equipped with a Fuller machine to haul the nets from their resting-place beneath the surface of the lake. Mr. Elliott, who has been fishing out of Cobourg for twenty years, uses a crew of two, having W. J. Semple as his sailing mate. The fish season will begin this week for Mr. Lavis, who launched his boat on Saturday of last week, while Mr. Elliott gave Monday as his first fishing date. The men usually wind up their season in late December or early January, and their day consists of at least seven hours on the water before returning to the docks where nets are unloaded, fish set, and cleaned, and the drying and mending processing of nets gone through. The average net catch exceeds 80 pounds of fish and daily shipments are made by the toilers of the restless, ancient friend and enemy, the eternal lake. Fresh coats of paint, superstructure work and engine overhauling have been the order of the day for some time past by the ifshermen and their helpers, who use the old adage of "prepare in idleness and reap in the fullness of time."

An Artilleryman

Gunner Jack Bruce, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery (Active) enlisted many months ago and has been serving with the First Division, Somewhere in England, for quite some time. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bruce of Port Hope and is well-known in the town.

PORT HOPE

Instal Vibrators On New Hydro Line

PORT HOPE, April 3—(ENS).—Work on the recently installed Hydro line running south of Bewdley resumed yesterday when a gang of men arrived to instal vibrators on each of the steel standards. The vibrators, it was said, reduce static.

The power line was installed in the district last fall and during the winter. A large number of men were under canvass at a camp located on Highway 28 south of Bewdley, and a number of district farmers were engaged as well. With the erection of the standards and the wire the camp moved to Agincourt, from where a number of men have returned to complete further work.

Cobourg Teacher Is Dead; Taught 30 Years

COBOURG, April 3—(ENS).—It was with deep regret the citizens of Cobourg learned of the death of Miss Laura Jones Tuesday evening. Miss Jones had been in failing health for some time, but death came suddenly as a result of a heart attack.

Miss Laura Jones was born in Port Perry, Ont., the daughter of Dr. Richard Jones and Lucinda Mallory. She attended the public and high schools in Port Perry, and also one year at Strathroy Collegiate, from where she graduated with first-class honors.

She then entered Toronto University and graduated first in her class with first-class honors in modern languages, English, French, German and Spanish, winning the gold medal. Upon leaving the University of Toronto, she taught for one year in Strathroy Collegiate, after which she was in Germany for one year in further study.

Miss Jones came to Cobourg in 1898 to teach in the Collegiate. After 30 years of successful teaching Miss Jones went to Whitby and taught in the High School there until her retirement in 1938.

Miss Jones was one of the leading modern language teachers in the Province of Ontario, and was beloved by her many pupils as a woman and teacher of great culture and scholarly attainments, and always had the welfare of her pupils at heart. Everyone loved her and she will be missed by her many friends. She was the last member of her family, her mother having passed away two years ago.

Miss Jones was a faithful member of the United Church, and her funeral Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from Tait's Funeral Parlors will be conducted by Rev. W. Woodger of Cobourg United Church at the funeral chapel and Union Cemetery.

PORT HOPE

Woman Marks 90th Birthday

PORT HOPE, April 3—(ENS).—In a little grey frame house on Deblaquire Street, where she resides with her daughter, Mrs. Esther Wood is celebrating her 90th birthday today. The congratulations of her neighbors and friends are extended her on attaining her advanced years with such fine health. Her only disability is deafness.

Mrs. Wood is a pioneer of the district, and except for the brief period of three months' residence in Calgary, following her husband's death, she has resided in this area her entire life. Born in Northumberland County, she resided on a farm on the Cobourg Road, following her marriage. Following Mr. Wood's death, the family resided in Calgary for a short time and then returned east, and have lived in Port Hope for more than thirty years.

Mrs. George Perrin and Miss Lila Wood, two of Mrs. Esther Wood's seven daughters, reside in Port Hope. Mrs. Roy Smith resides in Cobourg, Mrs. Rodney Grant in Prince Albert, Sask., Mrs. Fred McKay, Vancouver, B.C., Mrs. John Horne, London, and Mrs. Robert Wade in Calgary.

Merchant Who Sold First Gas In Port Hope Removes Curb Pump From Business Street

PORT HOPE, April 3 (ENS) — Removal of a curbside gasoline pump at Outram's Hardware store today recalled an interesting period in the history of the trade in Port Hope. Mr. Outram sold gasoline before there were any pumps in town, having a tank located in the store from which a hose ran to the occasional car which required filling up. Council granted permission to erect a curbside pump only after a competitor installed one overnight, apparently without their permission. That was about thirty-five years ago. Now there are no longer curbside pumps in the business section and few left in town.

Easter Vacation For Trinity Students

PORT HOPE, April 3 (ENS) — Trinity College School students left Port Hope today for their Easter vacation. The holiday is advanced a few days this year.

The students residing at distant points do not usually return home for the Easter vacation, many remaining at the School of accepting invitations to spend the holiday elsewhere. There are a large number of students at the School from England and other points outside the Dominion.

What Did Germany Pay?

A reader of the Examiner inquires if it is known exactly how much reparation money was paid by Germany following the last war, and our belief is it would be extremely difficult today to produce a statement which would be accurate. There was a time when Germany was doing two things—paying and at the same time borrowing from the world at large.

In the treaty of Versailles Germany agreed to make reparations for damages to civilians in the war. In May of 1921 the Reparations Commission, composed of Allied delegates, ruled the amount should be $31,000,000,000. Protesting the amount was too great Germany made some payments (how many is not recorded) and then defaulted.

In 1923 France and Belgium invaded the Ruhr to force collections through seized coal, but the passive resistance of Germany made it clear that such system of collection was not possible.

The result was that the Daws plan of 1924 became operative. It did not fix Germany's total obligation, but set annual payments at $595,000,000. There was extensive machinery set up and Germany paid under that plan for five years. It is in here that confusion enters the records, as during those five years Germany was borrowing from foreign interests as much as she was paying in reparations. Some well-informed sources state the amount borrowed was actually greater than the amount paid out.

The feeling grew that there should be some finality attached to reparation payments and what was known as the Young plan became operative following conferences at Geneva in 1928-29, and by that plan German liability was stepped down from $31,000,000,000 to $9,000,000,000.

And that was a reduction of virtually 71 per cent.

We do not know where there is an accurate record of the amount which Germany paid under the Young plan. German payments were to be the basis of the entire repayment plan of United States war debts. It is known that in 1932 Germany was engaged in the business of showing that she could not pay. There was an annuity of about a billion marks to be taken from the national budget, but Germany cited a deficit that year and prospects of a greater one the year following. Secondly, there was an annuity of 300,000,000 marks to be taken from German industry, but Germany pointed to an 80 per cent. decrease in corporation income taxes due to the depression. Then there was 660,000,000 marks to come from the German railways, but the railways there, like those in many other countries in 1932, were operating at a deficit.

So the answer to the question of how much Germany paid in war reparations is that "We do not know." But we do know that the initial figure of $31,000,000,000 was reduced to $9,000,000,000, and we do know that the lesser figure was never paid or anything approaching that amount.

The Basic Reason

In negotiating with the government of United States regarding war-time trade, Finance Minister Ilsley told the House of Commons that Washington had insisted there should be no embargo placed upon the shipment of fruit and vegetables from United States to Canada. The argument used by several members was that such restrictions should be placed for conserving exchange and also for the protection of growers of fruit and vegetables in this country. And it was also suggested that Ottawa was being dominated by the view of Washington.

Mr. Ilsley explained such was not the case, and United States had been willing to have many other matters facilitated. There was a trade agreement between the two countries, and by that Canada was able to sell much more in United States than before.

As we understand it the stand taken by the U.S. government on fruits and vegetables was because there are so many people in the business, and probably through their organizations they could bring very considerable pressure on their government.

Back of all these arguments there is one central idea, and in this case it is simply that people in our country want something to eat. There is a season of the year when we produce pretty much all the fruit and vegetables we desire, but climatic conditions in this northern country are such that there are many months in the year when we are growing nothing of that sort, while in the southern portion of United States production is going on.

We have to remember that boundary lines and regulations regarding trade, tariffs, quotas, and all such things, have come into existence within quite recent years. No such things were in operation when people first lived on this continent, and when we drew the line between the limited productive capacity of the northern part and the greater productive possibilities of the southern section we did something which was artificial. We started right then to buck nature and restrict the natural flow of edible material north and south.

It seems only reasonable then in all such negotiations there should be kept to the front the central idea which actually prompts and promotes all this trade—the people want something to eat. And it should require very adequate and conclusive reasons to show why they should not have it.

So They Quit

A peculiar and not at all pleasing incident was revealed in the House of Commons when Labor Minister McLarty said 21 munitions inspectors in Hamilton had refused to leave that city and had resigned their positions rather than accept work at other points.

The explanation indicated that these inspectors had received instruction and training at an inspectors' school conducted in Hamilton under the understanding and promise that they would go to any plant in Canada or United States on completion of their training.

When a man joins any branch of the active service in time of war he goes where he is directed to go, and we can think of no other way in which an army could be successfully managed. Just why a man working as inspector in a munitions factory should enjoy greater latitude of selection than a soldier is a point which is not at all clear.

When a nation is at war the individual accepts the surrender of his normal privileges as a free-will agency and he has only one objective, that of making the greatest possible contribution to the common cause. We believe the Government would be in error if it were to allow these inspectors to dictate what they would or would not do.

No Cause For Cheers

Perhaps you may brand it as an old fogey idea, but we find it out of the question to become enthusiastic because the province did a business in spirits, wine and beer during 1940 amounting to $22,820,689, and out of that made a profit of something like $10,000,000.

How much the Federal Government would make out of it we do not know at the moment, but it might well be as much as the provincial body extracted.

The year 1940 was one of war throughout, and yet the drink bill was greater than in 1939.

We have approximately 3,800,000 people in Ontario, and that takes in children of all ages, includes men and women who do not drink, and the total of such would be a fair enough figure.

There must have been a section of our citizenry which drank a great deal and spent much more than could be afforded.

Too Many Italians

Asmara, capital of Eritrea, the oldest of Italian colonies in East Africa, surrendered to the British. The population is given as 100,000, and there was no show of resistance which was undoubtedly the part of wisdom.

Reports indicate that from 130,000 to 150,000 Italian troops and civilians are hopelessly trapped in Central Ethiopia. The one railway line running from Addis Ababa to the coast has been cut. The residents of the surrendered city Asmara will be in no danger. All that will be necessary is for them to go about their work and attend to their business. It is not British policy to plunder surrendered cities.

There may be a complete surrender in Ethiopia because so many of the civilian residents there are fearful of attacks which may be made by the natives who were conquered and badly used by the Italians in 1936. Some of these native bands are now operating independently and in the fast-moving campaign it is difficult to keep them entirely under control.

The Italian forces which remain in Eritrea are in a bad way as their only open path is toward the sea where the British navy awaits their approach. If they surrender it will swell to large figures the numbers of Italians who have come under British control or who have been made prisoners. So large that the total may be embarrassing. In all it may total 500,000 between civilians and prisoners of war. And John Bull has not been in the habit of operating concentration camps.

Senate Is Out Of Bounds

Hon. R. B. Hanson found the going rather rough in a recent debate at Ottawa. He wished to ask a question of the Minister of Defence, but he also desired to predicate his query on a statement which had been made in the Senate. He started out bravely enough this way: "On March 27 the leader of the government group in the other chamber made what seems to me an astonishing and, may I say, ill-considered and ill-timed remark."

And right there the Chairman swung into action to inform Mr. Hanson it was not permissible to refer to the debates of the other House. The Conservative leader tried it another way and suggested he would say "in another place." But he was not credited with even a scratch hit on that one either.

The member from York-Sunbury put another pebble in his sling and told the chairman he understood the technicalities of debate, and let go the fling that "I do not think you are entitled to face me down on that."

Mr. Chairman budged not at all. There was no technicality about it; just a plain rule of debate, and Mr. Hanson was stalled.

So as we understand it the Senate does not exist as far as the debates in the Commons are concerned. No matter if the member looks forward to the day when he may be called to that august chamber, the place is anathema in the days when he is living, acting and debating in the Commons.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is much better when the steel workers walk in than when they walk out.

If there are no profits made out of business then the excess profits tax will have sunk a pipe into a dry hole.

Henri Jordan, outstanding musician of Brantford, says we have not sufficient military bands. On this point Henri is right and so is Mr. Jordan.

There has been a little slip-up some place, as we have failed to notice the annual story from the Niagara district telling that during the winter the peach trees had been ruined.

Japanese foreign minister when in Berlin said Japan could keep on fighting China for ten years without fatigue. We have a phrase for that in this country: "Oh yeah!"

The Japanese foreign minister was received at Rome by the king of Italy. Possibly the king might be able to show figures which would indicate what it had cost his people to join the big league.

Students in Sofia held demonstrations against Nazi entrance into Bulgaria, and many of them were arrested. We do not know just what the students have been studying but it looks as though it was doing them some good.

Hon. R. B. Hanson appealed to the Government to assist the potato growers of the Maritimes in the same way as they had aided wheat, cheese and butter. We can't make any money out of our speckled hen so we suppose the proper thing is to appeal to Ottawa.

At Coleman, Alberta, 800 miners failed to go to work. The men's representative said it was really not a strike, but merely a "stoppage of work." That is something like a distinction without a difference.

CRITIC

(By A.R.K.)

¶ When Uncle Eben comes to town, I feel that I'm just all run down, and not much good at all; I guess perhaps he means all right, but fills me to the neck with fright, and makes me feel so small.

¶ I do not run the furnace right, should check down harder for the night, 'twould save a lot of coal; and I should study furnace laws, not just dump coal within its jaws, then find I'm in the hole.

¶ He does not fancy clothes I wear, they show no evidence of care, my neckties are too gay; I leave things lying here and there, and dump my jacket on a chair, in such a sloppy way.

¶ He does not like the books I read, he says my mind is going to seed, I'm not so very bright; I need a tonic for my brain, so worthy sentences I'll frame, see wisdom's gladsome light.

¶ And Uncle Eben says my yard, shows signs I never work too hard, I follow no design; he scoffs when I make weak reply, that even if I want to try, I really haven't time.

¶ My Uncle Eben he's done well, has everything that's counted swell, and owns a goodly home; but when he comes to visit here, I'd like to holler in his ear—to just leave me alone.

CAP and BELLS . .

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

IN SPITE of the test of endurance to which the people of Britain have been subjected they are still demanding entertainment and the cinemas are doing excellent business. This is a healthy state of affairs. We need not worry that the British are not taking the war seriously; they are taking it much too seriously to think about it all the time. They have got to have relaxation and diversion.

C & B

Not only the movies are thriving. Britain has an enormous population of theatre-goers who find the movies a poor second best to the legitimate stage, and they demand what they want now. It is neither easy nor profitable to give it to them. The theatre has one of the most complicated financial systems of any art or industry; before a play can be put on a very large sum of money must be found and spent, and it cannot be recovered unless the play is a success. Nowadays success in the theatre means that a play must run to houses at least three-quarters full for some months before it begins to make money. The uncertainty of war-time conditions in a city like London makes the presentation of a play seem the greatest folly, or at least a desperate gamble.

C & B

But courage in Britain is not solely a military attribute. Theatrical managers have it too. Certain of their number cannot be induced to do anything, because of the risk to their investment; some of these are Englishmen, some from that ancient Eastern race which controls so much entertainment enterprise in our modern world. A few managers are doing nobly, and so far they have been rewarded with public gratitude and substantial financial return.

C & B

THE outstanding success in the London theatre at the moment is J. M. Barrie's play, "Dear Brutus," which has been revived at the Globe Theatre by John Gielgud. This manager has been more consistently successful in better plays than any of his contemporaries. He is still a young man, but is the acknowledged leader of his profession in England, and is much admired also in the United States. Many readers will recall his visit to Canada some years ago with his striking production of "Hamlet."

C & B

For this revival Gielgud has followed his policy of surrounding himself with the best cast that he can possibly get; he is known as an unusually unselfish man, and he never hesitates to provoke comparison between himself and other actors of notable achievement. From the reports of London critics it appears that "Dear Brutus" is the sort of production which would be an event in time of peace. It can hardly be imagined what effort has been necessary to create it at present, with the doubt always in mind as to whether it would ever be seen by the public. This is a sort of 'carrying on' which awakes the highest admiration.

C & B

"Dear Brutus" was first produced in 1917 by the popular actor, Gerald du Maurier, so it is twice a war play. It was enormously successful then, and it has been a favorite with amateurs, touring companies, and repertory theatres ever since. Most readers will be familiar with the plot: an eccentric old gentleman named Lob asks a group of men and women to spend some time with him at Midsummer; on Midsummer Eve they all wander into the wood which surrounds the house and have strange adventures; they realize afterward that these adventures are the things which would have happened to them if they had ordered their lives differently. The title is from Shakespeare's play "Julius Caesar," in which Cassius says to his friend: "The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, But in ourselves, that we are underlings." The theme of the play is, that although most of us wish that we could have another chance at life, in order to repair the mistakes we have made, our natures would lead us to do something quite as foolish another time. It is a disquieting thought, but probably a true one.

C & B

IN WAR-TIME many of our intellectual pretentions go by the board. The success of "Dear Brutus" is an example of this. The trend in British drama during the last decade has been toward a sterner and more realistic view of life. But now the old Barrie sentimentality is in the ascendant for the second time. There are two possible reasons for this. In the first place, war is terrifying, and most of us seek comfort from the terror in sentiment. In the second place, the Barrie play, however fluffy it may appear to be, contains more enduring stuff than some of the self-consciously grim dramas which have had a fleeting popularity in the past few years.

C & B

Since his death in 1937 the reputation of Sir James Barrie has suffered a decline. This is not surprising to anyone who is interested in the fortunes of literary men. If they have been markedly successful in life, they usually disappear from conversation and critical discussion for a time after their deaths. It is a part of our romantic idea that a man who is famous in life must be forgotten in death, and vice versa. But there is a lot of life and good sense left in the plays of James Barrie yet, and in a few years we may expect to see a revival of interest in them.

• Can't Mention the Senate

From Parliamentary Hansard

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): I would call the attention of the minister to a statement which has been handed to me by one of my colleagues. I believe the minister has given a restricted interpretation of the application of this section. Perhaps he would include that in his statement this evening.

Mr. RALSTON: Yes. I was thinking of an order in council which we passed by which we can place some limitation on the employment of Canadian forces overseas. I have it in mind that an order in council was passed which outlined the extent of the powers of the senior combatant officer of the Canadian forces.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): Was that as a result of the Norway incident?

Mr. RALSTON: No; it was before that.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): Before the resolution carries, there is a matter of some importance which I believe might properly be mentioned at this time. On March 27 the leader of the government group in the other chamber made what seems to me an astonishing and, may I say, ill-considered and ill-timed statement.

The CHAIRMAN: It is not permissible in this house to refer to the debates of the other house.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): I shall not go into those debates, but I wish to base my question upon that preliminary statement. Will the government bring down the papers referred to in the debate in the other house wherein it was suggested that certain things were refused to be done by either British nationals or the British government? The minister will know exactly what I am referring to.

The CHAIRMAN: I would draw the attention of the leader of the opposition to the point that his question should not have any reference to the debate in the upper house.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): Then I shall say "in another place."

The CHAIRMAN: Even that would not be satisfactory. No reference to a debate in the other place can become part of the debate in this house.

Mr. RALSTON: Perhaps my hon. friend would—

The CHAIRMAN: The leader of the opposition can put a square question to the minister, without making reference to the other house, at all. If we were to begin breaking that rule, we would fall into a chaotic condition.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): Mr. Chairman, I understand the technicalities of the ruling you have given—

The CHAIRMAN: I am sorry, but it is not a technicality.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): That is my interpretation of your remarks, and I do not think you are entitled to face me down on that.

The CHAIRMAN: Order. It is not permissible for any hon. member in the house to address the chair as the hon. member has just done.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): Oh, well, I am not—

The CHAIRMAN: Order. Furthermore, it is not open to any hon. member to question the ruling of the chair, except by appeal to the house.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): I was not questioning the ruling of the chair.

The CHAIRMAN: The ruling of the chair was not a technical question, but a fundamental rule of debate. Therefore my ruling is given, not as a technical point but as a fundamental rule of debate, namely, that in a debate in this chamber no reference can be made to a debate which has occurred in another place.

PROMOTION EARNED

THERE will be general satisfaction in Windsor over the news that Mr. David A. Croll has been commissioned as an officer.

Mr. Croll, a married man with a family, could quite easily have decided that there was no call for him to join the Canadian Active Service Force. Even when he did decide to offer his services, few would have blamed him had he waited until he could qualify for a commission before getting into uniform. He was, however, one of the first Windsor men to enlist in the ranks, and his comrades in the Essex Scottish testify to the fact that he was a good soldier, asking and receiving no favors.

He chose to go up the ladder the hard way. He served for months as a private. Now he has successfully completed his course at one of the famous army schools in England, and he is the holder of the King's commission. His ability will without doubt make him a fine officer.—Windsor Star.

$84,243 FOR GRASS

THE COST of the landscape work along the Queen Elizabeth Way, between Toronto and Hamilton, was $84,243.03, the Legislature was told by T. A. Murphy (Cons., Toronto Beaches).

Of this amount $12,415.10 was for the purchase of trees, shrubs and rosebushes and $12,964.98 for trucking and labor in connection with the planting of these trees and bushes. In addition it was stated that the total cost of sodding along that part of the Queen Elizabeth Way was $58,862.95.—Toronto Globe and Mail.

LAUGHS AT U-BOATS

THE U-boats failed to catch £1,298,832 worth of radio exports from Great Britain last year.

India took 20 900 units, or more than double the total for the year before.

The average price of the receiving sets sent to India, was at the exporting end, £6.93, or 90 rupees. High duties and freights have kept British radio sets out of the poorer Indian home and British manufacturers are now aiming at producing a "People's Set" especially for them.

South Africa was the next best market to India, with a total value of £100,000 worth of radio units and components bought and delivered last year.—British Industries News.

VALUE IN WEEDS

"NOTHING useless is or low," is more than a line of poetry. It is a sound observation on practical life, which is being more clearly demonstrated almost every day.

The newest example of this is found in the statement by Mr. C. B. Kelly, of the Government Experimental Station at Vineland, Ont., that pig weed, allowed to flourish in an orchard and then being plowed into the soil, furnishes valuable fertilizing elements. The discovery suggests all sorts of possibilities in the way of turning what are today looked on as useless nuisances into articles of value.—Windsor Star.

MUSIC OF THE WORLD

AND here is proof that in England no stupid prejudice has been engendered, in this war, against the music of master composers who may have been Germans or Italians, but who certainly were not Nazis or Fascists. "During their two weeks' season of opera at the New Theatre," reads a note in the New Statesman and National, London, "the Sadlers Wells Company are giving performances of 'The Marriage of Figaro', 'Traviata', 'Madame Butterfly', 'Die Fledermaus', and 'The Beggar's Opera'."—Brantford Expositor.

Bow Wow!

They were in the "Black Dog" when the talk turned to animals.

"The dog," said Long, in confident tones, "is man's best friend."

"Quite true," Small heartily replied. "My mother-in-law packed up and went the day after I bought a bull pup."

And it came to pass when Jesus had made an end of commanding his twelve disciples, he departed thence to preach and teach in their cities.

Citizens Fight Fire In Cemetery

COBOURG, April 3.— (ENS). — Spring has come definitely to Cobourg and the local residents are cleaning up front yards and gardens. The town men, under the direction of Foreman James Campbell yesterday were engaged in removing a tree from in front of the property owned by Mrs. Thos. Diamond, King street west. The tree had become unsafe.

Another sign of the coming of fine weather was the grass fire which yesterday swept the top of bush grass from the abandoned cemetery between Ontario and William streets. Citizens surrounding burning ground quickly extinguished the grass fire and it was not necessary to call the fire department. The cemetery is one of the historic early Scotch church burial grounds and ornate grave stones are still standing carrying burial dates as early as 1850 and later. Iron fence still stands as evidence of the care given their dead by the early Cobourg settlers. The graves have nearly all been emptied with the removal to other interment places of the long gone pioneers by their modern day descendants. Residents of the area are quite used to seeing the kinfolk of the early gentry standing with bared heads in reverent silence before the weather worn markers which indicates the last resting place of some early Cobourg citizen.

Milk Prices

circular issued by the four main milk dealers with morning supply of the bottled milk. The increased price affects the price of quarts, which heretofore has been 10 cents. The new price will be 11 cents for the large bottle or an increase of 1 cent a quart, and Cobourg's housewives will be pre-occupied for a short period making adjustments in their monthly budget. There is no increase in the price of the pint issue of milk as the cost of these smaller bottles has been set for some time at 6 cents, which is more than equivalent to the quart size cost. An increase in the cost of cream is also announced, the cost being 5 cents a pint and 3 cents for the popular half pint size. The four firms supply about 98 p.c. of the milk used by local homes. They are Fisher's Dairy, Markle's Dairy, Stuart's Dairy and the Cobourg City Dairy. The raise comes about as a result of the ruling handed down by the Ontario Milk Control Board. The ruling was made as a result of a settlement of milk prices between the milk producers, milk distributors and milk consumers in the local area and the board decided that the retailers were entitled to the increase in price as an aftermath of the settlement.

Lake Ontario's Level Is Normal

PORT HOPE, April 3—(ENS). — The first warm day of spring found a number of children playing at the West Beach Wednesday, though the average beach frequenter has not yet considered basking in the sun. The old bandstand located behind the Town Hall has been moved to the beach by V. Huffman, local contractor, and is already patronized by the children of preschool age, who consider it an ideal play spot. The Parks Commission has not yet installed the swings and other amusements at the beach, but ar no doubt considering the work will have to be undertaken shortly.

Water level of Lake Ontario is normal for the time of the year, and though the shipping season has not yet opened the difficulty experienced by the first collier last year is not expected to recur. A year ago 400 tons of coal were dumped into the lake when the carrier grounded in the harbor mouth. Despite every effort to free it part of the cargo had to be dumped. Last autumn considerable dredging was carried out in the harbor and the dredge is still in port after wintering here.

Thomas Nicholls Identified By Chief Constable Newhall As The Man He Saw The Night Of Robbery

Thomas Nicholls was one of the three men he saw on George Street near the Canadian Department store at 11.20 o'clock on the Saturday night before the store was entered and the safe robbed, Chief Constable Sam Newhall swore in the county judge's criminal court here yesterday afternoon during the trial before Judge J. A. McGibbon of Nicholls, the second of four suspects to be charged with burglarizing the store.

Chief Newhall's evidence was the feature of the afternoon session. He declared that he had seen Nicholls on several occasions before, once in Toronto, and was positive that it was the accused he saw on the Saturday night in question.

"Any doubt of that, Chief" asked W. B. Common, special crown prosecutor.

"None whatever" was the reply.

Chief Newhall said that on that Saturday night he was driving home in a police car with Constables Stevenson and Sexsmith and that he noticed three men jostling each other on the west side of George street between the C.D.S. store and Dean's restaurant.

"Among the men was Nicholls" said Chief Newhall, pointing to the accused in the dock.

"Had you ever seen Nicholls before?"

"A long time before on Hunter street in Peterborough and near the Grand Hotel."

"Is there any doubt of that?"

"None whatever."

The witness said that when he had seen Nicholls on previous occasions he was doing nothing in particular. One time he was in front of the auto supply store on Hunter street, Chief Newhall stated.

Lengthy Cross-Examination

As the police car had turned down George street, he said he had noticed a number of old drunks near the Grand Hotel and then had seen the three men on the sidewalk near the C.D.S. store.

Chief Newhall was cross-examined to considerable length by Mannis Frankel, defence counsel. He told the latter that the lights were out in the C.D.S. store and the blinds were down. He could not say whether the canopy lights at the Capitol theatre were out or not.

"Did you stop to arrest the drunks you saw on the sidewalk"...."No."

"Why not?...."That's not my business."

Chief Newhall stated that he was 67 years of age and his eyesight was good, "I only need glasses to read fine print" he said.

"You say you saw the accused on the west side of George street that night?...."Yes, with two other men."

"What were the doing?".... "Jumping around."

"Were they playing leapfrog or what were they doing?"——"Just pulling each other around."

Mr. Frankel pressed Chief Newhall as to just when he first saw Nicholls. "Can you pin yourself down to any specific time?" he asked.

"I think it was the latter part of 1937 or the early part of 1938."

"You are not getting him mixed with another Nicholls?"

"No."

"I don't know how long I have known him" replied Chief Newhall in answer to another question.

"I don't know whether you are giving me a run-around, chief, or whether I am giving you one" said Mr. Frankel "Anyway we do not seem to be able to get together."

Defense counsel pressed for an answer as to where the witness had first seen Nicholls.

"If you remember where you first saw Nicholls tell him" said Judge McGibbon" If you can't remember tell him that."

Chief Newhall said that he had seen Nicholls outside police headquarters in Toronto, "He was with Max Beaver" he said.

"Did you know who he was then" asked Mr. Frankel.

"No, but I found out afterward."

"How did you find out"...."From a conversation with one of the Toronto detectives."

"Do you remember which detective told you?"...."I can't say; I meet a lot of them when I go to Toronto."

Are We Getting Anywhere?

Mr. Frankel continued to examine the witness as to his first acquaintance with Nicholls but was interrupted by Judge McGibbon.

"I don't want to interfere with your cross-examination" he said "but are we getting anywhere?"

Mr. Frankel asked Chief Newhall as to his seeing Nicholls here on a previous occasion and witness replied that one time he had seen Nicholls in Peterborough something happened that caused him to remember the occasion.

"You say that when you saw him at that time something happened that interested you as a police officer and that you say caused you to remember the occasion and now you say that you cannot remember the date" said Mr. Frankel.

Chief Newhall replied that he could not.

"Then we won't bother any more" said defence counsel, concluding his cross-examination.

Evidence given by the eleven other witnesses heard during the afternoon session followed almost exactly the testimony they had given in the Burns case, although the proceedings were shortened when Mr. Frankel did not cross-examine a number of the witnesses.

J. H. Jamieson, manager of the C.D.S. store, Mary McGrath, the cashier and John McConnell, the caretaker, repeated their previous evidence and Lorne Henderson testified to turning over a ledger card with a footprint on it to Detective Tong. Everett Osborne, who had identified Lawrence Burns as one of the four men he had seen in a maroon car near the C.P.R. tool shed in Bowmanville on the afternoon of February 1, re-told his story of the car but failed to pick out Nicholls as another of the quartette.

"Did you see the accused there?" asked Mr. Common.

"Not that I'd swear to."

Saw Maroon Car

Francis Asta, taxi-driver, testified as to seeing a maroon car stop outside the C.D.S. store on the a man run across the road with a black bag in his hand and get in the car.

Charles Ryan, Windsor hotel clerk said Nicholls had been called by him at 2.30 o'clock on the morning of February 3 and had left the hotel in company with Lawrence Burns and Gallow. Nicholls had stayed at the hotel several times previously, witness said. and he knew him to see him.

Mr. Common produced a hotel register card bearing the name Louis Gallow but Mr. Frankel objected to the evidence and his objection was sustained.

Provincial Constable Raymond Traux of Windsor testified to the safe being found on the outskirts of Windsor on the morning of February 3 and J. J. Dorris produced an application for an automobile license for a maroon car owned by Jean Fairchild and the application signed by John Fairchild.

Constable Christopher Paget of the Windsor police testified to arresting Lawrence Burns in Windsor and when the witness was asked as to money found on Burns, Mr. Frankel voiced the same objection he had made to similar evidence in the Burns case.

"Evidence of something being found on an individual who is not the accused is not evidence against the accused," he argued. "It is tending to prejudice a fair trial. it is tantamount to hearsay evidence, to evidence that is irrevelent."

"It may be the strongest evidence in the world" replied Judge McGibbon "certainly the strongest circumstantial evidence."

Judge McGibbon pointed out that Nicholls, Gallow and Burns had all been shown to have been together at Windsor and that the next morning the stolen safe was found at the outskirts of Windsor.

CLOCKMAKERS DEFEAT MOTORMEN IN INTER-LEAGUE CONTEST

Summerhill Back To Face Hershey Bears

CLEVELAND, April 3 — (AP).— Bill Summerhill, flashy right wing of the Cleveland Barons, will be back in the lineup to-night against Hershey Bears in what the Barons hope will be their last local appearance of the hockey season.

The contest will be the second of the best-of-five-game playoff series for the American League championship, with the third and fourth games scheduled for Hershey on Saturday and Tuesday. The Barons hope to capture three games out of the four, making a fifth here unnecessary.

Home ice always gives a supposed advantage, but the Barons were forced into an overtime on Tuesday night to win the first game, 4-3.

Summerhill was out of the line-up on Tuesday night with an ulcerated tooth.

Joe Jerwa, the defence man who scored 17 goals during the season, is out with a broken hand, and Goalie Moe Roberts is on the bench with a bad ankle.

Alfie Moore, who tended the net in the opener, will replace Roberts again.

NEW YORK, April 3—(AP). — A win for Lou Nova over Max Baer tomorrow night would be a swell birthday present for his manager, Ray Carlen. . . Claude Passeau, the Cubs' pitching ace, deducted for two dead mules in his income tax and says he will dig 'em up if anybody thinks it's a gag. . . . Zeke Bonura, who was sold to Minneapolis, still is moping in New Orleans.

One Sure Bet:

A remarkable man is Maxie Baer
The great big man who's in our hair,
Against Lou Nova he may look awful
But win or lose, he'll talk a jawful.

Under threat of a $10 fine, Pee-wee Reese and Pete Reiser of them Dodgers have shaved off attempts at moustaches. . . . Joe Medwick is swaggering again with a 17-game hitting streak that includes four homers in the last four days.

Abe Simon has made 40 personal appearance since his shindig with Louis. . . . Derby Winter books are getting a heavy play on Fairmond, the English importation of E. F. Woodward, Texas oil man. . . . Jack Kearns sent a long letter to Dempsey trying to explain that newspaper interview in which he said Joe Louis could lick the Manassa Mauler of old.

Five-Star Fight Final

Baer took $3,000 to $1,00 he would kayo Nova.

SPORTS - DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

If the Toronto Leafs have no more heart than some of the Queen City sports writers the series with Bruins is as good as over right now and playing the seventh game of the round in Boston tonight is just a formality. Some of the scribes have turned thumbs down on the Leafs, claiming that they booted their last chance when they failed to grab off Tuesday's game in Toronto and that the odds favor a Boston victory tonight. They might be right at that because Boston showed considerable improvement in the Tuesday game and might cut loose tonight and blast the Leafs right off the rink. But in view of the manner in which the clubs have been beating each other away-from-home there is surely no need for the Toronto sports writers to get out the crying towels yet. There will be plenty of time for them if the Bruins happen to slip a K.O. to the Leafs tonight.

* * * * * *

There are a lot of "ifs" about tonight's crucial battle and there are some folk who predict that after the last three tense games between the two outfits one of the clubs is likely to crack wide open and get shellacked badly. We are not of that opinion. Rather we look for just just another game as the last three contests, a game in which neither team will open up very much but will wait for the breaks and in the meantime hogtie every enemy player who bobs up past centre with the puck. It's curtains for the losers tonight and that should tend to make both squads more cautious than ever. It will not be pretty hockey but the importance of the conflict will make it exciting in spite of the absence of picture plays and of New York Ranger passes. And incidentally if you plan to listen to the broadcast just remember that owing to the difference in the time the air version of the big battle will not be circulating until 10 o'clock.

* * * * * *

Members of the City League bowling teams are reminded of the big time at Duffus Alleys tonight when twelve teams will make a joint attack on the pins in aid of the British War Victims' Fund. The use of the alleys has been donated to the league to help this most worthy cause and the money that would ordinarily be paid for the use of the alleys along with the league's charge to its members will all be tossed into the pot to help the British victims of Hun ruthfulness. The season's prize money will be distributed tonight and every club is expected to have a full turnout in order that the amount turned over to the fund will be as large as possible. A big night's bowling in support of a big cause is the idea behind the whole show and the plan should register a perfect strike, if the bowling fraternity rally around as they should in answer to such an appeal.

Well Done The Generals

Peterborough fans, especially those who have been making frequent pilgrimages to Oshawa for the junior games there will shower congratulations upon Tracy Shaw and his Generals for coming through in the seventh game of their Junior A final series with Toronto Marlboros last night with an 8 to 4 win, taking the series 4 games to 3. Oshawa took their fourth Ontario championship in a row the hard way, having to beat their toughest opposition on the Marlboros' own ice in the pay-off battle and they finished the long-drawn-out round like real champions with a convincing win over a club that had been strong enough to finish first in the group to look like sure winners at one stage in the final series. When the Generals needed the extra punch they produced it and that seems to be a habit with Shaw-coached teams. When everything was at stake last night the Oshawa kids had the drive and the zip and as a result they have made hockey history again by becoming the first club ever to win the Junior O.H.A. championship four years in succession.

* * * * * *

Up to last night the Generals shared with Stratford the distinction of being the only teams to win the title three times in a row. Stratford did the hat trick in 1907. 1908 and 1909, defeating Lindsay, St. Michael's College and Toronto Eurekas respectively in the final round. Plenty of clubs have won the honors twice in succession, Kingston Frontenacs, Toronto Marlboros, Orillia, Toronto Aura Lees, and believe it or not Peterborough. However you have to go back a long way to catch up with the Peterborough two-year triumph—back indeed as far as 1894 and 1895 when the Petes triumphed over Toronto Granites in both years by 14 to 0 and 7 to 6. The Petes won the championship again in 1901 defeating Stratford 12 to 7. We have been waiting 40 years for the next junior title.

* * * * * *

But back to the Generals. The Oshawa kids set several new records last season by winning the Eastern Canadian championship for the third year in succession and then going on to capture the Memorial Cup from the Kenora Thistles 3 games to 1. Thus they were the first club to win the Canadian junior hockey championship twice in a row. Now they are pointing to a third Memorial Cup victory. Whether they are strong enough to successfully meet the challenge of the Winnipeg Rangers who look the class of the West remains to be seen. Right now they do not look as capable a squad as last year's champs but that Oshawa gang has the faculty of improving with the opposition they meet and by the time they face the Western title-holders, if of course, they hang up their fourth Eastern Canadian title in succession, those surprising youngsters of Tracy Shaw's may have power enough to take it all.

* * * * * *

Looks Like The Combines

It looks like the Kingston Combines are well on their way to a championship and Peterborough, thanks to the presence of Honey Tompkins on the Kingston club, to one-twelfth of one. The Combines defeated the Owen Sound Wreckers 10 goals to 4 last night in the fifth game of their marathon and now lead the series 3 gamest o 2. The sixth game will also be played in Kingston which should mean that the whole affair will be wound up this week and the Combines will be champs. This is the first time in the series the boys from the Limestone City have taken the lead. Owen Sound won the first game in Kingston but the latter came back to take the second game, also played on their ice. The Wreckers grabbed off the third game in Owen Sound but next night on the same cushion the Combines picked up their second win to tie up the round. Now they have gone in front and they should stay there.

* * * * * *

Says Ralph Allen in the Globe and Mail: "As it always comes about when a hockey series goes the limit, the Toronto-Boston playoff has flushed a singularly luxuriant and vocal covey of whys guys. These are the people who know the whys of everything—why the team that won yesterday can lose tomorrow, why the one vital break that comes up in almost every close game has to favor this team and not that one, why the sizzling last-minute shot that could have swung the result the other way passed a quarter of an inch outside the goal post instead of a quarter of an inch inside. The answer is always the same: The teams are playing for the gates. There is no telling how many whys guys there are across Canada, nor how they got that way in the first place. You run into them in every cigar store and barber shop, on every street corner and in every business office. They are most numerous in the place you'd expect them to be most scarce—in front of the box office, fighting to push their money into the maw of what they call "the racket." They play no favorites. They'd as soon heave the restless innuendo at a group of 19-year-old amateurs as at hard-bitten professionals nearly twice their age. They do not allow their judgment to be distorted by the facts. It doesn't matter how many three-game series end in two, how many five-game series wind up in three, how many seven-game shindigs peter out after the fifth; just let one series out of every three or four go the full distance, and the whys guys will point to it triumphantly as the rule that disproves the exceptions."

63-Pin Margin In Post Season Match

The Westclox Men's Bowling League defeated the Automobile League men by a 63-pin margin when they met in their post season challenge match at Duffus Alleys last night. It was the first of two test matches to determine the relative strength of the two groups, who have just completed their regular season's bowling. The Clockmakers dumped an aggregate of 17,517 pins and the Motormen 17,454.

Peterborough Automotive who finished second in their group for the year dropped off the best team score of the evening, 3307. They had to battle against the Casting Department outfit who were runners-up in the Westclox standing. When the champions of both leagues met, J. J. Duffus Company defeated the Power Press. The Motormen had the edge again when the third placers tangled, Foley & Wilson shading the Planning Department by a small margin. Their supremacy, however, ended there as the Westclox Office, Clock Department and Watch Department teams, fourth, fifth and sixth finishers in their own league topped the efforts of J. K. Hughes Ltd., Curtis Service Station and Sugden and Shadgett.

In the individual department Frankie Barrie and Alex Watson were the stars. The former dumped 861 for the Westclox and Watson 809 for the Motormen. Barrie hit a 326 single and Watson 364. "Bud" Goodson led four 700 or better performers with 759. Bill Pinn counted 736, Rollie Gilbert 719 and Jack Hickey 707.

The other half of the challenge will be played next Wednesday at 8:30 o'clock.

ROYALS LONE BARRIER TO EASTERN JUNIOR TITLE FOR OSHAWA

Oshawa Bees Defeated By Brantford

OSHAWA, April 3 (Special). — Brantford Lions ran up a three-goal lead on the lighter Oshawa Bees in the first two periods of their round-robin Junior "B" final series here last night, and coasted to a 4-1 win.

A special train brought a large contingent of Brantford fans with the team, and these were in the majority amongst the sparse crowd. Oshawa hockey fans who did not actually make the trip to Toronto to watch their pets, the Generals, win their fourth consecutive O.H.A. title sat at home to listen to it via radio.

Oshawa's only goal was a clever solo by McBrien, shifty centre of the first line, who stole the puck from Strongman at the Bee's defence and went all the way in alone to beat Wilson easily.

For the winners Kennedy with his two goals, was tops for the Lions. Pigeon, Strongman and Horeck were also good. Reese was the best of a big strong defence. Referee Kenny Holmeshaw issued eight penalties, all minors, in a fairly rough game.

Brantford—Goal Wilson; defence, Reese and Butcher; centre, Pigeon; wings, Kennedy and Campbell; subs, Strongman, Linn, Horeck, Ballas, Plumley, McNicholl.

Boston Sellout Sign Fans See Bruin Win

BOSTON, April 3 — (CP).—After one of the hardest-fought Stanley Cup playoff series on record, either Toronto Maple Leafs or Boston Bruins comes to the end of the road to-night and the other will advance into the Cup final against the waiting Detroit Red Wings.

Each with three victories, Leafs and Bruins will meet before an overflow crowd at Boston Garden in the vital seventh game, a game that the Bruins earned when they upset the dope and defeated the Leafs at Toronto on Tuesday night in the sixth game.

When Toronto won here last Saturday night, and needed only a single victory to take the semi-final, gloom Boston fans were resigned to a defeat in Toronto and the end of the Boston season.

But to-day as they besieged the ticket windows at Boston Garden all that was forgotten. They believed the Bruins had found themselves after being upset by the loss of centre Bill Cowley.

In this unusual series, the Bruins won their first game at home by a shutout, 3-0. But the next two games here were Toronto victories, 5-3 and 2-1, in overtime. Intermingled with these games were a Toronto victory at home, 7-2, and two Boston victories in Maple Leaf Gardens, both by 2-1 scores.

Church Out for Leafs.

The Leafs, established again at their University Club headquarters, are expected to put Jack Church back beside Wally Stanowski on the defence. They kept Church out of Tuesday's game due to a knee injury, and Bingo Kampman, who played in his place, was uncertain and out of condition after a long layoff with a damaged foot.

The Bruins built their confidence on two major factors:

1. Little Bobby Bauer, who suffered a deep cut in the instep in the first game, has finally recovered his full effectiveness. He scored a goal in the sixth game.

2. Mel Hill, the "sudden death" hero of the Bruins' 1939 Stanley Cup victory, has unexpectedly proved himself sound centre player. He was injected into Cowley's place between Roy Conacher and Ed. Wiseman on Tuesday and played a stout game, completely tying up dangerous Billy Taylor, Leaf centre.

Meet Mr. Dickey

GEORGE DICKEY

Brother of Big Bill Dickey of the New York Yankees, George (Skeets) Dickey, White Sox rookie catcher, is expected to follow in the footsteps of Bill as a baseball star. With Oklahoma City last year, Skeets batted .315 and caught 117 games. A switch hitter, Skeets began his pro career when only 17 years old. He is 25 now. Young Dickey was given a trial by the Boston Red Sox in 1939.

Nova May Try To Get Louis Slipping Out

NEW YORK, April 3 — (AP). — Now that there is evidence Joe Louis has slipped, every heavyweight with a punch thinks he has a chance against the Brown Bomber. But Lou Nova is the only fighter who is sure he can beat the champion.

Nova has been sure for three years. He thought he could beat the Louis who destroyed Max Schmeling in his greatest fight. And he is more certain than ever now that several not-too-highly regarded fistcuffers have extended the title-holder.

Apparently only one obstacle stands between Lou and a shot at Joe—Max Baer. Lou beat Max two years ago, and he figures he can beat him again when they meet in Madison Square Garden to-morrow night.

Louis was a standout then and Max apparently was finished, but the picture has changed. Lou became ill, was badly mauled by Tony Galento, and was bed-ridden for weeks. After months of inactivity, Nova gained his health and returned to the ring. His first serious opponent was Pat Comiskey, and he gave Patrick a larruping. He's back in the lists again but they've ordered him to tackle a rejuvenated Maxie before getting the title chance.

Some More Ifs.

Baer came out of retirement to technically knock out Galento. Then Max exploded the Comiskey balloon with a first round knockout.

So Lou—and Max—are back just where they were two years ago. The winner will be offered Louis. That is, if Joe gets by Tony Musto, Abe Simon and Billy Conn.

Joe had trouble with Red Burman, looked off form against Gus Dorazio, and had his hands full with big Abe Simon. Simon, who went 13 rounds before Louis caught up with him, gets a return bout here on May 9. One reason fight fans think Louis has slipped is his poor showing against Simon, a chap who was beaten by Nova and Buddy Baer.

There is the possibility that Louis didn't take his recent opponents seriously, that he figured he could loaf around, take his time and do away with his rivals without going "all out" in a hurry. He is sure to have respect for Conn and either Baer or Nova and may be nearer his top form against them. In that case, perhaps some of the experts will revise their estimates that Joe has slipped.

Hockey Broadcast

THE seventh game of the Stanley Cup playdowns between the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Boston Bruins will be broadcast from Boston this evening by CBL and CKCL. The broadcast will commence one hour later or at ten oclock DST, as Boston is on Standard Time.

Generals Oust Marlboros In 8 to 4 Tilt

TORONTO, April 3 — (CP). — Two tickets to fame in Eastern Canada's annual hockey lottery were clutched today by Montreal Royals, with the payoff nearing in both Senior and Junior divisions.

The myriad of aspirants for the Dominion finals has been weeded to two clubs each in the Allan and Memorial Cup divisions. Half of each Eastern final ticket is held by the Royals.

The Senior Royals, three times on the Allan Cup trail in the past three years, set the wheel spinning again tonight at Ottawa. Their opponents in the best-of-five series are Sydney Millionaires, the highly-rated Maritime champions who have four members of last season's champion Kirkland Lake Blue Devils on their roster.

The Royals are trying for a crack at Quebec's first Allan Cup in 11 years in their series with Sydney. The drought is but a short dry spell compared with the province's Junior ranks, however, where Quebec has never held the title in 23 years of Memorial Cup play.

In fact, the Junior Royals will be attempting to take the province into the dominion final for the first time in their eastern final with Oshawa Generals, trying for their third straight Memorial Cup as representatives of Ontario.

Royals Win 12 to 2.

Both the Royals and the Generals gained the final last night and each did it impressively. The Royals ran up a 12-2 score to eliminate the Canadiens, Ottawa and district champions, at Ottawa while the Generals won their deciding game for the Ontario title, 8-4, over the Marlboros at Toronto.

First team ever to win two straight cups, Oshawa has been depleted this season by the graduation of key men and elevation of others to higher ranks. They have strong replacements, however, built about a nucleus of last year's winners.

Final Cup Games Start Saturday

DETROIT, April 3—(CP).—Detroit Red Wings will open their Stanley Cup final series at Toronto, Saturday, or Boston, Sunday, according to which team survives the Leaf-Bruin seventh game at Boston tonight.

Officials of the Wings, who reached the cup final through defeating New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks in turn, said today that the second game of the final is listed for Toronto or Boston next Tuesday.

Then there will be a pair of games at Detroit, on April 10 and 13. If further games are necessary in the four-of-seven series, the dates will be announced later.

Detroit has to accept "foreign" ice for the first two games because it finished third in the National Hockey League race, behind Boston and Toronto who are deadlocked at three victories apiece in their semi-final.

The Wings, who finished their conquest of Chicago last Sunday, taking two straight, are keeping in shape with light drills each day.

Spokesmen said they are confident despite gloomy prospects about the availability of Ebbie Goodfellow, playing coach and veteran of two Stanley Cup victories.

Propose Player Replacement Be Unlimited

TORONTO, April 3—(CP). — An amendment to all clubs to sign players at any time during the season to replace men who have enlisted in the Canadian armed forces will be proposed by the Niagara district and the Toronto Baseball Associations at the annual meeting of the Ontario Baseball Association here April 5.

William J. Snyder, secretary of the association, said that two other proposals would come before the meeting. One from the Inter-County Association to change the rule to allow amateurs playing their last season in their respective groups to advance to clubs in a higher series in the O.B.A. playdowns, regardless of whether they have participated in the minor playoffs.

The second proposal, also from the Inter-County Association, seeks an amendment to make the Senior O.B.A. playoff games take the form of a round-robin series between the winners of all senior groups, also tha the O.B.A. set the definite dates for start of all games in the playoff series.

Odlum Pushing 2nd Division Sports Program

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, April 3—(CP).—This Spring the 2nd Canadian Division is going in for sports in a big way.

Between route marches, weapon training, drills and exercises, an important athletic program is sandwiched. Maj.-Gen. Victor Odlum is determined to have his men as hardy as possible and is pushing the sports campaign.

A divisional order sent to all formations and units by a senior staff officer at headquarters reads: "The successful campaign in Libya was made possible by the splendid physical condition of our troops. Sports training is an important factor in the physical development of the soldier and the general officer commanding is not satisfied that the best results have so far been obtained from this training.

"It is therefore requested that sports programs be reviewed by all formation and unit commanders. The G.O.C. also directs that all officers take an active interest in sports training."

The results of the drive have been encouraging. Boxing shows were held, cross country races staked and soccer leagues put into full swing. Softball fever swept the camps.

The men welcomed the new sports activities, and scores of young officers joined the men on the playing fields.

The four auxiliary services aid the program with equipment and help in organization through the supervising officers. Gordon Gauld of London, Ont., Y.M.C.A. supervisor of Division Headquarters, is directing.

St. Louis Flyers Stage Comeback

ST. LOUIS, April 3—(CP).—St. Louis Flyers, faced with the brink of elimination after losing the first two games of the best-of-five American Hockey Association final playoffs to Kansas City, came back into the running for the championship last night by winning the important third game from the Americans 3-2 in the fourth overtime period.

A goal by Freddy Hergert with the help of Leo Carbol in 1.45 of the fourth overtime session was the game-winning blow. The Flyers previously had taken a 2-0 lead in the last five minutes of first period play. At 15:26 of the period Fido Purpur opened the scoring, tallying on a play setup by Carbol. Four seconds before the period ended; N. Smith of the Flyers got the second goal.

The Americans came right back in the second period to knot the count, Breckheimer and Mitchell netting goals.

Lethbridge Team To Meet Regina

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., April 3 — (CP).—Maple Leafs, carrying Lethbridge colors past the Alberta senior hockey championship for the first time in Allan Cup playdown history, today were ready to tackle Regina Rangers, now coached by Freddie Metcalfe, who did Maple Leafs' master-minding last season.

Maple Leafs, rebuilt after losing their provincial crown last spring, eliminated Trail Smoke Eaters with a 4-2 victory here last night, to enter the western final. Victory was made possible by the three-goal sniping of 23-year-old Mel Lunde, a right-wing product of Edmonton.

The win was Lethbridge's third in the series. Opening game ended in a scoreless draw and then the British Columbians took two straight, 3-1 and 2-1, before Maple Leafs deadlocked the round with 3-2 and 6-3 victories.

Benefit Funds May Be Used For War Victims

A special social meeting of the Peterborough Workers and Unemployed Association was held in the Moose Hall Tuesday evening for the purpose of selecting a date when officers and executive will be elected for this year. The temporary chairman was C. W. Holland who introduced R. M. Glover as the invited speaker.

Mr. Glover was warmly welcomed. He said that the homey fragrance of coffee when he entered the hall reminded him of the purposes and needs of an earlier meeting that evening in aid of the British War Victims Fund. It caused one to think deeply of the many thousands of British people who are victims of German bombing on towns and cities in the Old Country. This host of civilians had lost their homes and their clothings, and were deprived of the ordinary amenities of life such as the P.W.U.A. represented. They were in need of clothing and of many other common things of life which people in Canada take for granted as natural circumstances of life. Mr. Glover spoke of other forms of hardship which the people of Great Britain were enduring "that we in Canada and elsewhere in democratic countries may continue to enjoy that freedom which you are enjoying tonight in this hall." He suggested that the Association could accomplish a great deal of good for the War Victims by donating some of the receipts from their social activities, and thereby would continue to have the thanks and confidence of all loyal citizens. He also said the Association should have an objective of helping others in less fortunate positions than the members themselves, and it should have the hearty support of all the membership. Its officers should have business ability and integrity, and they should be chiefly interested in what they could put into it rather than get out of it. It should seek to serve a useful purpose in the community and be helpful and progressive.

Money Already Voted

Mr. Holland as chairman thanked Mr. Glover for his remarks and said his suggestions would be kept in mind, and every effort would be made to keep the organization on a good, sound footing with officers who could measure up to the standard outlined. Mr. Holland declared that the P.W.U.A. had on several occasions voted $10 to be given to the British War Victims Fund, but the former treasurer had refused to hand over the money to the Fund committee. This sum would be donated by the present organization, Mr. Holland said, mimediately after the elections were held, and other sums would be donated at intervals.

Mr. Post, social convener, said she was planning that 75 per cent of the net proceeds from social games would go toward helping war winning committees, inclusive of the War Victims Fund. Twenty-five per cent will be used to help private individuals and members who find themselves in difficulty and need.

Following the main part of the program refreshments were served and these was square dancing with music by James Black, Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Munroe. A musical program was included in the evening's entertainment with an attendance of more than one hundred. Those assisting were Miss Irene Mead, guitar solos and songs; duets by Miss May Ogden and Miss Patricia Holland; by Master Harold Holland and Patricia Holland; Mrs. Munroe and Charles Holland; Miss Elsie Black and Miss Dolores Black; step dance by Miss Munroe, and step dance by D. Lane. Piano accompaniments were played by Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Munroe and William Holland, and violin by James Black. The meeting closed with the singing of "God Save the King." Mrs. J. Black was temporary secretary.

Imprisoned

Former Premier Dragisa Cvetkovitch, who took Yugoslavia in to the Axis camp, is reported to have been imprisoned in the revolt that swept the country following the signing of the treaty with Germany.

James Davis, Lift Lock Operator For 29 Years, Retires On Pension

There wasn't a tree growing on either bank of the canal between the C.P.R. bridge and the Lift Lock when James R. Davis started working at the Lift Lock in 1911. That year the silver populars which now form an avenue along the water were planted and they tower more than 75 feet high at the present time.

Mr. Davis retired on pension this year, after 29 years of service manipulating the mechanism of the huge Life Lock so that pleasure and Lift Lock so that pleasure and down the Trent Waterway. The lock was officially opened by Sir Wilfrid Laurier on July 9th, 1904, seven years before Mr. Davis took the job of assistant lockmaster.

In the early days four freight and passenger boats made regular trips up to the Kawartha Lakes, and excursions were very popular. The Water-Lily, Otonabee and the Waneta were steamboats, propeller driven. The Water-Lily ended her days high and dry near the Mark Street wharf, being taken out of commission about 1914.

32 Boats In One Day.

The greatest number of boats, all sizes which Mr. Davis can recall locking through in a day was 32, an all-time record. In those days the open season for navigation extended from May 5 to November 8, but in later years it was shortened considerably as the volume of freight dwindled.

Mr. Davis related that one of the incidents which stands out in his memory was the time the mechanism of the big lock failed to work properly and the pontoons stopped about half-way up, in such a position that the passengers in a boat being locked through could not get off. The passengers were members of the Grand Orange Lodge of British North America and included in the group was Sir Sam Hughes. They were imprisoned on the boat from early in the evening until about two o'clock the following morning, when repairs were completed. It had been planned for the boat to go as far as Nassau on a moonlight excursion.

There is a wealth of interesting stories of life in the shanties hidden away in Jim Davis' memory but he is loathe to talk freely about them. He went to the shanty at the age of 13 as cook's helper at a wage of $11 a month and board. The crew of 110 men were engaged by the Gilmour Lumber Company to cut logs on the Scoot River in Hastings county. First-class loggers and choppers got $18 a month and board, top wages in the shanty, and the bill of fare as served up by the cook and his two helpers was coarse to say the least.

JAMES DAVIS

No Milk Nor Sugar.

The midday meal consisted of baked beans, salt pork, boiled potatoes, white bread, tea and dried apples. No milk or sugar was to be had for the tea, unless a man could steal a little sugar from the barrel when the cook was not looking. Mr. Davis logged near Gaspe Bay for Rathbun and Millner, in the Cascade Mountains near Seattle for the Kirby Lumber Company, on the Columbia River in British Columbia for the Big Ben Lumber Company, and he also spent a year in the woods in Minnesota.

When the war broke out in 1914, Mr. Davis obtained permission to enlist and obtained a commission serving with the 242nd Forestry Corps. Lieut. Davis spent three years on active service and one of his most valued mementoes of the war is a citation from Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, in which Davis was mentioned for gallant service. During the war this unit logged in the Vosges Mountains and near the Swiss border, supplying lumber for bridges, pontoons, timbering dugouts, building huts and plank roads and for many other war purposes.

Corps Plans Laid For Battle Inside An Hour

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press War Correspondent.)

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, April 3 — (CP). — By a series of rapid-fire conferences, battle machinery of Canadian Corps is set rolling on large-scale manoeuvres, and it will be the same when the real thing comes along.

By fast relays, the Corps Commander gets orders from General Headquarters and passes instructions on to divisions which in turn issue orders to brigades until the battle plans are in the hands of individual regiments.

This involves short parleys by officers of different formations. Sit in on a brigade conference as the Canadian Corps prepares to launch a mimic anti-invasion attack and you get a picture of the army organization that functions before a shot is fired.

An Eastern Canada brigade of the 1st Division has been selected to lead the advance and for several hours brigade officers have been working out administration and operational orders in a schoolhouse headquarters near their fighting area.

Capt. H. D. Hay of Woodstock, N.B., brigade staff captain, pores over maps and dashes off messages to units in his formation. Lieut. R. G. Bramfitt of Toronto, brigade signals officer, transmits them to units by wireless or despatch rider.

Tips On Enemy

The intelligence officer, Lieut. Don McAdams of Sydney, N.S., rounds up information about the enemy and the Canadian troops, and Lieut. K. D. Clifford of Saint John, a liaison officer, sees that orders for his New Brunswick Regiment are sent to battalion headquarters.

For more than a year, the 1st Division has gone through this routine and as one officer said: "It's getting to be second nature to know what to do as soon as we get in the field."

The brigadier and Maj. M. P. Bogert of Montreal, brigade major, come in from a lengthy reconnaissance of the forward area, and the commanding officers of the infantry battalions and artillery regiments arrive with their adjutants and intelligence officers for the main conference.

Map giving details of the attack plan are distributed. The brigadier draws his senior officers around. The battle scheme is outlined, some questions are asked, and the whole thing is over in 15 minutes.

Commanders scatter to their units and hold meetings at their headquarters. Forty-five minutes from the time the brigade meeting breaks up every officer in the formation knows what his duty is and the advance is ready to start.

Outpost Abandoned

CAIRO, Egypt, April 3 — (AP) — British advanced elements northeast of Mersa Brega, Libya, are withdrawing, British General Headquarters announced to-day.

Mersa Berga is about 30 miles north-east of El Agheila, which was an outpost of the British winter advance westward. The British forces withdrew from El Agheila last week shortly before Nazi troops took over the village.

(The German communique to-day said armored units of the German Africa corps, assisted by German and Italian aircraft, on Monday "took one advanced position and one fortified enemy outpost."

(British sources describe the operations as unimportant.)

Occasional Chair Gift Made To Newlyweds

LAKEFIELD, April 3 — (ENS).— Mr. and Mrs. Trueman Dunford, a recent bride and groom, were honored by the members of the Lakefield Baptist Church and Young People's Society on Tuesday evening in the Sunday School Room. Rev. W. B. Walker opened the meeting with prayer, followed by the topic, "Our part in the Missionary enterprise" by Mrs. Walker. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Alexander Rosborough.

The guests of honor were then called to the front when Miss Phyllis Webdale read an appropriate address of good wishes and Alexander Nicholls presented Mr. and Mrs. Dunford with an occasional chair. Each in a few words thanked the members for the gift.

The remainder of the evening was spent in games and contests, followed by the serving of refreshments.

is the most photographed object in Peterborough district, and the second is that the canal bank is one of the finest parking spots in the district for girls and boys.

It is only in recent years that the canal banks became popular. The trees grew up and the banks were terraced nicely with sod, and on the east bank it is possible to drive a car in off the road beside the water. Sometimes a rash young man drives his car right into the canal, or down a deep bank, or perhaps the car won't start when the wooing is over, and regardless of the time of night the muddled lovers always come and ring the Davis doorbell, for a telephone or for assistance. Mrs. Davis said that one night when she and her husband were coming home from a neighbor's, they counted 22 cars parked between the bridge and the lock on the east bank.

The Westclox factory, King George School and many other buildings in Ashburnham were not even thought of back in 1911 when Mr. Davis took over the job. There was an old barn standing where the Westclox factory is, and on the east slope of Armour Hill, Fred Cox had some wheat sown. His father used to cradle the wheat when it was ready for harvesting.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis were given a great farewell party by their neighbors and friends when they vacated the Government house at the Lift Lock, and they were presented with a tri-lite floor lamp. They are now living at 708 Armour Road.

Fiume Gunners Go Down Mostly In Bed After Battle

ATHENS, April 3 (Thursday).— A 21-year-old gunner on the Fiume, one of the few on duty when the smashing British attack was launched, told his story here today:

"We were cruising along about 9 o'clock Friday night when suddenly in the distance, about three or four miles away, big searchlights flashed on us.

"For a few seconds we thought they were the lights of another Italian cruiser, although we had sighted one British warship just before dark.

"A salvo of shells almost immediately followed the searchlight and simultaneously we were hit by a torpedo.

"Before we could bring a single gun into action the ship was listing too badly to fire.

"The ship started settling. I had just time to jump aboard a life raft floating alongside as the Fiume's deck went under. I'm sure sundreds of others were trapped below deck."

Other survivors told a similar story, but the action was so swift many did not know what happened.

One young sailor told how two men went mad on an overburdened raft.

"Our raft already was overcrowded and a foot under water when the men began fighting among themselves," he said.

"The raft tipped and spilled all of us into the sea. Just nine of us were able to get back on to the raft. The others drowned.

"We were adrift thirty hours until picked up by the Greek ship."

Those rescued did not know what happened to be the battleship Vittorio Veneto because they said it was several miles away.

The population of the British Empire, including India, has just been estimated at 479,000,000.

Beaver Club Set Has Fine Work Record

LAKEFIELD, April 3 — (ENS). — —The Beaver Club, Lakefield, has been living up to their name, this group of energetic ladies of the Ninth Line, Smith, have completed since January 1st the following for Red Cross and refugee work: 16 quilts, 7 girls' dresses, 5 pair mitts, 5 sweaters, 4 pair slippers, 14 pillows, 2 coats, 2 windbreakers, a complete layette, 7 scarves, 8 toques, 4 blouses, a lady's dress and skirt and a quantity of baby clothing. In addition the club has five donated quilt tops which will be quilted in the near future. The membership consists of about 12 families.

On Tuesday twelve of the members met at the home of Mrs. N. S. Higgins, when a quilt was completed. The ladies coming in the morning enjoyed a pot luck dinner at the noon hour.

It was decided to sell tickets on an 'Irish chain' quilt as one means of raising funds.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Chas. Johns on April 10 at which a collection will be taken for the 'Mary Spitfire Fund.'

Peterborough

He paid tribute to the former minister, Eric Cross, and member of the department for "this splendid accomplishment."

Mr. Elliott declared that relief had been afforded the municipalities by the government's assumption of the old-age pensions, mothers' allowances and provincial highways.

Remove Debenture Debt.

In reference to highways, he said the County of Peterborough has no debenture indebtedness now, yet in 1936 it had one of $125,000. In that same year the county was compelled to pay $60,000 toward the cost of providing highways.

Recent attack in the Legislature on the Ontario Milk Control Board, he said, had greatly disturbed the farmers "who well know the benefits they have enjoyed as a result of this body." The farmer, he continued, was no longer "at the mercy of the distributor" and it would be a "severe blow' 'to agriculture to abolish the board.

Mr. Elliott criticized the terms of the Power Commission Act which exempts Hydro plants and buildings from taxation. In a number of cases this created great hardship for the municipalities, he said.

Propagation Of Fish.

"I listened with a great deal of interest to the address by the honorable member for Algoma who is also the chairman of the Fish and Game Committee. He told you of all the work being carried on by the Department of Game and Fisheries for the propagation of fish. There was one interesting experiment which was carried on successfully for the first time in Canada at the fish hatchery at Deer Lake established in the county of Peterborough in 1938 and 1939. Heretofore the Government has only been able to distribute 'lunge fry. These are known to be of value in restocking and maintaining this fish in suitable waters, in spite of the observations of the honorable member for Muskoka last year when he said that 'lunge fry were only two eyes and a wiggle and that very few have ever survived.

"The cannibalism of the 'lunge has made it impossible in the past to raise them. However, the experiment was tried out in 1939 in one of the ponds and by providing suitable vegetation and taking every precaution 1,300 'lunge fry were raised to the fingerling stage, a length of 9 to 11 inches. This was really a remarkable experiment and I wish to pay credit to the Deputy Minister and Mr. MacKay who is in charge of fish culture, for this achievement. In 1940 the experiment was tried again with the same number of 'lunge fry and 500 were removed and placed in outside water when they were 5 to 7 inches in length, but 1,700 were retained until they were 9 to 11 inches when they were placed in outside waters. Maskinonge is a most attractive fish to tourists, and as a matter of fact has been called the greatest game fish for anglers in America. The Department of Game and Fish have by a successful experiment opened the way to a method that can be employed to ensure the maintenance in good quantities of this splendid game fish in waters suitable for its propagation.

"I now want to say a word about agriculture. I once heard an experienced agriculturist say that so far as politicians were concerned, those that talked most on this subject were oftentimes those who knew the least about it. Probably that is the reason that the debate is sometimes monopolized in this House by Toronto lawyers when a Bill is introduced that concerns the farmer. We all know that the plight of the farmer today, even that individual with a substantial capital investment, with adequate stock and equipment, finds that his return is a mere existence. When the contract prices with the Mother Country for cheese and bacon were announced I was very pleased to see that the prime minister and his colleagues not only talked about the farmers' problems but they did something about them. The purpose for which the cheese bonus was granted is also being accomplished. Representatives of organized agriculture and of the Department of Agriculture have held meetings with the cheese producers in various parts of central Ontario and the producers are making a real effort to stimulate production so that this country can meet quota requirements. Regarding organization of agriculture, this is something to be encouraged. Group organization is the plan now. We all know that the manufacturers are organized. They have the capital and do not need to come to the province for assistance. They can pay lawyers and experts to prepare briefs to present to the governments boards and commissioners on their behalf. Agriculture as an industry should be placed in the same situation. The farmer has always enjoyed independence and agriculture is certainly our basic industry. The farmer has provided a bulwark against such orders as Fascism and Communism and all he asks today is that we maintain our democratic way of life and that he be permitted a reasonable return for his efforts.

The Milk Board

"Organized Agriculture throughout the Province was greatly disturbed as a result of the statement made by the Honorable Member from South York when he threatened to abolish the Milk Board. The farmers well know the benefits they have enjoyed as a result of this body. They are no longer at the mercy of distributors to take what is offered them for their product. It would certainly be a severe blow to Agriculture if this protection was taken away from the Milk Producer.

"Our cheese producers organized some few years ago and by this legislature received the right to collect .05c for every 100 lbs. of cheese for the purpose of meeting their administrative expenses. That organization is still maintained and is carrying on most effectively.

The farmer at one time lost interest when he delivered his milk to the cheese factory. Today, however, through this organization, he is endeavoring to improve his product and to follow it to the consumer in order that the best possible price can be retained for the producer. The reason that this organization has maintained its organization without difficulty is because it has been ensured of continuity of revenue. Many splendid Agricultural organizations have failed in the past through lack of finances. Anyone who is talking about the plight of the farmer will show his genuine sympathy by supporting on any occasion any legislation that will facilitate the farmer to maintain his organization."

Sabotage On Italian Vessel

Acting with dramatic suddenness under provisions of the 1917 Espionage Act, the United States Government seized and placed under protective custody 28 Italian and two German merchant ships in harbors throughout the country. Here, in this photograph made on board the S.S. Alberta, one of five seized at Port Newark, N.J., is actual photographic proof of sabotage, the main air pump is shown shattered and useless. Other machinery on this ship was also broken, and the main drive shaft cut through.

No Shot Fired

where I found the crew killed, wounded and frightfully burned by the torpedo explosion.

All Guns Silenced

"Then 15-inch British shells began to hit us, putting all our guns out of action.

"We could do nothing to prevent it and nothing to escape. The ship turned over starboard and I and others scrambled onto the keel and hung on until we slipped into the water as the stern dived under, hissing and gurgling."

The rescued Italian sailors brought here also revealed that the Italian destroyer Alfieri was "blown to bits" during the British attack.

One of the Fiume's sailors said: "We were caught like rats in a trap under the fire of the British battleships, and our ships were pulverized by a mighty barrage from the British big guns."

A torpedo lieutenant of the Alfieri and an electrician said. "It was a dark night, but the sea was lighted by flames, belching smoke, as the Fiume and Alfieri burned, and we were unable to fire a shot or even see the British."

"We were perfect targets as the Fiume and Alfieri slowed down," the torpedo lieutenant said.

"We seemed to be encircled by masked guns of the British battleships, which blew us to bits."

The captain of the Alfieri was on the bridge when a British shell carried it away in a mighty blast, it was disclosed.

"Our survivors endured terrible suffering," one of the Italians said. "We were in the icy water for four hours, then we caught onto a raft to which 100 other seamen were clinging. When we were picked up twenty-four hours later there were only twenty-two of us alive."

Became Floating Furnace

Two rescued officers of the Fiume described how the cruiser had become a floating furnace under the "blitz barrage" of the British warships, which rapidly disposed of the Italian warships Fiume, Pola and Zara.

"One of our forward guns of the Fiume went out of action with the first British salvos and some of the gunners who survived that blast tried to get to the rear turret, where all the crews were dead or dying," one of the officers related.

"We were met with a wall of flame and escaping steam amidships and many were hideously burned.

"Others were screaming through the flames amid the rain of shells.

"The Alfieri gently settled below the waves with a hissing, crackling, spouting of steam and a struggling mass of humanity in the water."

Valiant Gets Two

ALEXANDRIA, April 3—(AP). — The battleship Valiant, heaviest armed of the British Mediterranean Fleet, was credited today with the major role in the destruction of Italy's two prize 10,000-ton cruisers, the Fiume and the Zara, during last week-end's sea battle south of Crete.

Capt. Charles Eric Morgan, descendant of the famous Welsh buccaneer, Henry Morgan, who plundered the West Indies in the seventeenth century, said his gunners on the Valiant scored direct hits with at least 75 per cent of the projectiles they flung at the two cruisers. Another 10,000-ton cruiser, the Pola, and two destroyers were lost by the Italians.

The targets of the 30,600-ton Valiant's shells were lit by Midshipman Prince Phillip, 19-year-old first cousin of King George of Greece, who was in charge of the searchlight control room.

With the help of her sister ship, the Warspite, Captain Morgan said, the Valiant turned the Fiume and the Zara into "colossal masses of fire." Many 15-inch shells penetrated the cruisers' 6-inch armor and exploded inside.

"It was a most ghastly sight. The Fiume seemed to just burst out amidships."

The Warspite opened with the first broadside and seven seconds later the Valiant's guns roared, followed by the 31,000-ton Barham's.

"Only four minutes six seconds elapsed from the Warspite's broadsides to the Barham's.

"Great glows from the Fiume illuminated the darkness as if someone had "thrown a log on a fire. The whole ship seemed to disintegrate, many of our shells exploding inside her, turning her into a raging inferno."

With the Fiume out of action, the Valiant turned on the Zara and poured 35 tons of projectiles into her.

Premier Dies

Teleki was chief of one of Hungary's great landed families, and often was regarded as Regent Admiral Horthy's right hand man, remaining in the cabinet largely to circumvent complete German domination.

The Premier personally was known as pro-British rather than pro-German but sought to maintain the appearance of neutral independence in order to make his influence the greater on the Germans, whose drain of Hungary's food and other supplies often aroused cabinet controversies.

A Great Juggler

He was known to the public as the "great tightrope walker," because Hungarians saw him in the role of a man attempting to keep balance with Germany, just short of giving in completely to Hitler.

In recent days he had been conferring day and night with army leaders and government officials concerning the Yugoslav situation.

His death was the second tragedy among members of the Hungarian Government this year. Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky died on January 27 of food poisoning contracted during a friendship visit to Yugoslavia where he signed "pact of eternal friendship."

Count Teleki, born in 1879, was a Professor of Geography at Budapest University before entering politics at the close of the First Great War.

He became Minister of Social Affairs in 1918 and Minister of Peace Negotiations the next year, in which capacity he helped to formulate the peace settlement.

In 1920 he was made Foreign Minister and in the same year formed two cabinets, both of which fell after existing only a few months.

Lectured in U. S.

He went to the United States in 1921 to deliver a series of lectures at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass. Later he served on several League of Nations committees.

He fought a sword duel in 1926 with Count Emmerich Karolyi, son of a former Hungarian provisional President, and received a slight cut on one hand.

The duel occurred after Count Karolyi remarked that he could not see how Count Teleki could sleep under the responsibility of having sent a prince and a Budapest police chief to prison as forgers after a great franc counterfeiting plot.

For several years, then, Count Teleki was in eclipse until he returned to the cabinet of Premier Bela Imredi as Minister of Education in 1938. He became Premier on February 15, 1939, and a week later announced attachment of his country to the Rome-Berlin Axis.

He made calls on Mussolini and Hitler in 1939 and 1940 and was present at the ceremony at which Hungary became the first junior partner in the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance.

It was in Teleki's regime also that Hungary won half of Rumanian Transylvania by an Axis-dictated settlement.

Some of the clerks at once set about burning legation documents. The newly appointed governor of the Banat area, the most polygrot part of Yugoslavia with a mixed population of Serbs, Croats, Hungarians, Rumanians and Slovaks, issued a declaration saying he expected sacrifices and discipline on the part of all citizens.

The government, apparently attempting to avoid any direct affront to the Germans, issued a brief but firm denial last night of the Nazi "atrocity" charges.

Disclosure that Yugoslav defence measures included the secret sowing of mines along the Adriatic coast came last night when two Yugoslav passenger ships, hastening home in fear of a sudden outbreak of hostilities, ran into mine fields and were sunk.

SMALL FIRE

A full turnout of the Peterborough Fire Department was called for what proved to be a small fire in a chimney at the corner of Roger and Hazlett streets in Ashburnham at noon on Thursday.

FIRST SWIMMER

The first swimmer in Peterborough this year is Jack Welbourne, who plunged into the canal below the Lift Lock about 4.30 on Wednesday afternoon. Observers report that he did not swim far however, and later Jack admitted it is "Still a little cold for swimming."

STREETS SWEPT CLEAN

Hunter street bridge and the street is completely clear of snow and ice and on Wednesday city workmen were wielding brooms to get rid of the accumulated sand and grime of the past winter. George street and most of the main city arteries are bare of snow and ice also.

GOLF BUG BITES

It is reliably reported today that John (Shorty) Roberts and H. C. Beckner of the Bank of Montreal staff were seen striding across the Kawartha Golf Links last evening with golf clubs in their hands. They are also reported to have suggested to the club manager that the course should be okay for Saturday, which is certainly rushing the season..

SURE SIGN

A sure sign of the early approach of Summer was seen in at least one Peterborough drug store on Wednesday; there was a demand for bathing caps. The druggist said later he was too amazed to think to ask the shoppers if they wanted them for future use to intended to bask on the beaches immediately.

BRIDGE IS SUBMERGING

Reports from Bridgenorth indicates that lake water seeping on to the surface of the Chemong floating bridge and pressure of the ice packs, is causing the bridge to sink, and in several places it is at least six inches under water. Motorists are unable to cross to Ennismore according to the report and must use the Fowler's Corners route.

NO OWNER YET

No owner has yet been found for the Irish Setter which apparently strayed from its home this week. It is a beauty, according to Dr. Thomas Johnston, inspector for the Humane Society, and much too valuable to destroy. Numerous offers have been made to buy the animal during the past 24 hours, and it will be sold to some fortunate person at the expiration of the six-day period for only $2.00 the officer said, and he put its value at $50.00.

THEY WERE HOOKED

Police officers and reporters had no luck trying to dodge Mrs. Larry Maguire, police matron this morning when she invaded the guard room with a book of tickets. It happens that Mrs. Maguire is a Dorothy and in league with others of the same name across Canada, is helping raise funds to buy a Spitfire. Prizes on the draw tickets are six pairs of Nylon hosiery to be drawn for at the Capitol theatre soon.

USING CHURCH TOWER

Hundreds of starlings swarmed around the shuttered tower of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Tuesday night and while a reporter watched, the birds squeezed through the shutters seeking the warm inside the spire during the night. For years pigeons have used this tower but with the coming of the starlings, the caretaker will certainly have a greater problem to contend with.

A SOUND WARNING

Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure warned motorists today to exercise caution while driving along highways during the next few weeks. He said that in the day time water oozes up through the cracks in the highways, and at night this freezes, creating danger spots that might send a car into a tailspin if the driver is not careful. He asks the co-operation of the drivers so that accidents might be avoided.

TWO BUSSES SUFFER

Miss Linda Hall, 117 Fleming Place reported to police today that her car collided with a city bus at the corner of Burnham and Hunter streets Wednesday evening. The car was turning off Burnham on to Hunter and the bus, driven by Reg. L. Tate, 512 Gilmour street was proceeding eastward. The side of the bus received some damage. This morning another accident to a city bus was reported when an unkhown man drove his car into the rear of the big vehicle. Traffic Officer Clair McGillen investigated both mishaps.

BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings for the past week ending today totalled $717,522 while for the same week a year ago the total was $776,025.

IS APPOINTED

Lieut. Reginald Dixon has been appointed Intelligence Officer for the Prince of Wales Rangers by authority of district orders, for M.D. 3.

MILLFEEDS UP

Millfeed prices advanced one dollar a ton Wednesday, according to Montreal and Toronto reports. New prices in those markets are: Bran, $28.50; shorts, $28.25 and middlings, $30.25.

STUDENTS AT COURT

Between forty and fifty students of the Peterborough Business College attended Judge Smoke's court on Monday. John A. McKone planned the visit as a detail of experience, and to give the students an idea of court procedure. Some of the students began taking the evidence in shorthand, but they soon became so interested in the lawyers and their story that practice was forgotten.

FRIENDS OF A JACKASS

A cartoon on the side of Smellie's transport from Guelph stopped traffic in the city this morning. The truck was parked on Hunter in front of the Regent Theatre. On one side of the truck was a picture of Hitler astride a mule, and Mussolini was kissing the mule on the nose. Above in big letters was printed, "We Canadians will never do this—Buy War Savings Certificates."

NO PLUMBING INCREASE

"Plumbing costs have not gone up five per cent over last year," Alex W. Archibald told the Examiner today. "There might be a few things that are five per cent higher, but I don't think I could mention them off hand. Some lines are up two or three per cent, and if there are any rumors getting around about increases in plumbing this season they are simply not true. There is not the slightest cause for any one thinking of building to hesitate about plumbing costs."

SYRUP PRICES

A bright young farmer called at the Examiner office yesterday with maple syrup for which he was asking 75 cents a quart on the basis of $3 a gallon. That was the price on the local market last Saturday. At the same time according to reports of their markets Belleville sold maple syrup Saturday at $2.25 a gallon and Kingston $2.50. Peterborough had the distinction of being the highest price syrup market in eastern Ontario. In the meantime Marmora producers are asking $2 a gallon.

HOUSE HUNTERS

"Inside information" and "right from the oat bag" are two of the many phrases suggesting the inequality of things and confidential items being passed out for use or otherwise. One of them was becoming vacant. He took an "ad" into the Examiner office. The girl at the counter told it to some one in the plant before it ever reached type. The employee immediately called the owner, and the house was let. After awhile the big press began rolling. Papers were delivered around the city, and the telephone began ringing at the home of the landlord. People began knocking on his door prior to and during supper hour. Finally he wrote a ticket "House is let, thank you," and that cut off the door visitors, but the telephone kept ringing until on into the evening.

Nicholls Says Chief Got His Men Mixed

That the money found on him when he was arrested in Toronto had been given him by Lawrence Burns, yesterday convicted of burglary, was the story told in the county judge's criminal court this morning by Thomas Nicholls, the second of the four suspects to be tried for the C.D.S. break-in when he took the witness stand shortly before noon at the conclusion of the crown's case.

Nicholls declared that he had received two money orders for $25 each from Windsor, made payable to himself and Burns and that Burns had taken them out and cashed them. A few days afterward he had paid the money over to Nicholls and that was the money that was found on him when arrested, the accused swore.

Nichols made a categorical denal of the charge against him, swearing that he had never been in Peterborough before he was brought down here after his arrest.

"You are charged with breaking and entering the Canadian Departmental store in Peterborough on the early morning of February 2 and stealing a safe and money. Did you break and enter the store?"

"No, I did not."

"Were you in Peterborough on February 1?"

"I had never been in Peterborough at any time prior to my arrest."

"You have been in John Fairchild's car?"—"Yes, several times."

"Were you ever in it at Bowmanville?"—"At no time."

"Were you in Bowmanville on February 1."—"No, I was not. I was in the city of Toronto all day."

"Do you know anything about these tols and this safe?"—"I don't know a thing about them."

Says Chief Mistaken

"You heard Chief Newhall testify that he saw you with two shorter men on the west side of George street near the C.D.S. store at 11.20 o'clock on the night of February 1. What do you say about that?"

"The chief is laboring under a misapprehension. He did not see me. He is very much tangled up about my identity. When he says he saw me here a year ago I was in Kingston Penitentiary, and two years ago I was also in the penitentiary."

Nicholls said that there was another Thomas Nichol who was still in the penitentiary. It was that man and not himself who had been a companion of Max Beaver. "I would not know Beaver if he walked in here now," declared the accused.

Nicholls swore that he had spent the Saturday afternoon before the burglary at 171 Mutual street, and at the Avonmore Hotel. That night he had been at 171 Mutual street all evening, going to bed about midnight. On the Sunday he said he had accompanied Burns and Gallow to Windsor, as had been revealed in evidence in the other trial. He says he was sure the $5 bill he had in his possession had not been burned when it was taken from him.

After his counsel, Mannis Frankel, had concluded his examination of Nicholls he asked if he had anything else to say. "Just that I am innocent of this entire charge," replied the accused.

The Crown completed its case with little new in the evidence and the only feature of that part of the proceedings was a flare-up when Mr. Frankel was cross-examining Chief Newhall in regard to money found on Nicholls and turned over to the Peterborough police.

Defense counsel tried to learn from Chief Newhall just when and how often he had counted Nicholls' money and Chief Newhall said that he did not remember when the first counting took place.

"Frankly, chief, I don't think you know anything," Frankel said finally.

"I don't think you do, either," replied the Chief Constable.

More Crown Evidence

When court opened this morning Detective-Sergeant W. E. Meagher testified as to receiving an envelope marked 44 from the Toronto police when he went to Toronto bring back Nicholls and Gallow.

Detective Oliver E. Bonland, identification expert of the Toronto police department repeated his evidence in regard to the heel mark on a ledge card picked up in the C. D.S. store after the burglary. The mark he said had been made by the heel of a shoe found in Louis Gallow's room. He also swore that he had found on a bottle of aqua velva the fingerprint of William Bradd.

Professor Joslyn Rogers gave expert testimony to the effect that in examining the money found on Nicholls he had discovered scorching and also in the envelope and between the bills he had found metallic particles which corresponded exactly with the metallic content of the material of the safe.

Detective Edmund Tong of the Toronto police department testified as to the arrest of Nicholls and the money found on him.

Plan To Form O.V.C. Branch

Plans are complete for the first organization meeting of a local unit of the Ontario Voluntary Constabulary, an auxiliary branch of the Ontario Provincial Police, and the meeting is set for 8.30 in the Ontario Department of Agriculture office this evening (Thursday).

Major E. R. Willing, District Commander of the Constabulary will explain the need and the purpose of such a unit, and he will be accompanied by Captain Baragar, adjutant of the district command. This force when organized will study air raid precaution work, first aid, and general police work.

Married men over 30 years of age and single men over 35 years of age are eligible for signing up with this unit, provided they pass the physical test, and meet educational requirements. They must be at least 5 feet, 6 inches tall, and be a British citizen of good standing in the community.

The Ontario Provincial police officer in each municipality will exercise direct supervision over each unit.

A Flimsy Jail

SAN RAFAEL, Calif., April 3 — (AP). — The city jail's solitary cell has an escape-proof reputation which has stood up for 70 years. Remodelling work showed, however, that the flimsiest kind of wood was used in construction, Sheriff Walter B. Selmer said the walls wouldn't have withstood the jolt of a good punch from a bare fist.

BUTTS ON CHURCHILL

PORTSMOUTH, England—(CP).—Prime Minister Churchill on a recent tour gave a half-smoked cigar to a Portsmouth dock worker as a souvenir after chatting with him.

Many Recruits Join

CAMPBELLFORD, April 3. — (ENS).—A number of recruits for the 32nd Light Anti-Aircraft Battery were enlisted at the Campbellford Armoury on Tuesday. Lieut. H. R. Frink, R.C.A., Kingston, interviewed the men during the morning and at noon they left by truck for Kingston, where they will appear before a Medical Board. According to Lieut. Frink the recruiting for this unit will continue for at least two weeks.

Town Planning Commission Is Voted Down

TORONTO, April 3.—(CP)—By a vote of 49-18 the Ontario Legislature Wednesday rejected Conservative Leader George Drew's motion calling for immediate establishment of a town and country planning commission in the province. Col. Drew contended the urgency for such a body was great in view of the situation arising in Eastern Ontario where several municipalities are to be flooded as a result of the St. Lawrence seaway project.

It was the second division of the session and for the first time party ranks were split. George Dunbar (Con. Ottawa South) who contended town planning was a responsibility for the Ontario Municipal Municipal Board, voted with the Liberals.

F. B. Brownridge (Lib. Stormont) who spoke in favor of the motion and read a telegram from the town planning commission of his home town, Cornwall, supporting such a move, was not in the Legislature when the vote was taken.

Premier Hepburn, declaring that establishment of such a commission was "a little premature" but admitting the debate had produced much valuable discussion that would be helpful to the economy of the province, said he hoped the opposition leader would not press for a division.

"I can assure him the government is alive to its responsibilities in this matter," he added.

Col. Drew, declaring there was nothing compulsory in the motion as the Premier had contended, declined to withdraw the motion.

Jobs For 50,000

During the debate, which lasted more than two hours, Highways Minister T. B. McQuesten revealed his department, when the proper times comes to put it into operation, has a program for the spending of $250,000 over a five-year period which would provide employment for 50,000 persons a year. He did not divulge details.

Mr. McQuesten made the statement in reply to Col. Drew's contention that the commission would help in providing work for soldiers after the war.

The highways minister said problems arising from the flooding in Eastern Ontario had been a matter of anxious consideration for the government and a committee from the cabinet had been named to handle these problems.

The province's position was subsidiary to that of the Dominion and United States governments and for that reason Ontario officials dare not "indulge in any publicity" in the matter.

"In addition, it is primarily a Dominion responsibility," he declared with reference to the rehabilitation of the flooded municipalities. "When the Dominion Government tells us to step in there will be time for us to act."

In answer to Col. Drew's argument that the commission would also be helpful in diverting the main highways from the main streets of the municipalities, Mr. McQuesten said that such action had already been taken in some cases but there had been serious objections from a number of municipalities.

Keene Newlyweds Are Given Shower

KEENE, April 3 — (ENS). — About one hundred neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stark to tender a shower to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Blewett (nee Jean Stark), newly-weds.

An appropriate address was read by Miss Thelma Henderson and a decorated wagon heavily laden with gifts was brought in by the bride's two nephews, Paul and David Girard. The groom replied in a fitting manner. Lunch was served and dancing to Miller's Orchestra was resumed for the remainder of the evening.

Mail Shipment Sunk

LONDON, April 3 — (CP). — The Post Office announced to-day that letters and printed papers for Britain posted in New York between January 30 and February 3 and correspondingly earlier dates elsewhere in the United States had been "lost by enemy action."

Soft Bugling Job

CAMP BOWIE, Tex., April 3. — (AP).—The job of bugling the boys of the 36th division out of bed is, more or less, a pipe. The bugler simply reaches under his cot, leans back on his pillow and blows the notes softly in a bedside microphone. Four large amplifiers placed about the post do the rest.

American "Eagles" Fighting For Britain

Here are two of the Americans who form the famous "Eagle" squadron that is now a fighting unit of Britain's Royal Air Force in the battle of Britain. At LEFT, Pilot Officer Stanley M. Kolendorsky, of Lakehurst, N.J., going aboard a fighter plane for a trip "upstairs." Note insignia on the plane. At RIGHT, Pilot Officer Chesley Gordon Peterson of Santaquin, Utah, is helped into his parachute pack (or brolly) while his Hurricane waits on the line.

4 Traffic Cases Heard In Court

Four traffic offenders felt the heavy hand of the law in city court today, all paying fines for minor infringements of the Highway Traffic Act.

H. Mace of Hall's Bridge was assessed $10 and $2.50 costs for operating a car without a driving permit. He was nipped on Brock street by one of the city police. W. H. Edwards of Bowmanville zoomed along a little too fast on Otonbee street and he paid $5 and $2.50 costs.

Bruce Menzies, North Monaghan township constable had two cases. David Wilson, Otonabee, was fined $5 and $3 costs for speeding on Lansdowne street, and A. W. Jennings of Peterborough failed to observe a stop sign in North Monaghan township and contributed $2 and $1.25 costs to the county coffers.

WMS Presents Easter Pageant

CAMPBELLFORD, April 3. — (ENS).—"The Three Marys" was the title of an Easter pageant presented as chief feature of the St. John's W.M.S. which met for their regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon. The story opened as Mrs. A. G. Watson sang one verse of "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" and following this the characters portraying the various parts entered. Those assisting were Mrs. D. Holmes as Mary Magdalene; Mrs. F. Potts as Mary, Mother of Jesus; Mrs. D. Cochrane as third Mary; Miss Nellie Hoover as the manx. Mrs. C. K. Stephen read the Easter story and Mrs. A. G. Watson sang "O Come and Mourn With We Awhile." The pageant was enacted from a stage which had as its background a lighted cross with daffodils, potted plants and ferns completed the setting. The president, Mrs. E. C. Roberts, presided for the opening of the meeting.

A letter was read outlining the requirements for the bale which is now being prepared.

Mrs. A. D. Bennett was appointed as a delegate to the Presbyterial.

The Easter Thankoffering was taken by Mrs. H. Bakes and Mrs. Younger while Mrs. A. Hutcheon repeated an offertory prayer. Miss Grace Payne gave a meditation on Good Friday emphasizing its meaning and importance. She pointed out that it was a day of sacrifice and declared "if we sacrifice and allow that inward sense of reward to inspire our lives we will understand the true meaning of the words, 'God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son'." Mrs. W. F. Scott contributed a short Easter story and Mrs. Stephen who presided for the remainder of the program opened the devotional period with a poem. Mrs. J. A. Irwin gave the Scripture and Mrs. Rannie led in prayer.

Reasons Shelved

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 3 (AP) MRS. Marian Phillips Almdale, whose "eighty-three reasons why I hate men" touched off widespread publicity two years ago when she was a co-ed at the University of Michigan, has just become the mother of a seven-pound girl. She wrote the reasons for a campus literary publication. She eloped with Einar Almdale in 1940 after a courtship which she says proved he was not like other men.

Lindsay Guard Is Laid To Rest

LINDSAY April 3 (ENS) — The funeral took place on Thursday to Riverside cemetery of John Henry Baldwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Baldwin, town.

Mr. Baldwin died in the Military Hospital, College street, Toronto, after he had been knocked down by a police motorcycle near York Armories. He suffered a fractured skull and other injuries.

He was born in Lindsay, and besides his wife and two daughters, he is survived by his parents and one sister, Mrs. Harry Lewis, of Lindsay. The late Mr. Baldwin, who was a member of the Veteran's Guard, was attempting to board a street car when the accident occurred. He was a veteran of the Great War, having joined the 45th Battalion of Lindsay when hostilities broke out.

At eight o'clock Wednesday morning about one hundred members of the Lake Superior Regiment left on a hike east after staying in town over night. The soldiers arrived here on Tuesday afternoon under command of Major Marshall, and were welcomed by local officers and sergeants. The men had a jolly night of it while in town and certainly made their presence felt by their hilarity as well as participation in pranks of the Hallowe'en type.

Considerable damage was done two cars on Highway No. 35, between Fenelon Falls and Rosedale, Wednesday morning. A car driven by Robert Baine of Toronto, ran into the rear end of a car driven by George Parrington, of Fenelon Falls. Parrington had stopped his car on the highway and was holding conversation with a truck driver. Baine made an attempt to avert a crash as soon as he saw the Parrington car, but was too late. No one was injured. Traffic Officer Broughton investigated the accident.

Community Jail

MOREHEAD, Ky., April 3.—(AP). —County Attorney R. M. Clay scanned the prison roster of Rowan county jail to-day and demanded: "Whose jail is this?" With every cell full for the first time in years, the occupants were from four adjoining counties. Not a Rowan countain in the lot."

India has made war risk insurance compulsory.

Are Not Gunners And Observers Of R.C.A.F. Entitled To Some Praise, Mother Asks

Some Peterborough mothers and fathers have finally raised their voices in what they firmly believe to be righteous indignation at the hue and cry raised over pilots in the air force, and the virtual lack of it in connection with other members who complete the personnel.

Each day complaints are being heard, and on Thursday morning an airman's mother phoned the Examiner to ask if something could not be done about it. There are men from our city, she said, bearing one wing on their chests, significant of the fact that they are either gunners or observers. The mother wonders if it is any less heroic to sit in the shaking tail of a big bomber with your back toward the motors feeling your stomach grow smaller with each manoeuver as you occupy the choice position of end man in a grim game of crack the whip, than it is to sit in the pilot's seat with the control of the plane in your hands. Not desiring to take anything from the pilots, the mother stressed the fact that all have an important part to play, but she does make an earnest plea that in the praise of the defenders in the air, the men with on wing, marked G for gunner, and O for observer, be not overlooked.

Muskrat Prices To Be Higher

Canadian trappers may expect higher prices when it comes to marketing muskrat pelts this year, according to Keith Lech, Peterborough furrier, because there is and will be a pronounced shortage in both Canada and the United States. Each war brings on a situation such as the one existing today, said Mr. Lech, where the trappers have left the backwoods by the hundreds and have found other employment. This, of course, cuts down on the number of pelts procurable, and raises the price.

The market for the skins is always a good one, he said, because muskrat fur is about the most staple. The importation of furs from Europe has been cut off because of the war, so competition from outside North America will be small. There was a natural shortage last year because of a disease of the animals, but it is expected that this year will see better conditions in this direction.

The probable price will be $1.75 at the beginning, according to Harry Jopling, fur buyer of Chemong and Peterborough, and will go as high as $2.00. All the signs are good for a big season he said, and the pelts are expected to be of fine quality.

D. B. Outcliffe, manager of the Royal Bank at Norwood, sent in his list today, including the contributions placed in the penny boxes in the village, and this list includes donations from both Warsaw and Hastings. A citizen of Peterborough who uses the name "In As Much," she is a woman, sent in a ten-dollar bill today and it is the seventh donation, all of them substantial that has come from this generous woman, who feels the need for assisting the air raid victims of the Old Land.

There is still a brisk sale of tickets on the cedar strip canoe donated by E. G. O'Dette and Sons, and these may be obtained from F. G. Mann at the Examiner Office. Residents of Port Hope, Cobourg, Bewdley, Havelock or any other outside centre may obtain tickets by mail by sending the money in a self-addressed envelope as the fund is administered strictly without expense of any kind, and mailing charges would take away from the fund and complicate the bookkeeping. The canoe, complete with paddles, lazyback, cushions and carpet, is on display in the window of the Peterborough Examiner office, corner Hunter and Water Streets, opposite the Post Office.

At Confederation School, a number of the pupils, both girls and boys, have banded together and called themselves "Help Win the War Helpers," and have adopted as their main interest, the raising of money to assist the bombed-out people in the Mother Country. They have made a quilt, which is now on display at Dickson's store, George Street, and the entire proceeds from the sale of this will come to the fund. Last Friday night, they put on an entertainment, and the fund today is enriched by $24.79 as a result of their efforts. We give the boys and girls a pat on the back, and say well done. Joyce Darrel is the secretary, and Nancy Spring the treasurer of this group.

Tonight the Duffus bowling alleys have been donated to the City Five-Pin Bowling League, and twelve teams will roll, and all the proceeds will be given to the fund.

The Women's Art Association has an event tomorrow evening and Saturday afternoon in aid of the fund, and tomorrow night, Trinity Young People's Club are repeating their recent very successful play entitled "Here Comes Patricia" for the benefit of the fund, in Reid Street Hall at 8 p.m.

Bailieboro Play By U.W.A. Makes Real Hit

BAILIEBORO, April 3 —(ENS)— Bailieboro Anglican basement was filled to capacity on Friday evening, when the comedy "Silas Smidge from Turnip Ridge" was presented under the auspices of the W.A. of the United Church. Mrs. H. C. Howson in her very capable manner directing. Musical numbers, which added greatly to the play were supplied by a local orchestra composed of Mr. and Mrs. W. Gainer, Messrs. E. White, W. Bateman and L. Jewison.

The scene of the play is the sitting room of the McPheters home back of the general store, run by Thaddeus McPheters (George Dean) a deacon in Harmony Junction Church. He is doubtfully assisted by red haired, freckled faced Oswald Gorlick (Jim Egan) who eats up most of the profits. Simplicity (Mrs. William Lang) Thaddeus' sister runs a boarding house, assisted by a stage struck hired girl, Neurasthenia Twigge (Mary Staples). Florence McPheters (Pearl Smith) daughter of Thaddeus has just returned from a boarding school in Boston.

At present, staying at the boarding house, are the new parson Rev. Ralph Thornhill (Henry Jewison), and his sister Enid (Mrs. Harland Seens), and Judy (Nellie Park) an orphan tom-boy, is staying until the new orphan home is built to replace the one recently destroyed by fire.

Frequent visitors at the home are Leolo Pixley (Mrs. George Dean) not a day over 29 who never gossips, and Ben Bruce (Harland Seens) a young farm lad who is in love with Enid.

Silas Smidge (Jack Ackison) an old sweetheart of Miss Simplicity comes to Harmony Junction in time to save Judy from being sent to the wayward girls' home. Wayne Kendal (Alex Watt), a murderer and gangster, and husband of Enid, who she believes dead, arrives to visit his step-father Thaddeus. He demands $500 of Enid to keep their marriage a secret. Meanwhile Florence is jealous of Rev. Ralph Thornhill's love for Judy, bribes Wayne to put the $100 orphanage money collected in Judy's pocket, in order to get rid of her. Wayne steals the money and puts the empty envelop in Judy's pocket, which is later found by Thaddeus, and plans to skip the country taking his wife with him.

At this moment Silas Smidge enters, forcing him with what he believes is a gun, but is only a pop bottle, to confess that he has stolen the $100 thus clearing Judy and frees Enid.

Due to the urgings of Neurasthenia an amateur play is presented in Harmony Junction. However she develops a severe case of stage fright and vows if she doesn't drop dead before the end of the play she'll marry Oswald and give up the stage forever.

While the play is in progress Silas who has been away, arrives back in Harmony Junction, where Miss Simplicity answers "yes" to a proposal made by him 30 years ago, and they become engaged, he brings news that Wayne Kendal has been shot and killed by gangsters, so Enid is free to marry Ben. Judy who has no last name of her own fearing she will wreck Ralph's career as a minister, decides to leave. Silas tells her he has found out she comes from an aristocrat family from St. Louis, the Armitages, an aunt, Miss Muriel Armitage (Mrs. W. C. Jewison) arrives to claim her niece, Judy decides to marry Ralph and stay in Harmony Junction.

The play concludes with three cheers for Silas Smidge who has not only found himself a wife, but has cleared the way to happiness for the others.

The proceeds were well over $45 and the hearty applause of the audience proved that this play was a real hit.

Edmunds Couple Wed Fifty Years Celebrate At Family Gathering

MILLBROOK, April 3—(ENS). — Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Edmunds celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, on Tuesday, April 1, at their home, King street centre, with a quiet family gathering, and a few other guests, for the dinner-party in the evening.

Fifty years ago, on April 1, 1891, the marriage of Robert H. Edmunds and Annie Laura Curtis took place at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, the late Mr and Mrs. William Roskelly, Port Hope, the Rev. E. N. Baker, later Principal of Albert College, Belleville, officiating.

The wedding dress worn by the bride was brought to her from England by a relative. Since their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Edmunds have been residents of Millbrook, highly esteemed, and making for themselves a wide circle of friends.

Mr. Edmunds, at the time of his marriage, was in the employ of the late William Pickup in the tinsmith and plumbing business; later he bought out the business for himself, and successfully carried on until within recent years when illness in the family compelled time for other duties.

The golden wedding anniversary was quietly observed, the son and daughter from Peterborough, Bryar, and Reginald, the son at home, Donald; Rev. A. L. and Mrs. Sisco; the immediate neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. John Ridge, and Mr. George Sedgwick from Peterborough, making up the list of guests for the evening dinner.

At the time of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Edmunds, the Cobourg "Independents" baseball club presented them with a set of fine china tea dishes, which is still in use in the home; Mr. Edmunds was a noted ball player, as well as curler, in earlier years, and always actively and constructively interested in clean sport.

Gifts for the golden wedding anniversary from the immediate family included a gold signet ring, with monogram, for the "groom" of fifty years' standing, and for the "bride" a handsome gold brooch. Golden daffodils, placed effectively on the dinner table, where the place of honor was occupied by the three-storey wedding-cake, and in other points about the large rooms, were gifts from personal friends; and a multitude of messages and cards bearing congratulations and best wishes for "many happy returns of the day" were received from friends of the community, and from many outside points as well.

A visitor during the afternoon was Mr. Edmunds' brother, Mr. Richard Edmunds of Port Hope. Mr. Edmunds has just recovered from a serious illness, and this, together with the comparatively recent death of the only son of the home, the late H. Ross Edmunds, who was associated with his father for a time in business, made the celebration on Tuesday necessarily a quiet, although a very happy one.

On Bail

Richard Julius Herman Krebs finds U.S. lock-ups easier to escape from than Nazi concentration camps. As "Jan Valtin," he wrote the sensational best seller, "Out of the Night," about his alleged experience as a Communist agent in U.S. This publicized his presence in the U.S., which he is said to have entered illegally. From his book receipts his publishers put up $5,000 bail when he was arrested in New York on deportation charges. Free now, he must return to Ellis Island later for a hearing.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Pepless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-noted for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

See Tide Turning Speedily Against Axis

(By LEON EDEL.)

WASHINGTON, April 3—(CP).—The turning tide against the Axis was demonstrated Tuesday in a series of events that ranged from the burning and scuttling of eight German and Italian merchantmen in the Western hemisphere to pro-British demonstrations in Lyon, in unoccupied France, and apparently in German-controlled Bulgaria.

With the Balkan crisis on in full force, and the German press and radio beginning its well-known pre-invasion tactics of calumny and vituperation against Yugoslavia, news from Africa indicated the beginning of the end of the victorious British campaign.

Asmara surrendered without a battle leaving only Massawa to be taken to terminate the sweeping of Italy from Eritrea, while in Ethiopia the advance on Addis Ababa progressed consistently.

Heartening Picture for Britain

These developments, coming in the wake of the significant Mediterranean battle in which Italy lost five and perhaps eight warships, made for a heartening picture for Britain. Perhaps it was the knowledge of these events that prompted Prime Minister Churchill to postpone a broadcast announced for last Sunday. When the postponement was made he knew that the naval battle was on in the Mediterranean and that the United States was about to take decisive action against Axis shipping in its ports.

Obviously that was not the moment for speech-making, and Mr. Churchill, who has shown a remarkable sense of timing both politically and strategically, may be expected to be heard from at the opportune moment.

That Yugoslavia touched off a wave of feeling on the continent against the Axis that cannot yet be fully measured was seen in the despatches from Lyon where 500 Frenchmen cheered that Balkan nation as well as President Roosevelt, presumably for the decisive United States action against the Axis. A German-censored despatch from Sofia told of enthusiastic "patriotic" demonstrations by students, but in near-by Belgrade reliable informants disclosed that these demonstrations were in reality against the German occupation of Bulgaria.

Axis Burns Ships

In the Americas where Axis shipping feared continued protective seizures inaugurated by the United States the torch was put to three Italian tankers and a German cargo-passenger ship in Puerto Cabello, Venezuela, and at Callao, Peru, to a pair of Nazi vessels which earlier had been prevented from escaping by a Peruvian warship. A fifth German steamship was set afire in the late afternoon at Guayaquil, Ecuador.

Peru took firm action elsewhere. Her troops took over the facilities of the German commercial airline Lufthansa in Lima. Mexico likewise acted with promptitude. A German and an Italian ship were seized in Vera Cruz and the Mexican navy arranged to handle ten other vessels in Tampico in the same way.

In Rome Mussolini made his first appearance in weeks on a balcony with the visiting Japanese Foreign Minister, Yosuke Matsuoka. Never in the history of Axis propaganda has a visit provided them with so little material for shouting, so greatly has it been overshadowed by events elsewhere. Yugoslavia and the United States have nullified the propaganda effects of the show of Axis solidarity Hitler and Mussolini hoped to put on for Matsuoka.

Instead the Japanese Foreign Minister must have spent much of his time in Berlin and in Rome reading despatches from the Western Hemisphere and the Balkans. A large part of the world treated him, in effect, to a show of anti-Axis solidarity that will send him back to Japan worried and perhaps not a little afraid of the unhappy partnership of his country with a disintegrating Italy and an harassed Germany.

End Of Destroyer Vs. Heinkel

The British Admiralty released this photo with the following story. "Scene: The Mediterranean. What has so far happened: A Heinkel (German plane) came aflying, intent to shoot up a British destroyer. But aboard the destroyer were British tars, intent to shoot up the Heinkel. Denouement: Exit into the drink Heinkel. Enter three Nazis in a rubber dinghy. British tars in a whaler suspended from destroyer's side ready to help Heinkel crew aboard."

Training Camp Officers Guests Of The Rangers Officers' Mess

The officers' mess of the P.W.R. at the Armouries here was the scene of a pleasant social gathering Tuesday evening, when Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., officer commanding the training centre here, paid the officers of the Reserve Force unit a social visit.

Lt.-Col. Keeler was accompanied by five new officers who recently were posted to the centre here as well as by a number of other officers of the training staff of the centre. The new officers were introduced and were welcomed to the mess by Col. J. D. Dewart, M.C., E.D., officer commanding the P.W.R. mess and adjutant of that unit.

The visiting officers from the training centre here had the opportunity of watching members of the P.W.R. carry out part of their weekly training during the evening and later on in the officers' mess Lt.-Col. Keeler congratulated Col. Dewart and his officers on the efficiency and military bearing the members of the unit had shown on parade.

Col. Keeler also spoke words of praise for the former officers of the P.W.R. who had been members of the training centre staff for some months and who during the course at Cornwall were transferred to the Artillery Training Centre at Petawawa. The Peterborough officers during their stay at the training centre here had upheld the high tradition of their former unit, and Lt.-Col. Keeler stated he was pleased that still another officer of the unit had recently been taken on the strength of the training centre in Captain Doulas Loomis, M.C., who is acting quartermaster of the centre at present.

Col. Dewart, in replying to Lt.-Col. Keeler, thanked him for the words of praise regarding the members of the P.W.R. who were on parade last evening. The commanding officer of the P.W.R. who were on parade last evening. The commanding officer of the P.W.R. spoke of the pleasure it gave him to welcome officers from other units on their first visit to the mess. Col. Dewart stated the officers' mess would be open any time to the officers of the training centre and he also stated the officers of the P.W.R. would avail themselves of the invitation of Lt.-Col. Keeler to pay a visit to the officers' mess at the training centre in the near future. The new officers who accompanied Lt.-Col. Keeler on the visit included Major Gordon Cumming, Captain A. R. Herrington, Lieuts, L. E. Fox, R. G. Gardiner, and 2nd Lieut. H. Murfitt.

New Regulations Are Set Down For Getting Army Commission

TORONTO, April 3.—Commanding officers and adjutants of reserve army units in Canada, were puzzling yesterday over the regulations, just issued, for the qualification of new officers. Some of the new rules apply to both active and reserve forces and it is difficult, in some cases, to distinguish.

In a nutshell, the Defence Department requirements for future candidates for commissions have been stiffened considerably by the main innovation demanding attendance for several weeks at the officers' training centre soon to be established at Brockville.

For an active service commission, a candidate must have spent at least four months in the ranks. Upon recommendation, he will be sent to Brockville for three months. If he passes the various examinations there, he will be given the rank of second lieutenant, after which he must take instruction at an "advanced centre" for his additional "pip."

In the reserve forces, and it is believed by militiamen that the rule does not apply to technical arms like the engineers and ordnance, a candidate for a commission must first spend thirty days in the ranks.

In terms of the reserve, this means a year's service in the ranks, as the present system of two evening drills a week in the winter combined with the summer camp period is classed as a month's full-time training.

Service in the ranks is not objected to by candidates worth their salt, but there is some doubt in the minds of senior regimental officers as to whether young men of officer calibre can forsake jobs or professions during the period required at Brockville.

Before the war of 1914-18, officer candidate had to attend full-time instruction courses for three months, but this system has been modified since then to allow qualification to be obtained at "schools" conducted for each unit concerned (as a rule) during part-time appearances at local armouries.

Italians Lured Into Scrap By Old Trick

WASHINGTON, April 3—(AP).—An old trick of war—making the enemy think you are not where you are—was advanced by some naval strategists here to-day as a likely explanation of how the Royal Navy drew the Italians into the war's biggest naval engagement.

These experts speculated that the British used a carefully planned rumor or two, the movement of heavily laden convoys to Greece and the presence of powerful German raider units in the North Atlantic as the principal elements in the ruse by which they lured the Italian Navy to sea and to battle.

Nothing less than the belief that Britain had withdrawn her effective striking forces from the Eastern Mediteranean because of the situation in the Atlantic, the authorities argued, could ever have tempted the Italian warships to leave their well-fortified coastal lairs.

Since they entered the war last year the naval policy of the Italians has been to lay low, making only infrequent, restricted sorties. Prior to the action of the week-end their biggest fleet losses had been suffered in a British torpedo plane attack on the base at Taranto.

Nazis in Atlantic.

According to the best information here, Italy had, up to two months ago, 6 battleships, 20 cruisers, 115 destroyers and an estimated 92 submarines. The latest action, according to British reports substantiated in part by Italian admissions, cost them three cruisers and two destroyers sunk, one other cruiser and one destroyer damaged, and possibly sunk, and a battleship damaged.

(The Italians claimed the British lost a cruiser, and this possibly for home consumption).

The ruse explanation of how the battle was precipitated starts with the fact of German naval operations in the North Atlantic—operations which recently were reported to include the heavily armed warships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst, working in conjunction with big German cruiser submarines.

The Italians, experts here speculated, naturally would assume that the British would have to withdraw some of the heavy units of their Eastern Mediterranean squadrons to the Atlantic to guard their vital North Atlantic supply lines and hunt for the German raiding forces.

Let Italians Fool Selves.

Fully aware of this likelihood, the British strategists, it is believed, led the Italians to think that the shift in strength actually had taken place.

Then the Italians ventured out, perhaps to attack British supply vessels. It remained only for the entrapping warships to manoeuvre in such a way as to prevent the intended victim from discovering the trap until the first British gun roared.

Authorities here argue it actually had become inevitable for the Royal Navy to transfer all vessels possible into the North Atlantic—the Battle of the Atlantic being infinitely more important to the existence of Britain than the fight in and around the Mediterranean. Nonetheless the destruction of powerful Italian fleet units was described as a desirable preliminary to any basic shift in British strength, since whatever British force would finally remain in the eastern end of the sea thus could be expected to handle any onslaught the Italians conceivably might launch.

Urge Canadians Come Under Same Pension

OTTAWA, April 3—(CP). — The Canadian Legion suggested to the Commons' Pension committee today that Canadians by birth or naturalization, serving in Imperial or Allied forces, if they were resident in Canada at the beginning of the war, should receive the same pension provision benefits as those serving in Canadian forces.

At the same time the Legion said that while the present appeal boards of three are working satisfactorily, there was no strenuous objection from the Legion to a proposed change that would cut personnel of appeal boards to two.

Richard Hale, chief pensions officer of the Legion, presented that organization's appeal to the committee.

The proposed reduction in strength of the appeal boards, as contained in the bill to amend the Pensions Act, came in for strenuous objection from committee members, particularly H. C. Green (Con. Vancouver South and G. A. Cruickshank (Lib. Fraser Valley).

"I personally would not want any case of mine heard by two rather than three men—nor would any other lawyer, and I believe the soldiers feel the same way about it," Mr. Green said.

More Appeal Boards

Mr. Cruickshank said he not only opposed such a change but asked Brig.-Gen. H. F. McDonald, chairman of the Pensions Commission, if the Commission was prepared to put out more appeal boards.

"There are 500 cases pending at this moment—and this war will give years of work to do," said Mr. Cruickshank. "There should be 20 or 30 boards."

Gen. McDonald said that the Commission was prepared to provide extra boards when the number of cases to be heard in any district warrant it.

The Legion recommended that section 21 of the Act dealing with disability of less than five per cent be abolished.

"Either a man has five per cent disability or he hasn't any," J. B. Bowler, Legion general secretary said. "No doctor should be asked to decide whether a man has two or three per cent disability. If he has any at all it should be considered five."

Gen. McDonald said that in practice this had prevailed and that the Commission had realized that such small distinctions were ridiculous.

Save Casualties With Bren Gun Carriers

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, April 3—(CP).—A new scheme to pick up casualties in the field has been developed by Captain Charlie LeTourneau of Montreal, medical officer of a Nova Scotia regiment of the 1st Division . . . He uses Bren gun carriers.

On manoeuvres when army umpires rules certain men are casualties, Captain Le-Tourneau, once a McGill University footballer, shoots the carrier along the roads and wounded are loaded aboard on stretchers to be evacuated to dressing stations . . . He says the carriers don't jolt the patients any more than an ambulance and are quicker.

In an Eastern Canada brigade, the padre pitches in as a general utility officer when headquarters is shorthanded . . . He is Captain G. R. Addie from Cowansville, Que., the Church of England chaplain with the brigade . . . But he also knows plenty about the army, having received his militia commission in 1932 . . . On a recent Canadian Corps manoeuvre, he was acting transport officer . . . Every one still called him "padre." . . .

A snow storm tied up operations of the Canadian Forestry Corps for a while . . . Even the Canadian lumbermen - soldiers couldn't get around to their work in the forests . . .Brig.-Gen. J. B. White, 67-year-old commander of the corps, was en route to London and his car got snow-bound. He finally made it by train.

Captain W. S. Coolin of Thorold, Ont., who believes he was the youngest soldier in the Canadian Army of the first Great War, is in England again with the troops . . . Native of Montreal, he worked with paper companies in Three Rivers, Que., and Thorold, and now is at Canadian Records Office in London . . . He got into the army in 1916 when he was 15, joining the 58th Westmount Rifles of Montreal . . .

To help meet the need for army clerks, the educational services of the Canadian Legion ran a two-month school for 1st Division candidates . . . Nearly fifty men completed the course successfully and Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, Divisional Commander, and Dr. E. A. Chatwin of Saskatoon, director of educational services, attended the graduation.

10 Miles In 9 Days Opening Shelburn Road

SHELBURNE, April 3—There was no April fooling about the opening of Highway No. 24 yesterday. In a scene reminiscent of the joining of the transcontinental railway, two massive snowplows met at Redickville around noon and the highway was declared open for traffic—if no more snow comes.

For seventeen days this highway to Stayner has been sealed tight. Snowplows bucked and plunged into the drifts, which had to be seen to be appreciated, and the result could not have been called successful. The snow clearers went to work Saturday, March 22, on a blustery, cheerless, winter's day. They finished the job in spring sunshine, with birds twittering, trees budding and the snowplows spluttering.

Just to give an idea of the kind of job it was to clear a path through the snow, one of the plows, the machine from the south end, took nine and a half days to go ten miles.

It is now possible to go right through from Toronto on Highway No. 24. Vernor Dynes, Redickville farmer, had the honor of being the first motorist to pass over the highway after the meeting of the plows.

W.A. Plans Thankoffering

Thankoffering services for Sunday, May fourth, were planned at the April meeting of St. James W.A., with Mrs. G. Rowe, president, in the chair. Mission Circle Has Thankoffering Meeting

The Easter thankoffering meeting of the Frances Watt Mission Circle of Knox United church was held Wednesday at the home of Miss Jean Hair, Sherbrooke street, with Mrs. V. E. Smith presiding. During the business period it was decided to change the meeting night to the second Wednesday of the month. An appeal from the I.O.D.E. for new clothing for British War Victims was read.

A short play on Stewardship, "An Alabaster Cruse," was presented in the study period. The theme of the play is founded on the bible story of Mary and Martha, when the alabaster cruse of precious oil was poured over the head of Jesus. Taking part were Irene Graham, Elva Darling, Irene Battle, Marjorie Lewis, Mrs. H. Murduff. Mrs. V. E. Smith directed the presentation.

Miss Dorothy Battle was in charge of the worship service, "Following the Way of Love to Victory." in which it was stressed that the way of the living church is the abiding evidence of the Resurrection that the purpose of God in Christ did not fail because it is being carried forward in His Church. The great message which comes to us at Easter is the God's way, which, if followed, does lead to victory.

The thankoffering was presented and dedicated. Miss Maxine Elliott was convener for refreshments, and thanks was expressed to the hostess by Miss Elva Darling.

Trinity Club Hosts To Knox Y.P.S.

A gay social evening in the form of a "Hard-times" and "April Fool's Day" party was held by Trinity Club at their weekly meeting, with Miss Audrey Garside's group in charge. The members of Knox Y.P.S. were guests, and conducted an impressive devotional period on the theme of prayer, led by Mr. Ken Kidd, Irene Graham, Connie Lewis, and S. Barkwell. A duet was sung by Miss Gladys Gerard and Mr. O. Benson, and Mr. M. Latimer was master of ceremonies. The setting was in the midst of candle-light and a glowing fireplace and bonfire.

Mr. J. M. Mercier, C.G.E. engineer, introduced by Miss Audrey Garside, was guest speaker, and outlined tradition in connection with "All Fool's Day." A fine musical program was well received, and included a duet by Marjorie Goldie and Vi Britnell; a negro spiritual by Oscar Sloane and Romeo Mongraw; a vocal sool. J. M. Mercier; recitation, Barbara Rose; vocal solo, Viola Sexsmith; comedy song, Mr. E. J. Hotson; piano solo, Frances Wells, who was also pianist for the evening. Miss Gertrude Lancashire was accompanist for the devotional period. A delicious lunch was served by the group, and beans, eaten with toothpicks, were featured as the "hard-time" dish.

The War Savings box for voluntary giving yielded the sum of over seven dollars, collected over the period of a month. This money is considered a "loan to our country and a gift to our church."

Lady Tweedsmuir Is Working For Red Cross

Lady Tweedsmuir, whose late husband was Governor-General of Canada, has not relinquished her interest in Canadian affairs since she returned to England last year. A London letter from the Canadian Red Cross Overseas reveals that Lady Tweedsmuir is now doing war work for Canadian soldiers in No. 5 Canadian General Hospital at Taplow.

Recently Lady Tweedsmuir made a tour of Red Cross stores depots with Major C. A. Scott, Canadian Red Cross overseas commissioner. "She is very interested in Red Cross activities and offered her services to me in any capacity," Major Scott writes. "In the last war she assisted with the mending of garments of soldiers in hospital and hospital apparel at Taplow and I immediately suggested that she take on this work for us. I am now able to tell you that a very capable committee headed by Lady Tweedsmuir is looking after the mending of pyjamas, dressing gowns, sheets, and cutting and folding of gauze for No. 5 Canadian General at Taplow."

Major Scott's monthly report tells of the handicrafts which are now flourishing among patients in all four Canadian military hospitals. "A great number of the men who are able, seem very anxious to make little things to send home," Major Scott writes. "At the present time a group of patients are working on a large rug in the field of which is the coat of arms of the Dominion of Canada. This is to be sent to Red Cross National Headquarters."

Red Cross relief clothing is now being distributed every month, or in any emergency, throughout the 12 regions into which England is divided for the purpose. Distribution is made through the Women's Voluntary Services for Civil Defense, and requisitions are filled for clothing, woollen comforts and medical supplies. In the past 70 days alone, more than 235,666 articles of relief clothing have been given out to the W.V.S. and refugee committee and further supplies of blankets, quilts, clothing and woollen comforts are needed immediately. A total of $2,000,000 has been devoted by the Canadian Red Cross to relief of bomb victims.

Red Shield Boxes For Overseas Packed Wednesday

Only those who have actually seen the clothing that is packed into bundles for shipment overseas by the local branch of Red Shield Auxiliary can appreciate the spirit which prompts the women of Peterborough and district in their generous donations.

Layettes, for example, are not only warmly and carefully made, but they are also given the dainty touches of lace, embroidery and bits of ribbon that make of the garments articles any mother would be proud for her baby to wear. In some cases, complete layettes are wrapped in large pink or blue blankets, and include pins and tins of powder to delight the hearts of British mothers unable to collect their own baby's trousseau.

Dropping in at the home of Mrs. Adjutant Buckley, Wednesday afternoon, a reporter found the leader of the local branch of Red Shield busily packing cartons for headquarters at Toronto, and on every side were tables, chairs and boxes piled high with donations, typifying the desire on the part of citizens to aid in the alleviation of distress among British war victims.

Not a garment that could possibly be made use of is neglected. There are woolly "nightingales" for grandmothers, embroidered felt slippers cut from old hats by members of the Local Council of Women and made up by the Girl Guides, slightly worn coats for men and women which the donors have first sent to the cleaners; stockings with garters attached, and pile upon pile of knitted garments for children as well as infants. Noted was a stock of pyjamas for men, almost as good as new, new grey blankets, and a box of knitted articles made by a crippled lady of 79 years, who begs "odds and ends" from neighbors and makes them up into most acceptable garments.

Donations not suitable for overseas shipment have their uses, too. A rummage sale of these articles netted the sum of $27.00, used to purchase flannelette which was made into garments by girls of the Junior Red Shield.

The ten large cartons packed Wednesday by Mrs. Buckley, assisted by Mrs. J. K. Hughes and Mrs. Adjutant Bamsey, totalled well over 1,000 articles, including 60 quilts, blankets and afghans, and went forward this morning to Toronto headquarters of the Red Shield.

1st Edition Of "Glengarrian" Is Displayed

The first edition of the paper, "The Glengarrian," issued by the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders at Debert Camp, Nova Scotia, was on display on Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to this battalion, held at the Officers' Mess in the Armouries, with Mrs. James Turnbull, first vice-president, in the chair. Also of interest was a satin pillow with the Glengarrian crest embroidered in gold thread, a gift to Mrs. John Heirons from her son, a member of the Highlanders.

Plans for a spring millinery tea to be held in the Prince of Wales Rangers' Mess at the Armouries on April 30 are under way, at which there is to be a draw for a Dresden Plate quilt made by members of the Auxiliary. The date of the next meeting has been changed to Wednesday, April 23, at 3 o'clock.

Banquet Is Held By Eastern Star, L.O.B.A.

The anniversary banquet of Eastern Star, L.O.B.A., 525, was held Wednesday evening in the Kresge Store with Mrs. M. Rosborough, Worthy Mistress, and Mrs. O. Price, Deputy Mistress, welcoming the guests.

Among those seated at the head table, effectively decorated with Spring flowers, were Mrs. G. Campbell, Provincial Grand Treasurer of Ontario East; Mrs. F. Pilling Provincial Deputy Treasurer of Ontario East; Brother R. Ritchie, R.W.G.L. of R.P.

Brother Ritchie, toastmaster, proposed a tribute dto the King. A toast to the Army, the Navy and the Air Force, proposed by Mrs. F. Pilling, was followed by the singing of "There'll Always Be An England" and a toast to Provincial Grand Lodge, presented by Mrs. J. Manley, was responded to by Mrs. G. Campbell.

Guests returned to the Orange Hall on Brock street for euchre and bridge, at which prizes were won by Mrs. J. Manley (bridge); Miss L. Elliston (euchre); Mrs. E. Dormer (door prize).

Conveners of the affair were Mrs. M. Clee, assisted by Mrs. N. Dunlop and Mrs. H. Moncrief.

Spring Tea Is Held By H. and S. Group

The Kindergarten of King Edward School, gay with floral cut-outs and scenes of "Tulip Time in Holland," was the setting for a Spring tea held by the Home and School Association on Wednesday afternoon. Guests were received by the president, Mrs. E. Chambers, and the vice-president, Mrs. F. Blaby.

Tea was poured by Miss P. Nelson and Miss J. M. Lancaster from an attractively arranged table with centre decorations of daffodils, and tall mauve tapers. Assistants in the tea room were Mrs. A. Ellis, Mrs. J. Crocker, Mrs. J. Murray, Mrs. E. Clark, Mrs. G. Farris and Mrs. L. Gibson. Mrs. A. Vannest and Mrs S. Robertson were in charge of the table of home cooking.

Delightful vocal numbers were rendered by Mrs. B. Cutmore, Miss Barbara Wallace and Miss Elizabeth Cutmore, with Mrs. G. Wallace at the piano.

Are You Soft-Pedalling On the Meat Course Now?

By MARY MOORE

After wandering around the country again I brought home some new vegetable ideas.

Meal planning in March and April is no cinch. When strawberries come in season you will be able to serve strawberry shortcake every day and the folks will love it—but just try serving apple pie twice in succession and unless you've a family of angels you'll hear about it.

It strains your ingenuity to lick the combination of lack of fresh things and jaded appetites.

For instance last week we tried using fresh salads every dinner, and no cooked green vegetable. Each meal we had our potatoes a different way or replaced them with rice or corn or limas.

Maybe we were very hungry, but one meal that seemed particularly successful was Swiss steak, bake potatoes, shredded cabbage and radishes with mayonnaise and a thick borders of parsley for both garnish and eating. Since the oven was hot for the potatoes we had a baked lemon pudding. This doesn't sound so glamorous now that I have it down on paper, but it made mighty good eating.

If you have been watching me closely you will guess where I have been from the number of Laura's recipes I've been giving you.

The following recipe for a casserole of potatoes was created by Laura because her doctor urged her to serve the skin of vegetables and other foods so that all the minerals were eaten instead of being dumped down the drain or peeled into the garbage pail.

Laura's Casserole Of Potatoes

Shred 5 or 6 new red potatoes unpeeled on the ¼-inch shredder, dropping them directly into 1½ cups hot milk. Add also about 1 tablespoon finely shredded onion. In bottom of glass casserole slice thinly ¼ to ½ a green pepper. Slice very finely 2 or 3 large stalks of celery including the leafy green top, and stir these well into the potatoes to keep the potatoes from packing together. Stir in from 1 to 2 teaspoons salt, shake over white pepper, and add from 1 to 3 tablespoons butter, dotting it through. Sprinkle top with buttered crumbs—from ¼ to ½ cup—and place in oven of 375 to 400 deg. Fahr. for about 30 minutes. When ready to serve cover top with small sprigs of parsley.

To vary the above dish if your family gets as fond of it as ours, you might sprinkle top with cheese, or add a few green peas, or shredded carrots. A nice way to get all the good out of your vegetables and to reduce the starchy content of a dish of potatoes.

Another discovery of the week was

Succotash Piquant

One medium sized onion chopped finely, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespons flour, ¾ cup lima bean stock, 1½ cups cooked or canned corn kernels, ¾ teaspoon salt, dash of black pepper, 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley. Saute onion in butter until yellow, stir in flour, add bean stock gradually and cook 2 minutes, stirring. Add lima beans, corn, salt and pepper, and simmer about 10 minutes. Add parsley and serve.

You may know this dish but if you are like me you forget it all too quickly:

Spanish Rice

(Some call it rice chili—or have been known to confuse it with Turkish Pilau.)

One cup washed and dried unpolished rice, 2 to 4 tablespoons bacon drippings, 1 cup or 1 No. 2 can tomatoes, 2 large onions, 1 sliced green pepper, 3 cups boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt (a ½ teaspoon of chili powder is optional). Wash the rice and saute in the hot fat until it has parched appearance and is golden. Add remaining ingredients and simmer until rice is tender—about 25 minutes. This may be baked—after rice is parched—in a casserole with a crumb or cheese crust. Good as the main item on a vegetable plate.

Canned Vegetables

I am impelled to say a word here to renew your faith in canned vegetables. The great majority are cheaper than the fresh vegetables you can buy these spring months. They contain all their minerals and many of their vitamins and give you more time away from the kitchen.

Casserole Of Asparagus Cuttings

We had some unexpected company one night this week and I opened two cans of asparagus cuttings, drained off the liquid, put the cuttings in the casserole and made a sauce to put over them as follows: Melt 3 tablespoons butter, add 3 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, stir until blended, then add 1 cup liquor from can, ½ cup evaporated milk, one finely chopped hard cooked egg, and 1 teaspoon finely grated lemon rind. Stir until thick, then pour over asparagus in casserole, dot top with crumbs and sprinkle with paprika. Bake in hot oven until heated through and crumbs are golden.

Mixed Green Beans (Canned) and Sliced Carrots

You can either extend or vary your method of serving canned string beans, by cooking about 1 cup or less of finely sliced carrots in the bean liquor, and when they are tender add the carrots to the beans, and reheat all in liquor made up to one cup with water and thickened with a butter and flour roux—finely chopped parsley is a nice addition.

Parsnip Casserole

I think parsnips are best if parboiled, dipped in flour when sliced, and fried in butter—but this is a good way to do them in the oven: Boil parsnips until tender, mash very well, or better still force through ricer, add ¼ cup milk, beat well, add melted butter and some salt, beat well, then add the well beaten yolk and the well beaten white of 1 egg, and pile lightly in buttered casserole, sprinkling top with paprika, and bake until heated through and quite puffy.

If you'd like some suggestions for changing your way of cooking onions, or a good recipe for curried rice, or any other vegetables write to me, won't you?

Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Carter, Townsend Street, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday of this week at the home of their daughter, Mrs. A. W. Nelson, 364 Park Hill Road. They came to the city from Hastings village twenty years ago, and were married at Villiers. The bride is the former Elizabeth Harris.

Dollars To Doughnuts

By EDITH ELLINGTON

YESTERDAY: Bee meets Vera and Vera's boy-friend, Terry, a photographer. Dinner is a mixture of spiced foods from the delicatessen, but Bee enjoys it. Later, drying the dishes with Terry, the photographer tells her, "I've seen you before. But where?"

BEE HUNTS A JOB

CHAPTER VIII

STANDING there in the doorway of the closet-kitchenet, with Terry's shrewd gray eyes still on her face, Beatrice thought desperately that it wasn't fair her adventure should already be so close to exposure. "I haven't been here two hours! Can't I escape from myself for a little while?"

She smiled at Terry. "Occasionally I've been told there's a fleeting resemblance between myself and Carole Lombard. Maybe you've seen her at one of those hotels."

"You look about as much like Lombard as I do," said Terry. But he seemed to dismiss the subject, after that, and Beatrice breathed more easily

Vera elected to go with him and help develop the films.

"She can, too," Toby explained when they had gone. "Since she's known him, she's become practically educated." She turned on the radio and yawned. "As for me, I'm drooping. Knocked out. I'm going to bed."

It was scarcely 8.30, but she wound up the alarm clock with determination. "I need my sleep, so I can go in there tomorrow and slug away with vim, vigor, and vitality for good old Huntington's. And maybe, just maybe, I can make my quota tomorrow."

"Quota?"

"A cute little idea department stores dream up. You've got to sell a certain amount of stuff to justify your salary. In the basement accessories it's only $108 a day. Simple! If you slug the customers."

Beatrice watched Toby wriggle out of her dress. It occurred to her then that she had never really been intimate with a girl since her boarding school days. She thought of the quota, too. How little she knew of that store which her grandfather had founded. So each salesgirl had to come up to a quota, did she?

"If they take me on tomorrow," she said, "they'll dismiss me the day after. I don't know how to persuade people to buy things so I can make a quota."

Toby sat on the bed, took off her shoes. "Don't give it a thought. Huntington's will teach you." She peeled off her stockings. "I've got to wash these. The only pair I own."

"Oh! I'll have to wash mine, too."

Beatrice had the strangest feeling of having slipped through a mist, like Alice through the looking glass. She was now on the reverse side of things—the side of existence where you had to wash the dishes after you ate; and your stockings, so they'd be clean in the morning.

Mercifully, Toby did not stand over her, talking, as she struggled with the stockings. Toby was spreading sheets on the studio couch and rummaging in bureau drawers to find a pair of pajamas fit to lend.

Beatrice felt triumphant as she hung her wet, limp stockings on the towel rack beside Toby's. "There! I'm not so useless, after all!"

She thought again of that hateful voice in Mr. Curtis Weeming's office and frowned. "The day I walk in and drag that beast's name from old Weemie will be the happiest day of my life!"

AND then she remembered Clarence. He must have phoned her at the apartment. Well, that didn't matter. Often she was out and no one knew where she was.

But how about tomorrow? What would the maids think, when she didn't appear day after day. Suddenly, a thing she hadn't thought of before hit her with all the force of disaster.

They'd notify Weeming! "Miss Davenport hasn't been home for several days." All at once she realized the stir it would make. She seemed to see newspaper headlines. "Davenport Heiress Disappears."

Clarence would be wild, searching for her. Once he had asked her about kidnapping. "In Europe," he said, "we always understood that American heiresses were in constant danger of being kidnapped for ransom." Suppose they thought she was kidnapped?

Shivers of apprehension went up and down her spine. What an idiot! Not to have thought of that sooner! Beatrice Davenport couldn't simply disappear into thin air. There'd be consternation, turmoil, private detectives, all manner of carryings on!

What could she do? If only she'd been going away on a trip and then simply not boarded the boat or train! Or if she'd come back from Florida without notifying Weeming that she was back.

"I'll telephone Mr. Weeming. I'll say I've decided to go to—to South America. I'll say I'm leaving immediately, don't know when I'll come back.

Yes, that was it. She could easily get information on sailing dates, the name of some ship. "I won't phone Clarence, though. When he begins to wonder, he'll know enough to get hold of Weemie. Weemie will tell him I've gone to South America."

She felt distinctly relieved when that was settled. Toby called sleepily, "Is your bed all right?"

"It's fine, thank you." Beatrice said, snapping off the light. "Good night."

BEATRICE had not been sleeping more than a few minutes, it seemed, when Toby was shaking her. "Heavens, are you one of those people who never hear alarm clocks? Get a move on! We'll be late!"

It was 7.15. Beatrice rubbed her heavy eyes. Dawn was a good time to wind up a party, but the thought of crawling out of bed now made her ill. For a dizzy moment, too, she wasn't fully awake and couldn't remember where she was.

"Do you want a job, or don't you?" demanded Toby callously. She was completely dressed, the fat half-moon curl on the back of her head freshly brushed, her lipstick bright. "You've got 10 minutes or I leave without you."

It all came back to Beatrice. She jumped out of bed, one bare foot automatically feeling for the rules that were always placed beside her bed. They weren't there, of course. She ran to the bathroom, the floor shockingly cold against the soles of her feet.

When she emerged, Toby had a cup of black coffee for her. "That's all. Vera finished the cake last night."

"It's all I want."

They raced for the subway. On the platform, Toby separated her paper. "Read the want ads. Maybe Huntington's won't hire you." The ads were bewildering. "Bookkeeper, must have NCR experience." "Buyer, children's wash dresses." "Cashier for movie house, must be attractive."

At Times Square, the train disgorged its load of humanity. Like a bewildered sheep, Beatrice clung to Toby. The early morning sunlight of 42d street was bleak and cold and unfamiliar. The two girls walked rapidly in the stream of people, "like cattle," Beatrice thought, to Sixth avenue.

AT the employes' entrance—"And I never so much as realized there was an employes' entrance!"—Toby squeezed her hand. "I go this way. You go up those stairs, the personnel office is on the balcony. Remember, be dignified and refined and say you've always loved retailing. It's your ambition, you're crazy about it, you want to learn even though you've had no experience. For heaven's sake, look her in the eye and be so damned poised it hurts."

Beatrice braced herself. At the open door which bore the letters, "Personnel Office," she pinned a smile on her lips. They couldn't possibly recognize her, the very thought was fantastic. To this brisk, sharp-eyed woman behind the desk she was only one of hundreds of applicants. She walked up to the desk.

"I'm applying for a sales position," she said levelly.

WE . . . NOTICED

....Despite the current trend toward lovelier and more flattering spring hats, there are the usual fanciful ones that once again come the male population to draw hasty conclusions as to women's sanity.

....The war was given credit for the inspiration of a number of "latest" models illustrated in a weekly paper, and might well be named some of this war's "horrors." When you see milady strolling down the street with a miniature war tank on her head don't become too alarmed, it is just one of the new Easter bonnets.

....Airplanes, guns, parachutes (including the tiny aviator, dangling under the chin), are not only monstrosities but are in exceedingly bad taste. They make light of a serious and vital factor in the present world war. We do not believe that women's hats should be cheerless, sombre and altogether depressing, as a little color and gaiety is needed at the present time—but there are limits.

...That slips and petticoats for spring are colorful in prints, dots, stripes, floral prints and dots, more bold in outline and in color mixtures, while the range of pastels is used in dots against dark grounds, navy, black, deep red

Nicholls

"The evidence will be admitted subject to your objection" he told Mr. Frankel.

Detective Nimmo's Evidence

Sergt. Detective Nimmo of the Toronto police department told of arresting Nicholls at 171 Mutual street, a rooming house kept by Louis Gallow and Leona Lexier, of later arresting Gallow there and of taking away a number of suitcases and a number of pairs of shoes, the latter being obtained in the room of Louis Gallow.

In cross-examination he told Mr. Frankel that he often had occasion to visit 171 Mutual street six or seven times a day. "We call it No. 2 Extra" said Detective Nimmo with a broad smile that was reflected on the face of Nicholls in the dock.

Detective Sergt. Nimmo had said that he had taken $44 in bills from the person of Nicholls and in cross-examination Mr. Frankel produced a small slip of paper which he said was apparently a receipt for $43 and had Detective Tong's name at the bottom.

Detective Nimmo said that the handwriting was his own and Mr. Frankel had him write the contents of the receipt on a slip of paper.

"I am not an expert' he said after comparing the two slips of paper "but it looks as if both were written by the same hand." Detective Nimmo said that he could not explain the difference between the two amounts. Nicholls' money had not been taken out of the envelope until it had been handed over to the Peterborough police, he said.

At this stage the court adjourned until this morning.

Plans for June Weddings Should Be Settled Now

Serene Bride Knows What to Do

The great day drawing closer, and still so much to do, to decide, to KNOW! But all can be managed, and easily, with a plan.

By this time the clever June bride will have chosen the type of wedding she wants—formal or informal. She'll have budgeted each item, reserved the church.

And now to whisk on to the next thing—invitations, which her family pays for. Stationers may need as much as four weeks to engrave invitations, and you'll want to mail them at least two weeks before the wedding. Or, if yours will be a small wedding, with written invitations, remember that announcements should be mailed right after the ceremony.

Another thing you should plan soon is refreshments. Will it be a wedding breakfast (really a luncheon), including lobster Newburg, cake and coffee? Or tea time refreshments?

Then that all-important wedding etiquette! You wouldn't want to offend anyone on that happy day.

Our 32-page booklet answers dozens of questions on wedding etiquette. Tells how to budget, divide expenses; describes correct dress for formal, informal weddings.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of COSTUME JEWELRY YOU CAN EASILY MAKE to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

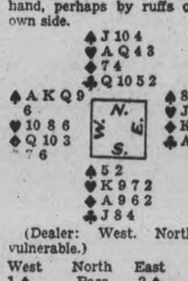
"The Authority on Authorities"

GET YOUR OWN RUFFS

MANY PLAYERS make it almost a matter of habit to lead trumps whenever they see a short suit in the dummy which the declarer can ruff. There is no use in doing this if the dummy contains enough trumps to do any necessary ruffing of whatever losers the declarer has in the suit, enough even if he has to waste some on trump leads. In such a spot, it is better to look around for other chances to take tricks of your own, or in your partner's hand, perhaps by ruffs on your own side.



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

After North led his club 2 to the dummy's K and the heart J was returned to the 8, North played his Q and decided at once that his job was to prevent the ruffing of hearts which the declarer was plainly seeking. So his rule in such cases was followed—to lead a trump. He did, his J, which West won with the Q. The heart 10 came next, North winning it with his A and promptly firing back his spade 4 to the A. The declarer then led the heart 6 and ruffed it with the spade 7. He could now lose nothing more except to the diamond A, so made his contract.

North could have figured easily that, if West had held four hearts, he very likely would have bid them on the second round instead of rebidding spades, and hence had probably only three. Consequently West could not be seeking more than one heart ruff, which could not be prevented by the couple of trump leads possible for North to make.

If North had studied further, he would have seen a chance for a diamond ruff of his own. After winning the second trick, he should have led his diamond 7. South would have played his 9 to retain his A for an entry. When West then led a second heart to North's A, he could have returned his diamond 4 to the A, and South's return would have been ruffed by North for the trick that would have set the contract.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

Playing for 4-Spades, if South wins the club J with the A and then drops the spade J with the K, why is it sounder play for him to come up with his spade A on the third trick in preference to finessing?

Jap Breach Widens

LONDON, April 2 — (CP). — Britain and the United States are working closely, and Britain regards Japanese actions in China with increasing satisfaction, Richard A. Butler, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons to-day.

Questioned about Tokyo's attitude toward the 'open door" policy, Mr. Butler responded that he had taken a recent opportunity to acquaint the Japanese Ambassador with this British view.

The British Government, he said, is unable to reconcile Japanese insistence that the "open door" policy remains intact with "developments" in China.

Old Costumes Feature Fashion Parade

HASTINGS, April 6—(ENS). — A large audience gathered on Monday evening, in the basement of Trinity United church for the Y.P.S. entertainment, which featured an "Old Time" program, which was one of the finest and humorous staged by the group so far.

The performers kept the gathering in gales of laughter, as they appeared in their old fashioned costumes and gave the varied old-time numbers.

Rev. J. E. Glover, pastor of the church, acted as chairman, and extended a warm welcome.

The orchestra, comprised of Mr. A. V. German, Mrs. C. Hoard and Mr. John Oliver with mouth organs, Clifford Scriver with a banjo, and Miss Flo German on the piano, received much applause.

Mrs. Cecil Oliver gave a reading, entitled "Caleb's Courtship"; Miss Lorna Darling gave a pleasing piano solo; Mrs. J. E. Glover and Mrs. E. Hess sang "Sweet Bunch of Daisies"; Mrs. Iden Bonds, Jr., gave a reading entitled "That Mustard Plaster." This number won well-merited applause; Misses Lorna Darling and Eunice Turney of Morganston sang that beloved old number "Juanita"; Mr. Arnold Bates gave "Annie Laurie" as a piano solo; Mrs. Gordon Fox and A. V. German, always popular at entertainments, sang "Oh Moses! What are you Doing?" accompanied by Miss Winnie Huycke at the piano.

Fashion Parade

The main feature of the evening was the "Fashion Parade." The ladies attired in old-time costumes, with their tight waists, puffed sleeves, long skirts and old-fashioned hats and bonnets, and the men in high top hats and society suits, created lots of fun as they paraded before the three judges: Mrs. H. Oliver, Mrs. G. Fox and Mrs. F. Stewart, who decided that Mrs. J. E. Glover was the first winner of a War Savings Stamp.

W. W. Knight and Miss Carrie Doxsee gave an instrumental duet; Miss Mae Huycke sang "Believe me if all those endearing old charms"; a trio from the Fleming School, included three boys, George Ford, Fred Ford and Gordon Fleming, who were among the favorites of the evening as they sang "Eleven more months and ten more days" as their teacher, Mr. Arnold Bates, played their accompaniment; Mr. Mr. Learl Humphries sang "Four Thousand Years Ago"; Music by the orchestra and a duet "Home, Sweet Home," by Miss Lorna Darling and Eunice Turney, was followed by the singing of the National Anthem. The proceeds amounted to $14.60.

British Keep On The Alert With Manoeuvres

A contingent of British troops are pictured carrying out war-like manoeuvres on one of the beaches on the southeast coast of England. The troops constantly carry out these exercises in which they practice dealing with a force of enemy troops assumed to have landed on British shores. In this way they keep themselves fit and accustomed to the technique of seashore fighting.

Campbellford Rotary Clubs Funds Are For Use In War Work

CAMPBELLFORD, April 3. — (ENS). — Contrary to their usual policy of observing Easter Monday as a holiday, Rotarians here decided against cancelling the meeting of April 14th when the matter was put to a vote at their noon-day luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel here on Monday. Their decision was inspired in part by the attendance record made during the past month when in competition with the Trenton and Belleville Clubs they came out on top with the losers paying a penalty of fifty cents a member to the locals, whose treasury will be enroched to the tune of seventy dollars. Rotarian Bennett suggested the Campbellford club add another twenty and send the whole thing as a gift to the clubs in Britain.

None of the club's funds will go towards building a park at the present time but will be used for war work instead. This action was announced when the proposal to beautify the triangle at Booth and Centre streets in collaboration with the town, was discussed. Members were unanimously of the opinion that all money should be conserved to do vital war work.

Acting Secretary Steve Maguire read a letter outlining plans for the observance of St. George's Day on April 23rd and also announced the invitation to attend a meeting as guests of the Belleville club on April 21st.

An interesting pep talk embracing several articles from the "Rotarian" was given by S. A. Maguire as the program feature of the meeting.

Rotarian C. A. Bright, F. G. DeCarrol and Ralph Locke will collaborate in arranging next week's program.

School Tea, Sale At Havelock Realizes $32.10

HAVELOCK, April 3—(ENS). — The afternoon tea and sale of home made cooking sponsored by the pupils of the High and Public Schools, held on Saturday afternoon in the Chapter Room of the Prosperity Chapter, No. 63, O.E.S., was a decided success.

Tea was poured by the teachers, Miss Roberts, Miss House, Miss McNeely, Miss Wing, and Miss Watson from a lace-covered table with a centrepiece of yellow daffodils, and was served by the pupils who worked in relays, each room taking its turn.

The home-made candy table was beautifully decorated in Easter colors, with bunnies, kewpie dolls and flowers. The pupils of Miss McNeely's room and Miss Wing's room presided over this table, taking turns assisted by their teachers, Miss Roberts and Miss Watson, assisted by these pupils, had charge of the home cooking table, which was decorated in the Easter colors, mauve and, yellow, a centrepiece of yellow daffodils, the young saleslades had no trouble in selling their wares.

Mrs. Joseph Hoffman, assisted by Mrs. William Rice, Mrs. William Hill, Mrs. A. Russell, and Mrs. Harold Mathison, convened the lunch for the tea and assisted in the kitchen.

Miss Minnie Williams, who organized the B.B.B. Fund for the school pupils, had charge of the display of work done by the pupils in the work room of the Eastern Star Patriotic Association. All materials used in the garments were bought with the pennies saved by the school children, during January, February, and March. Well deserved praise was given by all who viewed the display, to the school children for their efforts and splendid work they had done. In the evening all the articles were packed for shipping and distributed as follows: To the Home and school, 3 complete layettes, each containing 1 dozen diapers, 3 nightgowns, 2 bands, 2 slips, 2 bonnets, 2 jackets, 2 pair of bootees, 2 pairs of stockings, 2 vests, safety pins, powder, soap, wash cloth and quilt. These will be displayed at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, at their annual convention at Easter, and then given to the Red Shield of the S.A.

Notes were included in these as donated by the Public School, High School, and Bobby Hill. Also given to complete two layettes of the Home and School were 2 quilts, 1 afghan, 4 pairs of stockings, 2 nightingales, 2 bonnets, 2 kimonas and 4 bonnets, 4 pairs of bootees knitted and donated by the St. John's Church Class, supervised by Miss Madge Curtis.

The following were packed for direct shipment to the Red Shield of the S.S.: 14 pairs of stockings, 6 wash cloths, 1 vest, 11 kimonas, 21 nightingales, 14 pairs of bootees, 12 bonnets, 1 slip, 1 band and 5 quilts, this making a grand total of 209 articles made in three months.

The proceeds of the afternoon amounted to $32.10, the afternoon tea bringing in 13.30, the candy $5.00, and the cooking $13.80. This money will be given to the Befriend British Babies Fund, and it will be used to buy more material for the school pupils to make more garments for layettes for the British Babies.

The lucky tickets were drawn by three children, Navis Ellis, Albert Smith and Garnet Brooks, and the winners were Mrs. Harry Scott winning the bottom layer of the cake, Mrs. John Wood the second layer, and Mrs. Earl McComb the third layer.

The receipts from the tickets sold on the cake were $28.29, and $9.85 was taken in at the door, which made the grand total of $38.14 to be added to the treasury of the Belmont Women's Institute.

Felt Tired, Listless, Nervous Tells How Syntona Helped Her

No Longer Suffers With Headaches, Dizzy Spells and Constipation. Complexion Has Cleared, Appetite Improved and Energy Returned, She Says.

MISS IVY HODGKINSON

"Since I have taken a treatment of Syntona, I can plainly see why so many people are talking about this medicine," said Miss Ivy Hodgkinson, of 246 Main Street W., Hamilton, in a recent statement.

"I had become badly rundown and I was so nervous and irritable I didn't want to talk to anybody; just felt like sleeping all the time. Even when I slept eight or nine hours a night I would feel fatigued and listless right from the beginning of the next day. My skin was rough and pimply, my complexion was sallow and I suffered with dizzy spells and constipation. I was subject to headaches and floating spots before my eyes.

"I thought I was going to have a complete nervous breakdown, but now after taking a few bottles of Syntona, I am feeling like a different person. I arise in the mornings feeling rested and energetic. I don't get those headaches or dizzy spells any more and I am free of constipation. My appetite has improved and my complexion has cleared up."

Because of the unusual combination of pure herbs, roots and barks in Syntona, it is particularly beneficial for the whole family at this season. It is pleasant to take and contains nothing that would harm even the most delicate constitution.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.—(Advt.)

Four Prisoners Fail In Attempted Break

Jail Guard Discovers 4 Men Busy Sawing Bars Of Their Cell Window

Four prisoners, two of them under sentence for burglary and two others awaiting trial for the same offence made a daring attempt to escape from the Peterborough county jail Thursday night and failed only by five minutes. The four were: Lawrence Burns, 28, and Thomas Nicholls, 36, both of Windsor, sentenced to four years in Kingston penitentiary for cracking the safe in the Canadian Department store, and William Bradd, 27, Windsor, and Louis Gallow, 39, Toronto, awaiting trial before Judge J. A. McGibbon on similar charges.

Burns had been convicted and sentenced Wednesday morning by Judge Smoke, and Nicholls yesterday afternoon by Judge McGibbon.

(Bradd was sentenced today to five years).

When Wilfrid Wood, jail guard, discovered the attempted jail break at 8.30 o'clock last night, it had almost succeeded. The prisoners had escaped from their cells, cut through an inner brick wall to gain access to a window and had filed one of the bars off a window opening onto the north jail yard. They had their bed sheets tied together to use as a rope in scaling the jail wall and in five minutes more they would have been gone.

Wood on a tour of inspection of the jail yard noticed the prisoners at a window where they had no right to be. Pointing his finger at them as if he held a revolver he sternly ordered them to get back from the window, and the four obeyed his instructions. Running inside he gave the alarm and Mrs. T. D. Johnston telephoned to the police station for help while Wood kept the prisoners under control.

City and Provincial Police and some of the Toronto officers who are here in connection with the trial of the four suspects, rushed to the jail, and Bradd and Gallow were securely locked up in a cell upstairs, while Burns and Nicholls were hurried to the Cobourg jail.

Burns and Nicholls had been locked in separate cells on one corridor, while Bradd and Gallow occupied a double cell in another corridor. Apparently the latter pair had managed to pick the lock on their cell door so that they could get into the corridor without any difficulty. Burns and Nicholls, using parts of iron brackets taken from a bathroom door, managed to knock a hole in the brick wall separating the two cells by cutting the bars with a hack saw and then

Gallow Refuses To Plea, Fires Lawyer

"There's no British justice here at all, simply a railroad," shouted Louis Gallow from the prisoner's dock in the county judge's criminal court to-day as his trial on a charge of breaking and entering the C.D. S. store was about to begin.

Gallows' outburst came after Judge McGibbon had told the prisoner that he could not be re-arraigned again. "It's to late for that now," His Honor said.

"I don't care to plead now," declared the accused when the charge was read to him.

"You will have to plead," said Judge McGibbon.

"I refuse to plead," said the prisoner.

"Then the case will go on without it," replied Judge McGibbon.

"I am going to fight my own case," shouted Gallow. "Mr. Frankel hasn't been my lawyer since the other morning. There's no British justice here at all. Just a railroad and I am asking for a new Judge."

"You can't have one as far as this court is concerned," replied His Honor, warning Gallow to be careful about his statements.

"All I can do," said Mr. Frank-

ATTORNEYS for striking C.I.O. unionists who have closed the Ford Motor Company's Rouge plant obtained subpoenas for Henry and Edsel Ford today in a move to combat a federal restraining order obtained by the company.

After the brief hearing, Goodman said the union would "show that the strike was provoked by the company as part of its design to impede national defence as shown by (1) its refusal to accept government contracts for Great Britain, and (2) its refusal to accept a union proposition that the men go back to work to manufacture defence articles."

F.D.R. Orders 212 More New Ships

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP).—President Roosevelt announced today he had allocated another $500,000,000 from the $7,000,000,000 Lend-lease Act for 212 new merchant ships and about 50 or 60 new shipyards.

He told a press conference he also had athorized expenditure of another $500,000,000 for existing military equipment to be turned over to nations resisting aggression.

At the same time the President disclosed that if no fighting is taking place in the Red Sea the United States government might remove that area from listing as a combat zone and permit American vessels to carry cargoes there.

Reports already printed to that effect, he said, were a little premature. But he added such a step might be taken in two or three days.

Previously Mr. Roosevelt had announced allocation of $1,080,000,000 of the $7,000,000,000 aid appropriation for nations resisting aggression.

Mr. Roosevelt did not say whether the new merchant ships and new

Darlan Sold Out

New York, April 4 (CP)

THE British Broadcasting Corporation said last night there was "no question" that Admiral Darlan has promised Germany full collaboration of the French fleet and is seeking an incident with Britain to turn the French ships over to Germany.

The French-language broadcast, as heard here by National Broadting Company, said that if an incident does not arise, Darlan may create one to justify his promises to the Nazis.

Only 2 Original All-Canucks Left

LONDON, April 4.—(CP Cable)—Death and changes in personnel have left only two original members of the "all-Canadian" squadron of the Royal Air Force to help carry on the fighting traditions which made the group famous as far back as the pre-Dunkirk era. Since those hectic days they have collected a bag estimated unofficially at 150 enemy planes.

Another name was added to those killed in action when Flt.-Lt. Hugh N. Tamblyn, taciturn young westerner, crashed in a flaming hurricane while attacking a big German machine yesterday. The enemy plane was one of two trying to attack a convoy on the east coast.

The attack was driven off with the aid of another pilot of the squadron, but a few minutes after a first message reporting he was attacking a heavily-armed twin-engined German fighter, Tamblyn reported his Hurricane was afire and losing height rapidly. His body consequently was recovered from the sea.

British Smash Brest Again

LONDON, April 4 (CP)—Strong British air force units last night bombed the French port or Brest, where the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau are sheltering, and also attacked oil tanks at Rotterdam and docks at Ostend, the air ministry announced today.

The operations cost the Royal Air Force four planes, a communique said.

Poor visibility made it difficult for pilots to ascertain the results of the raid on the Brest naval base, "but heavy bombs were seen to fall across the drydock and several fires were started in the port," the bulletin added.

Last night's attack, the 48th of the war on the Nazi-occupied port, was the first since Sunday, when bombs straddled the docks at which the two big Nazi warships were lying.

German warplanes, meanwhile, directed a four-hour assault on Bristol in the west of England, where a communique said a number of fires were started but extinguished before the raid ended.

London had two bombless alerts and some bombs fell in eastern and southern England and in the home counties around the capital. One German bomber was shot down.

A British fighter plane also made a sorties over a German airdrome in northern France last night and shot down a Nazi bomber as it was about to land, the air ministry news service reported today.

Bomber Crashes

"The pilot dropped bombs on hangar buildings, dived and machine-gunned landing lights and aircraft on the ground," the news service said. "The lights were promptly put out. He attacked a

Slavs Speed Forts In Vardar Valley

Call More Men, Bolster Key Railheads Hint Nation May Strike First Blow

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, April 4—(AP).—The Yugoslav general staff rushed fortification of the strategically-important Vardar Valley today while awaiting the dice to fall for peace or war.

More men were being called to the colors and hurried to the defence of key railheads.

An all-important Cabinet session which was to have been followed by Premier Dusan Simovic's long-awaited declaration of foreign policy was postponed.

The delay followed the arrival of the Croat Peasant party leader, Vladimir Macek, in Belgrade where he took the oath of office as Vice-Premier.

He talked at length with Momtchilo Nincic, Foreign Minister, over efforts to preserve peace and then went to a conference with Croat members of the Cabinet. Macek declared yesterday he was joining the Government in the hope peace could be preserved.

It was said the declaration of Yugoslav policy, in response to a German demand for clarification, probably would be made tomorrow.

Town Ready To Fight

SKOPLUE, Yugoslavia, April 4.—(AP) — Trenches are being dug around and even inside this semi-oriental town in the Vardar Valley in readiness for the Germans if they attempt to thrust this way at Greece.

Ten of thousands of soldiers are working day and night on modern defences throughout the valley.

One high policital chief told The Associated Press, however, that the Yugoslavs might not wait for the Germans to start the attack.

"We are at war already," he said, "and, mind you, we are not going to wait for the Germans to attack. We must start first because the attacker in this war has the advantage."

In the midst of the military bustle the German consulate has been closed and the Italian consul is leaving today.

A communique announced that Belgrade and the populous northern centres of Zagreb and Ljubljana would be proclaimed "open and undefended cities" in the event of war.

Belgrade, the national capital, scarcely 50 miles from the Rumanian frontier where German mechanized units and warplanes have been reported passing, was blacked-out for the first time last night in a half-hour emergency air raid drill.

All-night blackouts were staged in various communities in the strategic Vardar Valley, probable route of any German thrust toward Greece.

(British circles were silent on their probable course of action in event the Germans invaded Yugoslavia, but a Berlin spokesman said

U.S. Hoists Axis Ship Howl; Blames Italians

WASHINGTON, April 4—(AP).—President Roosevelt pinned responsibility for widespread sabotage directly on the Italian naval attache today, and State Secretary Hull curtly rejected Axis protests against United States seizure of 30 German and Italian ships.

It seems to have been proven, Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference, that a great deal of sabotage of Italian merchantmen was on order of Admiral Roberto Lais. Immediate recall of Lais, Italian naval attache at Washington, was demanded yesterday.

Asked to comment on this demand, the President said the newspapers had all the facts. He then added that the sabotage was of course illegal and only one course was open.

In rejecting the protests, Hull dismissed Germany's conception of treaty obligations in the seizures as "unthinkable" for "any civilized nation."

Bluntly, Hull expressed surprise at the "extreme assertions and de-

As Death Came

London, April 4 (CP)

HERE is a letter from 18-year-old Ruth Owen to a friend which was found by workmen clearing the debris of a Liverpool residential district bombed a month ago:—

"The time is now 8:45 p.m. A warning has just gone and the guns are going. I wish you were here with me. Everytime they dive I go all sick inside.

"I am going to read your letter and see if it will give me a bit of pluck. Bombs are crumping down close now.

"I am now lying under the table. We just had an incendiary bomb in the yard. My hand is shaking...."

Britons Shift Lines East To New Stand

Order Massaua Yield, 3,000 Italians Taken 2 Destroyers Scuttled

CAIRO, Egypt, April 4 (AP) — The Royal Air Force has struck back fiercely at German and Italian forces moving up the Mediterranean coast in Libya, Middle East headquarters announced today.

The Axis mechanized units had forced the withdrawal of British forces back 180 miles from the most advanced point of the British invasion of Libya, when the R.A.F. struck.

"Bomber aircraft of the R.A.F. made a heavy attack on enemy motor transport convoys in the Mersa Brega area of Tripolitania during the night of April 2-3," the communique said.
